EXTRA SESSION REBUFF IS SEEN FOR PRESIDENT

Roosevelt's Policies Under Fire.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—With a new depression developing, the Roosevelt economics under fire, and the President retreating from some of his radical innovations the Seventy-fifth congress will meet on Monday in extraordinary session.

In a message to congress the President will recommend passage of four major bills to round out his social and economic program. Greatest interest will attach, however, to anything he may have to say pertaining to the business recession which is demonstrating the failure of his panaceas and regarding measures for counteracting the downward economic spiral.

See Business Aid Pleas.

Either in this message or subsequent communications, Mr. Roosevelt is expected to ask for such legislation as may be necessary to implement his undertakings of the last few days to stimulate business revival. These plans envisage relief for the railroads, the attraction of private capital into residential construction, and the encouragement of plant expansion by public utilities. Lightening of taxes on business is scheduled for the succeeding session.

The four legislative projects for which the President called congress into extraordinary session are the following:

1. A permanent system of crop control, embodying Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace's plan for an ever normal granary, whereby surpluses in bountiful years would be stored for distribution in lean years. The department of agriculture estimates that the subsidy paid to coöperating farmers would cost 277 million dollars in addition to the 500 millions for the present soil conservation compensation while farm organization leaders estimate the total for soil conservation and the new crop control will touch 1 billion dollars.

Hours and Wages Rule.

2. Government fixing of minimum wages and maximum hours of labor in industry for the purpose of increasing the purchasing power of the one-third of the population which Mr. Roosevelt estimates is "ill nourished, ill clothed, and ill housed."

3. Reorganization of the administrative branch of the government so as to systematize functions, eliminate overlapping, and bring the independent boards and commissions under executive supervision.

4. Creation of seven additional conservation authorities similar to the Tennessee Valley authority, thereby dividing the country into 8 TVA regions a major purpose of which would be development of government owned and operated hydroelectric power.

Fifth One in Offing.

There is also a fifth legislative undertaking in the offing—the revision of the anti-trust laws to strengthen the arm of the government in stamping out monopoly. It is not likely to be pressed at the extraordinary session, however. Whether or not the President has forgotten all about this project, Speaker William B. Bankhead [D., Ala.] said Mr. Roosevelt did not even mention it in their conference on the session plans last Thursday.

The President complains that the courts have weakened the anti-trust laws. Senator William E. Borah [R., Idaho] says there is sufficient law to stamp out monopolies if it were only enforced. The Roosevelt administration, however, started out by suspending the anti-trust laws in the NRA and has found it difficult to cultivate the habit of trust busting.

Roosevelt, Garner Confer.

Today President Roosevelt conferred with Vice President Garner and Senate Majority Leader Barkley on speeding his program through the senate. Garner, who emerged from obscurity to take command of congress in the closing days of the last session which brought defeat of the administration's court packing plan, said his visit was purely social.

Barkley emerged with disturbing news to business. He declared that "in his judgment, we cannot act this session" on proposals for amendment of the undistributed profits and capital gains taxes to relieve debt-burdened business. It was felt, however, that overwhelming sentiment in

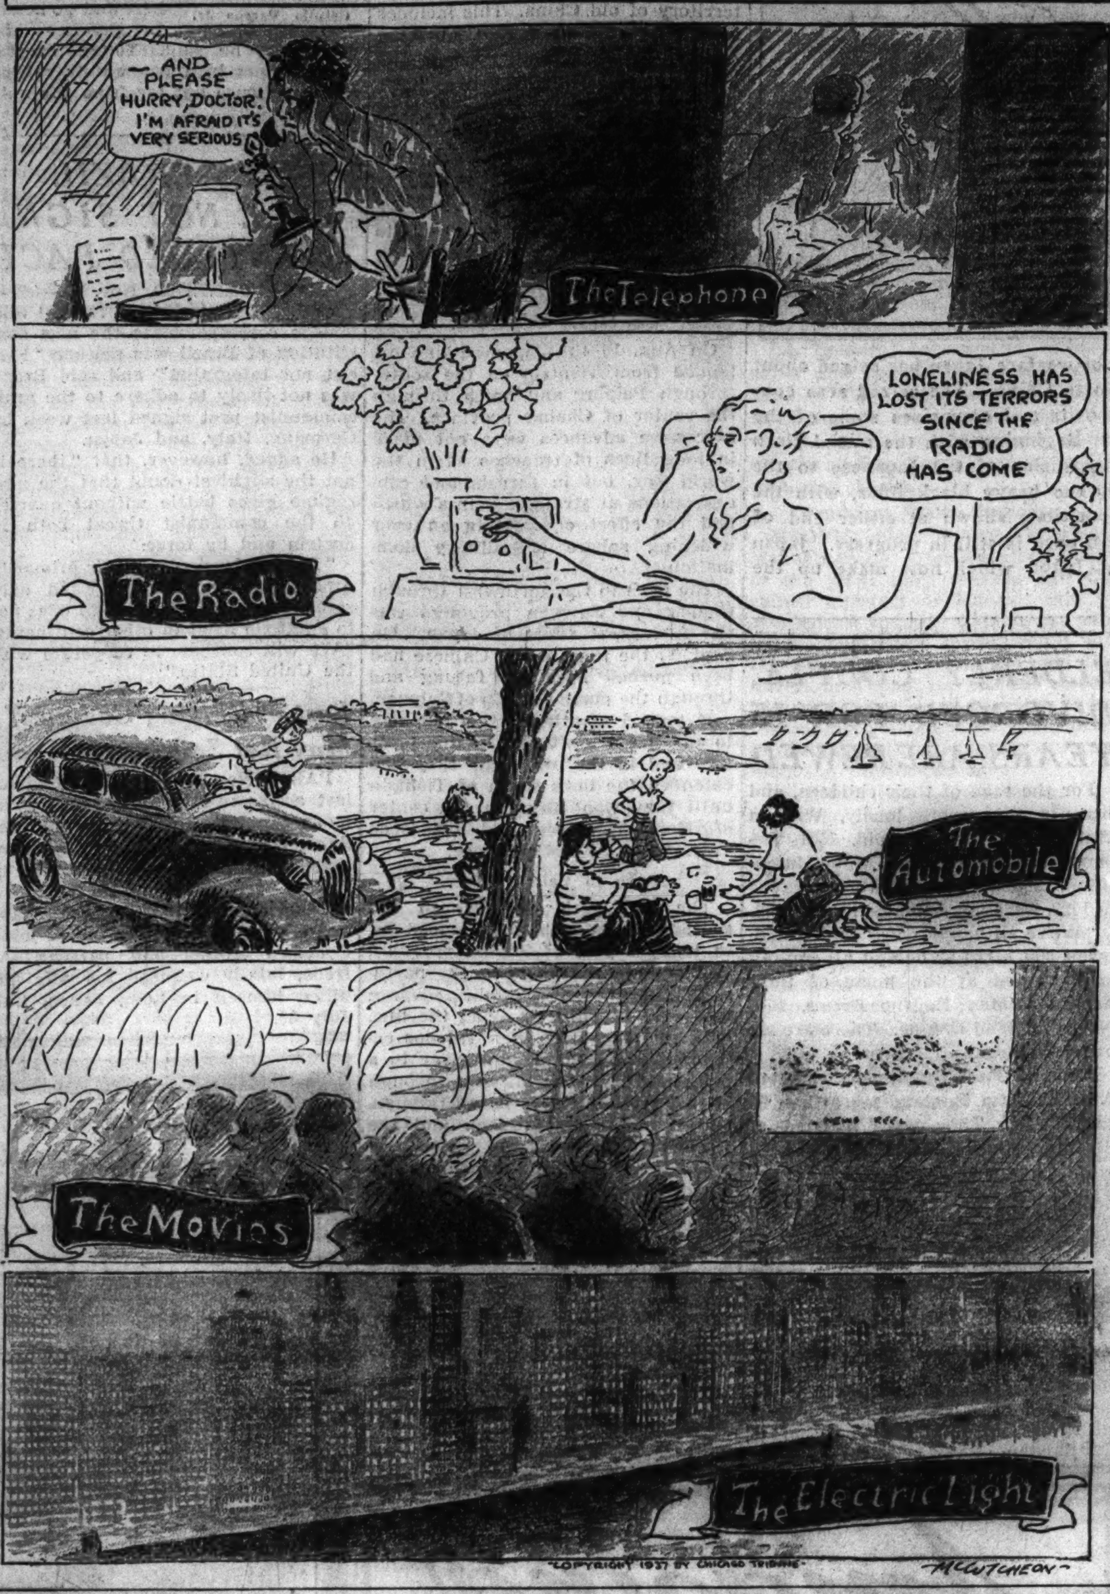
WHICH OF THESE WOULD HUMANITY MISS THE MOST?



Medinah Club Strike Settled After Turmoil

For fourteen hours yesterday Medinah club executives hauled water, made salads, and waited on tables. Room clerks fried potatoes and washed dishes. Bellboys ran elevators and changed bed linens.

Then at 7 p. m. a strike which had disorganized the services of the forty-four story building at 505 North Michigan avenue was settled, and things got back to normal.

The strike started at 5 a. m. without warning to the guests and apparently took the management by surprise. The night manager, Hal Minton, had time only to draw enough water for morning coffee. Water, heat, and power all were off. Only the elevators still worked.

Out They Go—All of 'Em.

Engineers, cooks, waiters, electricians, mechanics, elevator operators, maids, carpenters, bus boys — all walked out. The result was as Madrid under bombardment, Shanghai under siege. The 250 guests were without water, even for washing their hands.

Those who arose before 7 a. m. were fortune's favorites. They found a little cold water left in the taps. The other guests resorted to cold creams or bottled water for slight ablutions. Some women wore gloves to hide the dirt.

With no water, the club beauty shop, an elaborate place with nearly 100 booths, could not operate, even for manicures.

Banquets Are Canceled.

Three scheduled banquets and dinner dances, at which some 2,000 guests were expected, were canceled. One luncheon was held, attended by 130 women. To serve it the whole club turned to—even men from the credit department, who diced chicken.

Samuel B. Optner, managing director of the club, announced the settlement of the strike after a five hour conference with officials of the Trades and Craft council, a Chicago Federation of Labor affiliate made up of hotel employés' unions. Optner said all demands of the strikers had been satisfied, including wage increases and an agreement to have all the club's 600 employés organized as members of the 26 unions which make up the council.

CONGRESS' INTENTIONS LISTED AS A MYSTERY BY SENATOR ASHURST

Washington, D. C., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Senator Ashurst, who has held his position for twenty-six years, listed today the intentions of congress as one of four great mysteries for man.

"In times of classical antiquity," he explained, "there were two things unpredictable: The way of a man with a maid, and the way of an eagle on a rock [which way it will fly].

"Another unpredictable was added 150 years ago: What will a petit jury do?"

The last decade, the senator said, had added the question: "What will congress do?"

3 Days Old, Pronounces Her Name; Nurses Vouch for It

Fargo, N. D., Nov. 13.—[U. P.]—Nurses at St. Luke's hospital today recommended that all other child prodigies take a back seat. They told of a three day old girl able to pronounce her own last name. And they offered to give auditory proof to all skeptics. The remarkable child is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Waa.

Friendly Hug by Sherif Breaks Rib of His Friend

Boonville, Ind., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Gus Barclay, Warrick county sherif, is a very demonstrative person. When he met Bert Williams, a Boonville barber, also a friend, he slapped his arm around Williams' waist, gave him a "bear hug" and broke a rib.

New York, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Friends of Don Marquis, creator of "Archie and Mehitabel," "The Old Soak," and other literary characters, said today his condition is serious. He was stricken some time ago with paralysis.

It's Come at Last; Cows Go on Exhibition at Zoo

Washington, D. C., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Two cows are the newest addition to the national zoo. Officials said they were put on exhibition for the benefit of city-bred children who may not know the origin of milk.

Younghusband Seized in Fight at 5th Wedding

St. Petersburg, Fla., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—J. Leslie Younghusband, wealthy Chicago manufacturer of lipstick, never had a livelier wedding than the one of last night—his fifth.

Gathered to see him joined in the bonds of wedlock with Mary Louise Uhlmann of Grand Rapids, Mich., in the palatial Younghusband home on Snell Island, were many guests. But there were so many things Mr. Younghusband felt he must do for—and to—these friends that the ceremony, scheduled for 8 p. m., wasn't solemnized until after midnight.

Bride Takes It in Stride.

The bride didn't seem to mind. There was a swimming pool handy and she went for a dip while the delays piled up.

One of the guests became resentful about the hospitality dispensed. He is William H. Snyder, veteran police reporter of the St. Petersburg Times, and long before the nuptial knot was tied he had hied himself downtown and obtained a warrant charging Younghusband with assault and battery.

"I went to his wedding," said Snyder, "because he objected to the rest of our reporters. I was just tending to my business when somebody—I don't know who—remarked a reporter had written a story Younghusband wouldn't like. I asked, 'What reporter?' Then Younghusband punched me in the face."

Test Shows One Guest Sober.

An accommodating magistrate issued the warrant after Snyder had insisted that he be given a test to determine his condition. The test said he was sober.

While all this was going on, there was still more confusion on Snell Island. Another St. Petersburg reporter, P. C. Phillips, went out to take some of the balmy air in the garden and was met by a guest who was a perfect stranger to him.

"Are you going to jump in that swimming pool, or must I throw you in?" asked the stranger.

Phillips wasn't going to jump, so the stranger tossed him in.

The bridegroom, it was reported at

PUSH U. S. ARMY PLANS TO COPE WITH WAR PERIL

Oil Up Conscription Machinery.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—The smoldering threats of a new world conflict, visible in the Sino-Japanese and Spanish hostilities, have pitched the United States army into a furor of preparation.

Gen. Summerall, whose defense plans of decade ago are being perfected by army high command.

Within the last few weeks the army has revised plans for industrial mobilization. In order to speed up study of potential outputs of war materials, the army has abandoned the twenty year old practice of actual plant inspections and substituted circularization of factories.

The general staf is pushing revision of the conscription formula employed during the world war. Under the new program there will be no exemptions; those who would have received exemptions in the last war will be placed on a deferred list from which they may be sent to camp at a moment's notice.

Strive to Fill Corps.

The army also is feverishly pushing toward its goal of 165,000 men and 13,000 officers by the end of the year. Enlistments are being pressed as rapidly as rehabilitation and reorganization of the nation's armed forces.

The hustle and bustle of these preparations, many observers believe, have inspired war talk, and war talk in a measure is responsible for the jitters of the stock market. The army high command disclaims any share of responsibility for the market nervousness and insists that its goal merely is to bring the army up to the strength and perfection necessary to protect the nation's borders under the plan envisioned by Gen. Charles P. Summerall as chief of staf a decade ago. The war talk comes from Europe and the far east, the high command insists.

Scoff at Expeditionary Plans.

Army leaders pooh-poohed the suggestion that, in view of the fact the country now possesses what many believe to be the world's strongest navy, the preparations can mean only that the high command is concerned with sending the army abroad in the event of a world conflict. It was asserted the army is designed primarily for defense, although it was admitted that the American army may fight abroad, but only if this country selects the time and place.

The production secrets of 20,000 industrial plants, being gathered by circulars, are being locked in long rows of filing cabinets in the munitions building.

Twelve thousand of these plants have been allocated or assigned to one or more of the supply branches for the purpose of producing military supplies. Plant heads have been acquainted with what the army expects of them in time of war.

Plants Sign Agreements.

Most of the plants already have signed what are known as "accepted schedules of production," which state that they are prepared to perform the work assigned and will speed up production on an accepted schedule. These schedules have no legal status but are pledges of coöperation which can be given legal weight through passage of an industrial mobilization act in the event of hostilities.

The industrial mobilization plan is an outgrowth of the confusion which followed the nation's entry into the world war. Various branches of the army and navy competed with each other in seeking outputs of various plants, skyrocketing prices and hampering deliveries. To gather the fruits of coöperation, the national defense act placed the task of industrial mobilization on the assistant secretary of war.

The planning goes beyond determining which plants shall supply the army and which shall give their out-

Robbers Slay 2 Merchants; Another Shot

Two business men were wantonly shot and killed and another was severely wounded by bandits in two separate crimes last night. In a third shooting incident three young hoodlums, who were admittedly planning a series of holdups, traded shots with a police squad. All were captured. The actions occurred on the north, south, and west sides.

The murder victims were Harry Rubin, 31 years old, 6110 Eberhart avenue, co-owner of the Michigan Poultry company, 118 East 51st street, and John T. Parker, 57 years old, 3618 65th place, owner of a gasoline service station at 523 South Oakley boulevard. Rubin's brother, Sam Rubin, 28 years old, 6220 Eberhart avenue, was critically wounded.

Protest Brings Bullets.

The Rubins were the victims of two colored bandits who accosted them outside their store just after they had closed up for the night. Sam Rubin carried $238, the day's receipts, and protested against the holdup.

Without further warning one of the gunmen fired two shots. One bullet hit Harry Rubin in the right lung, causing his death a few minutes later. The second bullet entered Sam Rubin's mouth. The robbers fled. The brothers were taken to the Chicago hospital, where Harry was pronounced dead. The robbers did not get the money.

Shot as He Resists Bandit Pair.

Parker was killed by a quick trigger gunman who entered his filling station office with a confederate. A third man waited in a 1928 model car outside. He apparently resisted their robbery efforts and was shot near the heart. Benjamin Guastaferra, 2306 Harrison street, and Jerry Mullins, 530 South Campbell avenue, saw the killers escape east in Harrison street, and described them as young men. The witnesses did not see the actual killing.

Parker's murder was particularly tragic for his wife, Ophelia. Yesterday was her fifty-fifth birthday, and she was waiting for him to return home for a late birthday supper with her and their daughter, Mrs. Ann Lewis. Mrs. Parker was opening a birthday gift from her husband when she was told of his death.

Fire on Three in Stolen Car.

The three young hoodlums were captured after a police squad had sighted them in a stolen car at Pulaski road and Lawrence avenue and pursued them to the 5300 block of St. Louis avenue. Cut off by the north branch of the Chicago river, the hoodlums leaped from their car and one or more of them fired half a dozen shots at their pursuers, Policemen Frank Pape and Sidney Levinson of the Albany Park station. The policemen fired ten shots.

All three youths were captured, and, according to police, admitted stealing the car for a robbery tour.

They are Edward Sopello, 18 years old, 1520 Walton street; Edward Buganski, 17, of 1526 Walton street, and Bohdan Filipow, 20, of 2447 North Albany avenue.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Nov. 13.—Taking the stand that Japan's refusal to talk peace under the terms of the nine power treaty is a challenge to international order, the United States, France, and England today summoned the powers gathered here to adopt a common defense in the face of this challenge.

Concluding a biting "statement of position," submitted to the conference by the representatives of the big three powers and actually drafted by them with the help of Paul Spaak of Belgium, president of the conference, the conference leaders declared:

"While hoping that Japan will not maintain her refusal, the states represented at the Brussels conference must consider what is to be their common attitude in a situation where one party to an international treaty maintained, against the views of all other parties, that the action it is taking does not come within the scope of that treaty and seeks to set aside the provisions of the treaty which the other parties hold are operative in the circumstances."

Draft Tentatively Adopted.

The whole declaration was discussed paragraph by paragraph here this afternoon and was approved by the majority during the night. However, the formal vote will not be taken until Monday, as the Italians and the Scandinavians did not feel able to commit themselves definitly to decisions of such gravity without instructions from their governments. The Italian delegate, Count Luigi Aldrovandi-Marescotti, as expected, intimated his disapproval of the whole document, and the best that can be expected from him is that he will abstain in the final vote.

If the already much revised key passage of the declaration previously cited is adopted by the whole conference Monday without substantial amendments, it will have the following meaning:

The original object of this conference—to restore peace in China by mediation—will be overshadowed by the new situation which has arisen.

Only Two Courses Open.

This new stage of the conference will start from the Geneva premise that Japan has violated the nine power pact in defiance of world opinion.

[The nations which signed the nine power treaty Feb. 6, 1922, in Washington, D. C., are: The United States, Belgium, Great Britain, China, France, Italy, Japan, the Netherlands, and Portugal. Subsequently five other nations, Norway, Bolivia, Sweden, Denmark, and Mexico, adhered to its provisions. All of the 14 nations except Japan are attending the Brussels conference, and in addition, Russia and the representatives of the British dominions, Australia, Canada, New Zealand, India, and the Union of South Africa as countries with special interests in the Pacific.]

By definition, Japan's action now becomes a grave international crisis, and the problem of the powers gathered here will be to decide what to do about it.

As they have already condemned Japan, they have only two courses open to them. They will either have to punish Japan by means of direct aid to China or boycott Japan—or both—or else content themselves with repeating the condemnation in more formal terms while admitting their impotence to punish the offender.

In any case the conference cannot now adjourn until it has taken a stand either for or against punitive action. Consequently the conference, after recessing Monday, will convene again toward the end of the week and even if it is adjourned after that conditions of adjournment will have to be fixed first.

In other words, the powers at the conference can stall for a while, but cannot evade the ultimate issue of backing down themselves or making Japan back down.

Challenge Japanese Concepts.

The following excerpts from the declaration submitted jointly by the American, French, and British delegations show how far the three principal powers of the conference are committed to the condemnation of Japan.

"It is clear," the declaration states, "that the Japanese concepts of the issues and interests involved in the conflict under reference are utterly different from the concepts of most of the other nations and governments of the world.

"It cannot be denied that the present hostilities between Japan and China adversely affect not only the rights of all nations but also the material interests of all nations. These hostilities have brought to some nationals of their countries widespread destruction, to the people of all nations a sense of horror and indignation, and to all the world feelings of uncertainty and apprehension.

Called Concern of All Nations.

"The representatives met at Brussels therefore regard these hostilities and the situation of which they are a part as matters inevitably of concern to the countries which they [the delegates] represent and—more—to the whole world. To them the problem appears not in terms simply of relations between two countries in the far east but in terms of law and orderly processes, world security and world peace.

"The Japanese government has affirmed that in its use of armed force in China it is animated by a desire to lead the government of that country to alter its policy. The representatives met at Brussels are moved to point out that there exists no warant in law for intervention by armed force of a country in the internal affairs of another country without purpose and that any general assumption of such right would inevitably lead to continuous conflict.

Fear a Long Conflict.

"There is every reason to believe that if this matter were left entirely to the devices of the Japanese and Chinese, armed conflict would continue indefinitly. The Japanese government, in its latest communication, invites the powers represented at Brussels to make a contribution to the stability of eastern Asia in accordance with the realities of the situation. In view of the representatives of the states met at Brussels, the essential realities of the situation are those to which they draw attention.

"They still believe that if the parties in the conflict would agree to a cessation of hostilities in order to give an opportunity for such procedure to be tried, success might be achieved. The Chinese delegation has intimated its readiness to fall in with this procedure. The representatives of the states met at Brussels find it difficult to understand Japan's persistent refusal to discuss such a matter."

Speeches Made for "Big Three."

The declaration of the conference was submitted by he "big three" in speeches made this morning by Norman H. Davis, head of the American delegation; Capt. Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, and Yvon Delbos, French foreign minister. Davis' speech was the weakest, in the opinion of observers, and Delbos' the strongest.

In Davis' speech, notably, there was no reference to consultation among the powers over the situation created by Japan's refusal and no clear denunciation of the principles of the anti-communist pact as voiced by Capt. Eden and Delbos.

According to some reports this originally figured in the draft of Davis' speech, but was deleted on last minute orders from Washington, D. C.

On the other hand, the same idea is expressed in the joint declaration to which America's name is attached, along with the names of France and Great Britain.

Original Draft Strengthened.

In this afternoon's discussions the original three power draft was strengthened rather than weakened—notably by deletion of anything resembling another appeal to Japan.

When the Italian delegate proposed approaching Japan again to elucidate certain passages in the Japanese reply, he was squelched promptly by Eden, Davis, and Delbos, and Senator Dan Durant of Canada.

Portugal, Mexico, and the Netherlands supported the draft as it stood. M. Potemkin, speaking for soviet Russia, went further and said that the time for effective collective action had arrived. S. M. Bruce of Australia supported the declaration but went still further in a fighting speech pointing toward a boycott of Japan.

200,000 CHINESE CIVILIANS FACE BOMBING BY JAPS

Trapped in City After Being Warned to Flee.

BULLETIN.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 14 (Sunday).—(AP)—A Japanese communique reported capture today of Liuho, Taitsang, and Waiking, Chinese positions twenty miles northwest of Shanghai. The three towns form an arc inland from the Yangtze river extending from northwest to west in the direction of Quinsan, where another battle was being fought.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Some 200,000 Chinese civilians were trapped by disrupted transportation in Soochow tonight, unable to heed a Japanese ultimatum to evacuate the ancient city in the path of their advance toward Nanking.

A Japanese spokesman announced yesterday that Soochow and the neighboring city of Wusih would be bombed because of their "industrial areas in which Chinese military supplies are manufactured." Leaflets from Japanese war planes warned the populace to flee by midnight.

The Japanese advance swept thirty miles west of Shanghai pursuing the Chinese legions retreating to their "Hindenburg line," fifty miles west of the city. A Japanese spokesman announced that the vanguard of the center column was approaching the outskirts of Kunshan, its objective twenty miles east of Soochow.

Kiating Is Occupied.

The Japanese front, which yesterday was a great arc, quickly changed tonight into a snaky line from Kiating, eighteen miles northwest of Shanghai, through Kunshan, to Kashan, forty miles southwest of Shanghai. The spokesman said the northern and southern columns were pressing westward after occupation of Kiating and Kashan.

United States Consul General Clarence E. Gauss, in Shanghai, was negotiating with Japanese officials to establish a safety zone at Soochow, known to Chinese for 2,000 years as "Paradise Under Heaven." Gauss was acting at the request of United States Ambassador Nelson Johnson, to whom American missionaries had appealed for help.

Reports to Shanghai, however, said that all foreigners as well as wealthier Chinese had evacuated the ancient city, which is one of China's cultural centers.

With the war far beyond Shanghai, the municipal council attacked food hoarders and profiteers who had attempted to corner the rice and flour market while 1,500,000 Chinese residents of the international settlements were virtually bankrupt.

Fix Uniform Price on Rice.

The council supplied retail stores from its own rice stocks, fixing a uniform price and allowing each buyer only one dollar's worth at a time. There was little danger of a food shortage, as the municipality has nearly 3,000,000 bags of flour.

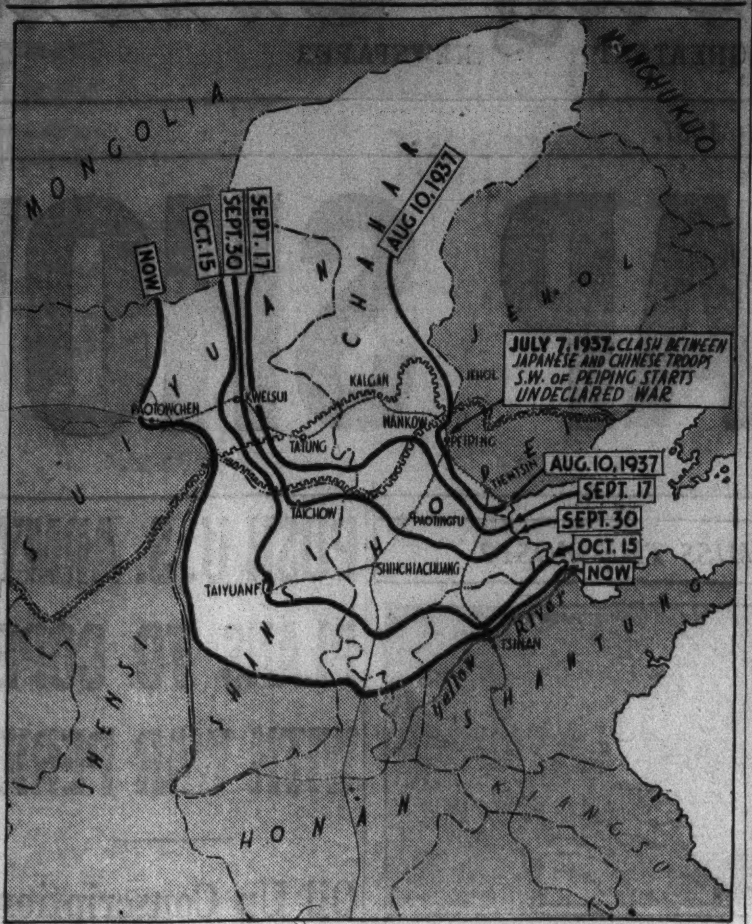
The Chinese boom across the upper Whangpoo river was destroyed today and a Japanese gunboat made an exploratory voyage that indicated Japan was preparing to use the stream to supply its westward advancing armies.

POLICE QUIZ TWO ON ATTEMPT TO KIDNAP FARMER

Two men arrested Friday in Joliet were turned over by the detective bureau to Lake county authorities early today for investigation in connection with the kidnap attempt on George Popp, 77 years old, wealthy farmer near Wheeling. The prisoners are James O'Toole, 31 years old, who has served two Bridewell sentences, and Roy Heischman, 41 years old, an exconvict. Both live in Joliet.

Popp, two sons and a daughter viewed the prisoners yesterday but could not identify them as the gunmen who raided their farm on Nov. 5. A pair of rimless spectacles and a bloodstained cap, dropped by the outlaws as they fled, provided police with clews.

How Japanese Army Is Carving Up China



In a little more than four months of warfare Japan has seized about 250,000 square miles of territory in North China. The seized area contains some of the richest mineral deposits and comprises some of the best agricultural lands in the far east. Beginning with the initial clash near Peiping on July 7, the steady expansion of the Japanese to the south, west, and north is indicated by the heavy black lines, with the dates on which they reached these positions shown at either end of the lines. The southward and westward push is still in progress. Japan had previously seized Manchuria and Jehol, which now make up the puppet state of Manchukuo.

Japanese troops driving inland from Shanghai yesterday extended their lines in snakelike fashion as shown by heavy broken line in map. Arrows indicate: 1—Kiating, occupation of which was completed by the Japanese. 2—Kashan, through which the new line runs from Kiating south to Hangchow bay. 3—Wusih and Soochow, which Japanese plan to bomb and in which 200,000 civilians are trapped by breakdown of transportation.

FIND NUDE BODY OF YOUNG WIFE IN PARK BUSHES

St. Joseph, Mo., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Children playing in Riverside park on the bluff overlooking the Missouri river late today found the virtually nude body of Mrs. Goldie L. Lyons. Identification was made by her husband, L. C. Lyons, who said she had not been at home since Thursday night.

Mrs. Lyons, 26 years old, had been gagged with her underclothing and bore a long cut on her chin. However, Dr. Leroi Beck, acting coroner, was unable to determine immediately how she died. He said she had been dead since last night, and might have been raped.

The Lyons live in a railroad neighborhood, three miles from the park where Charles Watson, 13, and his sister, Ann, 11, found the body concealed in bushes. Most of her clothing had been tossed in a pile beside the body.

ELDERLY COUPLE, DIVORCED FOR 15 YEARS, ARE REWED

For the sake of their children, and because they were lonely, William Hutchinson, 76 years old, 1551 Wabansia avenue, and Mrs. Annie Hutchinson, 72 years old, who were divorced in 1922, were married again yesterday.

"We're all happy now," said Hutchinson last night as he and his smiling wife visited at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Eugene Drews, 1643 North Ashland avenue. There are six other children, all grown.

Mr. and Mrs. Hutchinson came to America from England more than 55 years ago. They were married at Streator, Ill., in 1885, and raised 15 children, eight of whom have died. They lived most of their married life in Duquoin, Ill., where Hutchinson was a miner.

MOSCOW, Nov. 13.—(AP)—The Stalinabad newspaper today reported death sentences for eight persons convicted of sabotage in the cotton growing Ordjonikidzebad region of Tadjikistan.

JAPAN WINS VAST AND RICH LAND IN 4 MONTHS OF WAR

Captures 250,000 Square Miles of Territory.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Japan's mighty war machine, motivated by its sense of a "divine mission" from its god and emperor, has in four months, by successive waves of advance that seem as irresistible as the sea, extended control over an estimated 250,000 square miles of the territory of old China. This includes some of the greatest coal and iron deposits in China, salt, gypsum, and grazing lands. Behind the army flows the Japanese industrial and commercial line of development.

The undeclared war began on July 7 of this year in a clash at the Marco Polo bridge near Peiping. Japanese troops encamped there were said to have been maneuvering in mock battle, which the Chinese mistook for a real advance.

Jap Moves Described.

On Aug. 10 the Japanese line extended from Tientsin on the south, through Peiping and north through the center of Chahar province. The successive advances were not made in long lines of trenches as in the world war, but in thrusts and concentrations at strategic points which had the effect of creating an ever widening sphere of military domination.

The push in the northwest through Chahar and Suiyuan provinces was the first great effort of Japan. On Sept. 17 the lines of the Chinese had been pushed back of Tatung and through the northwest tip of Suiyuan.

It took a month for the Japanese to advance a few miles in this province and in the meantime they had extended the lines south of Tientsin until they went through the center of Hopei province and embraced Taichow, in Shansi province.

Push to Yellow River.

The next push centered in the southwest, where the lines moved out to take in part of Shansi province, still holding the gains in the northwest. Since Oct. 15 a mighty advance has been recorded all along the line, with the control of their trooops extending along the Yellow river to a point north of Tsinan, west through Shansi, in a long loop around Taiyuan, and north to Paotowchen and the Mongolian border.

Japanese territorial expansion began in 1895, with the taking of Formosa and Pescadores, and has included Port Arthur, Corea, the Pacific mandate islands, the state of Manchuria and then Jehol. Hopei, Chahar, Suiyuan, Shansi and Shantung are supposed to constitute the area of a new puppet state.

SON OF BRAZIL'S RULER AT JOHNS HOPKINS IS CHEMISTRY STUDENT

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 13.—[Special.] President Getulio Vargas of Brazil gained dictatorial power by a coup a few days ago, but Getulio Vargas Jr. is only mildly excited about it. Young Vargas is a student of chemical engineering in Johns Hopkins university in Baltimore. He said his father is the only member of the family who is interested in politics. He will finish his course here and go home to practice his profession, he said. Young Vargas has quarters in a moderately priced rooming house not far from the university.

INSISTS BRAZIL WILL NOT SIGN ANTI-RED PACT

RIO DE JANEIRO, Nov. 13.—(AP)—President Getulio Vargas tonight told foreign correspondents the new constitution of Brazil was neither "Fascist nor integralist" and said Brazil was not likely to adhere to the anticommunist pact signed last week by Germany, Italy, and Japan.

He added, however, that "there is not the slightest doubt that the new régime gives battle without quarter to the communist threat both in doctrin and by force."

"Brazil's foreign policy is primarily American," he asserted, "and only secondarily European. Brazil tries not to entangle itself in other continents. "We will continue to coöperate with the United States."

Last of "Flying Codonas" May Not Sail in Air Again

PARIS, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Lalo Codona, last active member of a family famous for its performances on the flying trapeze, was told by physicians today he probably never would be able to perform again. He fell into a net last night at the Cirque Medrano and a shoulder was torn out of joint. Codona's brother and partner, Alfredo, fatally wounded his wife and killed himself in Long Beach, Cal., July 30.

HUNTER IS KILLED BY FALL AGAINST COMPANION'S GUN

Byron Poe, 26 years old, of Woodstock, was shot to death yesterday while hunting pheasants on the farm of John E. Sheridan, east of Woodstock. He tripped and fell against the shotgun of a companion, Richard Tuttle. The charge struck Poe in the head, killing him instantly. Poe, a factory worker, is survived by his widow and three children.

Frank Lakonski, 55 years old, 3031 Farrell street, was in a serious condition in Holy Cross hospital yesterday after he was shot in both thighs in a hunting accident near Danforth in Iroquois county.

The 5 day open season for pheasants in Illinois closes tomorrow.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

BRITISH AGREE TO PROTECT DUTCH INDIES FROM JAPS

New Arrangements with Holland Disclosed.

BY SAM BREWER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 13.—New arrangements to help Holland if Japan should make a grab for her rich East Indies colonies have been made by the British since the outbreak of the war in China, it was learned tonight.

Ever since 1843 there has been a treaty providing a British guarantee of the neutrality of the Dutch East Indies. Now the British and Dutch naval authorities have made definite arrangements for coöperation in case Japan should try to seize the rich islands for their oil.

Batavia provides half of Japan's supply of petroleum and the Dutch long have been nervous about the covetous glances cast that way by both Germany and Japan.

Warships, Planes Added.

Last month announcement was made by the Netherlands of a $46,650,000 defense budget, a large share of which was for the East Indies.

Eighteen submarines, three cruisers, twelve destroyers, and seventy-two airplanes are being added to the East Indies fleet, which already had four cruisers, six destroyers, and twelve submarines.

Forty American made Martin bombers were added to the army's defense there last spring. The chief defense, however, is Britain, which feels that it could not afford to let an ambitious power have those islands, which lie right across the trade routes to Australia and New Zealand.

Report Tanks Are Mined.

All of Japan's petroleum that does not come from the United States comes from these islands, and some quarters feel that Japan might feel tempted to snatch them if the United States supply should be cut off by the neutrality laws of war.

The Dutch have let it be known that Japan would not get the oil reserves even if it got the islands. The Dutch have planted huge mines under the storage tanks and the plant, ready to blow them up, if necessary, they say.

Tons of Potatoes Blown Right Into Larders of Poor

SAINT JOHN, N. B., Nov. 13.—[U. P.]—It was an ill enough wind which blew the Norwegian freighter Aakre on the rocks of the New Brunswick coast, but it blew nothing but good for Saint John's needy. The steamer's cargo of potatoes was taken off and dumped on the city docks today. Relief officials turned the entire lot over to the town's hundreds of poor families. The supply is expected to last all winter.

Artist Sues Actress

This portrait of Constance Bennett, by Willy Pogany, bears no resemblance to its subject in the eyes, the mouth, or the hands, movie star asserts.

Here is a recent photograph of Miss Bennett.

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—The age-old controversy of whether a painter should interpret through the brush or reconstruct his subject in a photographic likeness wages anew. This question is the issue in a suit filed this week by Willy Pogany, portrait artist, against Constance Bennett, actress.

Pogany began action to collect $3,500 from the actress for an oil portrait which he charges Miss Bennett requested him to paint and then refused to accept. The latter answered that the "canvas was in no sense satisfactory," asserting it did not look like her.

"When you sit for a portrait you would like to see some resemblance of yourself," the actress remarked.

Pogany asserted that he refused to jeopardize his professional standing by accepting suggestions from Miss Bennett as to how the picture was to be painted and based his action on the principle that the artist has the right to interpret character and spiritual qualities of this subject as he sees them.

LABORITES LOOK ON WINDSOR AS NEAR NUISANCE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 13.—British labor leaders, furious over the duke of Windsor's reputed Fascist tendencies and his associations with Charles E. Bedaux, millionaire American sponsor of a bonus production system in industry, are attempting to foster an atmosphere of antagonism toward the former king.

A demand was made yesterday by Herbert Morrison, Labor member of parliament and chief of the London county council, that the duke fade from public life unless he wants to became a "nuisance."

His statement was followed by charges from political labor quarters that Edward's choice of friends and his publicly announced intention to study social conditions indicate either "ignorance" or a departure from the habit of "neutrality" in public controversies demanded from members of the British royal family.

Edward was accused of having placed himself in a position to be exploited by those who might stand to profit thereby.

REBELS REPULSE RENEWED DRIVES ON ARAGON FRONT

Spanish Loyalists Leave 500 Dead on Field.

HENDAYE, France, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Spanish insurgents reported tonight Gen. Francisco Franco's rebel troops had repulsed renewed government attacks in the hotly contested Sabinanigo sector of the northern Aragon front in Northeast Spain. Government militiamen were forced to abandon 500 dead and 1,000 wounded on the battlefield in the latest engagement, the reports said.

Government warplanes and artillery bombarded insurgent concentrations along the entire Aragon front in an effort to delay a planned insurgent drive to cut Catalonia from the rest of government Spain.

Bomb Rebel Positions.

Rebel concentrations were bombed at Teruel, Calatayud, Moline de Aragon, and Pamplona, where, insurgent headquarters reported, more than 100 were killed.

[A Spanish government communique said loyalist troops took positions at Campo Corono and Cuesta del Batanero, in upper Aragon. This report minimized insurgent plane attacks at Barcelona, Tarragona, Lerida, and Azaila.]

President Visits Trenches.

MADRID, Nov. 13.—(AP)—President Manuel Azana, after an all-day visit to the front line trenches and the ruined quarters of Madrid, said in a broadcast tonight that he was confident government forces would win the Spanish civil war. He said the government and its military forces are stronger than at any time since the conflict started. Everything must be subjugated to winning the conflict, the president said.

Duce's Son Leaves Spain.

[Copyright: 1937: By the New York Times.]

ROME, Nov. 13.—Premier Mussolini's second son, Bruno, returned home today after six weeks of active service for rebel Spain, mostly on the island of Mallorca. He was accompanied by a number of Italian air officers. One report said loyalist planes made Mallorca so hot after Bruno arrived that Spanish authorities had him called home.

TWO RESERVE CLASSES CALLED BACK BY DUCE

ROME, Nov. 13.—(AP)—The Official Gazette said today that all noncommissioned officers and men of the 1908 and 1909 army classes were being called back for military training in eight districts. The call was in keeping with Premier Mussolini's plan to keep reserves fit. Reservists of these and other classes have been receiving postcards notifying them to appear for special instruction of unlimited duration. Another decree retained in service all air force radio operators, automobile drivers, and mechanics of the 1915 class.

Germany Eager for Pact with Britain and France

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 13.—Viscount Halifax, British lord president of the council, will arrive in Berlin next Wednesday to confer with Reichsfuehrer Hitler and his chief aids. Officially his visit is termed private, but the best informed circles here declared he will discuss three vital problems with Germany's dictator: The question of a new western pact to take the place of the defunct Locarno pact, the current Chinese-Japanese conflict, and Germany's claim for colonies.

Viscount Halifax.

For months Germany's diplomats have been trying to induce British officials to pay a visit to Berlin. Lord Londonderry, former British air minister, and his friends supported the German efforts.

Germans Highly Pleased.

Sir Neville Henderson, Great Britain's new ambassador to Berlin, also worked in the same direction, but found the going pretty hard. Consequently the visit of Viscount Halifax, even if it is labeled "as a tourist visit to Berlin's hunting show," was greeted as a great triumph by German diplomats.

They realize that France will sign a new western pact only if she has definite assurances that trouble will be avoided with her ally, Czechoslovakia. Therefore German diplomats have been attempting to smooth the friction between Czechoslovakia and Germany within the last few days. A new commercial treaty between Germany and Czechoslovakia helped to ease the tension.

Treaty Pleases Czechs.

The Czechs declared the new treaty was the most satisfactory one they ever have signed with Germany. A recent speech by Dr. Kamil Krofta, Czech foreign minister, on the question of foreign minorities in Czechoslovakia was greeted favorably by most of the German press. The possibility of the signature of a nonaggression pact between Germany and Czechoslovakia was being discussed assiduously in diplomatic circles, although radical Nazi circles are opposed to it.

The British stated that if Germany signed a nonaggression pact with Czechoslovakia, they might be able to induce France to relinquish her demands for collective security which Germany has opposed ever since she left the league of nations.

In view of Germany's new friendship with Italy, the German chief of state will attempt to induce Halifax to work with the Germans to create a regular "four power pact" including Germany, Italy, France and Great Britain. To achieve this result it would be necessary for England and France to recognize Italy's Ethiopian empire, which the Germans realize may be difficult.

Soviet Murders Alarm England.

Germany does not expect that considerations for France's ally, Russia, will complicate the negotiations with Halifax greatly because it is felt that England as well as France "is alarmed by the wave of systematic murder sweeping over the soviets."

Germany also will lend coöperation to help restore peace in the far east, but she does not believe that it can be done through an international conference. She believes that better progress can be made by unofficial negotiations between two warring nations.

Germany's colonial experts have worked out a long report on all aspects of the colonial problem and Germany's claim to colonies. German officials intimated that if an agreement can be reached, Germany will be willing to return to a new international body similar to the league of nations, which "must be reorganized before Germany can return to it."

When Halifax lands at the Berlin airdrome next Wednesday he will be welcomed by Col. Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, minister of air.

Belvidere, Ill., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Melvin Owens, 19, of Rockford, confessed stealing the pocketbook of Mrs. Mary Merthik, Prentice, Wis., while she was sleeping in her seat on a Chicagobound Greyhound bus, Sherif Fred Smith said today. The sherif said Owens led him to a corn crib where he had hidden the purse containing $30 and life insurance policies for $3,500.

POLISH CHRISTIAN MERCHANTS MAP FIGHT ON JEWS

Conference Opens with Official Backing.

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Poland, Nov. 13.—Five thousand delegates attended the opening here today of the first all-Polish congress of Christian merchants. Government ministers, representatives of state controled banks and other heavily subsidized commercial institutions and organizations joined merchants in debating the best methods of outlawing Jews from trade in Poland.

The congress was held under the patronage of President Ignace Moscicki of Poland. The delegates attended special services conducted by Cardinal Alexander Kakowski, Roman Catholic archbishop of Warsaw, in St. John's cathedral.

President Moscicki entertained delegates of the congress at tea in Warsaw castle where, a few hours previously, he had received a large delegation of Jews led by Prof. Mojzesz Schorr, chief rabbi of Warsaw.

Present Appeal to President.

Rabbi Schorr read an appeal to the president requesting government aid for Poland's stricken Jewry. An official communique stated:

"The president told the delegates that the government would continue to combat all symptoms of anarchy and maintain public order in the country."

The congress of Christian merchants, which has revived panic among Polish Jews, is subsidized by the government.

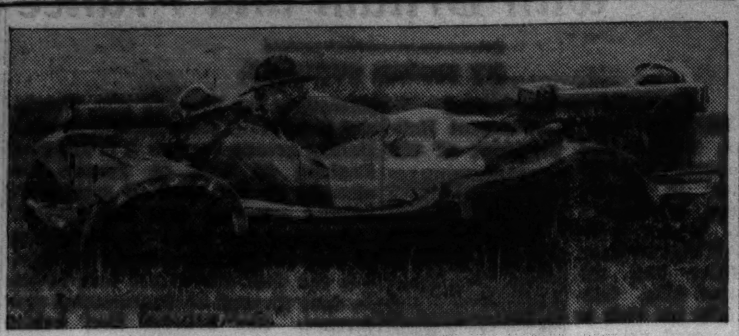
Although Eugene Kwiatkowski, minister of finance, and Antoni Roman, minister of industry and commerce, carefully avoided mention of Jews in their speeches, the propaganda handed to the delegates declared that 70 per cent of Poland's internal trade remained in Jewish hands. It contended that the Poles must seize control of the economic life of the country.

Plan of Action Outlined.

The subjects to be discussed included the best methods for state and government controled institutions to collaborate with Polish Christian merchants to banish Jews from business.

It was proposed to eliminate Jews hereafter from dealing in goods needed by the army, railroads, government monopolies and other government institutions; to expel Jews from merchant associations where their membership still is permitted; to strengthen the campaign to boycott Jewish merchants and to help Poles enter retail trade; and to restrict financial and credit facilities for Jews in state controled banks.

Army Tests Machine Gun Carrier



[Acme Photo.]

A newly invented automotive machine gun carrier, intended to make it possible to use the weapon while it is being moved from one place to another and to eliminate loss of time in repeatedly setting it up, is being tested in maneuvers at Fort Sam Houston, Tex. The motor is at the rear of the vehicle. Sergt. M. C. Wiley, one of the inventors, is operating the gun while Corporal B. W. Russell drives.

PUSH U. S. ARMY PLANS TO COPE WITH WAR PERIL

puts to the navy. It has embraced study of which plants can be turned from commercial to war material production.

There also has been investigation of raw materials, price fixing, requisition, contract forms and other phases of the problem. A legislative program embodying all features of the plan has been prepared for submission to congress should an emergency arise.

"I feel that we are better prepared than ever before," said Col. Charles T. Harris Jr., director of the planning office of Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson. "I do not call it planning for war but planning for peace.

Preparation Is Peace Step.

"I think the best way a rich nation like ours can keep out of war is to be so prepared that no nation will risk forcing it into war. I am strongly opposed to war. I consider it the most futile undertaking in which any nation can engage, and even the winner ultimately becomes a loser."

Revision of the conscription plan would abolish the various exemption classes of the world war conscription program. Technically there will be no exemption, even for the physically unfit, on the theory that they might be eligible for some form of limited service.

Married men, married men with families, and other classes previously exempted will be placed on deferred lists. They can be taken from these deferred lists without the unraveling of the masses of red tape which such transfers from the exempted classes occasioned during the last war.

Aim to Save Time

San Antonio, Tex., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—A newly invented automotive machine gun carrier is being tested in the current maneuvers of regular army troops at Fort Sam Houston. The purpose of the carrier is to eliminate the chief objection to the machine gun, the loss of time in removing it from one position and setting it up in another.

The vehicle is low slung and is intended to enable a machine gun operator to spray positions in front of him during an advance or retreat while a second man drives the car.

The carrier was invented in the infantry school at Fort Benning by Capt. Robert G. Howie and Sergt. M. C. Wiley under the supervision of Brig. Gen. Walter C. Short of Fort Niagara, N. Y.

GERMAN BRANCH OF JEWISH NEWS AGENCY CLOSED

Action Violates Treaty, Americans Claim.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 13.—The German branch of the Jewish Telegraphic Agency, an American firm, which has been supplying foreign news for nearly 50 Jewish publications in Germany, has been ordered closed by German secret police. No reason was given.

The American consul in Berlin took up the issue with the police, since, according to American official opinion, the action was a distinct violation of the first paragraph of the German-American treaty of friendship and commercial and consular rights signed in December, 1925, and renegotiated in 1935 in the Nazi régime.

Police promised a thorough investigation.

Treaty Guarantees Rights.

Under the terms of the American-German agreement, the nationals of both contracting countries have the right to engage in scientific, commercial, and other activities not forbidden by local laws. Under the provisions of this agreement a number of American news agencies sell their news to German papers or exchange their foreign news for German news.

The Jewish agency was among these and its German branch was incorporated as a company under German law.

In the first big anti-Jewish wave under the Nazis in 1933 the offices of the agency were closed for a few days, but allowed to reopen. A few months ago Boris Smolar, American correspondent of the agency, was ordered expelled, but the order was rescinded upon intervention of the American consul.

Stop All Activities.

At present the office is under the direction of Otto Schick, an Austrian born Jew. Five officials called on Schick yesterday and presented a typewritten police document ordering that the offices be closed immediately and that all professional activities of the agency be stopped.

A decree signed by the late President Paul von Hindenburg in 1933 "for the protection of the people and the state" was cited as the legal basis for the measure. Police raided the premises, but confiscated nothing.

The police indicated that Smolar, who has been absent from Germany, will be forbidden to reënter Germany.

Educated in Chicago.

In January, 1936, Smolar's passport was taken in a search of his hotel room. It was said he was suspected of mailing false news. After a hearing, however, the passport was restored and police apologized.

In March, 1937, Smolar was ordered by the Berlin chief of police to leave Germany in three days on the ground that his presence in the country "tends to endanger the domestic security of the reich."

Smolar is a graduate of the Medill School of Journalism and left Chicago in 1924.

BLAMES INFLUENCE OF JEWS FOR AMERICA'S COOLNESS TO NAZIISM

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 13.—Julius Streicher, leader of Nazi Germany's anti-Semitic campaign, told an audience of 10,000 in Cologne today that "America and England's failure to sympathize with Naziism is due entirely to Jewish influence." However, he expressed the belief that England is beginning to see eye to eye with Nazi Germany.

To those Germans who worry because Germany lacks gold and has almost no bullion or foreign money as backing for its currency, Streicher offered new consolation.

"The idea that gold coverage is necessary for foreign currency is a Jewish fallacy," he said. "The golden faith of the German people in themselves and in their Fuehrer [Adolf Hitler] is a more powerful shield than all the gold in the world."

World War Aviator Is Found Dead in Trailer

Kenneth Beveridge, 39 years old, of Buffalo, N. Y., was found dead yesterday in his automobile trailer in a parking lot at 2411 Michigan avenue. Police said the kerosene heater in the trailer had evidently consumed the oxygen, causing his death. Charles Witte, owner of the Kozy Coach Trailer company at the Michigan avenue address, said that he hired Beveridge as a watchman a week ago. Beveridge told him he was receiving $107 a month as a war disability allowance. He was an aviator.

LYON & HEALY introduces to discriminating music-lovers

the Rembrandt of Radio

MASTERPIECE

by McMURDO SILVER

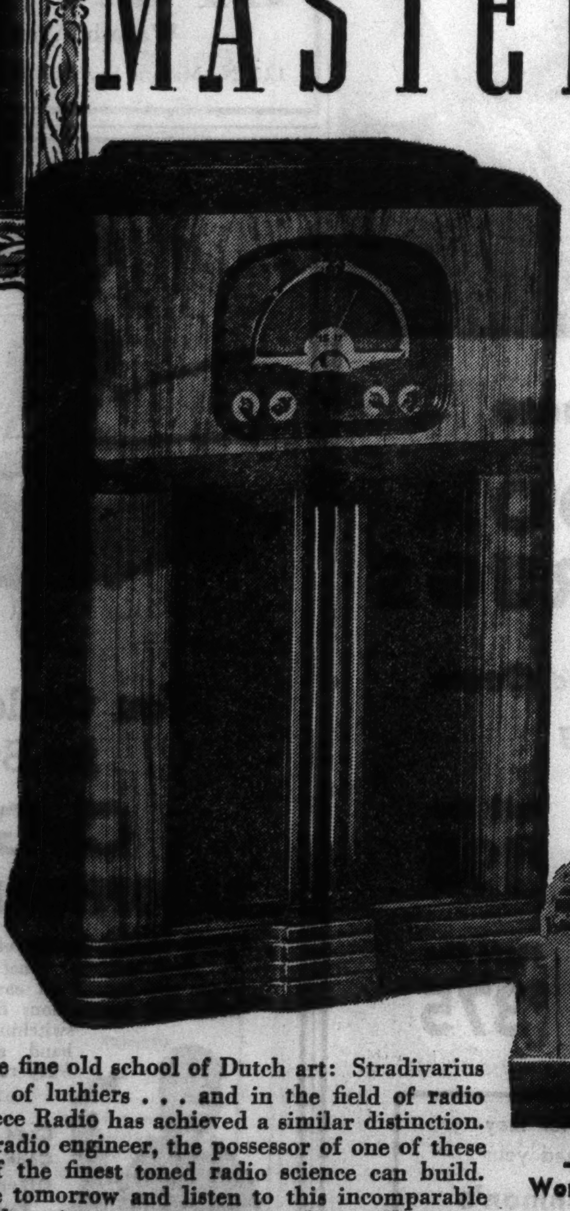
Admiral Richard E. Byrd commends McMurdo Silver for the efficiency of his Masterpiece Radio—

"I want to express to you my deep and enduring appreciation of the assistance you rendered our Second Antarctic Expedition which helped to make it possible for us to serve more than twenty branches of science, and map and take possession of thousands of square miles of new territory for the United States . . . Richard E. Byrd, Commander B. A. E. II."



McMurdo Silver grew up with Radio. . . For twenty-six years this ingenious radio-scientist has labored untiringly in every branch of the industry. From amateur to designer and builder of transmitters and receivers, amplifiers and vacuum tubes . . . and now renowned manufacturer of the preeminent custom-built McMURDO SILVER MASTERPIECE sets.

REMBRANDT was a master of the fine old school of Dutch art: Stradivarius remains the unchallenged lord of luthiers . . . and in the field of radio science, McMurdo Silver's Masterpiece Radio has achieved a similar distinction. Built by the world's most exacting radio engineer, the possessor of one of these custom-built receivers is assured of the finest toned radio science can build. Lyon & Healy invites you to come tomorrow and listen to this incomparable receiver. Your present set will be given a generous trade-in allowance.

LISTS BENEFITS TO GIRL PUPILS IN TRADE COURSES

Technical Training Plan Explained by Johnson.

Girls, as well as boys, will benefit from the plan to increase vocational courses in Chicago public high schools, Superintendent William H. Johnson said yesterday. He pointed out that the term vocational education has frequently been interpreted as introducing boys to industry but with little thought for girl pupils.

"We have the present Lucy Flower Technical School for Girls, which is one of the best known in the country," Dr. Johnson said, "and the school board plans to complete construction of the Verdi High school at 56th and Rockwell streets for another girls' technical school.

"In addition our high schools have always offered standard business courses for girls and will continue to develop the courses along modern lines. Women are entering almost every field of business and the girl who leaves school should be as well equipped as the boy."

Aid to Home Girls.

Dr. Johnson said the new educational plan will also aid the girl who wants to forego a business career to enter home life. A new course known as a home arts laboratory has been introduced in the high schools this year. Last year 20,000 girls were enrolled in household arts courses. Approximately 50,000 will take the home arts course.

This course, which will supplement general science in its second semester for freshman girls, is expected to develop skill, encourage understanding and appreciation of home and family life, and to contribute to the girl's health, with particular stress on nutrition.

The course also will school the pupils in buying problems and in the development of resourcefulness to meet such problems.

Choice of Careers Offered.

Dr. Johnson said the course will provide an introduction for advanced home economics courses, if desired by the pupil, and also offer her a choice between preparing for the home or a business career.

The Chicago division of the Illinois Education association, composed of teachers and principals, which held its annual meeting yesterday at the Medinah club, joined the board of education in urging the state to pay Chicago schools money due for costs of schools for delinquent, deaf, blind and crippled children. The school board claims $2,384,256 from the state for special schools costs in 1931, 1932, and 1933. The state is also urged to meet several deficits of previous years in the state educational distributive fund.

Shop Owner Missing

WILSON W. DAVIS.

MRS. HARRIET DAVIS.

Squads of police from the Desplaines street and Town Hall stations yesterday widened their search for Wilson W. Davis, 24 years old, 4038 Southport avenue, owner of a meat market who has been missing five days.

Davis left his market at 3653 Southport avenue in a truck on Tuesday. He was carrying $250 with which he intended to pay bills. The truck was found later the same day in front of 17 North Green street, with its engine still running. There was no trace of Davis and none of the bills, the police learned, had been paid.

Some investigators were inclined to believe that Davis was afflicted with amnesia. His wife told them he had on several occasions suffered lapses of memory. This theory was not taken seriously by Rutherford Davis, father of the missing man, who insisted that he had been kidnaped or killed. The elder Davis is a retired banker of Fontana, Wis.

HIS TRAGIC POSE TERRIFIES WIFE UNTIL COPS ACT

Husband's Strategy Lands Him in Hospital.

When Stanley Skanielski's estranged wife, Catherine, informed him yesterday that she wasn't going back to him, his grief seemed to have few bounds, if any. Striking an attitude in the hall at her home, 1406 North Campbell avenue, he poured a dozen little pills from a box and swallowed them at a single gulp.

"Good-by, cold world!" he said in a tragic tone.

Then he sat down. Catherine, in a panic, called the West North avenue police and they hastened to the scene with an ambulance. Into it, unwillingly, the tragic Stanley was loaded.

"This is all so silly!" he protested. "Those were just nerve pills. I take one every three hours and you have no idea how a dozen at once relax you."

The canny police took no chances. Neither did the physicians at the County hospital. They pumped out Stanley before they announced he was in no danger. Catherine, who had journeyed with him to the hospital, then went away. She wasn't going back to his home at 2102 18th place, she averred, even if he swallowed a gallon of his nerve pills.

NIP PLOT TO BLOW UP PENITENTIARY IN WEST VIRGINIA

Charleston, W. Va., Nov. 13.—[U. P.]—A plot to blow up the state penitentiary at Moundsville, was discovered today when Claude Kincaid, robbery suspect, led state and city police to a nitroglycerin cache.

Kincaid, held in Parkersburg, W. Va. on suspicion of armed robbery, told police the two gallon can of explosive had been hidden in a clump of bushes by Jess McPherson, alias Jess McIntyre, who planned to blow up the prison.

A search for McPherson was spurred tonight by the finding of an abandoned automobile with a small vial of nitroglycerin in it. Police said McPherson evidently intended to use the contents of the vial to blow a safe in Buffalo, W. Va.

The two gallon can was found near a state police pistol range.

Too Many Jobs

Mrs. Thyra M. Comerford with her daughter, Dolores, in court yesterday when she got divorce.

Mrs. Thyra M. Comerford, 43 years old, 4455 South Park avenue, Park Ridge, was granted a divorce yesterday by Judge John J. Lupe in Superior court from Edwin D. Comerford, 41 years old, 5157 Berenice avenue, on grounds of cruelty.

Mrs. Comerford said her husband, a druggist, lost twenty jobs during their married life and smashed four automobiles. She was given custody of their two daughters, Vivian, 18 years old, and Dolores, 10 years old, and was awarded $5 weekly support for the younger one. Mrs. Comerford was asked how she had treated her husband.

"Too darn good," she replied. They were married May 17, 1918, and separated last June 2.

TENOR QUITS HIS SICK BED TODAY TO HEAR CONCERT

Otokar Marak, operatic tenor, will leave his sick bed in the County hospital today to attend a Wagnerian concert in the Auditorium theater.

He will be the guest of Mme. Marta Krasova, contralto. Until three years ago Marak often sang with her at the National Opera house in Prague. Marak, 63 years old, has been seriously ill in the hospital for six weeks, but physicians have consented to allow him to attend today's concert.

The concert will be directed by Richard Hageman. It is being sponsored by the Adult Education council. Singers in addition to Mme. Krasova are Hilda Konetzni, Alexander Kipnis, Joel Berglund, and Henk Noort.

SWEDISH SINGER WINS BRAVOS AS A FICKLE CARMEN

Miss Wettergen in Role; Tosca Also Given.

BY CECIL SMITH.

An admirable performance of Bizet's "Carmen" occupied the forces of the Chicago City Opera company yesterday afternoon. In the evening the company changed the scene of action from Spain to Italy and the language from French to Italian, turning to Puccini's melodramatic shocker "Tosca." Both operas were given for the first time this season.

Gertrud Wettergren, the gifted Swedish mezzo-soprano, who can sing like a siren and move about the stage with all the fire of a Latin, played the rôle of the wayward cigaret girl in the afternoon opera.

She has conceived her action for a large theater, and depicts the shifting moods of her rôle with broad, telling strokes, with interesting and well pointed movement, and with blandishing mastery of the score.

Luccioni in Don José Début.

Jose Luccioni, a young tenor whose experience has been gained in Rome, Paris, and French provincial opera houses, made his American début as Don José without causing a stir equal to that occasioned by Galliano Masini last Wednesday. Mr. Luccioni seems a dependable but not especially imaginative singer with a dependable but not especally beautiful voice of good size.

Hilda Burke sang exquisitely as Micaela. The smugglers, impersonated by Charlotte Symons, Ada Paggi, Giuseppe Cavadore, and Wilfrid Engelman, were more than adequate in voice, action, and stage presence, as was Nino Ruisi, the Zuniga. Jean Fardulli, making his first appearance of the season, used his bluff voice as the toreador without any great distinction.

The ballet contributed greatly to the pleasure of the audience in the second and fourth acts. Louis Hasselmans conducted methodically, without much magic.

"Tosca" Wins Praise.

The evening's "Tosca" brought forth new and accomplished principals in all three main rôles. Elen Dosia sang the title rôle brilliantly and gave her characterization an interesting youthful fragility.

Galliano Masini won great acclaim for his splendid, free singing of the tenor music, and stopped the show temporarily after his third act aria. George Czaplicki sang and acted the rôle of Scarpia with great power, evoking memories of Vanni-Marcoux in his realistically acted death scene.

Roberto Moranzoni conducted. All in all, it was the best "Tosca" given in Chicago in more than five years.

Next Thursday night the Rosina in "The Barber of Seville" will be Rosemarie Brancato, and not Margherita Salvi, as announced on today's music page.

CASH IN SHOES CAUSES LIMP; THIEF ARRESTED

By his walk Lieut. Richard Barry and Sergt. Frank Lynch knew that Roy Saltzman, 20 years old, 2419 Hutchinson street, was the man they wanted. They received a telegram from Prescott, Ariz., that Saltzman had stolen $250 from a householder there on Armistice day and had soon afterward boarded a train for Chicago.

Yesterday morning Lieut. Barry and Lynch waited at the Polk street depot for the train to come in. They eyed the alighting passengers and saw that one of them—Saltzman—had a peculiar, halting walk. They arrested him. He admitted the theft and said he had $198 of the $250 loot left. It was in his shoes.

EXTRA SESSION REBUFF IS SEEN FOR ROOSEVELT

Economics of President Under Fire.

both houses against the taxes would force some congress to action.

Senator Robert J. Bulkley [D., Ohio], member of the senate finance committee, announced today he planned to introduce in the special session amendments to the undistributed profits tax "to ease the burden on smaller corporations and eliminate restrictions on business expansion." Senator Bulkley has voted with the administration on most of its measures.

May Simplify Program.

Barkley indicated that the White House is prepared to yield ground on its demand for the establishment of seven little TVA's to develop and preserve national resources. He said that there may be simplification of the proposed planning which would lessen controversy over regional planning.

"It may be that there will be a simplification of the regional planning legislation with a view to having an authority or a commission or whatever you want to call it, set up in each region to study conditions and report back to the President," Barkley said. "Such a group would coöperate with state planning bodies and give private utilities a chance to be heard."

At the house, Speaker Bankhead announced legislative work will get under way Tuesday with consideration of government reorganization. Wage and hour legislation will be planned on the return of Chairman Norton of the house labor committee, he said.

Confusion Among Democrats.

The prospect is that little, if anything, will be accomplished at the extraordinary session which will end not later than a few days before Christmas, thus enabling the legislators to return home, constructively at least, and collect another mileage allowance for the regular session which will meet Jan. 3. The reason for this outlook is the utter confusion prevailing in the councils of the Democratic party both at the White House and on Capitol hill.

None of the four measures on the program for the extraordinary session stands any chance of passage with the exception of the wage and hour bill, which was passed by the senate at the last session, and now it begins to look as if that bill also will be held over till the regular session.

The President tried to prod the Democratic leaders into completion of a crop control bill by Nov. 15, but he failed. The house agriculture committee is tangled in a wrangle over compulsory control and may not agree on a bill for another week or more. The senate committee has barely made a start, doesn't expect to complete a bill for a month at least.

Hit by New Depression.

The wage and hour bill has been hard hit by the new depression and the increasing frigidity of union labor to its provisions. Although both the American Federation of Labor and John Lewis' committee for industrial organization have been whooping it up for a 30 hour week for years they now perceive that if the government regulates wages and hours there will be nothing much left for unions to do for their members.

The economic effects of wage and hour legislation are feared by business and this fear is held to account largely for the business recession. Hence many Democratic leaders are in favor of ditching the measure until times improve. It now seems probable that the bill will be withdrawn from the house rules committee, where it was blocked at the last session, and modified.

JUSTICE L. D. BRANDEIS.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 13.—(AP)—The Supreme court's oldest member—Louis Dembitz Brandeis—became 81 years old today. Brandeis was appointed to the court by President Wilson in 1916. The justice arranged no special observance of his anniversary. He attended the regular Saturday conference of the justices, at which they discuss pending business.

Rockford Police Round Up 20 Youths in Nudist Club

Rockford, Ill., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Police today were rounding up 20 youths, members of an alleged male nudist club, following the arrest of a boy of 16 and a factory engineer last night. Officers said seven of the youths already in custody have admitted immoral practices. They said the engineer, Frank Wiley, 48, admitted the boys "usually stripped naked and played games" in his apartment. They also said he told them his interest in the boys was "cultural."

the time, was somewhere on the grounds, but didn't consider the hour yet propitious. But eventually, about 12:15 a. m., those guests who hadn't been ejected gathered and listened to D. Orville Harris, a deputy county clerk, led the couple through life vows.

They were unattended, formally. But there was an interested witness. She was Mrs. Palmer Stoller. Once she was Mrs. Younghusband No. 2. She was accompanied by her husband and her parents, Capt. and Mrs. Robert J. Black. The captain, who belongs to the St. Petersburg police force, reported to his chief after the Snyder incident that he had not noticed anything unusual in the way of disorders.

It was about 1 a. m. when Chief E. D. Vaughn and Capt. Y. J. Rodes arrived with the Snyder warant. All of the guests had departed and Mr. Younghusband seemed much surprised at the call. However, he posted $200 bond to guarantee his appearance in court next Saturday.

"I don't remember about hitting any fellow," said he.

The new Mrs. Younghusband is a dancer whose professional name is Louise Lane. She was residing in Chicago when she met the cosmetic manufacturer.

Younghusband's first wife died in 1927. He has been married and divorced three times.

Wife No. 4, Lillian Carter Hawes Younghusband, won a divorce in Chicago last July. In May the much married Younghusband won a suit for breach of promise brought against him by Miss Alyce Strand. She asked $100,000 and got nothing.

Ruth Hussey, wife No. 3, who also won a divorce from Younghusband, testified for him in the breach of promise suit.

SENATOR VAN NUYS' SON ANNOUNCES HE WANTS TO BE FARMER

Washington, D. C., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Washington has a one man back to the farm movement in William L. Van Nuys, 16 year old son of Frederick Van Nuys, senior senator from Indiana. The youth has announced he wants to be a dirt farmer and truck raiser and his parents are in full accord with his ambitions.

William L. Van Nuys.

Young Van Nuys spent most of the last summer at a stock farm in southern Maryland where he schooled himself further in the field he wishes to follow. He preferred a vacation down on the farm to a summer resort or a boys' camp.

"Bill" Van Nuys is a sophomore at St. Johns' College in Washington where he is active in military drills as well as the scholastic and social life the institution affords. While barely 16, he towers above his favorite companion and adviser, Senator Van Nuys.

GENERAL MOTORS REJECTS MAJOR UNION DEMANDS

Proposed Agreement Given to U. A. W. Delegates.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 13.—(AP)—A proposed new agreement between General Motors corporation and the United Automobile Workers of America, authoritative sources said today, rejects virtually every major union demand. The agreement, which would supplant one now in effect which ended the 43 day strike in General Motors plants last winter, was presented to delegates from all General Motors locals of the U. A. W. at a special meeting here today.

Should the delegates reject the proposed agreement, the former contract, signd last March 14, would remain in effect. The original agreement can be terminated only on 60 days' notice and neither side as yet has given such notice. A rejection of the new contract was expected in circles close to the union.

List Demands Refused.

Among demands refused by General Motors were a blanket wage increase of at least 10 cents an hour, recognition of the shop steward system, annual vacations with pay, a 7 hour day and 35 hour week, revisions and additions to seniority clauses, and modification of the terms of notification to change or terminate or supplement the agreement.

The proposed new agreement leaves the question of wages up to local managements, subject to appeal through the regular grievance machinery. Provisions are retained which prohibit the union from soliciting members or dues on company property.

The corporation agrees not to interfere with the union in its legitimate activities, or to discriminate against union members.

Hits "Outlaw" Strikes."

A section of the new agreement dealing with "outlaw" strikes, of which General Motors declares there have been more than 200 since the original agreement was signed, reads:

"The union recognizes and agrees that unauthorized strikes, stoppages of work, and deliberate reduction in rate of production below standards established under the agreement, before all steps set forth in the grievance procedure have been complied with, are indefensible and for a violation of this provision by the union, its officers or members, the company will discharge or otherwise discipline the employé or employés known to be or found guilty thereof, and the union shall take effective disciplinary action against the member or members of the union responsible therefor.

"Noncompliance on the part of the union with the above provisions shall be deemed a breach of the agreement and a just cause for immediate suspension or cancelation thereof by the company."

CORRECTION

In today's Tribune, on the back page of the neighborhood section, Wieboldt's advertised Zip-on Dresses at $1.09 with a 4 ft. Zipper.

These Zippers should have been described as 22 inches long, affording a front opening below the waist for greater convenience.

We regret we did not catch this error before this paper went to press, but we assure every customer that these Zip-on Dresses are extraordinary at this low price.

BARS BEING PUT ON HOSPITAL FOR FEEBLE-MINDED

Illinois Now Guards Vicious Delinquents.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Dixon, Ill., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Bars finally are making their appearance here at the state hospital for the feeble-minded where virtual insecurity has permitted the escape of such vicious and demented killers as James "Iggy" Varecha, who conducted a one man crime wave in Chicago until he finally was sent to Joliet penitentiary to serve 100 years for murder.

Varecha was one of a group of defective delinquents who are the s cial problem of Dr. Warren G. Murray, superintendent. They are the toughest and smartest of the 3,200 patients of this unfortunate colony who exist more or less on the borderline of insanity.

Close Guard Required.

They are closest to average individual intelligence—or sanity—and they also are unruly. The defective delinquents must be guarded constantly and because they have the ability to organize, it is they who engineer and execute the "deliberate" escapes that periodically have turned the public eye on this unwalled institution.

The deliberate escapees, Dr. Murray said today, must be distinguished from those who wander away from the colony, wrapped in the haze of their afflictions. Most of the latter, if turned in the right direction, would wander right back in again and almost all eventually are returned, either by relatives or authorities.

108 Escape During Year.

The escape problem at Dixon is illustrated by the report for the year ending Nov. 1. During that period 108 men, women, boys, and girls escaped or walked away from the colony and sixty-three of them were returned. About fifteen of the remaining forty-five also were accounted for, most of them being sent to the Illinois Security hospital for the criminally insane at Menard. The remainder still are at large.

Dr. Murray said that more than half of those who escaped are defective delinquents. At present they are kept under the strictest surveillance exercised here, living in cottages with heavy wire window and door screens and no furniture save cots and an occasional bench or chair too clumsy to serve as a weapon. Chairs have been banished since patients learned to belabor their attendants with them.

Tells How Escapes Occur.

Most of the escapes occur when the defective delinquents are marched to their nearby dining halls. At a prearranged signal, two or three will break line and race in one direction while another trio charges past the attendants and makes off in the opposite direction. And occasionally there are escapes from the closely watched cottages, the long handles of weighted floor polishers being used to pry off window screens. "Iggy" Varecha used that method in one of his two escapes.

By March 1, next year, this no longer will be possible for the defective delinquents—about 250 males and 200 females—will be securely housed in new barred buildings now nearing completion. They will be equipped with dining halls and are part of eleven new units for which the legislature appropriated $1,200,000 last spring.

With Institutions 25 years.

Once this is done, Dr. Murray will heave a sigh of relief. During his twenty-five years in the insane and feeble-minded institutions of the state—seventeen of them at Dixon—he has fought for recognition of the defective delinquents as special problems requiring treatment and supervision not available either in insane asylums or feeble-minded colonies.

The superintendent hopes that some day the state will erect two small walled institutions for the sole incarceration of the defective delinquents, and he believes that there are about 600 women and 1,000 men and boys in the various state hospitals and asylums who properly could be placed in them.

Hospital Opened in 1918.

The Dixon hospital was opened on May 1, 1918, as an institution for the care and treatment of those suffering from epilepsy. A year later the department of public welfare decided that feeble-minded also should be admitted, and in 1931 its scope was further enlarged so as to include "improvable and not insane" post-encephalitics.

The 3,200 patients occupy thirty cottages set on spacious lawns over 200 acres. The plant and its adjoining farm lands, on which vegetables and live stock are grown, occupies 1,057 acres and represents an investment of $5,500,000.

In age the patients range from infants to 70 years. The children go to school, but only in rare cases is it possible for them to advance beyond the fifth grade. As far as is possible, inmates do the work around the colony, and Dr. Murray says that the men and boys can perform manual, unskilled labor quite well.

The women and girls are kept busy at needle work, mending, weaving, and hooking rugs. In addition, they and some of the men operate the laundry.

The children seem brightest and least marked by their afflictions. This impression of normalcy especially was true of a group of about twenty boys about 5 or 6 years old, who were merrily singing and performing "The Farmer in the Dell" in one of the schoolrooms this afternoon. Yet all are feeble-minded and most of them hopelessly so.

Scene of Escapes at Dixon Hospital

(Story in adjoining column.)

One of thirty buildings of the state hospital at Dixon where defective delinquents are housed. A number of inmates have escaped from this building by prying wire screening off windows. Among them was James "Iggy" Varecha, later seized for a slaying in Chicago and sent to prison for a 100 year term.

Postmaster at Oak Lawn Admits Embezzling $504

Arrested yesterday by postal inspectors, John J. Matejka, 42 years old, postmaster at Oak Lawn since 1934, was held to the grand jury by United States Commissioner E. K. Walker yesterday on his plea of guilty to embezzling $504. His bond was fixed at $2,500. According to Assistant District Attorney Daniel Glasser, Matejka took the money in varying amounts from February to October this year.

EDNA PLANT NAMES 4 CO-RESPONDENTS IN HER DIVORCE ACTION

Bridgeport, Conn., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Divorce evidence which Edna Dunham Plant values at $1,000,000 was dumped into an eighteen page deposition and handed over to Superior court today in her divorce suit against Phil Plant, the Broadway chicken fancier who became the squire of Oswegatchie farm.

She named names and told places. First on the list of four co-respondents, she placed Marjorie King, the stately, brunette eyeful who gave up a Hollywood movie career to wait for Phil Plant's freedom. Then she said Phil's fancy wandered to ladies of the evening, including June Reed, who was convicted less than a month ago on Mann act charges.

But it was Phil's drinking that really annoyed her, Edna insisted. After recounting prolonged drinking bouts in all parts of the globe, she stated bluntly:

"In every respect the defendant was and is a complete and incurable pathological drunkard."

She also mentioned Lucille Malin, sent to prison for a year on a vice charge, and one Edith Wilson, unidentified.

3 IN PRISON ON UNION PAY ROLL, COURT INFORMED

New York, Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Arthur Herbert and two other officers of the Chicken Drivers' union are still on the organization's pay roll despite their imprisonment for embezzling union funds, it was reported today. Supreme Court Justice Ferdinand Pecora immediately announced that he would ask the state parole board to compel the three racketeers to serve their full prison terms as soon as evidence of the salary payments was presented to him by members of Special Prosecutor Thomas E. Dewey's staf.

At Dewey's office it was said that a report was being prepared for submission to Justice Pecora. A Dewey assistant directed the prosecution of Herbert, David Diamondstone, president of local 167, and Harry Frankel, secretary-treasurer, when the three were tried before Justice Pecora last July.

After the three defendants had entered guilty pleas and Herbert had made restitution of $25,000 which he was accused of having stolen from the union, Justice Pecora sentenced Herbert to Sing Sing prison for four to ten years, Diamondstone's sentence was from one to five years, and Frankel's eighteen months to five years.

MAP PLAN TO CUT POPULATION OF STATE PRISONS

Other States May Get Wanted Felons.

Under a plan which will be submitted to Gov. Horner's parole supervision conference next Thursday Illinois convicts who are wanted for serious crimes in other states will be turned over to those states. The plan affects those convicts who have served substantial portions of their sentences here.

Director Bowen of the department of public welfare said the move will be considered especially for prisoners serving terms of from one year to life.

"We have many men in our prisons," said Superintendent Ragen, "who are wanted in other states. Why should we keep them here if they have served substantial parts of their terms?"

Another matter before the conference, which will be attended by all the prison wardens, members of the parole board, Mr. Bowen and the governor, will be the problem of about 400 prisoners now ready for parole but unreleased because they have no prospects of jobs or sponsors.

"These men," Bowen said, "are kept in prison because they are friendless and have no place to go, although their release would in no way endanger society."

"There are no gunmen or slayers among them," the director added.

Superintendent Ragen will make no recommendations regarding these men, he said, because he believes the parole board should make its own decision.

SLAYS HIS WIFE AND SELF AFTER 3 YEAR QUARREL

Thomas Olkiewicz, 38 years old, yesterday finished a quarrel he had carried on with his wife, Tillie, since he accused her three years ago of a flirtation with a roomer. In the living room of their home at 1607 West 63d street he shot and killed Mrs. Olkiewicz, also 38, and then ended his own life with a bullet in his head.

Ellen, 17 year old daughter of the couple, heard the shots from an adjoining room. She said that her father had refused to talk to any of the family at dinner time, and that her mother, after the meal, ordered him out of the house.

"I went into a bedroom," said the girl. "Then I heard the shots. When I ran in mother was lying across the couch and father was on the floor not far away. He had been mad at her ever since he learned three years ago that she was writing to a man who used to board with us."

MAGIC AND SCIENCE

By CALEB

I HAVE been, with no great facility, reading in a little volume published at Lyons in France in 1758. The French is from a Latin translation. The contents: SECRETS MERVEILLEUX DE LA MAGIE NATURELLE ET CABALISTIQUE DU PETIT ALBERT.

The "marvelous secrets" have to do with mixing potions for bringing about some very, very vital things: How to have one's love reciprocated; to make one fortunate in games of skill and danger; to catch more fish; to take a great number of birds; to keep dogs from barking after you. It tells how to make talismans against venomous beasts, and syrups that prolong life.

And then, with a great many such and more personal things out of the way, the author settles down to business and tells directly and succinctly "How to make gold artificially." It takes only the space of this column!

All this would not be so noteworthy were it not for the modest, confident notice in the front of the book. It says that in former times the great persons "who possessed things extraordinary in the Sciences" were considered to be magicians—alchemists.

Despite the towering accomplishments of the last several generations, much of what approaches science now is still largely in the category of alchemy—or future scientists may so consider it.

And there are still many problems yet to be solved more wisely than to date. Many of our cold remedies might make future generations laugh. Our cooling of areas lighted at the same time by heat-generating electric illumination is hardly scientific. We have not been able to distinguish clearly between our automobiles as a means of locomotion and a means of dealing death. We talk of science in connection with crime detection and penology, but crime costs us around fifteen billion dollars a year. Our country has production facilities for clothing and feeding far more than our population, but many of our people are cold and hungry and we destroy food "surpluses"!

"Marvelous secrets of science" take on an increasingly aged and yellowed tinge as other generations come along. We always have new problems to solve greater than the last we have solved.

MAILMEN TO PASS 4,000,000 CARDS IN WORK CENSUS

U. S. to Complete Chicago Tabulation This Week.

Letter carriers in the Chicago postoffice area will start distribution of 4,000,000 cards Tuesday morning in compliance with the nationwide census of unemployment, partial employment and occupations authorized by congress.

Walter L. Gregory, chairman of Mayor Kelly's committee in charge of the census, said that distributions of the cards is expected to be completed by Wednesday and they are to be filled out and mailed before midnight next Saturday, Nov. 20. Neither postage nor envelope is needed.

Carry President's Message.

On the back of the card is a message from President Roosevelt addressed: "To every worker."

"If you are unemployed or partly unemployed and are able to work and are seeking work," it reads, "please fill out this report card right away and mail it before midnight, Nov. 20. No postage stamp is needed.

"The congress directed me to take this census. It is important to the unemployed and to every one in this land that the census be complete, honest, and accurate. If you give me the facts I shall try to use them for the benefit of all who need and want work and do not have it now."

Questions on the cards ask for name, address, sex, race, occupation, age, number of hours worked during this week, and weeks of work in the last year, whether totally or partially employed, and ability and desire for more work. Information is also sought as to the number of workers in each family, the status of their employment or unemployment, and the total individual income for the previous week.

It was announced from Washington that information given on the cards will be held secret.

"Among the questions you will find on the questionnaire," according to the announcement, "there is none asking whether you are a citizen or an alien; no question pertaining to ascertain how you came to this country or how long you have been in this country. There is an absolute guarantee of secrecy. No data of any kind will be used or can be used against you."

The cards will be collected and tabulated at the Chicago postoffice, but the results will be announced from Washington, Mr. Gregory said.

PRESIDENT WILL MAKE 'FIRESIDE CHAT' TONIGHT

Washington, D. C., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Breaking a month's silence on the eve of the convening of congress for an extraordinary session, President Roosevelt will discuss next Tuesday's unemployment census in a radio "fireside chat" tomorrow night.

Speaking from the White House, the President is expected to tell the purpose of a registration of the unemployed and the aims of the administration. The talk is scheduled to start at 10:30 p. m., eastern standard time [9:30 Chicago time] over a nationwide hookup.

It will be the President's tenth "fireside chat" since he entered the White House in 1933. His last was on the night of October 12.

YOUTH ADMITS MARION DAVIES EXTORTION NOTE

Hollywood Cal., Nov. 13.—[U. P.]—A Michigan farm youth confessed early today, according to the sherif's office, that he mailed a letter to Marion Davies, motion picture star, demanding $1,000. John Timney, 20, was jailed on an extortion complaint by federal agents.

Arrested in front of a hotel, deputy sherifs said Timney announced he would plead guilty in federal court today.

The note was reported to have demanded that the money be delivered to him in person by Miss Davies, who was to wear dark glasses and meet him in front of a South Main street theater.

APARTMENT HOTEL CLERK ROBBED.

A gunman entered the Saranac Apartment hotel, 5541 Everett avenue, early yesterday and took $37.50 from Richard Reuther, clerk. At about the same time another robber took $19.80 from John Sauer, clerk, at the Wabash Avenue hotel, 27 East Harrison street.

U. S. and Siam Sign New Commerce Treaty

Washington, D. C., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—The state department today announced that a treaty of friendship, commerce, and navigation between the United States and Siam was signed yesterday in Bangkok by officials of that government and Edwin L. Neville, American minister to Siam, on behalf of this nation.

WPA APPROVES WORK ON SMALL CHICAGO PARKS

$363,406 Will Provide Jobs for 1,334 Men.

Commissioner of Public Works Oscar E. Hewitt was informed yesterday that WPA officials in Washington have approved the expenditure of $363,406 for improvements in small parks, parkways, and playgrounds throughout Chicago. The project will be started within a few days and will employ 1,334 WPA workers through February.

Hewitt was notified by a telegram from Senator James Hamilton Lewis that the WPA has allocated the money. This was one of several projects on which the city had asked WPA aid, not only because the improvements are needed, but because they will provide work for employable men now on the relief rolls.

Hold Conference Tomorrow.

Walter Wright, director of parks and playgrounds for the city, will confer tomorrow with local WPA officials to determine when and where the work will be started.

The project calls for the improvement, mainly the building of fences and walks and landscaping, in eleven small parks, six parkways, thirty-five playgrounds, the municipal nursery and greenhouse, and two groups of small parks, known as the Austin park and Washington park groups.

Other Parks Listed.

The eleven other parks are: Ellis, Normal, Navy Pier, Fernwood, Pullman, Arcades, Rainbow, Oakland, Barnard, Clarendon and Roseland. The six parkways in the middle of streets and boulevards which are to be improved are 77th street, 81st street, 87th street, Stony Island avenue, Calumet park, and Lily garden.

"We hope to get men and money from the WPA to carry on this work until June 1," Hewitt said, "but we shall arrange the work so that all which is started will be completed by March 1."

Hopeful Reports Received.

Charles E. Miner, state WPA administrator, said yesterday he had received hopeful reports from Washington concerning Chicago's recent request for $20,000,000 worth of new WPA projects. He said he expects a definite report tomorrow on the projects which were approved last week by state and local WPA heads.

They were drawn up by city department heads and are planned to give work to 60,000 men over a six month period. There are at present approximately 52,800 men working on WPA projects in Chicago and many of those projects are being completed, Miner said.

Radio Transmitter Burns; Loss Placed at $200,000

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Fire early today destroyed the department of commerce radio transmitter south of the Wold-Chamberlain municipal airport, which broadcast a radio beam used by aviators landing in poor weather conditions. The loss was estimated at $200,000.

FIVE JUDGESHIPS WILL BE DECIDED IN DEC. 7 VOTING

2 Circuit and 3 County Vacancies at Stake.

BY PERCY WOOD.

Candidates for two Circuit court vacancies in northern Illinois and for three county judgeships elsewhere in the state are campaigning for the special election which Gov. Henry Horner has set for Dec. 7.

In one of the county judge elections the Republican candidate needs to do no campaigning because he has no opponent. He is Grover W. Gehant of Dixon, nominee for judge of Lee county. No Democrat filed a nominating petition.

The Republicans in Lee county are not, however, lying down, for they have another aim at the same election. Their county, with Jo Daviess, Stephenson, Carroll, and Ogle counties, is in the 15th judicial circuit, in which a hard fight is being waged for the Circuit judgeship made vacant by the death last year of Judge William J. Emerson of Oregon.

Fills Three Jobs.

Leon A. Zick, Oregon Republican, and Louis A. Nack, Galena Democrat, are the opposing candidates for this office. Mr. Zick has been county judge of Ogle county for the last twelve years, since he was 30 years old, and has been acting county judge of Lee and Stephenson counties recently because of the death of the incumbents. He is continuing to carry on that full schedule, three man job while campaigning. Judge Zick is a graduate of Northwestern university law school.

Democrats of the Fifteenth district are supporting Mr. Nack, who was born in Galena thirty-six years ago and is a graduate of the University of Michigan law school. He has been associated with his father, Joseph M. Nack, in law practice in Galena since his admission to the bar in 1924 and was for ten years city attorney, serving under both Republican and Democratic city administrations. Friends of each candidate say the race will be close, but Judge Zick's supporters point out that the district is normally Republican.

Race in Seventeenth District.

The second Circuit court vacancy to be filled exists in the Seventeenth judicial circuit, composed of Winnebago, Boone, McHenry, and Lake counties and the candidates are William L. Pierce, Belvidere Republican, and George R. Lyon, Waukegan Democrat.

Mr. Pierce, who has practiced law in Belvidere — near his farm birthplace—for forty-two of his sixty-nine years, is a graduate of Northwestern university law school, has served four terms as mayor of Belvidere, and two in the state house of representatives.

During his legislative service he was a member of the Dailey committee which investigated labor conditions in Chicago in 1921-'22, and also was vice chairman of the commission which inquired into the Herrin massacre in 1923. From 1916 to 1920 he was an assistant attorney general under the late Edward J. Brundage.

Opponent Is Youthful.

His opponent, Mr. Lyon, is 34 years old, and a graduate of Dartmouth college and Northwestern law school. He practices law in Chicago with the firm of Castle, Williams & McCarthy, 111 West Washington street. Mr. Lyon is a member of a family that came to Waukegan in 1841, and his father is William I. Lyon, well known ornithologist.

The young judicial candidate claims strength in both the Democratic and Republican camps, and campaigns as a liberal. It has been estimated that this election, which will fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Edward D. Shurtleff, will cost the four counties approximately $22,000, or slightly more than $100 per precinct.

Woman in Iroquois Race.

The death of County Judge John H. Gillan of Iroquois county has brought about one of the most interesting of the races to be decided on Dec. 7 for it has produced a woman candidate, Miss Jessie Sumner of Milford, the Republican nominee. Miss Sumner is 39 years old and a graduate of Smith college.

She studied law at the University of Chicago, Columbia university in New York, and Oxford university in England. She worked with the late Charles E. Erbstein, Chicago criminal lawyer, and later with the income tax and trust department of the Chase National bank, New York. In 1932 she was defeated for state's attorney of Iroquois county and has since maintained an office in Milford.

Clifford E. Beach of Gilman, Miss Sumner's Democratic opponent, was born in Onarga in 1866 and is a graduate of the Illinois Wesleyan university law school at Bloomington. Beginning practice at Paxton, in Ford county, he was the first Democrat to be elected mayor of that city. He moved to Gilman in 1919. In addition to his practice he has contributed to the law periodicals during his forty-three years before the bar.

Two of the youngest members of the Freeport bar are seeking the county judgeship of Stephenson county which was left vacant less than a year ago by the death of Judge Harold D. James.

The nominees are Marvin F. Burt, Republican, and Edward J. Sullivan, Democrat. Mr. Burt is a native of Freeport and a grandson of a former county judge, the late Mathew Marvin. He is a graduate of Harvard and studied law at the Kent College of Law in Chicago, meanwhile serving as a deputy clerk in the Municipal court. He has practiced in his home town since his admission to the bar.

Mr. Sullivan, the Democrat, is also a native of Freeport and a graduate of Loyola university school of law. For three years following his graduation he was employed as an examiner of real estate titles by the Chicago Title and Trust company. He is a former city attorney of Freeport.

Mr. Gehant, the sole candidate for judge of Lee county, is 52 years old, was born in Dixon and has practiced law there for the last 23 years.

Seek Judgeships

Below are some of the candidates for circuit and county judges to be chosen at special election Dec. 7.

George R. Lyon (left), Democrat of Waukegan, and William L. Pierce, Republican, of Belvidere, for circuit judge of 17th judicial district.

Clifford E. Beach, Democrat of Gilman, and Miss Jessie Sumner, Republican of Milford, for county judge of Iroquois county.

G. O. P. LEADERS HOLD HIGH HOPE FOR NEW YORK

Roosevelt-Tammany Row Seen as Big Help.

New York, Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Political events this week have convinced observers here that Republicans face the future in a happier frame of mind than in many years, whereas the Democrats are sullen, and where they are not defiant they are indifferent.

So great is the resentment against President Roosevelt in Democratic circles over what they interpret as his joy at the defeat of Tammany, few Democrats can be found who care what the coming state constitutional convention will do. They expect to see Senator Robert F. Wagner present the Roosevelt program, and also make a bid for labor support as he probably will seek reëlection next year.

Smith to Oppose Roosevelt.

Alfred E. Smith is counted on to oppose the Roosevelt policies. Unless a decided change of sentiment occurs in Tammany he will have the wigwam's support.

Whereas the Republicans view the prospects of the gubernatorial election with the utmost satisfaction and anticipate a return to power, Democratic leaders are showing no interest in whatever happens or who is elected.

While there is no doubt that President Roosevelt, through Postmaster General James A. Farley, will control the convention which will nominate a successor to Gov. Herbert H. Lehman next September, hints from Tammany leaders indicate that if the nominee is to be elected, the President will have to do it himself.

Tammany Against President.

There is no mistaking that the feeling against the President in Tammany has been intensified since the day after election. The resentment even extends to Roosevelt adherents who shrug their shoulders and elevate their eyebrows when they are asked what they think about the President sending for Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia and making it appear that he was overjoyed at the defeat of the Democratic nominee for mayor.

Influential leaders say unless there is a reorganization of Tammany before next summer, the present organization will show just as much anxiety to elect Democratic congressmen, and a Democratic governor next year as the President did to have a Democratic mayor of New York City.

LOSES DRIVING RIGHTS.

Judge Gibson E. Gorman in Boys' court yesterday suspended the driving privileges of Thomas Tobin, 19 years old, 1910 West monroe street, for a year for drunken driving. Tobin's car struck another car at Wood and Madison street Friday night.

Sleeping Sickness Girl Better; Use New Remedy

The condition of Miss Phyllis Bauer, 18 years old, of Lake Zurich, who was stricken with sleeping sickness three weeks ago, was reported "greatly improved" yesterday. Her physician, Dr. Allan D. Welch, said she would leave the Sherman hospital in Elgin for her home early next week. Dr. Welch treated the girl with benzedrine, a new remedy which has previously been used by physicians. Dr. Welch said, however, that it is impossible to determine at this time whether the improvement was due entirely to use of the drug.

SURVEY TO ARM CITY FOR WAR ON SMOKE PLANNED

Seek $438,882 WPA Aid for Broad Project.

Chicago may have its first complete survey of the causes and effects of air pollution under plans described yesterday by Frank A. Chambers, city smoke inspector. Benefits of the survey would be extended to other cities, including some far smokier than Chicago, he said.

An elaborate project calling for the expenditure of $438,882 by the WPA and $62,300 in city funds has been prepared by H. D. Blackwell, air pollution consultant. Five hundred men, including engineers, clerks, inspectors, and lawyers to delve into the legal aspects of the subject, would be employed. The project is expected to receive sympathetic consideration from WPA officials, who have said they are eager to provide 7,000 additional white collar jobs here.

Armour Institute to Aid.

The Armour Institute of Technology would provide space for laboratory and headquarter purposes, and equip it with necessary facilities for the research. Among the fourteen non-WPA authorities who would coöperate are Dr. Thomas C. Poulter, director of the research foundation at Armour, who was chief scientist of Admiral Byrd's south pole expedition in 1932-'33, and Dr. William B. Mather, University of Chicago research engineer for industrial dusts and occupational diseases.

The damage done by smoke in dollars and cents is a fact yet to be established. To find this out would be one purpose of the survey. The amount of sulphur dioxide [which forms sulphuric acid] in smoke is another question to be answered. An indication of the effects of this content of smoke was shown by Mr. Chambers when he sprayed a towel with the acid; its appearance was unchanged until it was washed, when it fell apart.

Study Directed at All Causes.

Broadly, the survey would cover the causes, sources, volumes, densities, and methods of preventing and controling air pollution. The inquiry would be directed at dusts, fumes, gases, vapors acids, and odors.

New equipment would be used in trapping smoke at the chimneys. This would enable the engineers to determine the quantity and kind of pollution originating at factories, office buildings, apartment structures, and single dwellings. The data thus gained would supplement the samples of solids falling from the air into glass jars at 22 stations throughout the city each month. The solids total 70 tons a month for each of the city's 212 square miles.

INDIANA MINE BLAST KILLS 2, BUT 35 ESCAPE

Princeton, Ind., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Two men were killed and one injured seriously in a gas explosion early today in the Kings station mine of the Princeton Mining company three miles south of here. Thirty-five other men were trapped for a time, but later rescued.

The bodies of Defount Thompson, 35 years old, of Francisco, a motorman, and of Roger Williams, 36, of Princeton, a trip rider, were taken from the pit today.

Darrell McCandless of Francisco, a repair man, seriously burned, was brought to Methodist hospital here.

The trapped men groped their way through two miles of corridors, sealed themselves near the entries and escaped to safety when air was pumped into the shaft. Two hundred and eighty men were at work in various parts of the mine at the time of the explosion.

C.I.O. STRIKE IN NORTH CHICAGO PLANT SETTLED

The C. I. O. strike of 600 workers at the Chicago Hardware Foundry company in North Chicago, which began at noon Tuesday, was settled early today, and the men will go back to work tomorrow morning.

The settlement came after a five hour conference in the Karcher hotel in Waukegan between William G. Murray, special conciliator for the state labor department; Edward B. Sherwin, president of the company; Oakley H. Mills, C. I. O. organizer, and Frank Bradke, union president.

The strike was called because of the dismissal of three employés, Alex Jaroski, Philip Lorek, and W. Howlett. It was charged they had threatened violence to another employé, John Martin, and had ordered him out of the plant. Under the strike settlement the dismissed employés are reinstated and Martin keeps on with his job. It was considered an even compromise.

New Light on Animals

Frank Buck (left), special guest, and D. F. Kelly, host, at luncheon in Chicago Athletic association.

Wild animals are not nearly so anxious to fight as most people think they are, Frank Buck, "bring 'em back alive" hunter, told twenty-five guests at a luncheon given for him yesterday in the Chicago Athletic association. Usually they turn to battle a pursuing hunter only after they have been wounded or cornered.

D. F. Kelly, president and general manager of the Fair store, where Buck's circus of nearly 200 animals is on exhibition, was host at the luncheon. Among the guests were Floyd S. Young, director of the Lincoln park zoo; Edward H. Bean, director of the Chicago zoölogical park at Brookfield; Herbert Bradley, African explorer, and C. C. Sanborn, curator of mammals at the Field museum.

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Clayton W. Delamatre, 77 years old, veteran Omaha attorney and classmate of Brig. Gen. Charles G. Dawes at the Cincinnati law school, was killed by an automobile last night.

FAVORED GROUP IN CAPITAL GETS SALARY BOOST

4 of Larger Pay Checks Go to White House.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Fat salary increases for administration pets were revealed today with the publication of the 1937 edition of the Official Register of the United States by the civil service commission.

The thin volume details the title, compensation, and holder of approximately 8,500 federal jobs in 150 departments, commissions, boards, courts and bureaus.

Four of the heavier pay checks will go to the White House. Miss Marguerite Le Hand, personal secretary to the President, was raised from $3,200 to $5,000 a year. Inasmuch as her post includes room and board at the White House it affords a comfortable living.

Mrs. Roosevelt's Friend Aided.

Another $1,800 a year increase went to Miss Malvina Scheider, secretary and warm personal friend of Mrs. Roosevelt.

By virtue of promotions from assistant secretaryships to full secretaries Stephen T. Early and Marvin H. McIntyre will get $10,000 instead of $9,500 a year. The promotions came when James Roosevelt, son of the President and known as his "heir apparent," was made a full secretary at the $10,000 salary.

At the state department Sumner Wells' appointment as undersecretary jumped his salary from $8,000 to $10,000.

Raise for Wilson's Son-in-Law.

Assistant Secretary Francis B. Sayre, son-in-law of Woodrow Wilson, was upped from $8,000 to $9,000.

In the treasury department Harold N. Graves, assistant to Secretary Morganthau, had his pay increased from $8,500 to $9,000. In the bureau of internal revenue there was a fine crop of raises. Mrs. Bertha Wetherton, assistant to Commissioner Helvering, was upped $400 to $6,400 a year.

In the postoffice department James A. Farley raised his secretary, William Bray, from $5,000 to $5,600.

At the department of agriculture Special Assistant Paul N. Appleby was boosted $1,000 to $9,000.

Many favorites in other departments received raises ranging from $400 to $1,000.

Crack Frisco Passenger Trains Collide in Yards

Springfield, Mo., Nov. 13.—(AP)—The crack Meteor and southbound Florida Special passenger trains of the St. Louis and San Francisco railway [Frisco] crashed head-on here early today. No one was injured. The trains collided directly over a switch at a yard end. Officials said one of the engineers failed to see a signal block. The two engines were damaged.

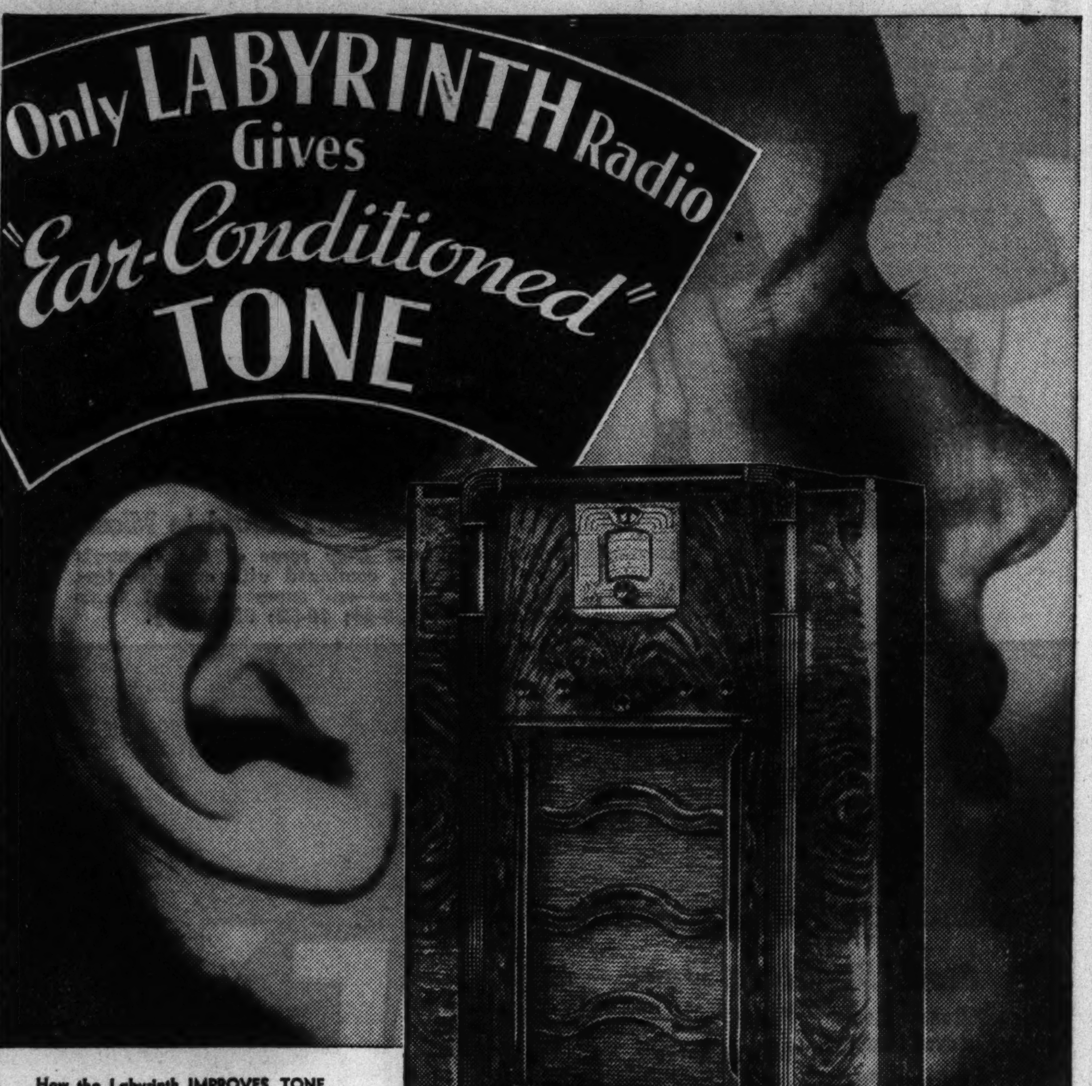
10 S. LA SALLE ST. CENTRAL 4200



No. 250-L Five Range. Equipped with Labyrinth.

How the Labyrinth IMPROVES TONE

THE TROUBLE—Empty cabinet space in back of the speaker causes "boom" and distorts the pure tone from front of speaker.

THE THEORY—A long tube of sound absorbent material would absorb unwanted sounds and reinforce bass tones.

THE THEORY MADE PRACTICAL—Such a tube is out of the question. So Stromberg-Carlson folded it into a Labyrinth.

THE PATENTED LABYRINTH—The Labyrinth in one of the new Stromberg-Carlsons. It is the necessary baffle wrapped up, folded over and placed within the troublesome space in the cabinet. Patented in the United States and Canada.

Stromberg-Carlsons range in price from $57.50 to $1050.

If you have ever listened to radio with the Labyrinth, you will understand what is meant by "Ear-Conditioned" Tone. For no longer in radio need you hear unnatural "boomy" bass, the crackle of the loud speaker as volume varies, or poor balance between high and low tones. These faults of ordinary radio reproduction—always before accepted because there was nothing better—have been overcome.

Let your nearest dealer* arrange a demonstration. If you own a Labyrinth radio you will never be dissatisfied, for you will never hear anything better.

'MIRACLE,' AVERS HUTTON WHEN HE REGAINS HEARING

Deafness Cured Without Medical Aid.

New York, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Franklin L. Hutton, father of Countess Barbara Hutton Haugwitz-Reventlow, dime store heiress, today told of a modern miracle which restored his hearing in a single morning recently.

"Will say," he wired the Associated Press from Prospect Hill plantation in South Carolina, "attribute restoration of hearing to fact I had no medical treatment of any kind."

A canvass of medical authorities in New York today showed that Mr. Hutton was correct in one respect, that hearing miracles of this kind happen, sometimes without medical aid, more often with it.

Wore Bone Conduction Aids.

Mr. Hutton went to Australia last summer, wearing bone conduction hearing aids. Near the end of the summer his wife telephoned him from Paris, expecting to speak as usual through a servant. Her husband himself answered:

"Don't shout, I can hear."

Earlier that day Mr. Hutton had been hard of hearing as usual. About noon his hearing seemed to be getting better. While he sat at luncheon it came back "miraculously."

The contrast was so astounding that Mr. Hutton seemed to hear normally. Actually it has been so good ever since that he uses no hearing aids, and persons close to him think he hears "perfectly." Really, he said in his wire, he believes his hearing not perfect.

Specific Reason Unknown.

Inasmuch as Mr. Hutton had not been consulting physicians at the time his hearing came back, the specific reason for his recovery is not known. But some of the circumstances possibly tied it in with "allergic" recoveries known to medical science.

The American Society for the Hard of Hearing gets many stories of marvelous cures, or of spontaneous recoveries. The society has broadcast that virtually all these miracles can be traced to natural causes.

Piano Company to Honor Five 50 Year Employes

Five men who have worked for the W. W. Kimball company, piano and pipe organ manufacturers, for more than fifty years each will be honored tomorrow night in the Palmer house at a banquet marking the 80th anniversary of the founding of the company. The veteran employés, who will be given gold watches, are G. M. Dean, 710 West 66th place; John McNellis, 8240 South Sangamon avenue; Frank Halck, 53 Park boulevard, Glen Ellyn; George B. Demes, 3817 North Claremont avenue, and John A. Sturnfeld, 2706 West 23d place.

Help Seize Robber

Miss Irene Rocen (left) set a policeman on the trail of a robber in the loop yesterday and her sister, Miss Lillian Rocen, followed the bandit and caused him to be held by civilians.

Miss Lillian Rocen, a clerk in the Nu-Enamel store at 113 South Clark street, chased a gunman who had just robbed the store through loop crowds last evening and caused his capture in the Commonwealth Edison company building at 140 South Clark street.

The robber had forced Miss Rocen, 22 years old, and her sister, Irene, 19 years old, also an employé in the store, to give him $72 from the cash register.

Ignoring his warning not to raise an outcry, Lillian set out after the robber. Heeding her cries, Edison company employés overpowered the bandit and held him for police. He said he is Melvin Stanton, 22 years old, 546 East 79th street, and that he came to Chicago recently from New Orleans, La. The sisters live at 1802 South 58th avenue, Cicero.

HONOR LAWLER, NEW AMERICAN LEGION CHAPLAIN

Jacksonville, Ill., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—The Rev. Father Frank J. Lawler, recently elected national chaplain of the American Legion, was honored here tonight at a banquet. More than 500 persons attended.

A parade featuring Legion delegations and drum corps from many Illinois cities preceded the banquet, with a reviewing stand located in front of the Federal building.

Daniel J. Doherty, national commander, headed the list of distinguished Legionnaires present. Others included Leonard Applequist of Aurora, Illinois department commander; C. Wayland Brooks of Chicago, past department commander; John Stelle of McLeansboro, past district commander; State Senator Earl B. Searcy of Springfield, and A. L. Bowen, director of public welfare of Illinois.

Father Lawler, the only private in the United States army who has held the office of national chaplain of the American Legion, is pastor of a church at Hume, Ill.

OVERPOWERED BY HIS WIFE, SAYS CRANE TEACHER

Charging numerous instances of cruelty, Wiley Hitchcock, 52 years old, a teacher at Crane High school, yesterday filed suit for divorce in Superior court against Mrs. Winifred Hitchcock, 46 years old, 3307 West 65th place, also a school teacher.

The bill, prepared by Attorney Benjamin H. Erlich, in ascribing great strength to Mrs. Hitchcock, says that Hitchcock, who weighs 137 pounds, was no match for his 200 pound wife. Mrs. Hitchcock is accused of striking her husband with a brass candlestick and threatening him with a loaded pistol and a razor.

The bill also says that she twisted his clothing into knots and soaked them in water, and that she took $11,000 from him through forgery.

Hitchcock complains further that she filed suit against him for nonsupport in the police court, and had him served in front of his students.

INVESTIGATE POOLROOM FIRE.

Earle Downes, city fire attorney, began an investigation yesterday of a blaze which caused $300 damage in a poolroom at 1738 West North avenue earlier in the day. After the fire was extinguished firemen reported they found evidence that the premises had been sprinkled with fuel oil.

ARRAIGN WRIGHT, SLAYER OF WIFE AND HIS FRIEND

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Arraigned today on a charge of having murdered his wife, Evelyn, 29 years old, and his close friend, John B. Kimmel, 32, Paul A. Wright, 38, president of Glendale airport, waived reading of the complaint. His preliminary hearing was set for Thursday.

Wright's counsel, Jerry Geisler, said he would plead not guilty, precluding possibility of an insanity defense. Geisler let it be known he would contend Wright had become emotionally unstable as a result of a sterilization operation performed to avert the hazard of fatal childbirth to Mrs. Wright, and shell shock in the world war.

Eugene Williams, chief investigator for the district attorney, said he still was working on evidence by which the state hopes to prove the slaying of Mrs. Wright and Kimmel, Wright's operations manager, was premeditated, possibly accomplished by entrapment.

Wright, now guarded closely against suicide, told police after the shooting he killed his wife and friend when he emerged from a bedroom where he had been sleeping and found them kissing on a piano bench.

RARE SPECIMENS OF DESERT LIFE BROUGHT TO CITY

On View This Afternoon at Academy of Sciences.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

Chicagoans will have their first view this afternoon of many of the thousands of weird and rare specimens of desert life which four members of the staf of the Academy of Sciences captured and collected during the academy's expedition into south central Arizona last spring and summer.

The haul was immense.

It includes 500 specimens of birds and mammals, 1,000 reptiles and amphibians, 5,000 insects, 1,500 feet of motion pictures showing characteristics of the region and the ways of various types of birds and reptiles as they lived, and 300 still photographs of the vegetation and the animal life of the desert. Among the motion pictures are some showing the eerie locomotion of the "sidewinder," a rattlesnake which rolls sideways over the soft desert sands. Others will make clear the king snake's way with a rattler, and still others will present the coral snake, a creature as beautiful as it is venomous. The academy's cameras caught in their baleful activity many rare species which the ordinary traveler never sees, because those species come forth only at night.

Lecture Accompanies Showing.

Exhibition of the pictures and the accompanying lecture by Dr. Howard K. Gloyd, director of the academy, will begin at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the academy's spacious structure in Lincoln park, convenient to the entrance at Clark street and Ogden avenue. There will be no admission charge; there never is an admission charge for the academy's lectures and exhibitions, a fact worth mentioning to a public which does little to support the institution.

Of the significance of the Arizona expedition, which was largely financed by F. R. Dickinson, president of the academy, Director Gloyd says:

"In spite of all the zoölogical exploration of the United States during the last seventy-five years there are vast areas in the southwest that are comparatively little known, and Arizona has had less than its share of the attention of naturalists. My colleagues—Earl G. Wright, Thurston I. Wright, Roy Komarek, Mrs. Gloyd—and I returned from this expedition feeling that we had enjoyed a new and worthwhile experience.

Other Lectures Listed.

"We acquired an appreciation of the opportunities for additional discoveries that may lead to a fuller understanding of some of the problems of animal distribution and environmental relationships."

Other free Sunday afternoon exhibitions and lectures in the academy series for this month and next are: Nov. 21, "Illinois State Parks"; Nov. 28, no announcement; Dec. 5, "Birds and Wildflowers of the Great Smoky Mountains"; Dec. 12, "The Lure of the Forest"; Dec. 19, "The Camera's Catch."

GIANT OIL TANK ARRIVES AFTER LONG WATER TRIP

Too long to be transported by rail or barge, an oil evaporating tower has just been brought from New Jersey to Whiting, Ind., by a tug. Starting from New Jersey three weeks ago, the tug pulled the 80 foot air filled tank, 15 feet in diamater, up the Hudson river, through the Erie canal and thence across the Great Lakes to the Standard Oil company's Whiting docks.

The tower, made of steel 2 5-16 inches thick, weights 200 tons. The next problem was to get it onto the dock, the platform being about six feet above the water level. Two cables were passed around the tower and by means of two winches powered by two 100 h. p. motors it was rolled up the side of the dock and onto a scaffold. Later it is to be rolled from th scaffold onto two specially built flat cars and taken to its place on the company property.

PAYROLL BANDITS GET $401.

Two armed men compelled Herman Turchik, a bookkeeper, to surrender $401 yesterday in front of the offices of the Bernard Paper company, 2320 South Western avenue, where he is employed. Turchik had just drawn the money, which was to have been used for a payroll, from the Liberty National bank.

Wins Divorce

MRS. FRANCES STRAUB.

Mrs. Frances Straub, 25 years old, former show girl, won an uncontested divorce on grounds of desertion yesterday from Herbert Straub, official of a New York distillery firm. Mrs. Straub, who lives at 420 Melrose street, testified before Judge Philip Finnegan in the Circuit court that she was married April 15, 1933, and her husband left her six weeks later, on June 1. She waived alimony.

DOCTORS TRACE RARE DISEASE TO PAIN KILLER DRUG

Hunt for Cause Recalled by Death in Chicago.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

This is a medical detective story, the history of a fifteen year search by physicians all over the world for the criminal cause of the rare disease known as agranulocytic angina. This disease destroys the white corpuscles, or health soldiers of the blood, and to it the recent death of Walter Blyde, a young Chicagoan, has been attributed.

This disease has been described as one of the penalties of civilization, as it appears to be confined to the white race in better social circumstances. Vitamin deficiencies and endocrine [ductless] gland disturbances have been carefully considered, but the chief suspect at present is the synthetic drug aminopyrine used as a self-administered pain killer. This drug was patented in Germany in 1896 and has been used extensively in America for the last two decades. It is significant that agranulocytic angina, which attacks the bone marrow where the white corpuscles originate, was rarely reported before 1922.

Some Persons Sensitive.

Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, said yesterday that certain persons are peculiarly susceptible to the effects of this and similar drugs, and that indiscriminate use of tablets to kill pain is unwise.

The council on pharmacy and chemistry of the American Medical association at its March meeting this year went on record as being "disturbed by the continued excessive claims for aminopyrine [especially appealing to women] because of the danger of agranulocytosis arising from its use in some individuals."

Dr. Frederick Stenn of Chicago in a study of this disease in the Archives of Pathology reported that it has its highest incidence in the United States in New York, Illinois, and Pennsylvania. From 1931 to 1934, 1,981 deaths were attributed to the disease in this country. It has been increasing in England since 1930. Housewives, particularly women between 40 and 60, physicians, nurses, medical students, and school teachers, have been highest in the list of victims and in this order.

Trace Effects of Drugs.

Drs. Roy R. Kracke and Francis P. Parker of Emory university in Georgia reported in 1935 on 172 cases of the disease of which 153 had followed use of aminopyrine. Their evidence was that the widespread introduction of drugs was coincident with the appearance of the disease.

Drs. Frederic W. Madison and Theodore L. Squier of Milwaukee also studied the relationship of the drug to the disease in 14 cases. Six persons who continued use of the drug died. Of eight persons who stopped the drug six recovered.

Bundle of "Waste Paper" Turns Into $7,000 Bonds

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 13.—(AP)—William Carroll, 14 years old, told by his parents to clean up the yard, picked up what appeared to be a bundle of waste paper. The bundle contained $7,000 in bonds stolen from the home of the late Mrs. Catherine Robertson while friends and relatives viewed her body at an undertaking establishment. The bonds were returned to Mrs. Anna M. Gelle of Atlantic City, N. J., the owner.

Accident Prevention Work Cuts Crashes in 9 Cities

Nine cities with accident prevention bureaus installed under direction of the safety division of the International Association of Chiefs of Police have reduced the number of automobile accidents the first nine months of this year, Lieut. Franklin M. Kreml, division director, reported on Friday. The cities are Atlanta, Ga.; Louisville, Ky.; Oakland, Cal.; New Haven, Hartford, Waterbury, and Greenwich, Conn.; Cincinnati, and Saginaw, Mich.

STEAMER SINKS; 6 SAVED; SEARCH FOR 23 SEAMEN

8 Wearing Life Belts at Mercy of Seas.

New York, Nov. 13.—[Special.]—With a crew of 29, only six of whom were rescued, the small Greek freighter Tzenny Chandris, heavily loaded with scrap iron, early today went to the bottom of the Atlantic in a southeast gale, between 30 and 40 miles northeast of treacherous Diamond shoals off Cape Hatteras.

Of the twenty-three men unaccounted for tonight, eight were last seen tossing about in angry seas, buoyed up by life belts, fourteen were being sought in a storm-tossed lifeboat.

After an all-day search the coast guard cutters Sebago, Bibb, and Mendota, which sped from Norfolk, Va., to the vicinity of the tragedy, reported to coast guard communications that they had found no trace of other survivors. The weather still was treacherous, but, despite their seemingly hopeless mission, the three cutters were continuing the search.

Men Speak Only Greek.

Capt. Nicholas Patronas, master of the C. D. Mallory tanker Swiftsure, which rescued the six known survivors, was unable to learn many details of the sinking. The six men could not speak English, and they had to convey to their rescuers by sign language how many of their shipmates had to be accounted for.

The Greek freighter, bound from Morehead, N. C., to Rotterdam, sent out her first SOS at 4:15 a. m. [eastern standard time]. The Radio Marine station at Savannah, Ga., notified all ships to stand by for assistance.

The Swiftsure, first to reach the scene, hauled the six survivors aboard from their frail lifeboats shortly after daybreak. A wireless message tonight from master of the Swiftsure said the rescue had taken place shortly after 9:30 a. m. while a rough sea was running, and there were heavy rain and wind squalls.

Drift in Water Logged Boat.

The survivors were drifting in a battered water logged lifeboat which they had boarded after their ship sank. They said the Tzenny Chandris had rolled over on her beam and sunk after her bunkers and engine room had flooded. They said also that several other members of the crew went down with the captain. They saw eight other men, in life belts, struggling through the sea toward their lifeboat, but the men never reached it.

The Swiftsure went to the spot where the Greek freighter went down but found nothing but a floating cargo boom. The Swiftsure continued to search for more survivors until the coast guard cutters arrived and then the tanker proceeded on her course. She was headed for Boston from Corpus Christi, Tex.

Vestris Sank Nine Years Ago.

The Greek freighter went down nine years and two days after the sinking of the steamer Vestris off the Virginia capes. The Vestris foundered Nov. 11, 1928, with a loss of 111 lives.

The Tzenny Chandris was making its first trip across the Atlantic. The vessel was built at Kobe, Japan, where it was launched in 1920. Lloyd's register listed the ship as having a gross tonnage of 5,815 and a length of 384 feet.

SECOND DAUGHTER OF MARSHALL FIELD TO BE BRIDE DEC. 20

New York, Nov. 13.—[U. P.]—Barbara Field, daughter of Marshall Field and Mrs. Diego Suarez, announced plans tonight for her wedding to Anthony A. Bliss in the Church of the Heavenly Rest Dec. 20.

Anna Glenn Butler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Butler, is to be maid of honor. Bridesmaids are to be Cecilia and Marie Vom Rath, twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Vom Rath; Peggy Marshall, daughter of Mrs. Jan Juta; Cynthia Banks, daughter of Mrs. V. Fisher Kuser and James Lenox Banks, and Janet Russell, Caroline De Chadenedes, Audrey Gray, and Bettine Field.

Bliss, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius N. Bliss of New York and Westbury, Long Island, is to have his brother Cornelius Jr. as best man. Their wedding trip will be short, since Bliss is attending Columbia Law school.

LECTURES FRIDAY ON HEART DISEASE.

Dr. James B. Herrick will speak Friday at 8:15 p. m. in Thorne hall, Lake Shore drive and Superior street, on "How Knowledge of the Heart and its Dieases Has Developed."

HAITI ASKS HELP FROM U. S. TO END DOMINICAN ROW

Washington, D. C., Nov. 13.—(AP)—The state department announced today it had received from President Stenio Vincent of Haiti a request that the United States offer its good offices, together with Cuba and Mexico, toward seeking a solution of a current Haitian-Dominican dispute.

During his visit here this week Georges Leger, foreign minister of Haiti, charged the Dominicans had not complied with an agreement for an impartial investigation into the alleged killing of many Haitians.

Leger said reports he had received indicated that from 3,000 to 5,000 Haitian men, women, and children had been slaughtered, many of them burned alive and drowned, by Dominican armed forces.

BANDIT THANKS VICTIM FOR HIS AID TO FAMILY

Jacob Espovich, general manager of the Boston Store, who ten months ago outwitted Benjamin Soroski, who was trying to rob him, said yesterday that the young man has written him a letter of gratitude from the state penitentiary at Joliet.

Mr. Espovich, after hearing the story of illness and unemployment told by the prisoner in Criminal court, has been taking care of Soroski's wife, Bernice, 1532 North Campbell avenue, and their small son since Soroski entered Joliet to serve a sentence of from one to fourteen years.

"After seeing how kind you have been to me and my family," Soroski wrote, "it proves to me that I can never, never go wrong again. Please accept my earnest and fervent thanks for your benevolence."

THE TENNESSEE FRAUD.

The Tennessee Valley authority is now committed to an expenditure of more than 500 million dollars. The administration professes to be so pleased with the results obtained that it is asking congress at the forthcoming session to divide the whole country into seven similar regions. Before any such scheme is adopted it would seem prudent to find out what is going on in TVA territory.

It was with that thought in mind that Mr. Arthur Evans made his recent tour of investigation through the southern hill country. The report of what he saw is now familiar to TRIBUNE readers. If he were a less reliable witness, if the facts he produced were not supported amply from the public records, the picture he presented would defy belief.

In theory, the half billion dollars is being spent to promote navigation, control floods, conserve the soil, and produce a by-product—electricity. The scheme is a fraud from the start; flood control, navigation, and conservation are mere subterfuges. There is not now and there never will be sufficient trafic on the river to justify canalizing it even if relatively inexpensive low dams were contemplated instead of the high dams which have been adopted. The damage caused by floods might justify an expenditure in flood prevention of from 30 to 50 million dollars, but all the flood control and all the navigational improvements which are cited to justify the half billion dollar outlay could be had for less than 150 million dollars and wouldn't be worth the price.

There is an essential contradiction between flood control and power development. The basin behind a dam intended to prevent floods must be emptied as rapidly as safety will permit so that the next downpour can be impounded. Power production, on the other hand, favors a full basin at all times. If the basin is kept as empty as possible for flood control it will be of small use for power. If it is kept as full as possible for power it will actually promote flood damage because the runoff from a dammed stream is more rapid than it otherwise would have been. The Chickamauga dam, for example, will create a reservoir extending seventy-five miles upstream. The irregularities in the width, depth and direction of the natural stream bed have provided obstructions to the runoff over all that distance. These obstructions are now to be obliterated with the result that the flood waters must pile up more rapidly than before. If the basin is kept full this augmented flood must sweep over the dam to work added damage below.

So far as soil conservation is concerned the TVA dams present another absurdity. The region, as any one who has flown over it knows, is one of steep hillsides and narrow, fertile valleys. The dams cannot prevent hillside erosion, but they can and have flooded some of the better agricultural land of the region. It is a strange sort of soil conservation which drowns the best farm land under a hundred and fifty feet of water.

Subtracting from half a billion the 150 million dollars, which is a generous charge for flood control and navigation, leaves 350 million dollars which ought properly to be charged to electric production. If TVA were intended to serve as an honest yardstick for power costs the books would show a capital outlay for power of that amount. But if that were done the government would have to fix its rates so high that it couldn't sell its power to any one. The best present indication is that the government intends to write down its investment for power to a modest 135 million dollars. Then by paying far less in taxes than a private company would pay, by charging itself a low interest rate [some say no interest at all], and by other accounting tricks the yardstick about which so much has been heard will be available for use.

The dishonesty of the whole proceeding is shocking. The actual uses to which the power is being put are ludicrous in view of the administration's statements that the introduction of power is going to revolutionize the domestic life of the mountaineers.

The biggest customer for TVA power is the Aluminum Company of America, dominated by the Mellon family and recently charged with violating the anti-trust laws. Another mountaineer whose life is being made over by TVA is the Victor Chemical company. Another of the forgotten hillbillies is the Monsanto Chemical company and still another the Electro-Metallurgical company. These underprivileged citizens of the southern highlands are buying power at figures far below its cost of production reckoned on any honest basis.

Something like that was, of course, inevitable, because large quantities of power are being produced in a fairly remote region of limited resources. To attract customers who can begin to consume the amounts of current available it was necessary to set extremely low rates to corporations whose principal item of expense in manufacture is electricity. A very few electrochemical companies were about the only customers of this sort available.

In the past the Aluminum company has developed its own power at its own expense and risk. Now the government is taking all the risk and delivering power below cost of production. The deal is a sweet one for everybody except the taxpayers who must shoulder the deficit.

The TVA is a fraud. It is continuing to squander public money only because public opinion has not yet seen through the mass of falsehood with which the scheme has been surrounded. It is a fraud and a wastrel. The money spent on the dams, the generating plants, and the transmission lines is gone forever. It cannot be invested in industry. It is not available for road building, for housing, for national defense, or anything else. TVA represents both a waste of the nation's resources and a charge upon its future income, for the deficits must be met from taxation in the years to come. Yet TVA today is being held out as a model organization to be foisted upon every section of the country.

WE NAMELESS NORD AMERICANOS.

It is policy now for the British to refer not to America but to the United States when reference is made to this land of the free. The purpose, it is understood, is to avoid offending Latin American sentiment. Our good neighbors to the south object to the name American used as indicating citizens of the United States. They think it is an arrogant sort of monopoly of the name which properly belongs to anybody in the western hemisphere. It isn't a small point of pride. It is very seriously taken, and any one who wishes to get along as amiably as he can with the people of the Americas outside of the United States puts at least North to the name American.

The punctilios of our good neighbors are a bit trivial and regard for them is in itself slightly offensive. Each of them has his own distinctive name without which he would be unidentified. A Brazilian, Chilean, Paraguayan, Argentinian, Uruguayan, or what not would be a man without a country if he were known as an American or a South American. That would leave him without a designated habitat or a particular loyalty. If a Mexican or any citizen of Central America, if a Cuban or Haitian were called a North American his country likewise would be left to guesswork unless his characteristics indicated it.

These quibbles about a point of honor which our British friends recognize are a little bit beneath the dignity which insists upon them and, as points of honor, are rather derogatory than flattering. When they become important and must be respected in mercantile as well as diplomatic and social relations they exaggerate the ego to ridiculous proportions.

The word American to designate the citizens of the western hemisphere between the Canadian and the Mexican border has the weight of usage, tradition, historical acceptance, and appropriateness. Historical usage alone would quiet all the other nationalistic sensitiveness. The British have to turn their backs upon their own continued employment of the word from the time when they first had American colonies.

As the name of a nation America has less justification than American has as the name of a citizen. America as the name of the United States takes in a lot of geography that does not belong. But no one has any doubt as to the geographical content, and if an American cannot use that name he is a man without a known country. There are other United States in this hemisphere, so he cannot be a United Stateser. If he isn't an American he is a person without a national name, and he will not go about his human experiences referring to himself as a citizen of the United States of North America situated north of the Rio Grande river and south of a line extending in part west from the Lake of the Woods.

PRIVATE ARMIES AND THE LAW.

James H. Rand Jr. and Pearl L. Berghoff, head of a strike breaking organization, have gone to trial in New Haven, Conn., charged with violation of the Byrnes act, which makes it a felony to transport strike breakers across a state line. Indictments charge that the employer and the strike breaker sent fifty-seven of Berghoff's men from New York to Middletown, Conn., where the Remington Rand company had a strike.

Professional strike breaking was private war. To be conducted successfully it required breakers tougher than the pickets. Herrin was an illustration of how tough the strikers could be. When a battling employer decided to end a strike by force and reopen his factory he sought an out of town fighting force and there were agencies to supply him with men experienced in such warfare. They weren't affected by any neighborhood considerations and they knew that they had to give worse than they took to be safe.

Sometimes an employer resorted to a private army because he was denied local police protection and the help of the law enforcement officers. Kohler of Wisconsin, who did not fight and who was subjected to losses, injuries and indignities, saw his place invaded, besieged and partly wrecked by toughs from outside towns. However, the furnishing of strike breaking armies was odious in public opinion and congress used its interstate commerce authority to stop the business so far as it could by raising the state lines as a barrier.

The law, as is frequently so, touched only one side of the case. It went only half way. It did not undertake to punish riotous men who went from one state to another to picket and attack a plant. Michigan organizations in recent disturbances sent private armies into Indiana. The local authorities were able to turn them back. If the invaders had been on the other side of the fight the federal law would have applied to them. The state was satisfied to get rid of them and escape the disorders they would have created.

John Lewis organized roving bands which traveled from one troubled spot to another, attacking not only the plants and the workers but the police and sherif's officers. These lawbreakers even had the protection of state troops. Private war in industry is bad, It is not merely bad on one side. It is bad on both. The law should not be confined to suppressing and punishing one side of it, but both. The killers and sluggers are on both sides. We have a lot of particular law which lacks impartiality.

CAMPAIGN OF 1938 OPENED.

[Bloomington (Ill.) Pantagraph.]

For a whole year prior to the national election of 1936 a modest little news sheet called Dispelling the Fog was issued from the office of the national Democratic committee by Charles Michelson, the director of publicity for the committee. It continued its unambitious rôle throughout the campaign, and was the personal organ of Director Michelson, who is, in turn, the official spokesman of the White House on matters political.

For the last eleven months the Michelson sheet has suspended publication.

But now it is revived again, the first number of the new volume appearing last week in Washington.

The first issue is devoted mainly to an effort to refute the charge that when Senator Joseph Guffey of Pennsylvania called down fire on the heads of the opponents of President Roosevelt's court packing scheme he was speaking with the authority of the President. Michelson says, to the extent of many thousand words, that Guffey's statements were his own personal views—nothing else.

In spite of this, the reappearance of the Michelson news sheet is taken as a signal that the 1938 campaign is on.

WHAT YOUR DEMEANOR DENOTES.

ONE of the more interesting of the early nineteenth century works on art is "The Anatomy of Expression," by Sir Charles Bell, whose name is attached to Bell's palsy [facial paralysis]. He was a draftsman of great skill as well as an engraver, and many of our most beautiful coppers came from his hand. Probably the most discerning anatomist of his day, he nevertheless was an equally proficient surgeon. But he delighted to make excursions into fields allied to medicine, and his study of the facial reflections of terror, pain, sorrow, anger, etc., was the outcome.

Since his time physicians have learned much from the appearance and attitude of the patient. A diagnosis of appendicitis sometimes may be made on the mere statement that the individual has abdominal distress and nausea, coupled with the fact that the knees are drawn upward.

Whether a child is ill may be judged from certain external manifestations—the form and shape of the visage, the condition of the skin and its color, the play of the muscles, and the expression of the eyes. We can observe the yellow tinge of jaundice, the bluish shade about the lips in pneumonia, the flushed face of infection, and the high color over the cheekbones which is common in bronchitis or broncho-pneumonia. The curves and position of the lips—if thickened, swollen, and turned outward—may point to infection within the mouth or of the gums, tongue, or throat. Even violent coughing may lead to swelling and apparent thickening of these structures.

A baby who is thirsty will indicate the fact by his manner. The mouth is open with a bit of dry tongue protruding. If the need of water is extreme the tongue will be curled up with the tip resting against the gums of the upper jaw or the roof of the mouth. Loss of fluid is further depicted by sunken eyes with the skin of the lower lids loose and flabby. The space in the infant's skull which has not been closed usually is depressed. Hunger is portrayed by an open mouth which is often closed and again opened, but never is still.

With a long illness the child's countenance will show loss of weight. The rounded contours vanish and the face is longer and sharper, the eyes sunken, and the bone of the lower jaw [chin] is prominent. With such a youngster, nursing [sucking] may become impossible, because much of the fat has been lost from the cheeks. Nutrition then must be administered in some other way.

The eyes have been called the "windows of the soul," but they tell much about the physical aspect of their owners. In the presence of pain the pupils will dilate widely, then later contract, particularly if a sensitive spot is pressed upon and the feeling of discomfort is conveyed to the nervous system. If an eye closes suddenly or if one lid droops while the other is opened with ease we must think of some nerve lesion, the result of middle ear infection or meningitis.

The one who is obviously sick will smile whenever a person of whom he is fond approaches the bedside, but very young children never smile when they are seriously ill. That is why parents search so eagerly for the friendly air which betokens recovery.

Physicians would be misled on many occasions if they did not take into account the facial changes of their patients. Perhaps that is why the medical adviser may sit at the bedside for several minutes taking stock to determine that all important thing—physical reserve.

All of this means that parents should watch their children and study their moods [and tenses]. Thus there will be supplied much valuable information about illness as well as nervous reactions.

CAUSES OF ADHESIONS.

R. B. writes:

1. What causes adhesions?
2. Is operation the only cure?

REPLY.

1. Adhesions are caused by a band of thin membrane [the peritoneum] becoming inflamed and adhering to almost any tissue that it touches.

2. If the adhesions become firm and show their presence by interference with the function of the organs concerned, one can seldom expect their complete absorption. Counterirritation is the means generally applied—locally over the site of the difficulty. Sometimes operation is necessary when the adhesion is divided.

LISPING.

Ann writes: I have a lisp. Is there any way I can cure or correct it? All the children in the family lisp. The mother and father do not.

REPLY.

A simple operation on the tongue is usually all that is necessary to cure lisping. If it is a habit, speech retraining will help.

DIETING FOR TEETH.

Mrs. M. W. writes: I have a 12 year old boy. His second teeth are decaying and nearly every one has to be filled. What is the cause of this? Is it a certain food that he eats?

REPLY.

Probably cod liver oil and a diet rich in calcium may help. But the time for dieting for good teeth was before he was born. A pregnant woman influences the teeth of her child through her own diet, which must be rich in calcium, phosphorus, and vitamin D.

AGE AND BATHING.

F. W. writes: Should middle age people take a daily bath? I have heard that they should not.

REPLY.

Age is no deterrent to bath taking. As long as water is plentiful indulge in daily ablutions. Do not use an irritating soap.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

The volume of Legal Friend mail necessitates printed statements on common questions. No copies or records of the letters or answers are kept. Hence follow-up letters should be complete in themselves. If questions are based on some previously printed problem a clipping of the article should accompany. Most of the replies are mailed. Letters bearing no name and address are disregarded. A self-addressed envelope will expedite handling.

TERMS OF WILL.

Chicago, Nov. 6.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. How much does it cost to probate a will? Are the lawyers' fees included in the per cent the court takes?

2. A will was divided three ways, one-third to the wife, one-third to the daughter, and one-third to the sister, and this clause inserted: "The provisions as herein contained for my beloved wife, together with the real estate heretofore conveyed to her, are given her in lieu of her widow's award, dower, homestead, and all other statutory rights that she would be entitled to receive as my widow and heir."

3. Can this one clause be renounced without contesting the will?

4. If by renouncing this one clause you so contest the will, would you be contesting the whole will?

5. Is a widow's dowry more than one-third of an estate? If the sister's one-third was signed to the widow, would that be lawful? A. N. S.

1. Depends on the size of the estate and on other facts that are not before us.

2. Illinois statute fixes the administrator's fee at not over 6 per cent of the personal property. In our opinion the attorney's fees should come out of this.

3. The widow cannot repudiate a part of the will without repudiating all and taking instead under the statute, if that is what you mean to ask.

4. Renouncing the will is not the same thing as contesting it, if that is what you mean to ask.

5. No. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

MISSING HEIR'S SHARE IN ESTATE.

Chicago, Oct. 29.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Over a year ago we were advised by the administrator of his estate that my half-brother, who had been killed in the navy in 1918, had a residue of his government insurance which had not been paid to the beneficiary [his foster mother] because of her death. This residue is payable to his heirs, who are one brother, two half-brothers, one half-sister, and his father. All of the heirs have been located except the father, who has not been heard from for ten or fifteen years. No record of his death can be found in any of the places where we have heard he lived in the past.

1. Is it possible to have him declared legally dead?

2. If this is possible, could the estate be settled on that basis? Last year the administrator said a year would have to pass before the estate could be disbursed. The year was up in August.

3. Now he says that he cannot accept the procedure outlined in the three questions above but must have certificate of death or an affidavit of his death signed by at least two people.

4. Is he correct?

5. How can such an affidavit be secured when no one knows that the man in question is dead? The administrator says he hopes to have the case in the Probate court in November.

6. If this is done, when can we expect a settlement?

7. What can we expect as the probable expense of all the proceedings? The estate is being settled under Wisconsin laws and the total is about $2,800. R. R.

1. Yes, his estate could be probated on the reliance of the 7 years' presumption of death.

2 and 3. See 1.

4. See preceding answers.

5. Obviously you cannot obtain such an affidavit on your hypothesis.

6. One year later.

7. Depends on facts that are not before us. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON.—Illusions about future wars, tinged in the popular imagination by all the novelists' panoplies of horror, were dismissed as "nonsense" by Prof. J. B. S. Haldane in a lecture on "Science and Future Warfare" at the Royal United Service institution, London.

Prof. Haldane said that among the romantic notions of future wars was the idea that explosives much worse than any at present known would be used.

This was pretty fair nonsense, he said, for he did not think it possible to get explosives much more efficient than we have now. Nor, he said, was there any prospect within the next few centuries of blowing up the world with bombs releasing artificial radio-activity of which H. G. Wells had written.

Other ideas which Prof. Haldane dispelled in a few sentences centered on:

Terrible new gases, warfare carried on with the aid of microbes, and the total destruction of London by airplanes.

It was possible, he pointed out, that the human race had not yet exhausted the full list of poisonous volatile compounds, but he did not believe in the probability of anything much worse than mustard gas being produced.

It was worth noting, he said, that mustard gas was known in 1886, and that nothing worse was discovered between that date and 1917, when it was first used in the war.

Then there was the big bogey of microbic warfare—the use of disease as an attacking weapon. He doubted whether any method of attack by disease germs would be anything like as efficient as high explosives. It was possible that pneumonic plague might be spread by airplanes, he said, but the process was more difficult than it sounded.

"Apologizing" for not having given lurid predictions of the destruction of London in a future war, Prof. Haldane said that an air raid on London in which an enemy staked a big fraction of his air force might result in the killing of 50,000 people, which was as many as died in London during the influenza epidemic of 1918-'19. He did not believe millions would be killed.

It had been pointed out, Prof. Haldane said, that ten tons of gas would render the atmosphere poisonous over an area of several square miles if rightly distributed. It was also true, he added, that one ton of bullets would kill the entire British army if rightly aimed.

Then Prof. Haldone turned from what he called nightmares to possibilities. It was reasonably probable, he said, that some biological methods would be used in future warfare. Insect pests, like the potato beetle, might be introduced into this country by hostile airplanes if only to cause trouble and to keep busy a certain number of people who might be used for other purposes.

It was conceivable, also, that viruses such as smallpox could be used as a weapon, but he was skeptical as to their success.

THE CASE FOR THE HUNTER.

Chicago, Nov. 9.—Gertrude Charny, in a recent communication, suggests that all hunters lay aside their guns and take up the practice of feeding instead of shooting game. I wish Gertrude could have a accompanied me last week along the lower Illinois river where I went duck shooting. This would have been an ideal spot for her to try her feeding experiment. Here she would find hungry mallards by the tens of thousands eating the corn of irate farmers because man's tinkering with nature has destroyed all the natural duck food in the neighboring lakes. Previous to the drainage mania, which changed thousands of acres of marshland into farmland, the ducks had more natural food than they could consume and a self-respecting bird wouldn't eat a kernel of corn.

Yes, Gertrude, you would have a man-sized job feeding that feathered host, and if shooting were prohibited in a few years' time, due to the prolificacy of wild ducks, the birds might mistake you for an ear of corn. And, by the way, where were you several years ago when the Izaak Walton league was campaigning for funds to buy hay for the starving elk in Jackson Hole, Wyoming? These elk had their natural range taken away by sheep and cattle ranchers. And did you ever hear the sad tale of the deer in the Kaibab national forest where hunting was prohibited and how the deer multiplied so rapidly that the unfortunate creatures died of starvation? The only solution was an open season on deer, and today the remaining thousands are doing quite well, thank you.

This condition was also attributable to man because all natural enemies, such as wolf, cougar, and bobcat, were kept in check instead of being permitted to cut down the weak and inferior stock.

How would you enjoy being nursemaid, Gertrude, to thousands of ducks that annually starve to death because of oil waste that is pumped from steamers into the ocean along our Atlantic seaboard, causing the birds to become incapable of flight because of the adherence of oil to the feathers? Would feeding help here, or would you suggest rigid enforcement of laws to stop this discharging of oil on the high seas?

Take another sniff, Gertrude; you're barking up the wrong tree. It is not the man with the gun who is causing a decrease in our wild game. It is the greed and carelessness of mankind.

WALTER G. POHLMAN.

THE DUKE'S POSITION RE-EXAMINED.

Sheboygan, Wis., Nov. 9.—If the cause of the workingmen is so dear to the heart of the duke of Windsor why didn't he stick to his job in England? Certainly he could have done far more for them as their king than he can ever hope to do as the duke of Windsor. His rôle of savior for the workingman comes a bit late to be impressive.

He wanted privacy also. In that case, why won't he stay out of the limelight now? There are plenty of places left in the world where he could settle down to a quiet existence and be forgotten if he really wanted to. But does he?

It might be well for those sentimental people who find something to admire in him to remember that it is England which is maintaining these two useless people in royal style, and what have they done to deserve it? They owe it to England to go somewhere and settle down and quit making fools of themselves, at least. I for one am completely fed up with the duke of Windsor and his duchess. B. B.

AFRICAN PREFERENCES.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—Before some commission or other gets big hearted and starts parceling colonies to aggrieved combatants in that unspeakable mess known as the world war, why not ask the colonies what they want done?

An honest observer visiting the African colonies will find that both whites and natives prefer the present suzerainty to the former. Africa has a long memory, and still very fresh in the minds of the natives is the ruthless pre-war effort at annihilating the native culture, to say nothing of Ethiopia.

The native culture, which is not to be scorned, did not succumb to kultur; it was simply driven under cover. The African substitute for a degree is still sought and attained after quite as many years of preparation as is required for an M. A., and with as great or greater sacrifice on the part of families to finance this training. It might not be considered education according to N. E. A. standards, but it withstood kultur's drastic onslaughts, and it remains an important element socially and politically. Great Britain had the good judgment and the humanity to recognize the fact and has governed accordingly.

Since the beginning of history dishonesty and cruelty have been boomerangs to the nations and empires employing them to conquer Africa. The nations and empires disappear, but Africa goes on.

ONE WHO HAS BEEN THERE.

MR. COOK'S QUALIFICATIONS.

Chicago, Nov. 9.—Supt. Johnson owes the public an explanation of his reasons for giving Raymond Cook the extremely low grade of 70 on an oral examination. How did it happen that a person who could rate 92 on a written test and 92 on experience made so low a score? Was it personal appearance or manner of speech that counted against him? Mr. Cook speaks well and is decidedly good looking. Was it some other personality trait? Mr. Cook's manner is calm, self-possessed and pleasant. In the absence of any explanation from Supt. Johnson most of us will believe that his grading was actuated by personal prejudice and dislike for one who was too honest and independent to lick his master's boots.

I am not a Chicago school teacher nor have I ever been one; I have no relatives in the school system. SQUARE DEALER.

WHAT ARE THE FACTS?

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 9.—What is man's most precious heritage and possession? What does he apparently value the least? The answer to both is the same: His [or her] health. America is slipping badly in respect to its average health and physical level. Italy and Germany are doing plenty about it. Can we afford to lightly pass up this vital matter?

SODIUM LIGHTS INSTALLED AT 3 CRASH CORNERS

Night Accident Reduction to Be Tested.

BY HAL FOUST.

Chicago is completing its first installation of sodium lights at three intersections which have high accident records.

The Illinois highway department has received bids for its first purchase of the lights, which will illuminate an S curve with a high accident record in Busse highway [U. S. 12] in Park Ridge. The Chicago sanitary district also has decided to install twenty of the lights on the locks under construction at the mouth of the Chicago river.

Purchase Awaits Experiment.

The Commonwealth Edison company supplied the equipment and the city paid for installation of the sodium lamps at Chicago and Ashland avenues, at Diversey and Cicero avenues, and at the three way intersection of 79th street and Stony Island and South Chicago avenues. If the experiment proves satisfactory, the city will buy the lamps.

"It's an experiment," said Leslie J. Sorenson, city trafic engineer, "in illumination designed especially to reduce the risks of night driving to pedestrians and motorists."

Undesirable for Boulevard.

Motorists who have seen the power companies' demonstrations of this new system of illumination on the Skokie road, on the Dunes Relief highway, and on a few isolated rural intersections in Cook county have asked why the Chicago park district did not adopt these amber lights for the new outer link bridge.

T. D. McDowell, electrical engineer for the district, yesterday said the yellow of sodium is undesirable for a boulevard because it makes a woman's rouge look a greenish purple.

"The claims for sodium's superior performance in fog are disputed," he said. "Its main advantage is low power consumption, of minor significance to the park district because we pay a low rate for electricity. Installation and maintenance costs are higher."

Serves Well on West Coast.

From the foggy west coast, however, E. R. Cato, chief of the California highway patrol, reported that sodium is serving well in the soupy atmosphere occasionally enveloping the San Francisco-Oakland bridge. L. V. Murrow, director of highway in Washington reported similar results near Tacoma.

Lighting on the spans of the new outer drive bridge and on the viaduct approaches from the south is of the latest type of reflectorized lamps mounted in keeping with modern practices of illuminating engineers. A survey discloses that impartial authorities can not pay the same compliment to other sections of the outer drive improvement.

Estimate Light Efficiency.

Between Oak street and the bridge lamps are mounted on poles resembling questions marks, goose necks, or button hooks. Only 20 or 25 per cent of their light reaches the pavement, whereas lamps on the bridge send 40 or 50 per cent of their light to the roadway. The ball globes on lamps on the Leif Eriksen drive in Grant park deliver only 8 or 10 per cent of their light to the pavement. These figures are from an impartial illuminating engineer of recognized authority.

The same authority quoted power and replacement cost figures purporting to show that sodium could give the same high visibility as the incandescent on the outer bridge at slightly less expense.

Street Lighting

(Story in adjoining column.)

Charts below compare the costs of four common types of electric street lamps. With the high visibility on the new outer link bridge taken as a standard, figures show the costs for one year of the type of lights used on the bridge and of three other types. Two of the reflectorized incandescent type give as much light as three sodium, ten gooseneck, or twenty globe lights. One-tenth of the installation cost was arbitrarily charged to one year's operation in such instance.

COST TO LIGHT 100 FEET OF OUTER DRIVE BRIDGE FOR ONE YEAR

REFLECTORIZED INCANDESCENT (Now on Outer Link Bridge)

WARN MOTORISTS TO TAKE TESTS IN SAFETY LANES

A police campaign to compel automobile owners to have their cars tested in safety lanes will be started soon, according to Deputy Vehicle Commissioner Edward J. Gorman, unless the drivers comply with the regulations.

Lanes for truck inspection are open in Sherman park, 53d street and South Racine avenue, and in Calumet park, 99th street and Avenue G, from 2 p. m. to 8 p. m. Those at McKinley park, 37th street and Hamilton avenue, and at 2840 Calumet avenue are open from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. Those at Wilson and Lawrence avenues, in Humboldt park, and at Sacramento avenue and Ohio street are open from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m. Passenger cars may also be tested in the truck lanes.

1 KILLED, 7 HURT IN AUTO CRASH ON DEMPSTER ST.

Woman Near Death After Corner Collision.

Richard Traxel, 38 years old, 1718 Granville avenue, was fatally injured and his wife and three children, and three other persons were hurt in a smashup of three automobiles at Cicero avenue and Dempster street, Niles Center, yesterday. Traxel died in the St. Francis hospital, Evanston, shortly before midnight.

The accident occurred, police said, when Abraham Jacobs, 51 years old, of Iron Mountain, Mich., went through a trafic light and crashed into Traxel's car, and then bounced on into another car.

Wife Seriously Injured.

Riding with Traxel were his wife, Elsie, 29 years old, who was the most seriously injured, and their children, Frederick, 8 years old; Ruth, 6 years old, and Joan, 5 years old.

Jacobs, after receiving treatment at St. Francis hospital, Evanston, where the injured were taken, was held by Niles Center police. Riding with him were his wife, Nazira, 50 years old, and Harold Hilborne, 21 years old, also of Iron Mountain. After striking the Traxel car, Jacobs' car rammed one in which Miss Mabel Murrie, 28 years old, of Grays Lake, was waiting for the trafic light in Cicero avenue. She was uninjured.

Boy Run Down; Dies.

Howard Shirpen, 7 years old, 2836 North Kenneth avenue, was fatally injured last evening when he darted in front of an automobile at 4457 Diversey avenue. Edward Johnson, 33 years old, 2439 North Kedzie boulevard, the driver, took the child to the Belmont hospital.

James C. Dickens, 78 years old, 7618 Michigan avenue, died Friday night at Moline of injuries incurred when he was struck by an automobile there. Mr. Dickens lived in Chicago for thirty years. He was visiting relatives in Moline.

Hunt Hit-Run Drivers.

Two hit and run drivers whose cars injured two men in separate accidents early yesterday were being sought by police. One of the victims is Allan Olson, 27 years old, 7042 Oglesby avenue, who was injured by a green sedan in 71st street at Clyde avenue. The other is Fred Haas, 50 years old, 7355 South Morgan street, who was struck at Halsted and 74th streets.

A hit and run car, speeding without lights on the wrong side of the street, struck and probably fatally injured Frank Tischner, 44 years old, 3412 North Oak Park avenue, and his wife Caroline, 42 years old, at Irving Park boulevard and Mason avenue early today. Their son Robert, 19 years old, leaped aside in time to avoid sharing their fate. Tischner, a jeweler, and his wife are in the Belmont hospital suffering from skull fractures.

Up to 2 p. m. yesterday 930 persons had been killed in Cook county by automobiles since Jan. 1. Of these 706 were killed in Chicago, where 20,021 were injured in the same period.

DOCTORS BAR VISITORS WHILE BASIL RYAN RESTS IN HOSPITAL

Hickory, N. C., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Physicians for Basil [Pat] Ryan, New York copper heir, continued today to deny visitors access to his room in a local hospital which he entered eight days ago, less than 12 hours after marrying a 21 year old Morganton girl.

Ryan's lawyer, Charles W. Bagby, resigned yesterday, saying his client had ignored his instructions against giving an interview. Bagby never said whether he had been retained for any specific purpose. He had quoted Ryan as having no recollection of having gone through a ceremony wtih anyone. Mrs. Ryan visited the hospital for 30 minutes this afternoon, but Superintendent Roy W. Giles said she did not see her husband.

MRS. CARTER, STAGE STAR OF '90s, DIES AT 75

30 Years in Theaters of U. S. and Europe.

Santa Monica, Cal., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Mrs. Leslie Carter, whose first stage appearance in 1891 was as a star and who continued to be a star for more than 30 years, died here today of heart disease and pneumonia. She was 75 years old.

With Mrs. Carter at her death were her husband, William L. Payne, her former leading man to whom she had been wed for 31 years, and their adopted daughter. Both had been at her bedside throughout the weeks of her illness. Mrs. Carter's body will be taken to Dayton, O., scene of her childhood, Monday for burial.

Fate Sends Her to Stage.

Divorce and loss of her personal fortune sent the young mother, who has been called America's greatest dramatic actress, to the stage. Lacking any formal education and without previous stage training she was acclaimed a great actress in the first rôle in which she appeared.

Mrs. Carter was born Caroline Louise Dudley, daughter of a wealthy Lexington, Ky., merchant in 1862. She was educated entirely by a governess, who passed long hours reading Shakespeare to her young charge and describing the acting of Edwin Booth, her personal friend. The child grew up, filled with the spirit of the theater, but early death of her father thwarted any idea she might have had to go on the stage.

Estate Soon Is Lost.

With her parents she removed to Dayton when a child. Following the death of her father his estate soon was lost. Mother and child knew poverty. Then Mrs. Dudley became ill and for sometime it was believed she could not recover.

The girl by this time had become a belle in Dayton and friends of the family arranged for her to meet and finally in 1880 to marry Leslie Carter, Chicago millionaire. She was 18 years old. A son was born to Mrs. Carter, but the romance did not last and in 1889 Carter divorced her in a startling suit.

Without funds and lacking training of any sort, Mrs. Carter took stock of her accomplishments and finally decided her only chance to make a living was in the theater. She also decided to make her married name of Mrs. Leslie Carter known throughout the country. She went to David Belasco, who saw her talent and for two years she was his pupil.

Stage Opportunity Comes.

Finally pronounced ready for the stage, Belasco starred Mrs. Carter in "The Ugly Duckling." Then came "Miss Heylett," but neither play was highly successful. Finally in 1895 Mrs. Carter won stage renown as the star in a play written especially for her by Belasco, "The Heart of Maryland." For three seasons the play was a tremendous success in the United States and in 1898 Belasco took the play and Mrs. Carter to London where success was repeated.

Even greater success was to follow. Belasco produced "Zaza," something of a shocker for its day and Mrs. Carter starred in it in this country and in England where she was acclaimed publicly and complimented by the prince and princess of Wales, later King Edward VII. and Queen Alexandra.

Plays Mme. Du Barry.

The Belasco play "Madame Du Barry" followed, drawing enthusiastic, critical, and public approval during its run at the Criterion theater. After a season with this play, and one alternating between "Zaza" and "Du Barry," Mrs. Carter appeared at the Belasco theater in "Andrea," which she played until the spring of 1906. At that time she ended her long association with Mr. Belasco and engaged in several court actions against him. She was bankrupt four times.

Then followed Mrs. Carter's sudden marriage to Payne in the summer of 1906 in Portsmouth, N. H.

Broke, She Stars Again.

After her second marriage she appeared for a time in a répertoire of successful plays, managed by Charles B. Dillingham. Then she became her own manager and toured this country in "Kassa," a play by John Luther Long. In 1908 she was forced into bankruptcy proceedings. She testified that she "did not have a cent in the world."

After that she started to work to retrieve her fortune. Her later plays included "Two Women," "Zaza," "Camille," and "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray." Feeling much the need of a rest after so many years of stardom, she bought a villa in France. In 1921 she made her really last successful appearance in New York, when she played Lady Catherine in Somerset Maugham's comedy, "The Circle."

FIRE DESTROYS HISTORIC MANOR ERECTED IN 1789

Princess Anne, Md., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Beverly, historic manor house which tradition says once was the center of an international plot to rescue the exiled Napoleon Bonaparte, was destroyed by fire tonight.

The flames wrecked the old fourteen room mansion, leaving only its thick brick walls and a kitchen addition standing. The Princess Anne and Salisbury fire trucks became stuck on muddy roads and were delayed in reaching the scene.

Nehemiah King built Beverly in 1789. Tradition says Jerome Bonaparte, when he was in Baltimore, plotted with King to rescue his brother Napoleon from exile on St. Helena and bring him to Beverly. Napoleon's death foiled the plot.

William Perry of Salisbury and New York acquired Beverly and its 600 acre estate on King's creek about a year ago. The mansion had just been renovated and was unoccupied. Origin of the fire was undetermined.

CURLEY TOP GETS BIG SENDOFF ON 3,000 MILE TOUR

Elkhart, Ind., Nov. 13.—[U. P.]—A curly haired little girl from down by the railroad tracks was given a sendoff by an 87 piece band, speeches by railroad and chamber of commerce officials, and a parade of fellow townsmen today as she prepared to start a 3,000 mile train trip.

By official proclamation it was Curley Top day in Elkhart, and Violet Kathleen Schmidt, 9 years old, was the heroine.

Violet achieved all this by being the most faithful train waver along the New York Central right of way.

One day last year the train crew gave Violet her first train ride—to Chicago and a new wardrobe. Her picture was sent to newspapers all over the country. A book for children capitalized the success story of the little girl who waved at the big train.

Tomorrow she will start a trip to major cities to autograph the books and make radio appearances.

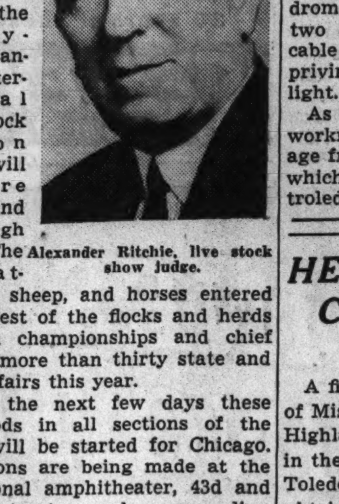
LIVE STOCK SHOW REFLECTS GAINS IN AGRICULTURE

Exposition to Open Nov. 27; 12,864 Animals Entered.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Improved conditions in American agriculture resulting from bountiful crops throughout the nation this year are reflected in the animals and farm crops entered in the thirty-eighth annual International Live Stock exposition which will open here Nov. 27 and run through Dec. 4. The 12,864 cattle, hogs, sheep, and horses entered are the best of the flocks and herds that won championships and chief prizes at more than thirty state and sectional fairs this year.



Alexander Ritchie, live stock show judge.

Within the next few days these blue bloods in all sections of the country will be started for Chicago. Preparations are being made at the International amphitheater, 43d and Halsted streets, and surrounding buildings and pens for housing the show animals.

$100,000 in Prizes Offered.

Approximately $100,000 are being offered in cash prizes, in addition to silver and bronze trophies and ribbons.

The nineteenth annual hay and grain show will be held again in connection with the stock show. An exhibit of foreign corn will be an educational feature of this year's show. The collection will include corn from Mexico, Guatemala, Santa Domingo, Bolivia, Peru, Spain, Italy, Czechoslovakia, Russia, China, Argentina, and South Africa.

Briton to Pick Champion.

Alexander Ritchie, live stock authority from Great Britain, will pick the grand champion beef animal at this year's International, according to B. H. Heide, manager. The show's steers have been judged by a foreign judge since the first exposition was held in 1900.

Ritchie has been manager of the Royal farm at Windsor, England, since he was appointed by the late King George V. in 1932. He accepted the judgeship here with the consent of King George VI. The British judge, who is of Scottish birth, will take the place of Walter Biggar of Dalbeattie, Scotland, who has selected the grand champion beef steer or hefer at the last twelve International expositions.

The sixteenth annual national 4-H farm boys' and girls' club congress also will be held as one of the three major features of the exposition.

IDA GODFRIAUX FUNERAL TO BE HELD ON TUESDAY

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Tuesday in the Fourth Congregational church, 2625 North Talman avenue, for Mrs. Ida May Godfriaux, 82 years old, who died in her home at 2525 North Francisco avenue Friday. Burial will be in Waldheim cemetery.

Mrs. Godfriaux, who was born in Youngstown, O., accompanied her parents in a covered wagon to Winterset, Ia., where they established their home. She has been a resident of Chicago for the last 58 years and a member of the Talman Avenue church for the last 50 years.

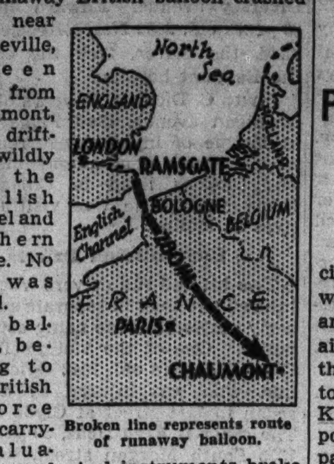
Her husband, Charles, who died three years ago, was a stone contractor. Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Esther G. Shively, and two grandchildren. Mrs. Godfriaux was a member of the Ben Hur chapter of the Easterr Star Order.

F.H.Gaines, Omaha G.O.P. Leader, Ex-Illinoisian, Dies

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Frank H. Gaines, 74 years old, attorney and Republican leader here, died last night. A native of Victoria, Ill., he was given a honorary degree of bachelor of laws after he had spoken at commencement exercises of his alma mater, Knox college, Galesburg, Ill.

RUNAWAY BALLOON FROM BRITAIN CRASHES IN NORTHERN FRANCE

CHAUMONT, France, Nov. 13.—(AP)—A runaway British balloon crashed today near Signeville, fifteen miles from Chaumont, after drifting wildly across the English channel and northern France. No one was aboard.



Broken line represents route of runaway balloon.

The balloon, belonging to the British air force and carrying valuable meteorological instruments, broke loose from its moorings at an airdrome near Ramsgate last night with two miles of cable dangling. This cable wrecked French power lines, depriving a million persons of electric light.

As soon as the balloon crashed workmen started clearing the wreckage from more high tension wires on which it had tangled. Gendarmes patroled roads to keep the curious away.

HEIRS LAUNCH COURT BATTLE FOR $1,000,000

A fight over the $1,000,000 property of Miss Ella E. Bell, 309 Ravine drive, Highland Park, was begun yesterday in the Lucas county Probate court in Toledo, O., when one group of heirs obtained an order restraining the estate conservators from selling large blocks of securities.

Miss Bell, now 82 years old, was adjudged incompetent in Toledo in 1931, and since then has been living in Highland Park with a niece, Mrs. Myrtle R. Keating, an heir. Because of her residence, court jurisdiction was transferred to the Lake county Probate court here last December.

This was done by agreement, but Harold W. Bell Jr., of New York, a grand nephew, charged in a Toledo court yesterday that a conservator was planning to sell most of Miss Bell's stocks in two glass companies at a loss. The restraining order followed, to be effective until the heirs reach agreement.

H.D.Williams, Ex-Associate of Andrew Carnegie, Dies

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Homer D. Williams, 74 years old, one of Andrew Carnegie's lieutenants and former president of both the Carnegie Steel corporation and the Pittsburgh Steel corporation, died today in the University of Maryland hospital at Baltimore. His wife, Mrs. Clara Suppes Williams, was at the bedside. After fifty-five years in the steel industry he retired in 1936 and lived on his farm, Marengo, at Easton, Md.

Two Coroners at Inquest of Spring Valley Auto Victim

Spring Valley, Ill., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—There were two coroners, one as a witness, at the inquest of Joseph Ankadowicz, 62 years old, of Spring Valley, who died today of injuries received on Oct. 21, when he was struck by a truck driven by Hans Sandberg of Granville. Coroner A. A. Meyers of Bureau county conducted the inquest and Coroner P. V. Hartman of Putnam county, a doctor, was a witness.

Paul R. Brauer, 38, Lincoln Park Concessionaire, Dies

Paul R. Brauer, who, with his father, Caspar, has operated the Café Brauer and other Lincoln park concessions for many years, died of pneumonia yesterday on a business trip in Macon, Ga. He was 38 years old. His home was at the Sovereign hotel, 6200 Kenmore avenue. Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Agnes Brauer, and two daughters, Barbara and Susette. Funeral services will be held in Chicago.

Dr. Thos. Lambert, Aurora Physician 20 Years, Dies

Dr. Thomas J. Lambert, 68 years old, a physician in Aurora for twenty years, died yesterday at his home, 405 Downer place, in the suburb. Surviving him are his widow, Anna, and a son, John. PILOT EXCHANGE ON PLANES HIT BY MAIL RULING

Postal Department Vetoes System in Air.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—An exchange service through which pilots of Western Air Express and United Air Lines each fly the airplanes of the other company over their respective routes was opposed today in an opinion delivered by Karl A. Crowley, solicitor for the postoffice department. The two companies had sought approval of the arrangement.

For nearly a year the companies have been operating the service. Passengers boarding a sleeper plane at Los Angeles bound for Chicago, for instance, stayed aboard the same ship over the entire journey, although Western Air Express pilots flew the plane from Los Angeles to Salt Lake City, while from that point eastward United Air Lines pilots were in command.

In their application the airlines pointed out that they had purchased identically similar equipment so that this exchange could be carried out. They also pointed out that the railroad companies of the country operate just such an exchange service, shunting railroad cars over many different rail routes.

Crowley, in the opinion submitted to Postmaster General Farley, contended the service is forbidden under the air mail act of 1934 because it would conflict with operations of other air mail carriers.

HONOR QUENTIN ROOSEVELT ON FRENCH WARSHIP

Le Havre, France, Nov. 13.—(AP)—A remnant of the airplane in which Quentin Roosevelt crashed to his death July 14, 1918, in the world war was installed today aboard the French gunboat "Quentin Roosevelt" with a memorial service.

Roosevelt, a son of Theodore Roosevelt, twenty-sixth President of the United States, was an ace of the Lafayette squadron.

One cylinder of the airplane's engine, which had been in a museum at Chateau Thierry, was taken to the warship at the suggestion of French friends. It was placed in the officers' mess under a photograph of the flyer.

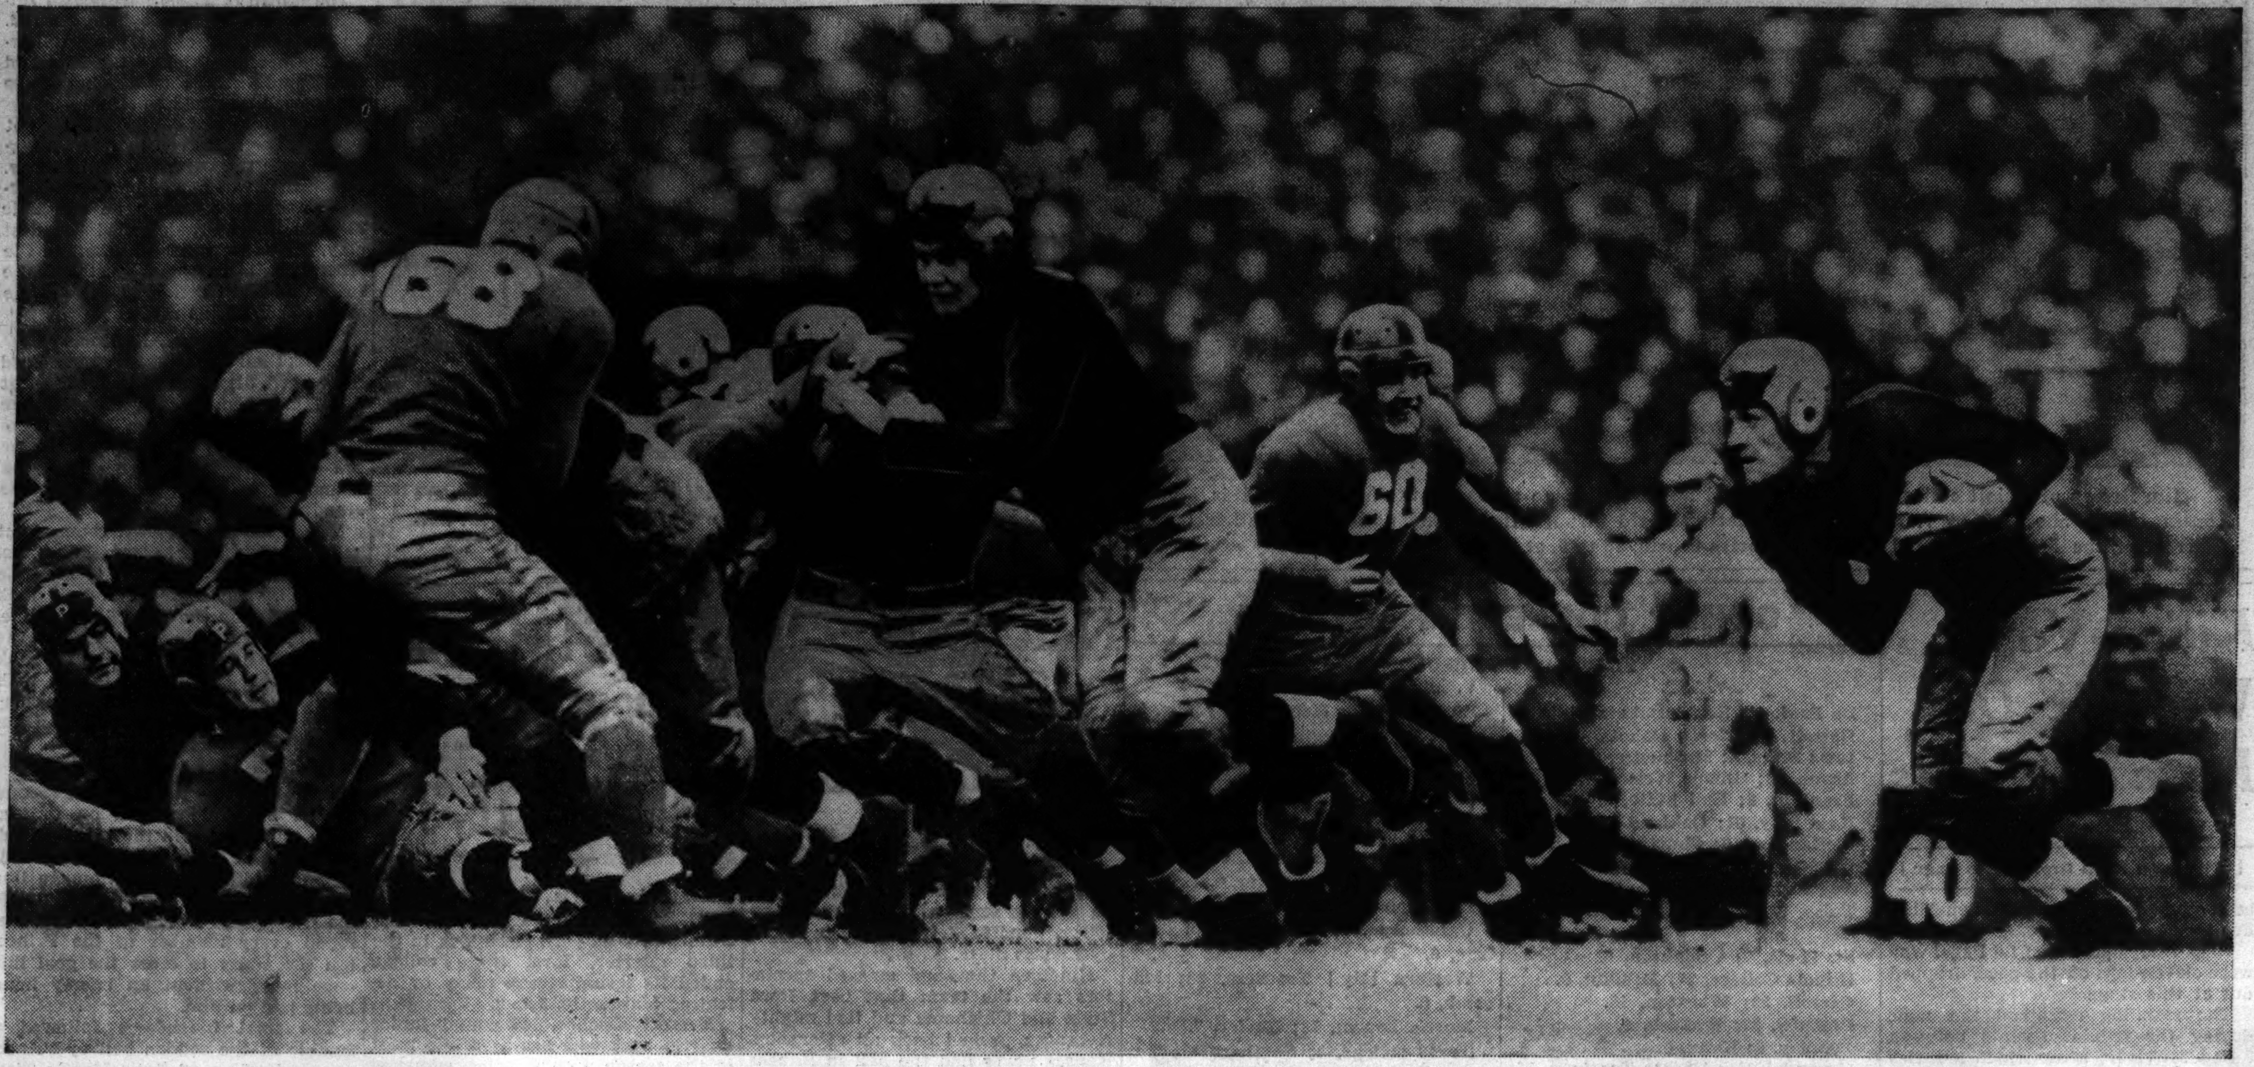
IT'S A TIE WHEN BADGERS, BOILERMAKERS GET TOGETHER



Robert Selby of Purdue sprints around end in first quarter for a gain against Wisconsin in 7 to 7 Dads' day battle at Madison. Walter Cole (60) and Robert Weigandt (68) are Badgers and Frank Winchell (at Cole's right) is a Boilermaker. Wisconsin recovered Cecil Isbell's fumble in the end zone for a touchdown early in the second period to gain a 7 to 0 lead, but before the quarter was over Purdue tied the score on Cecil Isbell's long pass to End Jim Zachary. Purdue fought off Wisconsin on the five yard line in the first period and again held on the three yard mark in the third quarter. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 13.—Minnesota made good this afternoon on its year old promise to give Northwestern's Wildcats a licking to atone for the 6 to 0 defeat last fall which ended the Gophers' victory march at 21 consecutive games and cost them a Western Conference football championship. Minnesota won today, 7 to 0, before a homecoming throng of 62,121, and while this was eminently satisfactory to the Gophers, the manner of accomplishment was far short of the rout that had been predicted.

Minnesota's men, who had waited 12 months for a chance to smash Northwestern's line, found that while that line, presumably weakened by the loss of Erwin Wegner and Mike Calvano, gave ground grudgingly, it could not be stampeded. After 60 minutes of labor, protracted by nine penalties, the decision rested on the success of a first quarter pass from Harold Van Every to Capt. Ray King for a gain of 14 yards. Horace Bell placekicked the extra point.

King Intercepts Heap's Pass.

Northwestern provided this scoring opportunity when Don Heap's long forward pass was intercepted by King. The Gopher captain's brilliant return of forty-seven yards to Northwestern's 17 yard line, where he staggered and fell after avoiding one of his own blockers, was as important as the subsequent successful air attack.

Thereafter Minnesota piled up ten first downs by rushing, at one time linking four of these in a seventy-four yard march from its 9 yard line, but when the final statistics were compiled the Wildcats had a total of nine first downs compared to Minnesota's eleven, and a net gain of 189 yards to compare with Minnesota's 220 yards.

The game was replete with material for second guessing, particularly because of the number of penalties and because of fumbles. Minnesota fumbled twice and Northwestern had three errors. All fumbles were recovered by opponents.

Northwestern can point to Bernard Jefferson's long forward pass to John Kovatch in the third period which covered thirty-one yards. Kovatch was tackled a step after he caught the ball on Minnesota's 36 yard line by Van Every, the only man between the Wildcat end and the goal.

Capt. Don Stands Out.

By its victory today Minnesota moved within one step of the conference title and this ascent to rulership, after a year's absence will assuage memory of defeats by Nebraska and Notre Dame.

Capt. Don Heap of Northwestern, who excelled in passing and in kicking, assuming the latter assignment in the absence of Jefferson from the starting lineup, was outstanding. Bob Swisher, paired with Heap at half backs, was the leading ground gainer until he was injured while returning the kickoff at the start of the second half and forced from the game.

For Minnesota, none was more prominent than Gmitro, speediest and lightest of the Gopher backs, and Van Every, a sophomore, who figured in almost every offensive play because of his triple duties of running, passing, and kicking.

Wildcats Start Snarling.

Northwestern took the opening kickoff, after choosing to defend the west goal with a favoring wind, and, when Heap ran the ball back thirty-

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Two German riders, Gustav Kilian and Heinz Vopel, combined speed, alertness and caution to win the six day bicycue race which ended at 12:07 o'clock this morning at the Chicago Stadium.

The Germans finished in a mileage tie with three other teams—the Frenchmen, Emile Ignat and Emile Diot; the Canadians, Torchy Peden and his brother Doug, and the Belgian-Americans, Gerard Debaets and Bobby Thomas. The Germans, however, had piled up 1,444 sprint points to 1,012 for the Frenchmen, 958 for the Pedens and 556 for the Belgian-Americans.

Through a last hour of mad jamming and reckless maneuvering the Germans protected the point lead they had built up in the course of the week. They rode wheel to wheel with their leading rivals and caught them every time they attempted to go out after a lap.

Debaets, Thomas Threaten.

In this last spectacular hour, which was marked by two smashups on the turns, Debaets and Thomas did some of the most exciting riding. They were two laps off the pace at 11 o'clock. At 11:23 they picked up one lap and at 11:40 they took another, throwing the race into a four way tie.

The first of the smashups occurred when Thomas and Torchy Peden fell on the southwest turn at 11:06. Both were shaken up, but returned after a brief rest. The other spill occurred on the southeast turn at 11:50. Alfred Letourner and Alvaro Georgetti were involved in this. Georgetti was so badly hurt that he and his partner, Fred Ottevaere, withdrew.

Due to the time taken out for these mishaps, the race was allowed to run an extra seven minutes.

Sprints Decide It.

In the all-important sprints from 11 o'clock on, the Germans won seven. Inasmuch as seventy-two points are awarded for first place in these as compared to four for second, the Germans added to the advantage they had already accumulated. They had gone into the last hour with 892 points while their nearest rivals, the Pedens, had 640.

Only seven teams finished. The combination of Henry O'Brien and Russell Allen withdrew in the final hour when Allen became ill.

Three teams went into the 8 o'clock sprints tied for the lead. These riders were Kilian and Vogel, Ignat and Diot, and the Peden brothers. Walthour-Crossley and Rodman-Wals combinations were one lap behind. Letourner-Reboli, Debaets-Thomas, and Georgetti-Ottevaere, were three laps

BUCKEYES REGAIN SCORING PUNCH; WHIP ILLINI, 19-0

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Columbus, O., Nov. 13.—Something happened to standard football psychology here today. Ohio State's Buckeyes, said to have been woefully depressed by a surprise defeat by Indiana, handed Illinois, supposedly pepped up by a victory over Northwestern, a 19 to 0 licking. Moreover, Illinois was adequately represented by its end of the score but Ohio State's tabulation didn't represent the difference between the teams.

The pepped up Illini operated their offensive on the Ohio State half of the field only twice, once in the first period progressing to the Buckeye 38 yard line. Again, just before the half ended, they reached the 20 yard line, only to be thwarted by a pass interception as the second period ended. Otherwise the lads from Champaign were quite helpless.

Rain Deters Fans.

It was the Ohio State homecoming. A night rain had dissipated the prospects of the perfect day that smiled on the spectacle, attended by 41,921 paying spectators, some 20,000 under the total that had been expected before the rain scare.

It also was the Buckeyes' last home performance and thus it was a fitting development that three seniors, Dick Nardi, Jim McDonald, and Nick Wasylik, were able to steal the show before saying good-by to the gridiron they have graced for three years. A dczen other seniors also bade adieu to the home arena. Incidentally, nine of the young gents in the starting lineup are seniors.

The touchdown which was enough for Ohio State's victory purposes was made before the game was five minutes old. It was on a forward pass from Wasylik to McDonald which was good for fifty-four yards, thirty-five of which were negotiated on foot. The point was added by Alex Schoenbaum. The second touchdown, by Nardi, was scored in the third quarter. It wound up a march which started with Mike Kabealo's interception of a pass, and included a fourteen yard gain by Nardi before he essayed his short plunge for the first of his two touchdowns.

Passes Lead to Score.

The third touchdown was made early in the final quarter. Nardi's scoring effort was preceded by a completed forward pass and one awarded for interference. Kabealo failed to add the points after Nardi's touchdowns.

The Buckeyes' great advantage was reflected in most of the statistics, including the first down ratio, which was nine for Ohio State and three for Illinois. Neither side was so hot on total net yardage from rushing, but the Buckeyes' had ninty-one to a total of four for Illinois. Ohio State completed seven passes out of fourteen and had one intercepted. The net gain thereof was 153 yards. Illinois completed five out of sixteen passes and had four intercepted. The

Purdue's Long Pass in 2d Period Ties Wisconsin, 7-7

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., Nov. 13.—Wisconsins' Badgers today offered the sort of a fight no one anticipated. Rated underdogs in their struggle with Purdue's supposedly rugged Boilermakers, the Cardinal clad youths marched into a 7 to 7 tie in a battle of fumbles and reckless forward passing.

Only an amazing forward pass, fifty-five yards through the air and seventeen yards on foot, saved the Boilermakers from extinction before a Wisconsin Dad's day crowd of 22,989. They dropped this spectacular piece of work into the second period proceedings.

The lad who started the deadlocking aerial on its way was the versatile Cecil Isbell, who only a few minutes before had been guilty of a fumble on which Wisconsin scored its touchdown by recovering the ball in the enemy end zone.

Purdue Starts Shock Troops.

The Badgers blew their underdog rating to pieces at the start and continued to be an unexpected menace to the finish. Because Wisconsin was accepted as a foe not likely to be troublesome, the Boilermakers started with a shock troop combination in action. The shock troops had vanished and the regulars were in the fight before the first period had been concluded. They were summoned hurriedly when the animated cardinal hued sweaters surged down to Purdue's 5 yard line. The regulars halted that threat.

That wasn't the only drive the Boilermakers had to fight off. Late in the third period, as the result of one of its six thefts of Purdue passes, Wisconsin rode down to the 3 yard line only to be driven off. A bit later the Badgers attempted to cash in on a field goal, but failed. Against this pair of threats the Boilermakers, barring their touchdown feat, charged no closer than to the 20 yard line, and they didn't do this until the last few minutes when desperate passing was waranted.

Purdue Leads in First Downs.

In the production of first downs, despite its inability to shove the Badgers into precarious positions, Purdue piled up twelve against ten by the enemy. The Boilermakers, supposedly accomplished passers, completed only three out of eighteen attempts. The Badgers, who had been told to open up, tried 22 aerial thrusts and were successful nine times.

Cecil Isbell, although well handled by the Badgers most of the time, topped all the ball carriers in action. He reeled off seventy yards in fourteen tries. None of five Badger ball carriers was held to less than twenty yards, Howard Weiss being limited to that total in eleven tries and Bronko Malesevich leading with thirty nine yards in eight calls. In rushing, Purdue advanced 143 yards against 139 for Wisconsin. The Badgers balanced this by passing for 115 yards to 90 for Purdue. But Purdue fumbled seven times and Wisconsin only three. Four Purdue fumbles were recovered by the Badgers.

After fumbles had caused the ball to change hands three times in the first five minutes of the opening quarter, the Badgers settled down to the job of giving Purdue's shock troops a real shock. The Badgers took a Boilermaker punt on the 18 yard line and on a pass, Schmitz to Malesevich, moved out to their 34 yard line. Malesevich cut in at tackle and raced to Wisconsin's 47 yard mark. Gavre went round his left end for first down on the Boilermaker's 40 yard line.

The Badgers then tried a long pass, but it went wild and along with it drew a fifteen yard penalty for holding. Gavre recovered eleven yards on a spinner and then threw a pass to Malesevich who twisted a path to the 22 yard line. Here a half dozen of the Purdue regulars came charging into action. The assemblage of regulars halted the drive on the 12 yard line, the Badgers being inches short on the fourth down. A moment later Doyle intercepted a Cecil Isbell pass on Purdue's 28 yard line and this

PANTHERS' LATE DRIVE CONQUERS NEBRASKA, 13-7

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 13.—Pittsburgh's Panthers were cornered once more today and once again they snarled, pounced and struck with the same terrifying swiftness which has made them one of the nation's few unconquered football teams.

Their victims this time were Nebraska's Cornhuskers, Panther foes of respected standing and undefeated until this afternoon. Even as Notre Dame last week, the Huskers fought the good fight before 71,267 to the last quarter. They held a 7 to 0 advantage, born of a punt reception, a lateral and a 60 yard touchdown return, into the fourth quarter.

Then the Panthers snarled and struck for the kill which brought them a 13 to 7 victory within six minutes. After five minutes of fourth quarter play big Frank Patrick, the Panther full back from East Chicago, culminated a savage 80 yard march by diving over for a touchdown. Luck dealt the Panthers a cuff across their whiskers when Frank Souchak's attempted placement for the tying point struck the top of the right goal post and bounded crazily out of the field.

But They Come Right Back.

That break was adjusted shortly on a Nebraska fumble which gave Pittsburgh the ball on the Husker 32 yard line. At the eleventh minute, Bill Stapulis, Patrick's understudy, drove over for the winning touchdown That score required only six plays, every one of which smacked of the tremendous power of the Panthers.

Only Penn State and Duke remain between the Panthers and their ambition of a second consecutive appearance in the Rose Bowl game, where last year they smashed down the University of Washington. Behind them lie Ohio Wesleyan, West Virginia, Duquesne, Wisconsin, Carnegie Tech, Notre Dame and Nebraska. Only Fordham's stubborn Rams, with whom they played a third consecutive scoreless tie, have met the 1937 Panthers on anything approximating even terms.

The Panther power as reflected in the final statistics today is a thing to behold. They made thirteen first downs against Nebraska's two. They made a net gain of 250 yards from scrimmage while restraining the courageous Huskers to a net loss of nine yards. Only that sixty yard dash by Trackman Johnny Dodd, after Harris Andrews had slipped the ball to him upon receiving a Pittsburgh punt, is worthy of mention for the Husker offensive.

First Half Is Quiet.

The first half of the game gave no hint of what was to come in the ensuing two quarters. Only two first downs were recorded in the opening quarter, both by Pittsburgh. Johnny Howell's kicking and the stubborn resistance of the Husker line left the Panthers with no opportu-

Indiana Beats Iowa, 3-0, in Last Quarter

BY FRENCH LANE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 13.—Indiana's Hoosiers, each with a rabbit's foot in his pocket, came out here into the Iowa tall corn country this afternoon and snatched a 3 to 0 football victory from the University of Iowa Hawkeyes.

This triumph, scored by the magic toe of George Miller, Hoosier center, on a place kick from the 14 yard line early in the fourth quarter, made it possible for Indiana to remain in the race for the western conference championship, even though the fight it is making appears to be a futile one.

But back to this rabbit foot victory the Hoosiers scored over Iowa this afternoon. It happened while a frigid wind blew in from the northwest, a wind so cold that the players and the 15,000 spectators were chilled thoroughly soon after the game started.

How It Happened.

It happened after the Hawkeyes had made eleven first downs to Indiana's none during nearly three-quarters of the game. It happened after Iowa had been in possession of the ball nearly all afternoon and after only a break in the luck had put the Hoosiers within reach of the cherished three points which George Miller's toe gave them.

Late in the third quarter, Indiana, which hadn't seemed to do anything the right way, finally made a first down. Graham had intercepted Kinnick's pass to Lannon. Next came an Indiana pass, Filchock to Heistand, who lateraled to Graham, who carried the ball to the Iowa 28 yard line before being brought down. Heistand skipped around left end to the Iowa 19.

Corby Davis, who had carried on nobly all afternoon for Indiana, went to the Iowa 16 on a delayed line buck. He picked up two more around left end.

Cheers Are Heeded.

The few hundred Indiana rooters were screaming frantically for the Hoosiers and for Davis to keep going. Davis did not fail them. He took the ball on the next play and made it a first down on the Iowa 8 yard line. Again Davis took the ball. He picked up two more yards over his right guard. Then the third quarter ended.

Davis took a breather and let Heistand carry the ball on the first play of the final quarter. Kinnick and Anderson knocked him down on the Iowa 4 yard line. The Hoosiers appeared to be touchdown bound. They tried a pass, Filchock to Graham, but the Hawkeyes broke it up behind the goal line.

Then it was that Indiana decided a place kick might win the football game. Miller dropped back ten yards for the kick. Weiss, a chubby kid, went in at center for Indiana. Miller's kick was perfect, and it sent Iowa down into defeat in its fifth straight conference game.

New York, Nov. 13.—Notre Dame, as usual, put on its finest performance of the season to whip Army today in the game of the people. Eighty thousand sat through a rain that varied from a drizzle to a downpour to watch the Irish win, 7 to 0, at Yankee stadium.

The score is a poor index to the comparative strength of the two teams. Notre Dame capitalized on only one of seven glittering scoring opportunities. Army got past midfield only twice, once to the 41 yard line and again to the 31.

Aside from the touchdown drive, Notre Dame's other marches collapsed at the 6 inch line, 1 yard line, 2 yard line, 3 yard line, 6 yard line and 16 yard line.

No. 17 for Irish.

Some day the Sphinx will talk, the tide will stand still and Army will beat Notre Dame, but the present generation of Cadets, none of whom ever has seen his team conquer its oldest intersectional rival, is beginning to doubt it. Army hasn't defeated Notre Dame since 1931. The series record now stands seventeen victories for Notre Dame, five for Army, and there have been two ties.

The Irish, who were supposed to be physically tired from the fierce schedule they have gone through in recent weeks, opened the game with a terrific bang. The touchdown came after only seven minutes of play.

Ed Beinor, whose work against Minnesota, Pittsburgh, and the Army, stamps him one of the finest tackles in the country, set the scene by recovering a ball that squirted out of Woodrow Wilson's hands on Army's 14 yard line.

Ed Simonich smashed over his right tackle for five yards and hit the other side of the line for six and a first down on Army's 3 yard line. He blasted his way through right guard for a touchdown, going over the goal line without a Cadet laying a hand on him. Chuck O'Reilly placekicked the extra point.

Plenty of Heroes.

That's a thumbnail scenario of the scoring play, but it doesn't begin to tell the story of this hard fought football game. An attempt to point out its most interesting features is like looking for the biggest stone in a hail storm. There was the effective work of the Notre Dame line, the brilliant end play of Chuck Sweeney and Earl Brown, the punting and passing of Notre Dame's sophomore half back, Harry Stevenson, and the fine all around work of Ennio Arboit, relief man for Nevin McCormick at right half.

All these developments, however, were overshadowed by Army's magnificent goal line stands, especially in the closing period when the Cadets were finding it increasingly difficult to match Notre Dame man power. For suspense and historical importance the closing quarter of this ball game will be included in the star spangled chapters of a series that stands almost alone in romance and valor.

The statistics give you an insight into the heroic defense Army had to put up to hold the score to 7 to 0. Notre Dame made thirteen first downs to Army's three and gained a total of 217 yards to Army's 89.

Army gave Notre Dame all the fire and fight it had, but there were too many guns on the Irish side. The Coaches — Clark Shaughnessy [Chicago]. Charles Butler [Beloit].

Chicago's Maroons won their first victory of the season yesterday, defeating Beloit, 26 to 9. As advertised, the Maroons started their substitutes, but the substitutes were losing, 6 to 0, at the end of four minutes, so the varsity came in to save the day.

The contest was witnessed by a crowd of 18,000, of whom 3,000 were inveterate followers of Maroon football, 500 were Beloit rooters, and the remainder schoolboy guests.

Beloit opened impressively against the Chicago B team, which was given the chance to start as a reward for faithful service. Bruno Virgili, Beloit quarter back and an Oak Park boy, took the opening kickoff on his 5 yard line and returned it sixty-five yards, running up the center of the field until brought down by Capt. Bob Fitzgerald, only Maroon regular in action, on the Maroon 30 yard line. Six plays and three minutes later Beloit had scored a touchdown. Half Back Bob Gates made eighteen yards in a crack through tackle, Full Back Lloyd Plinske made eight yards through guard, and Gates went over.

Soon after the Maroon varsity came in Lew Hamity, Maroon quarter back, intercepted a pass by Virgili and returned it to Chicago's 43 yard line. Sherman tossed a thirteen yard pass to Valorz, then threw a pass to Fitzgerald, who was pushed out on Beloit's 29 yard line. Hamity made eight yards, and Valorz carried the ball to the Beloit 18 yard line. From there Sherman broke off left tackle for a touchdown.

Kicks 32 Yard Field Goal.

Valorz kicked the extra point and Chicago led, 7 to 6.

Before the half was out Beloit capitalized on a Maroon fumble to score a field goal. Hamity dropped the ball on a plunge, Day recovering on Chicago's 43 yard line. Plunges by Plinske and Hamacheck, a penalty on Chicago and a pass, Virgili to Zimonik, good for eight yards, put Beloit on Chicago's 20 yard line. On fourth down Brown, Beloit end, standing on the 32 yard line, kicked a field goal.

At the start of the third period the Sherman made runs of twelve, fourteen, thirty-eight, and twelve yards, with Goodstein adding a two yard effort for variety, but stumbled on the 1 yard line on his fifth effort. Hamity ran over center for a touchdown which put the Maroons ahead permanently. Valorz missed the try for extra point and Chicago led, 13 to 9.

Pass Brings Score.

The Maroons started their next drive from their own 10 yard line, where Brown of Beloit had placed a long punt. Goodstein and Hamity collaborated in three first downs on straight plunges, and Sherman placed the ball on Beloit's 40 yard line with an end sweep. From the 36 yard line Sherman shot a pass fifteen yards to Fitzgerald, who scored. Kelley made the extra point, and the score was 20 to 9.

A sprint of thirty yards by Davenport and a smash of thirteen yards by Hamity placed the ball on Beloit's 25 yard line at the close of the third quarter.

This effort failed on Beloit's 18 yard line, but the Maroons soon started again from their own 38 yard line. Hamity went around right end for sixteen yards, then he and Davenport collaborated for a first down on Beloit's 18 yard line. The Maroons lost ten yards on a bad pass from center, but Davenport raced through left guard nineteen yards to the Beloit 9 yard line. Hamity placed the ball on the 5 yard mark and Davenport went through right tackle for the fourth Maroon touchdown. Valorz missed the try for extra point.

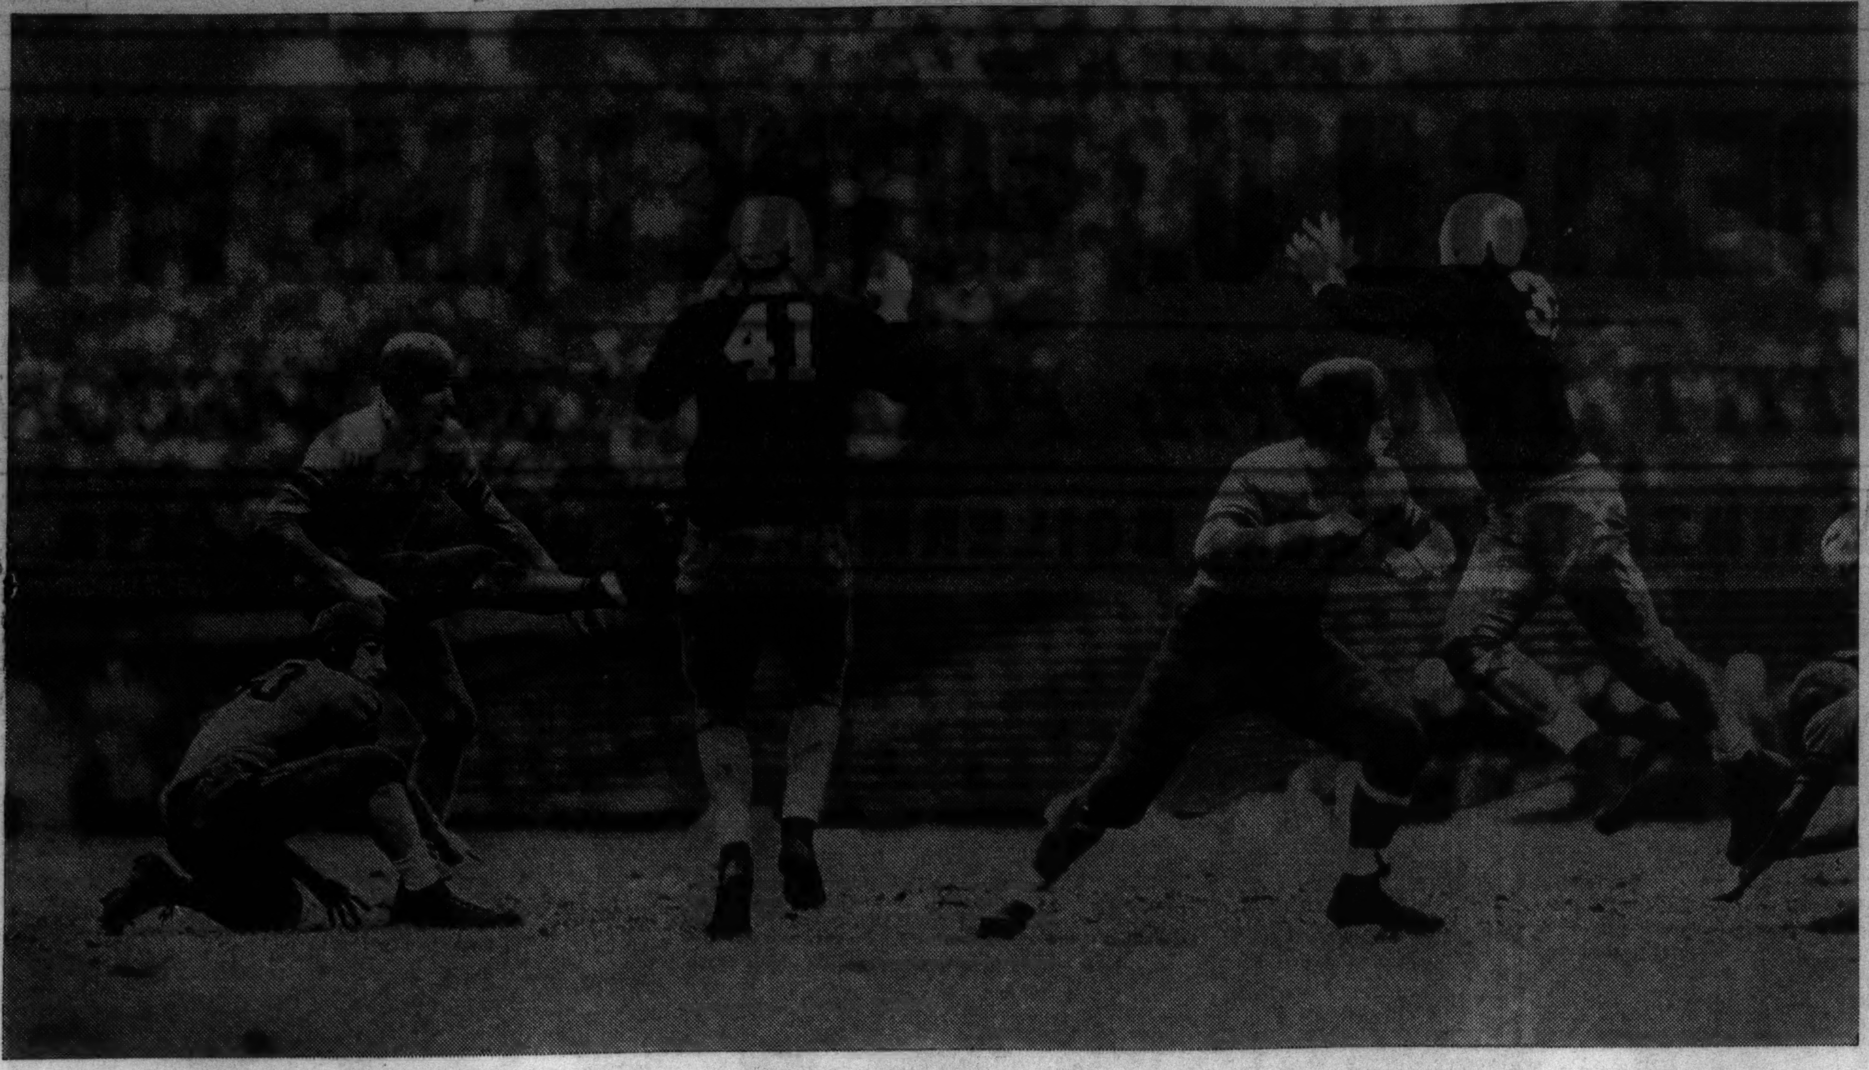
Davenport, Sherman Pace Maroons.

Davenport and Sherman led the Maroons, the former with one hundred and thirty-seven yards from scrimmage in seventeen tries for an average of eight yards, the latter with one hundred and fourteen yards in thirteen tries for an eight and eight-tenths yard average. Chicago made a total of four hundred and twenty-six yards, three hundred and fifty-two yards from scrimmage and seventy-four yards on three passes. Beloit made one hundred and sixty-two yards, one hundred and two on the ground and sixty in the air. The Maroons made twenty first downs to nine for Beloit.

MUHLENBERG WINS, 18-7.

Bethlehem, Pa., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—An alert Muhlenberg football team scored an 18 to 7 victory over Lehigh today.

FIELD GOAL PUTS MAROONS BEHIND—FOR A WHILE



Jim Brown of Beloit college kicks a field goal against Chicago and puts the Wisconsin eleven ahead, 9 to 7, an advantage that was held through the second period. Thereafter the Maroons proved their superiority to win, 26 to 9, at Stagg field. Bruno Virgili is holding the ball and Lloyd Pinske (45) is blocking. The two Maroons are Kendall Petersen (41) and Edward Valorz (33). Chicago will end its season next Saturday against Illinois at Champaign. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Kilian-Vopel Win Six Day Race on Points

back of the leaders, and O'Brien-Allen five laps in arrears.

Jules Audy and Henri Le Page, who were eleven laps off the pace, dropped out at this stage.

The standing remained the same during the regular sprints between 8 and 9 o'clock, after which a series of special sprints began. O'Brien and Allen, who were too far back to stand much chance of victory, went out after most of these while the leading eams conserved their energy for more serious work that was to come later.

Leaders Watch Rivals.

There was a slight flurry shortly after 10 o'clock when Georgetti and Ottevaere tried to break away from the field but their attempt was unsuccessful. The Germans, Frenchmen, and Canadians were keeping a constant check on one another.

Then Georgetti and Ottevaere made another determined bid with Debaets and Thomas in close attendance. Both teams finally succeeded in lapping the field, bringing themselves within two laps of the pacemakers.

At 10:25 o'clock the ambitious Georgetti and Ottevaere tried again to sneak away from the field, but the pack was after them in a hurry and their attempt failed.

Three times in the next few minutes O'Brien and Allen tried to break away. In the third attempt they were joined by the three first place teams. This precipitated some wild jamming, but eventually the field closed up with no one gaining a lap.

Michigan State Beats Carnegie Tech, 13 to 6

East Lansing, Mich., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—A homecoming day crowd of 21,000 watched Michigan State close its home season by defeating Carnegie Tech, 13 to 6, today, after the visitors had gained an early lead.

The passing of Jack Pingel to Ole Nelson and Eddie Pearce gave the Spartans their two touchdowns. Ray Carnelly, junior half back, led a threatening Tech attack, but loose ball handling hampered the visitors whenever they advanced into State territory.

Carnegie Tech took the offensive throughout the first quarter. Late in the quarter Tech advanced the ball fifty-seven yards for a touchdown. Lee went over for the score.

A. A. U. Ready to Co-operate with N. C. A. A.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 13.—(AP)—The National Amateur Athletic Union tonight moved toward a compromise with the National Collegiate Athletic association and the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen on the disputed subject of representation on American Olympic Games committees.

The executive committee of the A. A. U. authorized President Jeremiah T. Mahoney to appoint a committee to confer with similar groups from the two other organizations.

Griffith Leads Campaign.

Heretofore the A. A. U. has had the controling votes in the Olympic groups in charge of track and field, swimming, wrestling, and eight oared rowing. Recently the N. C. A. A., led by Big Ten Commissioner Major John Griffith, began a campaign to gain the majority of these committees for the colleges.

The A. A. U. committee will seek a compromise in this matter, one of the vital points in the deliberations of the 49th annual convention.

The legislative committee made one outstanding recommendation. Under the present A. A. U. code, an athlete loses his amateur standing by announcing a determination to become a professional, or participating in a tryout with a professional team.

Bar Athletic Job Seekers.

The latter clause has been retained, but the former stricken out and in its place substituted a ban on:

"The solicitation of employment for gain on his athletic services."

This step was taken in an effort to prevent athletes from shopping around for the most attractive offer, yet left a loophole for over eager youngsters who might make or be led into an announcement of intention to turn professional without taking due deliberation or seeking the advice of coaches, A. A. U. officials, or other friendly advisers.

West Virginia Romps Over Toledo Eleven, 34-0

Morgantown, W. Va., Nov. 13.—(AP)—West Virginia's Mountaineers, showing a return of their scoring power, hammered out a 34 to 0 victory today over Toledo university.

Kansas Eleven Upset, 7-0, by Kansas State

Lawrence, Kas., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Kansas hopes for a Big Six football title, which week by week had grown with unexpected success, burst with a bang today, punctured by a 7 to 0 defeat by Kansas State.

Nineteen thousand amazed spectators saw the team that beat Iowa State and Oklahoma and tied mighty Nebraska pushed back all afternoon. Kansas never had the ball in Kansas State territory and registered only two first downs while gaining but 38 yards from scrimmage.

Late in the second period Max Replogle, Kansas back, punted out on the Kansas State 26, and the march was on. Paul Fagler picked up 10, Bob Briggs 25, and Howard Cleveland tossed 24 yards to Ray Ellis on the Kansas seven. Briggs hit center for three and then Cleveland skirted right end for the touchdown. Jim Brock placed kicked the extra point. Lineups:

OKLAHOMA, 7; MISSOURI, 0.

Columbia, Mo., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Oklahoma's passing Sooners pounded at Missouri's goal line for 59 minutes today before the Tigers yielded a 7 to 0 victory, Quarter Back Jack Baer going over from the 1 yard line on fourth down in the final 45 seconds.

Missouri, balked by an Oklahoma line through which it could make only five first downs, gambled with passes as the game drew to a close. From the Missouri 34, Half Back Pete Ewing flung a desperate aerial which Baer took on the run and carried down the sidelines until he was run out on the 25.

Two plunges by McCullough netted only four yards. Baer then flipped to McCullough, who stumbled to the ten.

Baer then took the ball and drew back his arm as if to toss another of the passes by which the Sooners gained 125 yards, but instead ran to the Missouri 3. On fourth down he threw himself over the goal line.

IOWA STATE HAS A KICKER—BEATS MARQUETTE, 3-0

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—By the margin of a high and true twenty-six yard place kick in the third quarter, Iowa State college ended its losing streak today by defeating Marquette, 3 to 0.

Everett Kischer, 148 pound junior quarter back who has been idle most of the season with injuries, returned to the Iowa State lineup to lead his team to victory. But it was the accurate toe of Roland Rushmore, senior left end, which brought the Ames' eleven its first triumph over Marquette in five games since 1927.

The Iowans worked into position for their score after Kischer had quick kicked Marquette back to its 20 yard line. Losing yardage on two plays, Full Back Morgan Busch punted out weakly to his 24 yard line. After Reupke hit left tackle for five, Kischer passed to Bazik for three and then went around left end to the 8 yard line.

Marquette tossed Iowa State for an aggregate nine yard loss on the next three plays, but on fourth down, with the ball in perfect position, Rushmore stepped back to the 26 yard line to score the three points.

Yale Defeats Princeton, 26-0; Frank Scores 4

New York, Conn., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Clinton E. Frank of Evanston, Ill., captain of Yale's football team and one of the greatest backs who ever carried a ball, wrote his name in indelible letters in the annals of Yale football today as he churned through mud and water for the four touchdowns that beat Princeton, 26 to 0.

Twice in the first period and twice in the third, Frank, steaming with the speed of a destroyer smashed through to touchdowns. After two of these, the extra point was added and Yale had its thirty-third victory in the sixty-one times this game has been played. His touchdown runs were for seventy-seven, four, fifty-one, and seven yards.

Yale Off to Quick Start.

The crowd of 35,000 hardly had settled in its seats before Yale started. On the first play of the game following the opening kickoff the Elis had scored and in less than a minte of the first period they had 7 points.

Princeton kicked off, apparently not wanting the ball deep in its own territory with the wind and rain to face. The kickoff was a good one, and Charley Ewart was thrown on the Yale 23 yard line. Frank called the first play. It was a run by himself to the left, with a cut back just off the Princeton right tackle. Once out, he cut a shade to his right.

Frank Away All Alone.

Frank then was away all alone. Yard after yard, disappeared under his feet and Yale men blocked all over the field. A lone Princeton figure, Tom Mountain, tried to cross at a diagonal to stop him, but never had a chance and Frank crossed the line standing up.

The second touchdown came about ten minutes later when Mountain, smothered on an attempt to kick the wet ball, was tackled and Yale took it on downs on the Tiger 15 yard line. Yard by yard, Yale worked up to the 4 yard line and from there Frank slapped through his left tackle, with Al Hessberg heading the interference, to the second touchdown. Ed McLean blocked the try for extra point.

Fumble Leads to Last Score.

There was no scoring in the second period, but Yale moved on to two more touchdowns in the third period. On the first Frank, taking the ball beyond midfield—the scrimmage line was on Yale's 49 mark—dashed inside his own right tackle, and then out raced every member of the Princeton secondary to cross the goal line once more without an enemy hand being laid on him.

The final touchdown followed a fumble of the sodden ball by Princeton on its 30 yard line. Martin Tiernan, who played much of the game at full back for Princeton, dropped it on a fake kick and Johnny Miller fell on it for Yale. Here Hessberg led a steady offensive that carried through to the 7 yard line. Frank then called his own signal again and, on third down, fought himself free of McLean who had him in the back field, and went on across the goal line from the 5 yard line, again going off right tackle. Lineups:

LEAFS CRUSH HAWKS, 7-3; GET 3 IN 1ST PERIOD

Conacher Paces Attack with Three Goals.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 13.—(AP)—The Toronto Maple Leafs scored three first period goals within two minutes tonight and went on to defeat the Chicago Blackhawks, 7 to 3, in the first game of a week-end National Hocky league double-header between the teams. They meet again in Chicago tomorrow night.

Harvey Jackson, Charlie Conacher, and Gordon Drillon each scored once in the rapid fire attack six minutes after the game opened while Johnny Gottselig served a penalty. The Hawks never recovered from that triple setback.

Jackson sank an angle shot on a perfect passout from Drillon in the first period at 6:34. The Leafs got another at 7:10 in a fight around the net, Conacher poking in the puck with Fowler's assistance. Drillon got a third score less than a minute later on another pileup at the goalmouth, taking a pass from Apps before sending it home.

Hawks Get Underway.

Midway of the period the Hawks finally got going with Brydson, Gottselig, and Trudell as a line. Brydson barely missed a goalmouth pass and Broda robbed Trudell from only a few feet out. Karakas came out to take Apps' short drive after the Leaf center broke past Burke, but the Hawks got the next goal with only 42 seconds to play. Palangio sent home a low drive of Kendall's rebound after both skimmed past the Leaf defense.

Horner went off just 31 seconds after the second period opened for charging on a face off. Wiebe was the next to go, taking a penalty for holding on a Jackson-Apps-Drillon drive. The man advantage was all Leafs needed for their fourth goal, Conacher taking a pass from Drillon to go right in on Karakas before pushing it by him.

Dahlstrom brought Hawks back into the game on a solo effort at 7:53, getting past Hamilton to fire a rising shot into the far corner of Broda's net. Two minutes later, Horner passed to Jackson at the side of the net who drove the puck home from 10 feet. Apps also drew an assist.

Toronto Play Clicks.

Four Maple Leafs broke abreast in the third period with only one Hawk to beat and the play clicked at 7:08 as Conacher scored his third goal. Davidson carried the puck to the defense before sending a perfect pass on Charlie's stick. Davidson was sent off for hooking March, but the Hawks went without a shot. They got a goal when Davidson came back, Romnes and Thompson passing to March, who scored in 10:27.

With less than three minutes to play, Kelly broke with Metz, who flipped in a shot over Karakas, who fell.

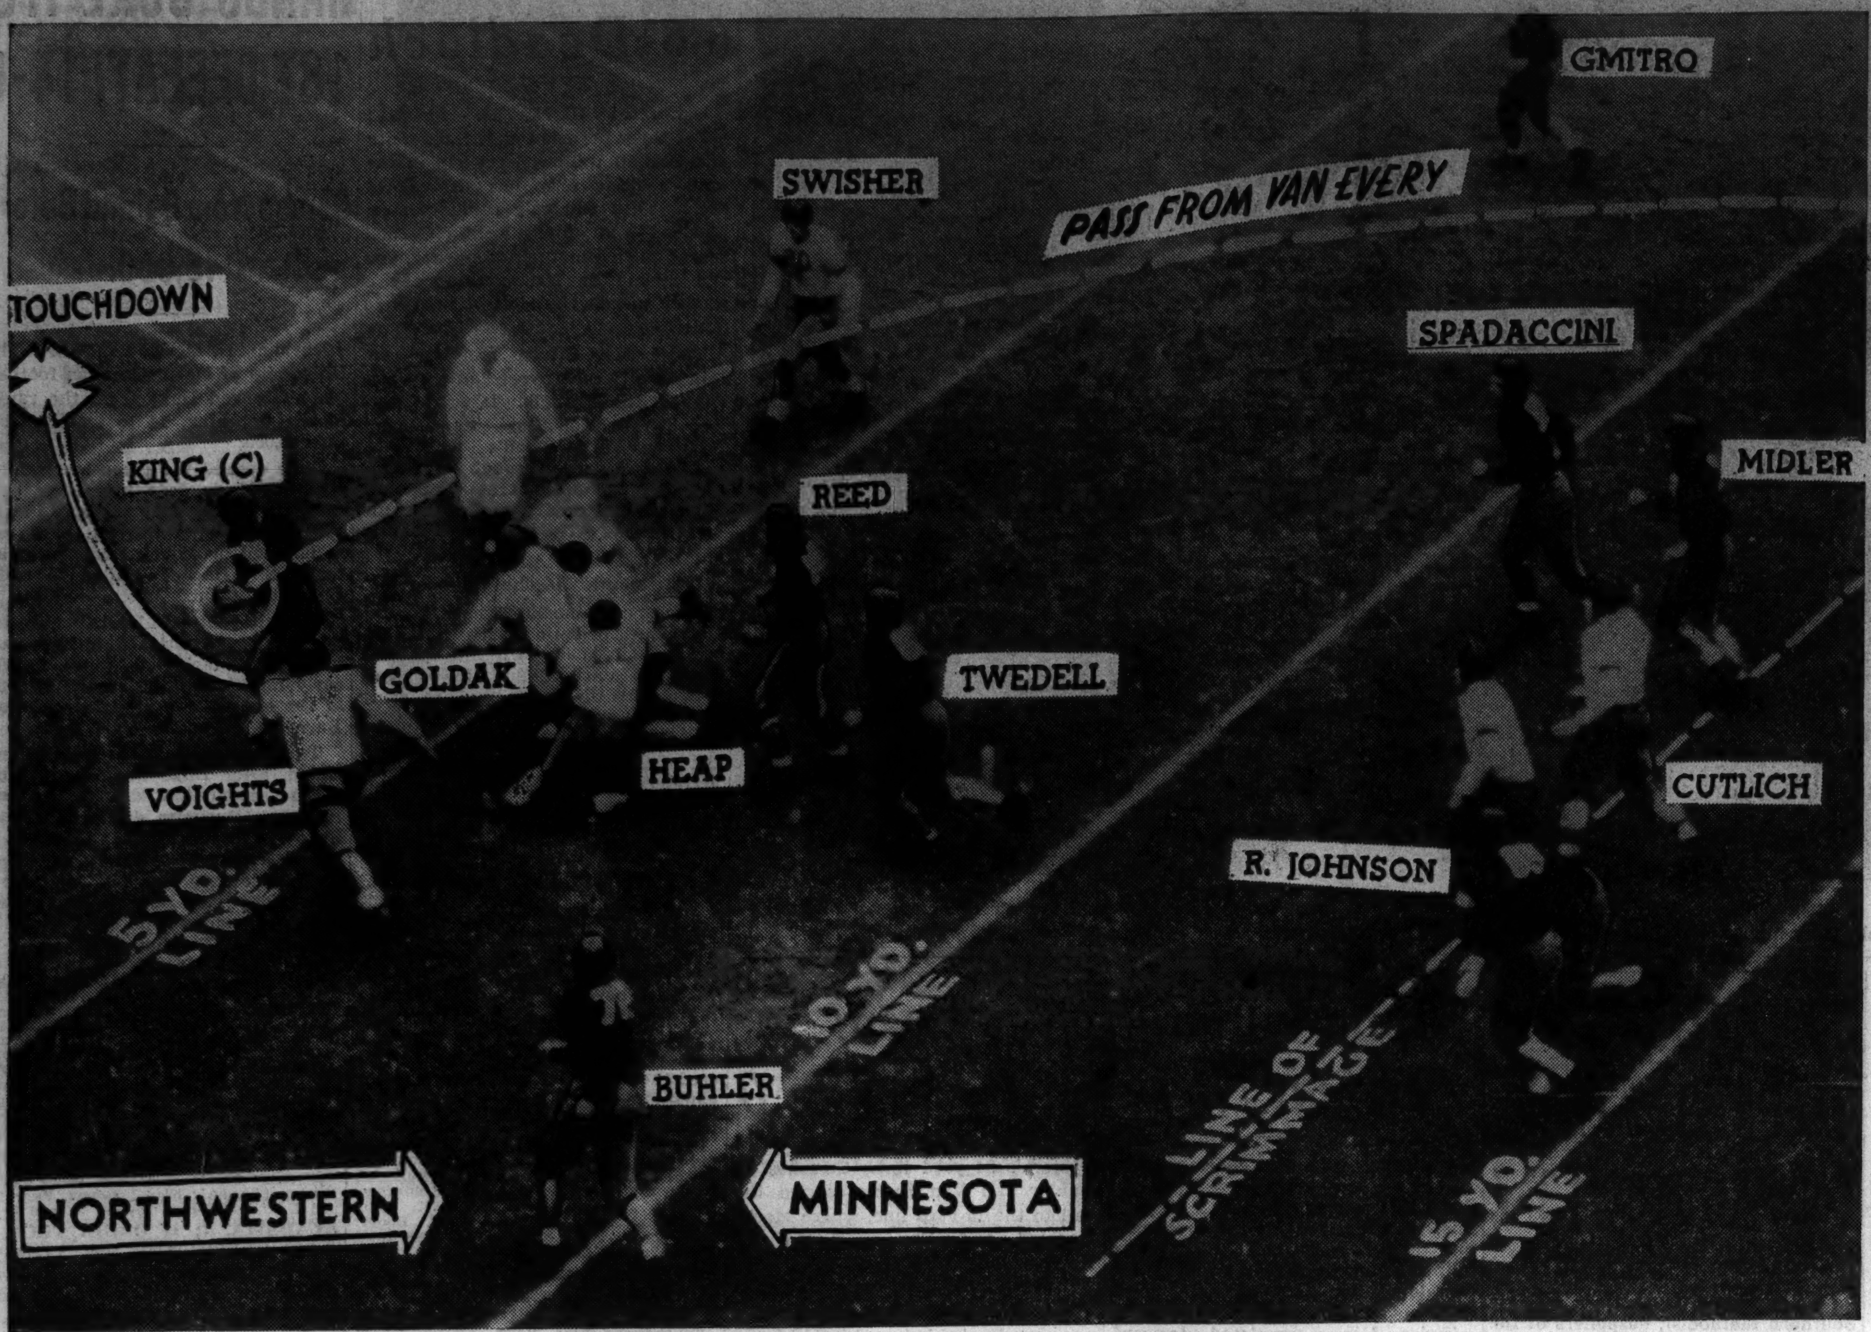
Minnesota Pass Beats Northwestern—Ohio State Runs Over Illinois—Wisconsin Ties—Pitt, Notre Dame Win



[A. P. Wirephotos.]

PASS THAT BEAT NORTHWESTERN'S ELEVEN—Capt. Ray King grabs aerial from Harold Van Every and crosses the Wildcat goal line in the second period of yesterday's Western conference game in Minneapolis. Horace Bell's place kick was good and the Gophers won, 7 to 0. Just before the touchdown play, which covered fourteen yards, King intercepted a pass and raced forty-seven yards. A crowd of 62,000 saw the game which resulted in the Gophers scoring their fourth conference victory. Only Wisconsin next Saturday stands in their path to the Big Ten title.

TWO JIM MCDONALDS MEET—ONE SCORES—James McDonald (8), Ohio State cocaptain and full back, grabs a pass and continues to a touchdown in first period against Illinois at Columbus. Jim McDonald, Illinois center, gives chase, but loses the race to the goal. The Buckeyes pushed over two more touchdowns and gave the Illini a 19 to 0 beating.

HOW DO YOU LIKE HIM, GOPHERS?—Capt. Don Heap of Northwestern keeps Minnesota busy trying to stop him at Minneapolis. On this play he is reeling off a gain of eleven yards, one of the many advances he made while the Wildcats were losing, 7 to 0, for their third Western conference defeat. Capt. Ray King of Minnesota (49) is about to dive for the ball carrier. Other players are: Nash (25), Twedell (63), Midler (70), and Weld (52) of Minnesota, and Voigts (61) and Cutlich (64) of Northwestern.

IT'S AN EIGHT YARD SMASH—Marshall Goldberg, Pittsburgh's hard running junior back, tears off a gain against Nebraska in Pittsburgh stadium. The Panthers waited until they trailed before smashing through the Huskers for a 13 to 7 victory. No. 27 of Pitt is Michelosen. The three Nebraskans in light helmets are Shirey (45), Mehring (11), and Brock (47).

NOTRE DAME GOES OVER!—Full Back Ed Simonich plunges for three yards and over Army's goal line in the first quarter at Yankee stadium, New York. That was all the scoring, and the Irish came out with a 7 to 0 victory in a battle played before 80,000. Other players are Wilson (33), whose number is partly hidden; Long (2) and Ryan of Army, and Stevenson (32) of Notre Dame.

WOLVERINES PUT ONE OVER ON PENNSYLVANIA

Stark Ritchie of Michigan races away for a 25 yard gain against Pennsylvania in first quarter of game yesterday in Philadelphia. Fred Janke (66) is following his mate to offer assistance. Burke of Penn (left) is trying to head off the runner. Michigan scored on a pass in the second quarter to win, 7 to 0.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Playing in mud that was almost ankle deep on Franklin field, Michigan added to Penn's football grief by whipping the Quakers, 7 to 0, today. The victory was Michigan's fourth straight.

A crowd of 25,000 sat through intermittent showers and watched both teams play mostly old style football. When Michigan did go into the air in the closing minutes of the second period Stark Ritchie threw two forward passes to Norman Purucker for the only touchdown of the game. Marzonie converted and Michigan was in the lead, never to be headed.

Penn tried the overhead game in the closing eight minutes, but, with the ball waterlogged, failed to complete a single pass in six tries. The Quakers tried to drive ahead by sheer power and although they picked off first downs from time to time, were never able to engineer a sustained attack. The game was drab. After a player had been in a play or two it was impossible to distinguish him from any other man on the field.

Penalty Sets Up Score.

Michigan flashed its forward passing attack late in the first half. With only six minutes to play, Penn was penalized half the distance to its goal line for slugging, the offender being Right Tackle Walter Shinn.

This brought the ball to Penn's 31 yard line in Michigan's possession. Then, after Penn had held Ritchie for no gain on two plays Ritchie passed to Purucker for first down on Penn's 14 yard line. Two running plays gained five yards, then Ritchie tossed another pass to Purucker who made a sensational catch in the corner of the field and crossed Penn's goal line. Marzonie went into the game and scored the extra point with a try from placement.

In the first period Michigan crossed Penn's goal line after Ritchie had brought the ball to Penn's 10 yard line on a brilliant fifty-four yard run. On the second play following Ritchie scored, but the ball was brought back and the Wolverines penalized fifteen yards for holding.

Drive Bogs Down.

Penn's only opportunity to score in the first half came early in the second period when the Quakers had the ball on Michigan's 26 yard line, as the result of downing the Michigan punter on fourth down on the final play of the first period. Penn moved to the 22 yard line but on fourth down Brown was thrown for a loss of eight yards and Michigan took the ball.

Penn kept the play in Michigan's territory in the second half, but did not make a serious scoring gesture. Michigan did not have the ball beyond its own 38 yard line during the half. The Wolverines played defensive football and often kicked on first down.

Fumbles were frequent because of the slippery ball and so were penalties.

Penalties Cost Two Touchdowns.

Each team lost a touchdown because of penalties, Michigan on the second play after Ritchie's first period dash.

In the third period Coulter of Penn got away a long punt that Ritchie fumbled inside Michigan's 5 yard line. After a scramble, McNamara recovered the ball over the Wolverines' goal line. The officials, who appeared somewhat befuddled, went into a huddle then ruled that a double foul had been committed. Michigan roughed the kicker while for Penn McNamara was charged with kicking the ball toward Michigan's goal line.

Each team made seven first downs, but Penn gained a net of ninety-four yards by rushing to Michigan's 74. The Wolverines outgained the Quakers, eighty-seven to thirty-six, by rushing in the first half, but lost thirteen yards in the second half, while Penn was adding fifty-eight yards. Penn attempted eight passes and completed one for one yard. Michigan tried four passes and completed two—the two that gained twenty-nine yards and brought the lone touchdown.

BALL STATE AND FRANKLIN BATTLE TO 6-6 DEADLOCK

Muncie, Ind., Nov. 13.—[U. P.]—Ball State and Franklin concluded their respective football seasons today by battling to a 6 to 6 deadlock.

Both teams drove over touchdowns in the first period and waged a defensive battle throughout the remainder of the game. With only three seconds to play, Davidson of Ball State attempted a placement kick from the Franklin 9 yard line, but the ball went wide.

Franklin's touchdown was scored when Center Atkinson intercepted a pass on his own 35 yard line and raced sixty-five yards.

Notre Dame Converts Army Fumble Into Score; Wins, 7-0

Army Musters One Scare.

The only time that Army looked like the Army team that usually sends chills running up and down the spines of Notre Dame's subway alumni was at the tail end of the opening period after the Irish had scored.

Pat McCarty, Notre Dame center, kicked off to Kobes, Army end, who carried the ball back to his 35 yard line. Woodrow Wilson, who is no relaton to the late President, passed to Jim Schwenk, Cadet quarter back, for nine yards. Wilson made it a first down on Army's 46 yard line on a plunge through center. Charlie Long, Army's southpaw passer, then tossed one to Wilson for twenty-three yards, giving Army a first down on Notre Dame's 31 yard line. Samuel, taking the ball on an end around play, fumbled and Beinor, whose recovery of Army's first fumble eventuated in Notre Dame's touchdown, fell on the loose ball on Notre Dame's 28 yard line.

Army never again got that close to the Irish goal. Stevenson pushed back the Cadets into the gloom of their own goal by kicking out of bounds on Army's 25 yard line.

Puplis Goes Forty Yards.

The next ten minutes were mostly an exchange of kicks, with Notre Dame having a slight advantage. Then came a spectacular punt return by Andy Puplis, who sped back from his own 5 yard line to his 45 before a host of Army tacklers finally brought him down. McCormick's seven yard gain and a five yard penalty gave Notre Dame a first down. Jack McCarthy passed to McCormick for eight yards and Joe Thesing made a first down on Army's 34. McCarthy's short pass was ruled complete because of Army interference on the 28 yard line. Two plunges by McCormick and another by Thesing brought a first down on Army's 81 yard line. The Irish mixed reverses with straight plunges for a first down on Army's 6 yard line.

Then developed an incident seldom seen on a football field. Notre Dame was penalized fifteen yards when Trainer Scrapiron Young, believing time was out, dashed onto the field without asking permission of the officials. Frank Hartline of the Army intercepted McCarthy's pass on the 10 yard line as the half ended.

Touchdown Fumbled Away.

Army always was struggling to get out of the shadows of its goal in the third quarter. A long pass, Stevenson to Arboit, gave Notre Dame a first down on the Cadets' 12 yard line. Arboit made two yards off left tackle, and Thesing, on a cross buck to the weak side, went five through right guard. Thesing rammed center for what appeared to be a touchdown, but in striving to wriggle up to the line he fumbled and Hartline recovered for Army six inches from the goal. The Irish were momentarily halted when Wilson kicked out to his 36 yard line and Notre Dame was penalized fifteen yards for unnecessary roughness on the next play.

Long, Army half back, checked another Notre Dame drive by intercepting McCarthy's pass on his 15 yard line and returning to his 24. Wilson then hurled a thirty-two yard forward to Long, who was downed by McCarthy and Puplis on Notre Dame's 44 yard line. Long picked up three through the line, but Joe Kuharich, Notre Dame guard, dashed Army's hopes of a touchdown by intercepting Long's pass on the Irish 37 yard line.

Another Chance Lost.

Mario Tonelli, who had been substituted at full back for Notre Dame when the last period opened, brought Irish partisans to their feet by cracking off his right tackle for thirty-four yards, dodging and driving to the Cadets' 23 yard line before Schwenk stopped him. Max Burnell and Tonelli battered through the line for a first down on the 11 yard line. Burnell followed a wall of interferers around his left end for five yards. Burnell went over his tackle for two, but McCarthy lost a yard racing for the right sidelines. Burnell picked up three, but the ball went over to the Army on its two yard line. Craig, who relieved Wilson in the Army backfield, kicked out to his 37 yard line.

Notre Dame was short of a first down after three plunges and McCarthy kicked out of bounds on Army's two yard line. Craig again got away a good punt and the Army once more held for downs on its 16 yard line.

What! Again?

Arboit started the Irish on another downfield parade by grabbing Craig's pass on Army's 33 yard line and returning to the 23. Arboit slipped for a three yard loss, but on the next play skipped through an opening at his left guard and cut to his right for a gain of sixteen yards and a first down on the Cadets' 10. Schwenk stopped Tonelli for no gain. Arboit then got seven yards in two plunges through left guard. Tonelli hit center for two, but the ball was a yard short of a first down and again the Army had staved off a Notre Dame touchdown.

Craig on the first play attempted to get away a long forward pass, but Arboit intercepted the ball on Army's 15 yard line. Harold Gottsacker, who had replaced Tonelli at full back, ran to Army's 3 yard line as the game ended.

The statistics:

Tries to Assist Irish; Police Give Him Bum's Rush

New York, Nov. 13.—(AP)—The famous twelfth man incident which enlivened a Princton-Dartmouth game a few years ago was repeated at the Yankee stadium today as a spectator decided to cast his lot with Notre Dame against the Army.

When Army had the ball on its 10 yard line early in the third quarter, a spectator came out of the open stands and took his place in the Irish line. Before a play had started, two policemen came after him and pushed him back to the running track beside the field.

The volunteer had no intention of being taken out of the play so easily. He eluded his guards and rushed back on to the field just in time to miss an attempt to tackle the Cadet runner and wind up at the bottom of a pile of players.

He was hurried off the field again and this time started to remove his coat prior to another effort. The police didn't let their attention wander again, but shoved him right on out of the stadium, where he was lost in the crowd.

DE PAUW BEATS WABASH, 32-0, TO CLINCH SECOND

Crawfordsville, Ind., Nov. 13.—[U. P.]—DePauw clinched runnerup position in the Indiana intercollegiate conference today by crushing Wabash, 32 to 0. It was DePauw's seventh conference victory against one defeat, and marked the 45th football game between the two schools.

By its victory DePauw gained possession of the famed Monon bell, the symbol of victory in the athletic rivalry between the two schools since 1889. DePauw scored almost at will. Schiah grabbed a fumble out of the air in the first quarter and sprinted twenty-three yards for a touchdown, and in the second quarter DePauw scored again on a sustained drive from midfield when Bartlen plunged over from the 1 yard line. Schiah flipped a long pass in the third quarter to Murnane who ran twenty yards across the goal.

Concordia Beats Wright, 31-12; Keeps Record Clean

Concordia college completed its football season undefeated by beating Wright college, 31 to 12, before a homecoming crowd yesterday at River Forest.

SO. METHODIST DEFEATS BAYLOR ON PASSES, 13-7

Dallas, Tex., Nov. 13.—[U. P.]—Southern Methodist, despoilers of the Southwest conference, defeated a strong Baylor university eleven, 13 to 7, today.

Only a fortnight ago the Methodists had upset a favored Texas team. Baylor drove to the S. M. U.'s 6 yard line soon after the game started, but its passes failed and it lost the ball on downs, starting S. M. U. on a drive which enabled Half Back Ewing to pass over the goal line to Capt. Pete Acker. Sprague missed the try for point. In the second period Bill Patterson passed from midfield to Huessner, who stepped across from the 3 yard line for Baylor's score. Gernand kicked the extra point.

In the final period Ewing's thirty-two yard pass to Jackson gave S. M. U. a second touchdown and Belville added the extra point.

RICE TIES, 6-6.

Houston, Tex., Nov. 13.—[U. P.]—Rice institute, playing before a homecoming crowd of 19,000, clung to its Southwest conference lead today, tying Texas A. and M. college, 6 to 6.

A. and M. scored in the second period after a thirty-eight yard run by Dick Todd, who then passed eleven yards to Britt for a touchdown.

Punting often for an opening, Rice went scoreless until the last three minutes when Ernie Lain led a forty-three yard march and plunged over for the touchdown.

TEXAS LOSES, 14-0.

Austin, Tex., Nov. 13.—[U. P.]—Texas Christian was heartened today by a 14 to 0 victory over the University of Texas as it fought to stay out of the southwest conference cellar.

Davey O'Brien hammered through the Texas line soon after the game opened for the first touchdown.

O'Brien scored again near the end of the second period putting the ball on the 22 yard line with a fifty-three yard run. He threw a fourteen yard pass to Williams and then, aided by a Texas penalty, lunged across from the 1 yard line. He also kicked both extra points.

V. P. I. RALLIES IN 4TH QUARTER TO DEFEAT VIRGINIA

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 13.—[U. P.]—Virginia Polytechnic institute came from behind to defeat the University of Virginia football team, 14 to 7, today.

Virginia scored on the last play of the first period when Dinwiddie passed to Gillette in the end zone. Sargeant kicked the extra point.

After the next kickoff Tech marched from its own 22 yard line to the Virginia goal in eleven plays. Darnell scored on a line plunge and Shockey kicked the tying point.

V. P. I. scored in the final period with an air attack. Darnell passed to Pierce on the 4 yard line and Mel Henry, V. P. I. full back went over on the next play.

OHIO U. TURNS BACK RUTGERS IN THE RAIN, 13-0

New Brunswick, N. J., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Two Ohio university backs, Jack Montgomery and Clarence Marcks, proved better mudders than the Rutgers ball carriers today, and Ohio upset the Scarlet, 13 to 0.

Disregarding mud and water ankle deep in some spots, the midwestern team struck once in the first quarter and again in the third.

Ohio scored first on a forty-five yard march. Montgomery passed to George Boehk to put the ball on the 10 yard line. Marcks then scored. Paul Wilcox's recovery of Herm Greif's fumble on the Rutgers 11 yard line brought the second score, Montgomery passing to Boehk for the touchdown.

George Washington Whips North Dakota State, 33-0

Washington, D. C., Nov. 13.—(AP)—George Washington university overpowered North Dakota State's Bisons today to score a 33 to 0 victory on a muddy field.

five yards to Northwestern's 45 yard line, set the stage for the first scoring threat. An exchange of punts followed and, when Van Every's kick was downed on the Wildcats' 42 yard line, Northwestern went to work.

Twice Heap completed forward passes but both were wasted because of penalties. The first pass of 21 yards from Heap to Swisher was erased when Northwestern was convicted of holding. Another pass for 22 yards by the same pair also went into the discard when Minnesota was caught holding, and the Wildcats chose to take a five yard gain which also gave a first down.

Swisher, Fred Vanzo, and then Jay Laskay hammered through in three plays to Minnesota's 40 yard line. On the next assault, however, King stepped in front of Heap's flat pass and came sprinting down the south side line deep into Northwestern territory. Near the 30 yard line, King cut sharply toward midfield to take advantage of his screen of blockers. The Wildcats closed in and when King swerved past one of his teammates, he staggered and finally fell on the Wildcats' 17 yard line.

A Pass and First Down.

Van Every shot inside left tackle for three yards but Larry Buhler, the full back, lost a yard at center. Gmitro followed with a gain of two yards and on fourth down Van Every passed short into the center of Northwestern's box secondary to Dwight Reed for a first down on the Wildcats' 6 yard line.

On the next play Minnesota lost five yards for offside and then Gmitro, attempting to go around Northwestern's right end, was set back three yards more. Once more Minnesota was forced to take to the air. This time Van Every passed to King, a duplicate of the preceding pass. King caught the ball on the 3 yard line and fell over the goal line for the touchdown.

Jefferson Intercepts Pass.

Minnesota had another chance to score in the first period when Swisher fumbled and John Kulbitski, Gopher center, recovered on the Wildcat 36 yard line, but the attack faded when Jefferson intercepted a pass on his 6 yard line.

Minnesota's second quarter chance opened with Van Every's 16 yard return of Jefferson's kick to Northwestern's 34 yard line. Smashes by Buhler and Van Every carried the ball to the 14 yard line, where Moore fumbled and Eby recovered for Northwestern.

Swisher took Bell's kickoff to open the second half and returned forty-one yards behind splendid interference. He was thrown heavily on Northwestern's 42 yard line and injured his ankle. He was replaced by Jefferson.

Long Pass Is Good.

After an exchnage of punts, Northwestern made a first down on its 33 yard line on a run by Heap and a quarter back sneak into the line by Vanzo. Jefferson then faded far back and threw to Kovatch for a gain of thirty-one yards from scrimmage. Van Every narrowly prevented a touchdown on the play.

Heap reached Minnesota's 28 yard line on the third of his successive plays. Here Francis Twedell, Gopher guard, broke through to stop Jefferson without gain on fourth down.

After taking a punt on its 9 yard line Minnesota flashed its best attack of the game. In 13 plays the Gophers drove to Northwestern's 25 yard line, but the assault bogged down against the steady insistence of the Northwestern forwards and collapsed when Van Every's fourth down pass missed fire.

Jefferson's fumble, which Gmitro recovered on Northwestern's 36 yard line was a final opportunity. After Gmitro had picked up four yards, the same man outran the defenders on the right flank for a first down on Northwestern's 5 yard line but this gain was lost by offside assessment.

Wildcats Stand Firm.

In the last two minutes George Faust attempted a field goal from the Northwestern 28 yard line, but it was low.

Northwestern attempted ten passes, completing four for 67 yards. Two were intercepted. Minnesota tried eleven passes and completed four for 32 yards.

Northwestern was penalized twenty yards. Minnesota received seven penalties, four for offside, one for defensive holding, one for offensive holding, and one for back field in motion.

In eight kicks, Minnesota averaged 38 yards. Northwestern averaged 36 yards for ten punts.

C. Y. O. Fight Tourney Goes Into 4th Week

Boxing in the seventh annual Catholic Youth Organization Christmas fund tournament enters into its fourth week.

For three nights, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, entrants from three sections, west, north, and south, will trade punches. Youngsters who won their matches in the preliminary contests will be seen in action. They will be competing in the quarter-finals for the right to advance to the semi-finals.

West Siders Fight Tuesday.

Lads from the west section will be the first to perform. They will be seen appearing at the Madison Athletic club, 4711 West Madison street. On Wednesday night, the north side boxers will meet at the Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street, and on the following evening the south section battlers will clash at the 124th Field Artillery armory, 52d street and Cottage Grove avenue.

In each of the three sections there will be sixteen matches, eight in the open division and the same number in the novice class. Boys winning in the quarter-finals will qualify for the semi-finals which are slated for the nights of Nov. 22 and 23 at the C. Y. O. center, 31 East Congress street. Suburban boxers already have qualified for the semi-finals.

Hold Finals on Dec. 1.

Sectional champions from the north, west, south, and suburbs will battle it out at the C. Y. O. center, and the 32 winners will appear in the finals at the Chicago Stadium on Dec. 1. Open division winners will be presented with Cardinal Mundelein medals, and novice class victors will be awarded Bishop Sheil medals.

Handsome Dan II., Yale's Bulldog Mascot, Is Dead

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Handsome Dan II., Yale's bulldog mascot, died during the night, on the eve of the Yale-Princeton game.

The animal, whose home for the last four years was with Coach Raymond [Ducky] Pond, suffered a broken leg three weeks ago.

Handsome Dan, a present of the freshman class in 1933, figured in hectic doings the following year. The Eli mascot vanished after the Harvard swimming team came to Yale for a meet, and later a published photograph showed Handsome Dan licking the boots of John Harvard's statute.

CANADIEN RALLY WHIPS DETROIT RED WINGS, 5-2

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 13.—(AP)—The Montreal Canadiens staged a third peroid rally tonight to the Detroit Red Wings, their rivals last spring in the Stanley cup playoffs, 5 to 2, before 5,500.

FIRST PERIOD.

Scoring—Lewis [Barry], 3:24.
Penalties—Joliat [Tripping].

SECOND PERIOD.

Scoring—Barry [Lewis-Aurie], 2:45; Mondou [Gagnon-Siebert], 17:06.
Penalties—Drouin, McDonald, Blake, Bruneteau, Goodfellow, Joliat, H. Kilrea.

THIRD PERIOD.

Scoring—Joliat [Haynes], 3:47; Mantha [Lorrain, Mondou], 6:40; Gagnon [Haynes], 18:04; Lorrain [Mondou, Mantha], 19:30.
Penalties—Bowman.

Freid-Cummings Lead in Roller Derby at 1,405 Miles

Grace Freid of Detroit, Mich., and Jack Cummings, Lafayette, Ind., led the field of 12 teams as the roller derby at the Coliseum reached the 1,405 mile mark last night. The race ends tonight.

Dartmouth and Cornell Play to 6-6 Deadlock

Hanover, N. H., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—For three periods today, Dartmouth and Cornell wallowed futilely in the mud, making only one first down each. Then suddenly came two explosions—the first when Cornell scored as the final period opened, and the second as Dartmouth made a mighty march that left it in a 6 to 6 tie.

Those last fifteen minutes, contained all the pyrotechnics there were in the struggle. It was in this period that Bob Rose, replacement full back in Cornell's back field, plowed two yards through left tackle for the touchdown that threatened to move Dartmouth out of the unbeaten class. The try for the extra point failed.

Dartmouth Marches to Score.

Almost immediately afterward, Dartmouth began a march that started on its own 39 yard line and did not stop until Colby Howe raced around his own left end to score standing up.

Out raced Phil Dostal of Glencoe, Ill., Dartmouth's most dependable placement kicker. Never before this year had he failed to kick the point. But the ball flew wide and the score stood, Cornell, 6; Dartmouth, 6.

Fumble Ends March.

Dartmouth then started what proved to be a futile race against time, using chiefly off tackle plays and short sweeps, and moved from one yard beyond midfield to Cornell's 13 yard line before Lud Pyrtek, attempting an end around play, fumbled and Elliot Hooper of Cornell recovered the ball. One play more and the game ended.

The lineup:

DARTMOUTH [6].		CORNELL [6].
Miller	L. E.	Holland
Dilkes	L. T.	McKeever
Duckworth	L. G.	Hemingway
Gibson	C	Stahl
Zitrides	R. G.	Hooper
Schildgen	R. T.	Van Ranst
Davis	R. E.	Spang
Gates	Q. B.	Rose
Hollingworth	L. H.	Baker
MacLeod	R. H.	Peck
Howe	F. B.	Brown

Touchdowns—Rose, Howe.

Substitutions: Dartmouth—Ends: Arkes, Pyrtek, Hull. Tackles: Dostal, Taylor. Guards: Highmark, Campbell. Backs: King, Cottone, Hutchinson.

Referee—R. E. Kinney, Trinity. Umpire—T. J. Thorpe, Columbia. Linesman—L. V. Novak, Army. Field judge—E. E. Miller, Penn State.

HARVARD, 15; DAVIDSON, 0.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Neither rain, mud, nor Davidson college was able to stop Harvard's varsity football team this afternoon as the Crimson splashed its way to 15 to 0 triumph before a crowd of 3,000.

The Harvard victory was a personal triumph for Frank Foley, who scored the two Crimson touchdowns. He went over from the 4 yard line for the first score late in the second period and halfway through the third period broke loose on a slice inside Davidson's left tackle and traveled sixty-one yards for the final Harvard touchdown. In the fourth period Harvard picked up two points on a safety.

COLUMBIA, 6; SYRACUSE, 6.

New York, Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Columbia and Syracuse, meeting for the seventeenth time since 1901, battled under miserably wet conditions to a 6 to 6 tie today at Baker field.

The Lions, pushing across a touchdown early in the opening period on a right tackle play by Taylor on the 2 yard line, failed to maintain the advantage and after Syracuse had tied the score on a lateral from Bateman to Sidat-Singh in the second quarter there was little to choose between the teams.

Columbia's golden opportunity, cropping up early in the second session, was wasted when two successive fifteen yard penalties, one for a substitute talking before his first play and the other for what was ruled to be an intentionally grounded pass, sent the Lions back to the 43 yard line after they had advanced to the enemy's 13.

AMHERST WINS.

Williamstown, Mass., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Long scoring runs by two Amherst backs, Vic Pattengill and Al Furman, brought Amherst a 13 to 6 victory today over its traditional rival, Williams, giving the Jeffs the Little Three championship. Doug Stearns scored for Williams at the end of a fifty yard march on straight football.

GEORGETOWN, 6; N. Y. U., 0

New York, Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Two overzealous efforts by Stan Mikulka and Bernie Bloom gave Georgetown a fourth period touchdown and a 6 to 0 triumph over New York university at the Polo grounds today before a crowd of 8,000.

Mikulka made the first error by trying to get his hands on a rolling punt from the toe of Joe Mellendick, who had punted from his own 38 yard line. He touched the slippery ball and it rolled on to the Violet 3 yard line, where Bob Snyder downed it for Georgetown possession.

On Georgetown's first play Mellindick carried the ball and fumbled, with Bloom recovering well behind his goal line instead of accepting the ball as a touchback, which would have given it to New York university on its own 20 yard line. Bloom attempted to run but was hit from behind. The ball bounced from his hands and John Frank, left guard, fell on the ball for the only score.

BOSTON COLLEGE WINS.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Boston college's eleven proved superior in the mud today and beat the University of Kentucky, 13-0, before 2,000 at Fenway park.

MANHATTAN WINS, 15-0.

New York, Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Manhattan uncovered hitherto hidden power at Ebbets field today to turn back North Carolina State, 15 to 0. It was the third straight major triumph for Manhattan.

Central State Teachers Beat Kalamazoo, 30 to 0

Kalamazoo, Mich., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—A record of 17 straight victories for Kalamazoo college was snapped by Central State Teachers, 30 to 0, today.

NORTH CAROLINA HANDS DUKE ITS 1ST DEFEAT, 14-6

Comes from Behind Before 45,000.

Durham, N. C., Nov. 13.—(AP)—The University of North Carolina football team removed Duke from the ranks of the unbeaten, 14 to 6, today before 45,000.

Duke opened the game by pushing the Tar Heels deep into their own territory and scoring midway in the first period on a thirteen yard run at left end by Honey Hackney, quarter back. Hackney failed to make the extra point.

Crowell Little, North Carolina quarter back, smashed a half yard over right tackle to score in the early minutes of the second quarter at the end of a 63 yard march. Tom Burnette kicked the extra point.

Three minutes before the game ended, after Duke had played most of the second half deep in its own territory, Burnette dropped back as if to try a placement. Instead, he tossed a pass to Watson, who took one stride into the end zone for a nine yard gain and a touchdown. Burnette added another point by placement. The lineups:

N. CAROLINA [14].		DUKE [6].
Kline	L. E.	Hudgins
Maronic	L. T.	Brunansky
Woodson	L. G.	Badgett
Adam	C	Hill
Wrenn	R. G.	Lipscomb
Bartos	R. T.	Yorke
Bershak	R. E.	Edwards
Little	Q. B.	Hackney
Watson	L. H.	Spangler
Burnette	R. H.	Tipton
Ditt	F. B.	Smith

Touchdowns—Little, Watson, Hackney. Points after touchdown—Burnette [2]. Referee, Eberts [Catholic U.]; umpire, Menton [Loyola]; head linesman, Frew [W. and L.]; field judge, Bagley, W. and L.].

ALABAMA, 7; GEORGIA TECH, 0.

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Alabama, outplayed most of the way, overhauled Georgia Tech, 7 to 0, today in a whirlwind finish before 26,000.

Georgia Tech, under the leadership of Capt. Fletcher Sims, twice threatened the Alabama goal in the second period, once on a drive to the 1 foot line. Capt. Joe Kilgrow set the stage for Alabama's winning touchdown after the tide had advanced to the Georgia Tech 31. Kilgrow went through tackle, reversed the field and raced twenty-eight yards before being run out of bounds on the 3 yard line. Line thrusts gained a yard, but on fourth down Kilgrow passed over center to End Tut Warren, who caught the ball over the goal. Kilgrow then kicked the seventh point.

VANDERBILT, 13; TENNESSEE, 7.

Knoxville, Tenn., Nov. 23.—(AP)—Sophomore Bert Marshall paced Vanderbilt to a 13 to 7 victory over Tennessee today before a homecoming crowd of 23,000.

The fleet-footed Vanderbilt quarter back drove his team to a touchdown in the second period immediately after Tennessee had made its only score, running nineteen yards to his own 44 and then throwing a pass twenty-eight yards to Hinton, who went the remaining twenty-six to score. Joe Agee's place kick was good.

A break coming late in the third quarter, when Tackle Greer Ricketson intercepted a Tennessee lateral, paved the way for Vanderbilt's winning touchdown. Starting from the Tennessee 31, Hollins and Full Back Hardy Housman smashed Tennessee's line with successive lunges that carried to the 2 yard line. Andrud went over.

L. S. U., 9; AUBURN, 7.

Baton Rouge, La., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Louisiana State defeated Auburn, 9 to 7, today in a Southeastern conference football battle before 30,000.

A field goal Cotton Milner kicked in the first period proved the margin of victory.

GEORGIA, 7; TULANE, 6.

Athens, Ga., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Georgia defeated Tulane, 7 to 6, today. Vassa Cate ran 37 yards to score in the first period and Mims added the point. Georgia stiffened in crucial moments to hold Tulane scoreless until the final period.

ARKANSAS WINS, 32 TO 6.

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Arkansas triumphed, 32 to 6, over Mississippi before 15,000 today. Arkansas took to the air thirty-six times, completing twenty-one of the passes for a total gain of 250 yards.

OTHER GAMES.

Philadelphia vs. Green Bay [Milwaukee].
Detroit vs. New York.
Washington at Pittsburgh.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

The Bears, their once comfortable margin reduced to one-half a game, will attempt to make a fresh start at Wrigley field today at the expense of Potsy Clark's Brooklyn Dodgers. The kickoff has been set for 2:15 o'clock.

Ill days have befallen the Bears. The mighty machine that worked itself up to a supreme effort against the Detroit Lions has been lagging. It succumbed to the Packers last Sunday and yielded a tie to the Giants the week before.

What appeared as a romp early in the season now shapes up as a herculean task. The Bears must win their four remaining games to qualify for the league playoff unless the Packers are held to a tie or beaten in one of the three contests left on their schedule.

Dodgers First of Four.

Brooklyn is the first of the four opponents who hold the key to the Bears' championship hopes. After the Dodgers come the Lions in the annual Thanksgiving day game at Detroit. The following Sunday Cleveland visits Wrigley field. Then the Bears tackle the Cardinals in the season's finale.

Comparative scores and relative positions in the standings make the Bears favorites over all four. Uncertainty amounting to apprehension arises over the Bears' inability to function efficiently against the Giants and Packers in their last two starts. While only the Lions and Cardinals may be called serious threats, Brooklyn and Cleveland possess sufficient strength to win against the Bears unless the opposition presents a united front.

Brooklyn, playing its first season under Clark, who developed Detroit into a championship team in 1935, has undergone a continual change in personnel throughout the season as Clark experimented and built for next year. The team which lost to Philadelphia last week gave definite promise of becoming a powerful combination and Clark has set upon it as the nucleus for his 1938 pennant contender. This is the eleven which starts against the Bears today.

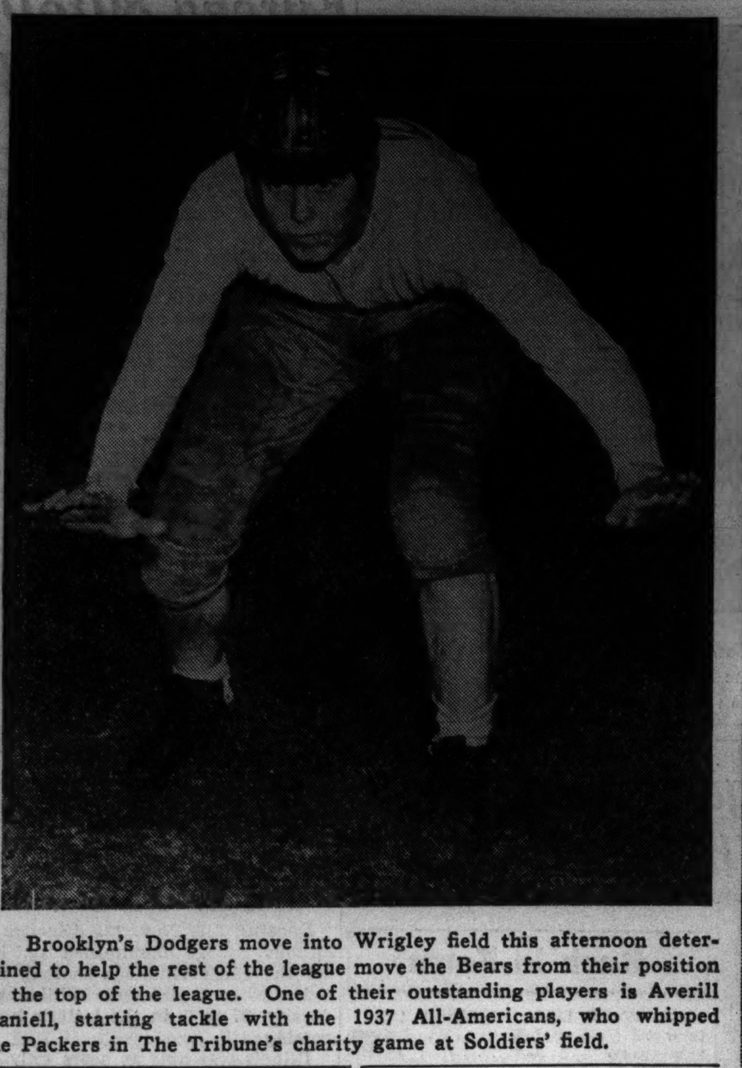
Parker Directs Attack.

Direction of the attack is entrusted to Ace Parker, the former Duke all-around star, who made an auspicious major league debut last summer as a slugging infielder on Connie Mack's Athletics. Parker joined the Dodgers last week. He practiced two days, then played 57 minutes against Philadelphia. His running mates are Tony Kaska, former Illinois Wesleyan half back; Joe Maniaci of Fordham, and Dick Crayne, Iowa's most valuable player in 1934. Crayne, Maniaci, and Parker were members of the TRIBUNE's All-Star team, although Parker did not participate in the game because of his baseball.

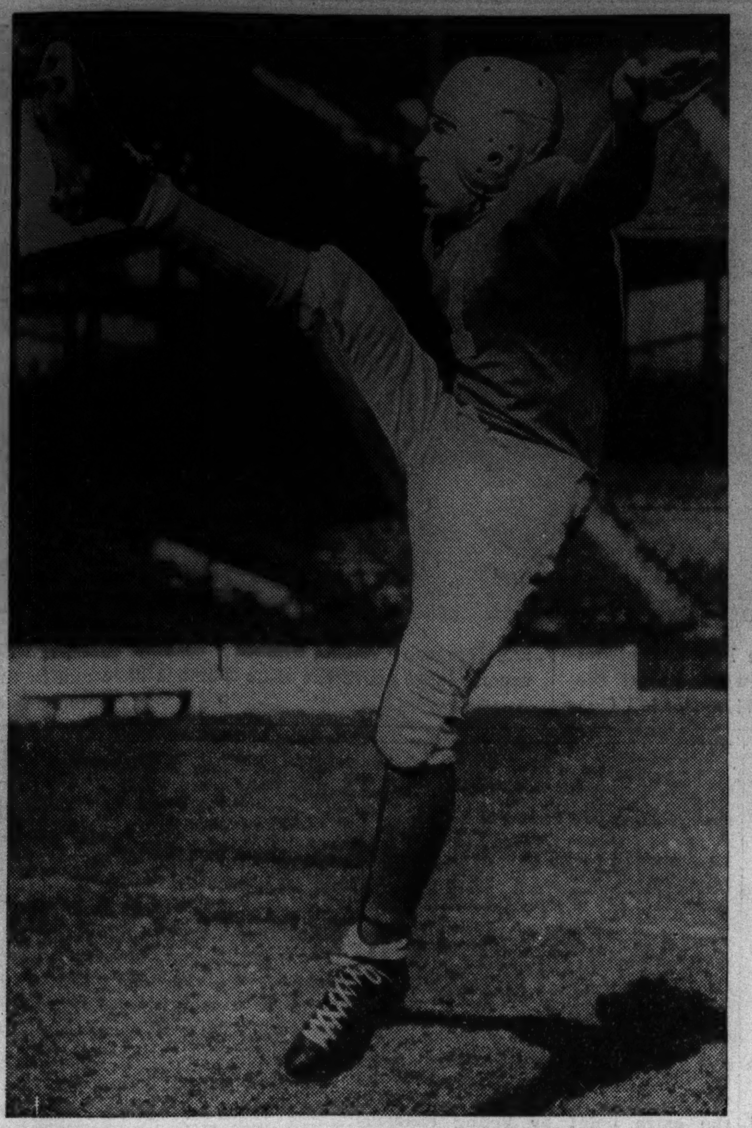
This quarter operates behind a big line in which Ed Skoronski, the former Purdue center, who belongs to the White Sox, and Ed Golemgeske, former Wisconsin star, are outstanding. Skoronski went to Brooklyn recently from Cleveland. Averill Daniell of Pitt, a starting member of last summer's All-Star team, will be at right tackle today with the veteran, Brute Sandberg, formerly with the Pittsburgh Pirates, at left tackle.

While the Bears are attempting to untrack themselves against the Dodgers, the Packers, victorious in their last six games, will try to make it seven in a row against the in and out Philadelphia Eagles at Milwaukee and Detroit will invade New York. Washington plays at Pittsburgh.

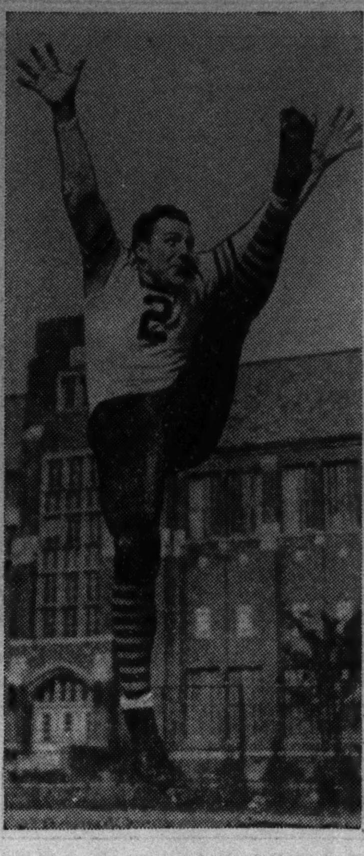
BEARS, BEWARE! POTSY MAY HAVE SOMETHING HERE



Brooklyn's Dodgers move into Wrigley field this afternoon determined to help the rest of the league move the Bears from their position at the top of the league. One of their outstanding players is Averill Daniell, starting tackle with the 1937 All-Americans, who whipped the Packers in The Tribune's charity game at Soldiers' field.



The baseball playing Ace Parker, an infielder with the Philadelphia Athletics, is also quite a figure in the National Professional Football league. He's the Dodgers' quarter back and one of the leading college scorers a year ago.



The Bears expect to use Full Back Sam Francis extensively this afternoon.

Potsy Clark, former star player at the University of Illinois, who coached the Detroit Lions to the Professional league title in 1935, returns to Chicago today as the Dodgers' coach, his first appearance with any pro team other than the Lions.

nity. The second quarter found Nebraska making one of its two first downs, comprised of a one yard line smash by Marvin Plock, and a nine yard lateral from Bill Callihan to Dodd. The end of the period found the Panthers throwing one pass after another. One was stopped by Dodd in the end zone and another was intercepted by Dodd on his 9 yard line in the final seconds of the period.

The Nebraska touchdown in the third quarter followed shortly upon the heels of a 72 yard punt by Howell. The ball sailed over Marshall Goldberg's head, and, after picking it up on his 3 yard line, he brought it back to the 14. After the Nebraska line had turned back Goldberg and Stapulis in three plays, Stapulis punted to Andrews, who caught the ball on his 40 yard line. He handed it laterally to Dodd, who swung over to the left side line and headed down the field. A futile lunge at him by Goldberg on the 5 yard line was the only semblance of interruption to the speedy Husker's progress to a touchdown. Lowell English place kicked the extra point that was to give the Huskers a lead until the last four minutes of play.

It's Pittsburgh's Turn.

The third quarter clock was swinging to a close when Howel punted over the Pitt goal line. Goldberg then scampered around right end and cut back for twenty-eight yards to the Pitt 48 yard line. Harold Stebbins, who delivered needed yardage all afternoon, got six in two plays. Goldberg then swung out to right end and made it a first down on Nebraska's 35 yard line as the period ended.

Stebbins and Goldberg then collaborated on a first down on the Husker 20 yard line, each of four thrusts being aimed at the battered Nebraska line. In two plays Goldberg picked up eight more yards, and Stebbins came through with a first down on the 9. Patrick smashed left guard for four yards and, on the next play, drove over his left guard for the touchdown. Souchak's attempted placement then struck the post and left the Panthers a point short.

But Not For Long.

Petro kicked off out of bounds and the Huskers took the ball on their 35 yard line. Plock fumbled on the first play, but Phelps recovered for Nebraska with a five yard loss. On second down, Lesouski recovered Andreson's fumble on the 32 yard mark, and the second Panther march was on.

Stebbins broke loose around his left end, and was in the clear until he stumbled and fell headlong on the Nebraska 13, Sophomore Dick Cassiano, who had replaced Goldberg, got seven yards at right tackle in two plays. Stebbins made one yard at left end and then Cassiano appeared to have scored on the next play, but the ball was brought back to the 1 yard line on a ruling that his knee had touched the ground there. Stapulis went over left guard for the touchdown and Souchak made good the placement for the extra point.

With only four minutes of play, the Huskers exploded a barrage of passes deep in their own territory. Finally Andreson punted to Stapulis, who was stopped on Pitts' 45 yard line. On the first play just before the final gun, Stapulis broke through his left tackle for a twenty-eight yard gain.

Swarthmore Wins Its First Game of Season, 13-0

Swarthmore, Pa., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—The Swarthmore college football team defeated St. John's of Annapolis, 13 to 0, on a mud covered field today for its first victory of the season. Larry Wolfe ran 44 yards for the first touchdown at the beginning of the second period and, with two minutes to play in the fourth quarter, Huhn intercepted a St. John's pass and ran 62 yards to account for the second score.

scoring. The final statistics showed that Iowa surpassed Indiana in first downs, 12 to 5, to pile up a total of 259 yards from scrimmage against a net of only 67 for the Hoosiers. Indiana managed to gain 106 yards by rushing and 12 by passing, but most of this was nullified by two costly fumbles. In all the Hoosiers lost a total of 51 yards from scrimmage.

Nile Kinnick, Iowa's sophomore quarter back, out punted the Hoosier Davis. Kinnick piled up an average of 42 yards in eight attempts. Davis punted eleven times for an average of 36 yards.

The battle in the opening quarter was waged almost entirely within twenty yards of the center of the field, with Iowa on the offensive most of the time. The Hawkeyes started a drive soon after the second quarter started that for a time gave promise of producing a touchdown.

Gallagher, Kinnick Lead Attack.

With Bill Gallagher and Nile Kinnick leading the attack they slowly but in machinelike motion advanced, only to be halted within seventeen yards of the touchdown they had fought so hard to get.

There came another minute when Iowa charged in the third quarter. It started after an exchange of punts. A long pass, Kinnick to Gallagher, was completed. Gallagher didn't stop running until the Hoosiers had chased him out of bounds on the Indiana 13 yard line. This pass and Gallagher's swing on down the field after he caught it had netted Iowa thirty-three yards.

Iowa's rooters went into a frenzy when Balazs went to the Indiana 10 yard line on the next play. It was a run around his left end. Kinnick plunged through center for another yard and the ball was on Indiana's 9 yard line. A pass, Kinnick to Gallagher, was incomplete.

Iowa Tries Place Kick.

Sensing a close score, Iowa then tried a place kick. The ball was directly in front of the goal. Gallagher dropped back, took his time, then kicked. The ball went wide and Iowa's one great chance to draw blood had failed.

The third quarter was nearing the finish by this time. Then it was that the Hoosiers took command of the situation.

Albion Beats Hope, 6-0, on 1st Period Touchdown

Albion, Mich., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Albion college scored a 6 to 0 football victory over Hope college this afternoon when Harry Kircher plunged over from the 1 yard line for a touchdown in the first quarter. His plunge came after two twenty yard passes engineered by Kircher and Ed Lindow. Hope once reached Albion's 15 yard line, and Kircher contributed the longest run, a seventy-two yard dash to Hope's 8 yard line in the fourth period.

SNYDER DRIVES MIDGET CAR AT ARMORY TONIGHT

Jimmy Snyder, who set a new speed record in the time trials for the 500 mile race at Indianapolis this year, will compete tonight in the 30 lap feature race on the midget auto racing card at the 124th Field Artillery armory,

Among those listed for the ten event card are Art Hartsfeld of Toledo, O., who has just arrived from a successful campaign on southern tracks; Marshall Lewis of Los Angeles, Johnny Ritter, Howard Dauphin, and Ray Stauffer of Detroit; Tony Willman, Ralph McDaniels and Myron Fohr of Milwaukee, and Ralph Biddle of Indianapolis.

Sixty cars are entered for the time trials, including fifteen powered with automobile motors and twenty-three with outboard motor boat engines.

TULSA DEFEATS WASHINGTON, 32-7; STILL UNBEATEN

St. Lous, Mo., Nov. 13.—(AP)—The Tulsa university football team defeated Washington university of St. Louis, 32 to 7, today and remained undefeated in the Missouri Valley conference race.

Tulsa scored two touchdowns in the first eleven minutes. Another was added in the second period and two more in the fourth. Washington scored in the second period when reserves manned most of the Tulsa positions.

DETROIT ROUTS NORTH DAKOTA ELEVEN, 40 TO 0

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Led by Andy Farkas, hard running half back who returned to the lineup after a week's idleness because of an injury, Detroit swamped North Dakota, 40 to 0, today. A crowd of 9,000 watched the battle through a steady drizzle.

Farkas jumped back into the race for individual national scoring honors by making 19 points to bring his season's total to 85.

CORNELL BEATS CARLETON, 13-6; PERFECT SEASON

Mount Vernon, Ia., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Cornell college, football champions of the Midwest conference, climaxed a perfect season today by defeating Carleton, 13 to 6.

Ben Petersen registered the first Cornell touchdown on a forty-one yard sprint after a Carleton punt was blocked by James Watson and recovered by Franklin Cole. Carleton scored in the second quarter on a twenty-eight yard forward pass play, Harry Martin to John Euckert.

A little later a Carleton fumble was recovered by Cole on the Carleton 24 yard line. Petersen passed to Bob Maloney in the end zone for the touchdown.

CANISIUS WINS OVER WESTERN MARYLAND, 6-0

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Canisius college won 6 to 0, over Western Maryland today. Late in the second period, Custodi, center, intercepted a Western Maryland pass on the Maryland 35 yard line, then lateraled to Hogan, full back, who crossed the goal for the only score of the game.

Smokers' test shows VINTAGE TOBACCO is at least 25% easier on your breath than all other 5¢ cigars tested

THERE'S not much satisfaction in "half-kisses." So why take chances of offending with a tobacco-laden breath? Smoke a White Owl and keep yourself open for a hearty reception.

New scientific discoveries have shown that White Owl's Vintage tobacco is exceptionally low in the substances that cause unpleasant tobacco breath. Tests with a delicate osmoscope prove that this tobacco leaves less odor . . . disappears faster.

White Owl is a better cigar because it always has a Vintage-tobacco filler. Nature—not factory processing—made this tobacco exceptionally mild, mellow.

We maintain a vast crop-inspection system—the only known organization of its kind—to locate Vintage tobacco. Even in Vintage years, we classify all filler tobacco into seven grades—and buy only tobacco of the quality of the top three for use in White Owls.

Change over to the milder, friendlier White Owls today. You'll get a more friendly welcome from the ladies, too.

The Metallic Nose Knows

Scientists use a sensitive osmoscope to measure odor . . . to record its intensity and lasting power. Ten different brands of 5¢ cigars were tested by this machine. White Owl was at least 25% easier on the breath than all the others. After 30 minutes, all trace of tobacco odor disappeared from the breath of White Owl smokers.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

De Paul's fotball team did its part toward making homecoming day a success by defeating South Dakota State, 44 to 7, yetserday at Wrigley field.

The De Paun players took the offensive at the start, marching to a touchdown from the first kickoff, then kept on the pressure to the finish, scoring on an intercepted pass in the last minute of play. During the intervening minutes, they put on a good football show, mixing straight line plays, lateral passes, forward passes, and deceptive reverses with equal effectiveness.

The South Dakota State boys got into the game for a few minutes in the fourth quarter, by advancing ninety-five yards to a touchdown with the aid of a lateral pass that gained sixty-five yards and a forward pass that scored from the 26 yard line. But during the rest of the afternoon they were pushed around without much mercy.

It's a Field Day.

De Paul's starting backfield, Bill Corrigan, Pat Howlett, Harry Postaer, and Paul Mattei, tore through the South Dakota State line at will. Then another combination, Tom O'Brien, Ed Norris, Les Kein, and Walter Malinowicz took over with equal effectiveness.

Meanwhile, the De Paul linemen were holding the South Dakota State backs well in check. When the visitors tried passes, the secondary usually broke them up without much trouble.

As the score implies, the game was largely a succession of marches to the goal . When Postaer returned the opening kickoff to his 39 yard line, De Paul was away on the first of these advances. After a series of line plays had moved the ball sixteen yards, De Paul worked a reverse, Howlett to Postaer, combined with a lateral to Mattei, that put the ball on South Dakota State's 21 yard line. Three plunges by Howlett and one by Mattei carried to the 6 yard line. Then Howlett passed over his right end to Postaer in the end zone. Cederberg kicked goal.

Runs Seventy-nine Yards.

A few minutes later Postaer went off his left tackle, dodged into the clear, and ran 79 yards for another touchdown. Howlett's kick failed.

In the second quarter O'Brien intercepted a pass and was downed on the South Dakota 42 yard line. Norris did most of the work in advancing to the 28 yard line, and from this point he broke through South Dakota State's tackle for a touchdown. Kein missed the kick and De Paul led, 19 to 0.

Kein returned the third quarter kickoff to his 37 yard line. A reverse, Kein to Norris, was good for twenty-three yards. Norris hammered the line for eight more, after which an end around play made first down on the 26 yard line. With Malinowicz, Kein, and Norris alternating, De Paul hammered its way on straight plunges to the goal, Norris going over from the 1 yard line. Chaddock's kick failed.

Late in the same quarter O'Brien intercepted a pass on the South Dakota State 45 yard line and ran to the 27. Plunges by Hackett, Kein, and Malinowicz advanced the ball to the 15 yard line. Then Kein took O'Brien's pass and stepped out of bounds on the 3 yard line, after which Malinowicz hit center for a touchdown. Cederberg kicked goal.

Visitors Score.

Early in the fourth quarter Corrigan took a punt at midfield and returned to the 35 yard line. A series of plunges moved the ball to the 17 yard line. Then Postaer ran to the 10 yard line and lateralled to Mattei, who went for a touchdown. Corrigan missed the kick.

South Dakota State got its touchdown in the fourth quarter after taking the ball on its 5 yard line. They made first down on their 15. Then Rouseff broke off tackle, ran fifteen yards, and lateralled to Fergen, who was downed on De Paul's 26 yard line. Robinson passed to Schroeder for a touchdown. Robinson kicked goal.

With a minute to play, Larry Ryan intercepted a South Dakota State pass on the latter's 20 yard line and ran to the goal. Kein missed the kick.

Wisconsin Harriers Win from Purdue, 19 to 43

Madison, Wis., Nov. 13.—(AP)—The University of Wisconsin cross country team defeated Purdue today, 19 to 43. Capt. Charles Fenske, star miler, led the Badgers to an easy victory.

IT'S JUST A BREEZE FOR DE PAUL'S BLUE DEMONS

Pat Howlett of De Paul crashes through the South Dakota State line in the first quarter at Wrigley field. The north side eleven kept on pounding away to rout the visiting eleven, 44 to 7. Leading the interference is Guard Raffin (44). Riddell (55) and Dragash (44), who is missing the tackle, are South Dakota players. This was the second large score the Blue Demons have run in the last two Saturdays. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

CHANCEVIEW, showing a surprisingly good performance, followed pace to the far turn where he moved into lead, opened a long lead in stretch, but tired badly. MUCHO GUSTO quickly assumed command, set fast pace and held on well. THORSON, unable to keep up in early part, closed gamely in run through stretch. THREADNEEDLE had speed for six furlongs. MASKED GENERAL failed to show any speed and was a badly beaten horse. EVERGOLD suffered early interference.

WASHINGTON WINS, 34-10.

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Washington of South Bend remained among Indiana's undefeated High school teams by whipping Emerson of Gary 34 to 10 today.

JOHN CARROLL WINS, 7-0, OVER ST. BENEDICT'S

A neatly executed forward pass from Bill Young to Ken Lucha for a touchdown in the fourth quarter and the extra point by Young enabled John Carroll university of Cleveland to defeat St. Benedict's college of Atchison, Kas., last night, 7 to 0, in an indoor football game at the 124th Field Artillery armory before 3,000.

The winning score came after Carroll had threatened to score on two other occasions. The Ohioans finally capitalized after working the ball down to their opponents 12 yard line. The John Carroll team made nine first downs to four for St. Benedict's.

Carroll Has Edge in First Half.

With Joe Hoctor and Ed Arsenault starring as ball carriers, Carroll had all the better of the first half, getting into scoring position on two occasions. Early in the first quarter, after John Lucas, Carroll, intercepted a forward pass thrown by Don Martin of St. Benedict's, the Cleveland team started a goalward march only to have it interrupted when Arsenault fumbled on the 6 yard line.

John Carroll had its second big chance late in the second quarter. Martin punted to Arsenault, who brought the ball back to St. Benedict's 48. Hoctor took a shovel pass and went to the 31 yard line. Arsenault on the next play went around his left end to the 16 yard line. Three more drives advanced the ball to the 5 yard line, but on the next play Hoctor was thrown for a six yard loss as the half ended.

And Carroll Scores.

Carroll scored early in the fourth period when Ken Lucha returned Martin's kick ten yards to the Benedict 31 yard line. With Lou Gliha, Jack Murray, and Lucha hitting the line and slashing off tackle, Carroll advanced to the 7 yard line, only to be penalized five yards for too much time out. Then Young passed to Lucha, who fell across the line for a touchdown. With Joe Quayle holding, Young kicked the extra point.

SOCCER TEAMS MEET TODAY IN CERMAK SERIES

The only soccer games scheduled today are the 17th annual Cermak Memorial cup matches at the Sparta stadium, 21st street and Kostner avenue, when four all-star teams, two of which will be picked from the Chicago league and two from the International, will meet in the first of the two match series.

The Chicago league side has several stars, including Pearson, Fraser, Vleck, and Wolf, all from Sparta. The Maccabees contribute the Waldron twins, Henney, and Pearlman. The International league eleven includes Riebe and Priess of the Germans, Posejpal, Hamous, and Keberle from Olympia, and Mattson and Overland of the Norwegians.

The reserves from each league will take the field at 12:30 p. m. The closing match, between the all-stars, will start at 2:30 p. m. All other games have been canceled, as the proceeds of the Cermak matches go to the Illinois state soccer commission.

total gain was sixty-five yards, forty-five yards of which were negotiated during that flurry at the close of the first half.

They Didn't Wait Long.

Four minutes had passed, four minutes of almost exclusive punting maneuvers before Wasylik and McDonald put over their fifty-four yard touchdown act. The ball was on Ohio's 46 yard line, near the left side line. Wasylik passed straight ahead to McDonald on the Illinois' 35 yard line. Aided by great blocking, McDonald cut sharply to his right, then straight down the center of the field to a touchdown. Schoenbaum added the point.

A little later Wasylik and McDonald functioned again in a series of plays but Illinois held and took over the ball on its 10 yard line. On this splurge Wasylik made eighteen yards on a fake punt play and his pass to McDonald was good for twenty-six yards to the Illinois 18 yard line. Then the Illini started smearing and took over the ball.

Illinois did not open up until late in the second quarter, when it succeeded in advancing to the Buckeye 20 yard line, only to have a pass intercepted as the half ended.

Wasylik Spoils a Pass.

The following things transpired in this Illinois onslaught: Wedebrook punted to Mazeika, who returned fifteen yards to Illinois' 40 yard line. Then Wardley's first pass was knocked down by Wasylik. Wardley's next pass was knocked down behind the line by Aleskus but his third pass was complete to Bennis for a first down on Ohio's 48 yard line.

Wardley made eight yards through center and then his pass to Bennett was good for thirteen yards and first down on Ohio's 27 yard line.

Sarkkinen broke through and spilled Wardley as he attempted to pass for a nine yard loss. Wardley next passed over center to Pezzoli, who made sixteen yards to Ohio's 20 yard line. Wardley's next pass was intercepted by Miller, who ran back to Ohio's 40 yard line as the half ended.

Illinois Break Backfires.

Ohio State's second touchdown was set up a few minutes after the Illini apparently had received a break on Kabealo's bad punt, which went out of bounds on Illinois' 49 yard line. However, Wardley lost four yards, then threw a pass which Kabealo intercepted and ran twenty-two yards to Illinois' 39 yard line. Wasylik picked up six yards, then made it first down on Illinois' 27 yard line. Wasylik's sprints of five and six yards made it another first down on Illinois' 16 yard line. Nardi plowed through his left tackle for fourteen yards and McDonald failed by a foot to make the two yards to the goal line. Nardi then again went over his left tackle for a touchdown. Kabealo failed to add the point from placement.

Ohio State had the ball on Illinois' 13 yard line, first down, at the start of the final quarter as a result of a pass interception by Wolf and a twenty-nine yard wiggling dash by Nardi. Nardi, however, fumbled on the first play of the fourth quarter and Zuppke recovered for Illinois on Illinois' 26 yard line.

Buckeyes Do It Again.

Illinois punted and less than three minutes later Ohio State had its third touchdown. The advance after the aforesaid punt started with an eighteen yard pass, Kabealo to Phillips. After a short line gain Phillips threw a pass into the end zone, where it was ruled Zimmerman and Carson had interfered with the intended receiver, Sarkkinen. The ball was awarded to Ohio State on the Illinois 1 yard line. Nardi then went over his left tackle for his second touchdown. Kabealo again failed to add the point.

SCROLL GIVEN TO BOB ZUPPKE BY OHIO STATE

Columbus, O., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—This is the text of an illuminated scroll which was presented to Coach Robert Zuppke during the half time intermission of the game today between Illinois and Ohio State:

"From the faculty, the students, and the alumni of the Ohio State university, greetings and felicitations

"To Robert C. Zuppke.

"Aggressive always, in a quarter century of loyal and distinguished service to the University of Illinois; moulder of men in the stern discipline of football; stable in victory, sturdy in defeat; resourceful and courageous, with undaunted determination to give his own best and to exact the best in others; teacher, leader, honest exemplar of the competitive spirit as fundamental in the American way of life—

"To you we dedicate anew the inscription carved high on the tower of our own Ohio stadium, scene of classic combat with your teams:

"'For friendship through contest.'"

After the presentation Ohio State's 240 piece band formed a "Yea Zuppke" that filled the entire gridiron.

Yale's Unbeaten Frosh Rout Harvard, 27 to 0

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Yale's undefeated and untied freshman team ended a big season today, defeating the Harvard yearlings, 27 to 0. Jim Riley and Don Rewick, Yale half backs, were the stars. Behind a powerful line they led an attack that brought four touchdowns.

Normal Routs Eureka, 80 to 0; Little 19 Mark

Bloomington, Ill., Nov. 13. — [Special.]—What is thought to be a new scoring record for a Little Nineteen conference game was established here today when Illinois State Normal, counting three touchdowns in every quarter, swamped Eureka, 80 to 0, to remain undefeated in the title race. Normal has now won three and tied two in league play.

Twelve different players scored for Normal as Coach Howard Hancock used every man that was in uniform.

ILLINOIS COLLEGE WINS.

Decatur, Ill., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Illinois college maintained its lead for the Little Nineteen football race today when it defeated Millikin university, 27 to 0, in the latter's homecoming.

Illinois was able to score only one touchdown in the first half—on a pass Mangieri to Donat. Early in the second half Illinois scored on a triple pass—Lambert, Vincenson to Donat—good for forty-one yards. A recovered fumble by Bluthardt started another touchdown drive that ended as Lambert crashed over. The last touchdown was made by Warfler on a twenty-seven yard run.

MACOMB BEATEN, 28-0.

Bowling Green, Ky., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—After being held to four points in the first half today by Macomb Teachers, Western State of Kentucky turned loose a powerhouse attack in the third period to score four touchdowns and beat the Illinois team, 28 to 0.

Two safeties gave Kentucky the first four points. On the kickoff Stewart fumbled and recovered behind the goal line. A blocked punt brought the second.

CARROLL, 39; WHEATON, 13.

Wheaton college's football team was overwhelmed by Carroll, 39 to 13, yesterday at Wheaton.

Buck of Carroll scored four touchdowns on long runs, and passed forty-five yards to Krause for another. Patterson, Wheaton full back, made all Wheaton's points.

MONMOUTH TIES, 0-0.

Monmouth made only one serious threat, advancing to the 2 yard line in the second quarter.

BRADLEY, 6; KNOX, 0.

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Bradley Tech continued its quest for the Little Nineteen conference football title by beating Knox, 6 to 0, today before 3,500. It was the 26th straight conference victory by athletic teams coached by A. J. Robertson.

Jim Molnar, 191 pound sophomore full back, Virgil Van Cleave, former Evanston high school player, and Ted Panish, veteran back, starred for Bradley Tech. After three scoreless quarters Molnar and Bob Theus brought the ball to the 8 yard line for a first down as the fourth quarter started. Molnar took the ball to the 1 foot stripe in three tries and Theus sneaked through center on fourth down for the touchdown.

WESLEYAN LOSES, 12 TO 7.

Akron, O., Nov. 13.—(AP)—After Ken Chittum had raced forty yards around end in the second period to give Illinois Wesleyan the lead, the University of Akron eleven turned to passes to achieve a 12 to 7 victory today.

Quarter Back Frankie Zazula threw a thirty-five yard touchdown pass to Half Back Horace Hampton in the third period and the same combination clicked to place the ball on the Wesleyan 11 yard line in the final period and Andy Garcia plunged over for the winning score in two thrusts at tackle.

ELMHURST TIED, 13-13.

Passes gave St. Joseph college of Collegeville, Ind., a 13 to 13 tie with Elmhurst yesterday at Elmhurst. Petit's catch in the final period erased a lead Elmhurst had taken in the third quarter.

Michalewicz had scored on a pass in the first period, but Bohle counted for Elmhurst in the second and Dreuschkie sent Elmhurst ahead in the third by plunging over from the 3 yard line.

C. C. N. Y. WINS, 6-0.

Bethlehem, Pa., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Splashing through the mud, City College of New York scored a touchdown in the first period to defeat Moravian, 6 to 0, today.

time the Badgers ripped back to the five yard line, only to be halted when a first down pass was intercepted by Cody Isbell.

Dorsch Pounces on Ball.

On third down in the first series of plays in the second quarter Schmitz punted to Brock. This helped to pave the road to Wisconsin's sudden touchdown. Brock had the choice of letting the ball roll over the goal or grabbing it. He did the latter and was nailed on his 10 yard line after an eight yard return. On the first play Cecil Isbell started for his own right end. He stumbled on the 2 yard line. The ball slipped from his hands and shot into the end zone. Dorsch pounced on the loose ball and Eckl came into kick the extra point which gave the Badgers their 7 to 0 lead.

There were only about three minutes of play remaining in the second quarter when the Boilermakers turned loose the five plays which blazed the trail to a 7 to 7 tie. It began with Schmitz punting to Brock who slipped and fell on his own 17 yard line. On the first play Cecil Isbell lateralled to Juska who was upended on the 38 yard line. Cecil Isbell slipped through his right tackle for four yards. A pass, Cecil Isbell to brother Cody, netted three yards. On the next play Juska fumbled but recovered. Then came the amazing touchdown pass.

Zachary Goes Over Untouched.

Cecil Isbell drifted back to his 28 yard line, seventeen yards from where the ball had been put into play. Zachary, apparently unnoticed, had worked around behind Wisconsin's secondary defense. Halting momentarily on the 17 yard line, he wrapped his arms around the long throw from Cecil, and then galloped merrily across the Badger goal. There wasn't a Badger within yards of his line of march. Cecil Isbell added to his day's feats with the placement kick that created the tie.

Purdue was suddenly tossed from the rôle of aggressor to that of a sorely pressed defender during the last seven minutes of the third quarter. Doyle intercepted a Cecil Isbell pass on Purdue's 44 yard line. A four yard dive by Weiss, a five yard penalty on the Boilermakers and a plunge by Schmitz gave the Badgers a first down on the 34 yard line. Schmitz sent a pass almost to the Purdue goal where Cody Isbell was charged with interfering with Benz, putting the Badgers on the 6 yard line.

Purdue's Defense Tightens.

The Boilermaker defense suddenly tightened. Schmitz lost a yard, but it was recovered by Gavre. Weiss smashed through center for three yards. Eckle was rushed into the Badger lineup, apparently to test his field goal skill. But instead of the kick, Schmidt was entrusted with the job of getting around Purdue's left end. Cecil Isbell broke through and nailed the Badger back for a five yard loss, the Boilermakers taking the ball on downs and promptly kicking out of danger.

A moment after the kick, the Badgers on the strength of a pass, Schmidt to Benz, were back on Purdue's 20 yard line with a first down. Just as the period ended Schmitz was thrown for a loss on the Boilermakers' 26 yard line. On the first play in the fourth quarter the Badgers made the attempt to break the deadlock with a place kick. The boot off Eckl's toe from the 32 yard mark was far wide of the target.

AUSTIN AND SENN TRIUMPH; REACH CITY PREP FINALS

De Correvont Star in 21-7 Defeat of Fenger.

It will be Austin against Senn for the football championship of the Chicago Public High school league at Soldiers' field next Saturday.

Austin, defending champion, continued its march of Mayor Kelly's charity game with the Catholic league representative on Nov. 27 by defeating Fenger, 21 to 7, before 25,000 at Soldiers' field, while Senn, north division winner, scored a 13 to 6 victory over Tilden Tech of the central section before 10,000 at Loyola stadium.

Austin's attack again was led by its touchdown specialist, Bill De Correvont, but the game was a battle between two triple threat stars, De Correvont of Austin and Roy Carlson of Fenger. The two players ran the ends, plunged into the lines, passed and kicked, but the champions stepped into the lead early in the second quarter and held the upper hand until the final gun.

De Correvont—as Usual.

De Correvont scored the champions' first touchdown on an eight yard run around left end after Larry Peifer, full back, had dashed forty-two yards. In the third quarter, after Fenger lost the ball on a fumble on its own 18 yard line, a short pass and several gains by De Correvont put the ball on the 1 yard line. Sanford Skor, on fourth down, went over on a quarter back sneak.

Another Fenger fumble in the fourth quarter led the way to Austin's last touchdown. The ball was recovered by Austin on Fenger's 40 yard line. A spread play failed and De Correvont then passed to Skor to put the ball on the 21 yard line. On first down, De Correvont swept around left end, eluded several would be tacklers and streaked down the west sidelines to score.

Carlson Heads Drive.

With Carlson carrying the ball, Fenger threatened several times, but on each occasion the drive collapsed when the Austin line held. Fenger's lone touchdown came in the final minutes of the last quarter. Carlson, after receiving De Correvont's punt on his own 18 yard line, drove to Austin 1 yard line. Full Back Zilius then plunged through center on fourth down for the score.

Tilden Tech, one of the heaviest squads in the league, appeared on its way to the finals after it scored in the third quarter, but Senn rallied and scored twice in the fourth period. Hal Schumacher, powerful full back, crashed over Tilden's touchdown from the 1 yard line following a pass, Mike Fisher to Ed Cycemas.

In the fourth quarter, two twenty yard passes brought Senn its first score. Standing on Tilden's 40 yard line, William Milliken, quarter back, flipped the ball to Cliff Aberson, who was stopped on the 20. Cookie Leis, Senn full back, then stepped into the picture and fired the ball to Aberson, who caught it on the Tilden 5 yard line and dashed over for the touchdown.

Senn Tackle Alert.

There wasn't much work attached to Senn's winning touchdown. Senn kicked off after its first score and the ball bounded into the end zone. Two Tilden players watched it roll, but Ray Osterveer, Senn's regular right tackle, fell on the ball for the touchdown.

Tilden's bewildered team then made a determined bid to win the game, reaching the Senn 10 yard line, but it lost the ball on downs as the game ended.

BUCKNELL HOLDS TEMPLE, 0-0, ON MUDDY GRIDIRON

Lewisburg, Pa., Nov. 13.—(AP)—In a game that saw both teams fumble away apparent touchdowns, Bucknell ended its football season today by holding the Temple university eleven to a scoreless tie before 6,000.

The game, played on a muddy field, was the fifth tie in the eleven game series between Bucknell and Temple and the fourth scoreless tie of the year for Temple.

THOSE AUSTIN BOYS ARE STILL GOING PLACES

Bill De Correvont, fleet Austin half back, carries the ball for west section champions in City High school semi-final game against Fenger, south section titleholder, at Soldiers' field. The heavy Austin boys held the Fenger attack in check and pushed over three touchdowns that enabled them to win, 21 to 7, and qualify for the city league championship game next Saturday against Senn, which defeated Tilden, 13 to 6, in the other semi-final. ST. JOHN'S BEATS AMUNDSEN, 19 TO 0, ON LATE ATTACK

Delafield, Wis., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—After battling through a scoreless first half, St. John's Military academy came back in the last two periods to defeat a stubborn Amundsen High school team from Chicago, 19 to 0, today.

The Cadets opened the third quarter with a march that ended when Dobson went over for a touchdown. Lea place-kicked the point. Amundsen threatened later in the period after recovering a fumbled punt, but was held on the 10 yard line. The Cadets scored twice in the fourth quarter, Bob Bell taking the ball over both times on line plunges.

Gembis Leads Wayne in 23-6 Defeat of Buffalo

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Quarter Back George Gembis led Wayne University of Detroit to a 23 to 6 triumph over Buffalo university today. Gembis carried over the ball for one touchdown, kicked two placements for extra points, and rounded out his day's work with a 30 yard field goal.

Only 2 Weeks Remain to Get Geese, Ducks

BY BOB BECKER.

Illinois hunters have slightly more than two weeks to go duck and wild goose shooting this year and just one more day for pheasant hunting. The season on pheasants closes tomorrow. If hunters want to enjoy more sport with the ringneck and mutant pheasants they must visit Wisconsin shooting preserves, where one may hunt by paying a certain amount for every bird taken. Although Illinois now has legalized the raising of pheasants which may be shot on a licensed preserve, this system has not been developed extensively.

With the Illinois duck and goose hunting season about half gone for the season of 1937, reports from hunters everywhere indicate that the year's flight of birds undoubtedly is larger than that of 1936. One of the most encouraging points about the 1937 migration is the increase noted in species of ducks formerly so depleted in numbers that they were near the danger point. For example, the canvasback has staged an encouraging comeback. It has paid to keep this bird on the closed list so the species could increase its numbers.

More Teal in Evidence.

We have seen more teal this year than in the last two seasons. Other hunters apparently have noted this same situation. On one of our Illinois river trips this month we saw larger flocks of greenwing teal than we have observed for several years. One flock alone numbered between 100 and 200 birds. Hunters in Wisconsin also confirm this apparent increase in ducks. One veteran hunter in Wisconsin says that "there were many more ducks in Wisconsin this year than last year."

The supply of bluebills has materially increased during the last three years. These signs of duck increases support the current policy of short hunting seasons and some closed seasons on certain species so that the duck population may continue to gain in numbers after several disastrous nesting seasons. The money being spent to buy marshes where birds may nest and feed also is helping the waterfowl.

Only Two More Week-Ends.

With the 1937 season scheduled to close on Nov. 30, Illinois hunters have only two more week-ends available for duck and goose hunting trips. The season closes on a Tuesday this year, which means that many hunters doubtless will have their last hunting day Sunday, Nov. 28.

ENGLEWOOD WINS CROSS-COUNTRY; TWO TIE FOR FIRST

Englewood won the tenth annual city high school cross country run yesterday at Washington park with 67½ points.

Jesse Martinez of Bowen and Ed Culp of Englewood tied for individual honors. Their time was 10:21.5 for the two mile course. Jim Jones of Du Sable and Ray Randall were third and fourth, respectively.

Jim Urban of Crane Tech won the individual novice meet in 11:27.5. Point totals follow:

Englewood, 67½; Bowen, 84; Du Sable, 96; Lane, 107; Crane, 141; Roosevelt, 156; Austin, 164; Schurz, 192; Lindblom, 204; Senn, 253; Fenger, 261; Manley, 285; Hirsch, 290.

ST. GEORGE AND FENWICK CLASH FOR SECTION TITLE

Games Today

CATHOLIC LEAGUE.
St. George vs. Fenwick, Mills stadium, 2 p. m.
Loyola vs. St. Mel, Loyola stadium, 2 p. m.
De Paul vs. St. Patrick, De Paul field, 2 p. m.
St. Philip vs. De La Salle, St. Philip field, 2 p. m.
Leo vs. Catholic High, Joliet, 2 p. m.
St. Rita vs. Mount Carmel, St. Rita field, 2 p. m.

A couple of old friends, Dan Lamont of St. George High school and Tony Lawless of Fenwick, will get together this afternoon, but it won't be a happy meeting. Their football teams are tied for the north division championship of the Catholic league and they will come together at Mills stadium, Lake street and Kilpatrick avenue, to settle the title. Ten thousand will see the game, which will start at 2 o'clock.

The coaches began their friendship ten years ago when they were teammates on the Loyola university eleven. Lamont then was a senior end and Lawless a freshman full back. The following year Lamont became Loyola freshman coach and Lawless was a regular member of the team. In 1929, Lamont succeeded Roger Kiley as head football coach and one of his prize pupils was Lawless.

To Show Former Coach.

Lawless today will attempt to show his former teammate and coach that he has picked up quite a few football tricks since they parted. Last year, Lawless had no difficulty bringing along his team to the title, but this season St. George blazed its way impressively to a tie with Fenwick, each with five victories and no defeats.

The winner of the game will meet Leo, south division champion, next Sunday for the league title and the champion will oppose the Public High School league titleholder in Mayor Kelly's charity game at Soldiers' field on Nov. 27. Leo, which clinched its sectional crown last Sunday, will end its season against Catholic High at Joliet.

Fenwick Takes Workout.

Lawless sent his team through a short workout yesterday and announced the team would be at full strength against the North Shore eleven. Behind the Fenwick 162 pound line will be Ray Collins, quarter back; Don Kruger, left half, Bob Rank, full back, and Johnny Barrett, right half.

There will be five other league games this afternoon. In one of the contests, St. Mel will meet Loyola for third place in the north section. Six thousand are expected to see the game, proceeds of which will be turned over to the Loyola building fund.

EXTRA POINT BY WESTERN STATE DEFEATS BUTLER

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 13.—[U. P.]—Butler university's string of five consecutive victories over out of state foes was broken today when Western State Teachers of Kalamazoo, Michigan defeated the Indiana conference champions, 14 to 13.

Tied 7 to 7, as they went into the final period, each team drove over another touchdown in the closing minutes. A missed kick gave the Michigan invaders their margin of victory.

Western State's first touchdown was scored in the second period on a pass, Vanderberg to Oberlin. Morris kicked the extra point. Another pass, Vanderberg to Morris, was good for a touchdown in the final quarter and Morris again added the point. A line plunge by Blackaby gave Butler a touchdown in the third quarter. In the closing minutes Blackaby went over for a touchdown from the 1 yard line but his kick for the extra point was blocked.

210 Opener Inspires Bowler; Gets 751 for Randolph Mark

BY HOWARD MARTIN.

Little did Jules Lellinger suspect that he was on his way to a record series in the Randolph Bowling league when he started with a 210 game while his Birk Brothers team was going about the business of sweeping their series with the Blackhawks.

When he smashed the pins for 266 in the second game, his teammates suggested that this was an excellent time for a season record to be tumbled. Lellinger agreed and went on a strike spree that enabled him to finish with a 275 game and a lofty 751 total that is not likely to be surpassed.

Lellinger's performance was all the Birks needed to rout the Blackhawks, who found it's tough trying to beat a team that registers games of 1,024, 1,046, and 1,079.

Thursday's session of the league also was marked by a 716 series by Bud Wright of the Mineralites, who nevertheless were beaten two out of three games by the La Palinas. In getting games of 248, 205, and 263 Wright helped himself to his second 700 series of the week in league competition. He totaled 705 earlier in the week in the Windy City Major league.

Windy City League.

The champion Mineralites won two games from the Whitecaps, but they failed to pull out of the Windy City Major league cellar. However, they have company at 10 won and 17 lost in the G. & W. Mill Farms, who lost two games to the Strachan Coals. Bud Wright was the big gun in the Mineralites' offensive with 705, compiled on games of 235, 226, and 244. The Budweisers broke the tie for first place by winning two from the J. M. Kralovecs and nudged the latter back into a second place tie with the O'Keefe Coals. The Budweisers have 17 victories and 10 setbacks. Chaplin of the Whitecaps blasted out a 692 series and Sak of the O'Keefes hit 675. Tomorrow's schedule:

O'Keefe Coals vs. Strachan Coals; G. & W. Mill Farm vs. Vogel Brothers; Mineralites vs. Soper Brothers; Blazek Tailors vs. Whitecaps; Boyar Schultz vs. Serrano Cigarros; J. M. Kralovecs vs. Town Club of Cicero; McKesson's Old Crow vs. De Young Fuel; Burlington Zephyrs vs. Budweisers.

North End Traveling League.

Three teams topped the 3,100 mark in the North End Traveling league. The Pepsi-Colas set the pace with 3,179, the Schamberger Schlitz battered out 3,105, which included a 1,131 game, and the Fox De Luxe toppled 3,101. The Pepsi-Colas won three games from the Michelobs, the Schambergers dropped one to the Richters, and the Fox De Luxers took three from the Budweisers. The Birks, after losing the first game by one pin, took two from the Samuelsons, and now lead the league by five games. The Keeleys also averted a whitewash by a two pin victory over Kruse Service Station. High individual honors went to John Flint with 695. Walter Sandquist was next with 686, and Joe Gratz helped himself to 678.

MAINE HIGH WINS WEST SUBURBAN HARRIER TITLE

With Capt. Rosswell Pearce smashing the existing record by 31.2 seconds, the Maine township team captured the West Suburban cross-country meet for the third consecutive year yesterday morning on the Maine two mile course. Maine scored 22 points, six better than York, runner-up. Fifty-two of the seventy harriers who started crossed the finish line. Pearce's time was 10:17.

Other leading finishers in order were Reed, York; Malcomson, Riverside; La Fave, York; Larson, Maine; Beaumont, Maine; Kulisek, Downers Grove, and Butkovich, La Grange. Table of points:

OREGON STATE RALLIES TO TIE TROJANS, 12-12

Scores Twice on Passes; Has Kicks Blocked.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Two Southern California kicks that hit the goal posts and two by Oregon State that were blocked, brought about a 12 to 12 tie today in which the Trojans, after building up a lead of two touchdowns, generously allowed State to emerge with most of the glory. A crowd of 38,000 saw the game.

Southern California scored in the first quarter when Ambrose Schindler led a forty yard march which sent him over right guard from the 1 yard line in six plays. Schindler handled the ball on all six plays.

State Opens Up.

It scored again in the second period, when after four smashes from the 5 yard line failed to score, Granville Lansdell, alternate quarter back, ran Duncan's punt back twenty yards to the 27 yard line and a nineteen yard pass had moved the ball within striking distance. Lansdell drove over right guard.

The remainder of the second quarter resulted in a pass barrage which produced Oregon's points. Taking the ball on a kickoff which bounded out of bounds, Gray handled the ball on nine of ten plays, five of them passes, four of which were successful. He crowned the sixty-five yard march with a pass to Wendlick in the end zone. Hansen, Southern California guard, blocked Hutchin's attempted placement.

Trojans Guess Wrong.

When Southern California elected to kick off instead of receive, Gray opened another pass attack that wound up with a touchdown toss to Wendlick from the 2 yard line. In this march Gray threw eight passes, completed six, made two yards on one line play, which was the only running play attempted, and profited twenty yards by Trojan penalties. Fisher, University Southern California tackle, blocked Gray's attempted placement.

STANFORD WINS, 23-0.

Palo Alto, Cal., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Stanford, reaching peak form after early season defeats, crushed Washington State, 23 to 0, today.

The Stanford attack began clicking midway in the second quarter when Carl Littlefield, Washington State full back, fumbled to give Stanford the ball on the 11 yard line. Pete Fay, left half back, sped around end for the touchdown.

U. C. L. A. BEATEN, 26 to 0.

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 13.—[U. P.]—The University of Washington kept a jinx alive in a snow and rain storm today, beating the University of California at Los Angeles, 26 to 0.

A U. C. L. A. team has never scored on or defeated Washington since the schools began meeting in 1932, and today's score was larger by seven points than any Washington team ever has made in the series.

U. C. L. A. made a net loss of fourteen yards from scrimmage. Washington passed to one touchdown in the second period, ran to another in the third, and slipped and splashed for two more in the fourth.

CALIFORNIA WINS, 26-0.

Portland, Ore., Nov. 13.—[U. P.]—A tremendous show of offensive strength in the second period enabled California to defeat Oregon university 26 to 0, before 20,000 today.

Held in check during the first period, partly by Oregon's spirited defense and partly by the quagmire condition of the sand and tanbark gridiron, the Californians broke loose in the second and hammered across three touchdowns.

California started to roll late in the first period, and with Dave Anderson and Sam Chapman leading the way, reached Oregon's 5 yard line as the period ended. Anderson went over on two plays. Chapman kicked the extra point.

After Oregon took the ball on downs on its 1 yard line, Bottari returned the punt out to the 23 yard line and California required only five plays to score. Chapman made the touchdown. His try for the point was wide.

Bill Stoll, Bear tackle, started his team's next drive by recovering an Oregon fumble on the 34 yard line. Bottari passed eighteen yards to Meek. With only 35 seconds to play Bottari threw two perfect passes. The first one went to Meek for a first down to the 6 yard line and the second was over the middle to Sparks in the end zone. Sparks kicked the extra point.

California's second team marched eighty yards for the fourth touchdown in the third period with Thomas plunging four yards for the score.

Greenleaf, Crane, Mosconi Tie for Lead in Cue Meet

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Ralph Greenleaf of New York, the defending champion; Willie Mosconi, Philadelphia, and Irving Crane of Livonia, N. Y., were in a triple tie for first place at the conclusion of tonight's matches in the world's pocket billiard championship tournament.

Greenleaf whipped Erwin Rudolph of Cleveland, O., 125 to 67, in 35 innings, after Mosconi had knocked Crane from the undisputed leadership, 125 to 52, in 29 innings, to bring about the three way deadlock.

U. S. BONDS RISE; BRAZIL'S ISSUES SLUMP FURTHER

Domestic Corporations' Loans Uneven.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 13.—Strength in United States government issues and further weakness in Brazilian dollar obligations marked otherwise quiet trading in bonds today. Federal issues opened quiet and steady but gained momentum as the session progressed and final prices were up 1-32 to 7-32 of a point on a turnover of $218,000.

Transactions in all bonds totaled $4,014,375, against $5,342,000 a week ago.

Brazilian Issues Break.

Further declines of 1 to 7 points were recorded in the outstanding Brazilian bonds. The government's issues yielded fractions to 1⅞ points; Buenos Aires issues, fractions to 6¾ points; Brazilian railway 7's, 3; Paulista railway 7s 5, and Sao Paulo City issues 1 to 6⅞. The Sao Paulo 8 per cent issue, which did not sell on Friday, broke 17½ points to be brought into line with the other loans.

Other South American bonds, displayed a steadier tone, and mixed trends ruled among the European and far eastern issues. Japanese loans rallied fractions to 2 points, and some Italian and German loans were moderately higher.

Corporate Loans Dull.

Trading in domestic corporation bonds was dull as prices moved irregularly within narrow limits. Industrial issues as a group, gave the best performance, with one average for that list advancing 0.23 point. Only nominal changes were recorded among the rails.

Bonds on the Curb exchange maintained a steady to firm undertone in light trading.

CHICAGO STOCKS EASE IN QUIET WEEK-END TRADE

Chicago stocks were moderately lower yesterday in unusually dull trading. Volume amounted to only 15,000 shares. Of the 56 issues traded, 15 closed higher, 22 lower, and 19 unchanged. THE TRIBUNE average for 20 stocks dipped to 12.23 from 12.28 at the close on Friday.

Middle West was the most active issue. It closed unchanged at 7⅛. Chicago corporation at 2¾ and Wisconsin Bancshares at 5 were also steady.

Volume on the Chicago exchange totaled 158,000 shares last week, compared with 510,000 shares in the comparable period of 1936. Dollar volume of transactions in October increased 10 per cent over September, amounting to $15,882,261, against $14,390,928 in September.

Beer and Liquor.

The repeal of prohibition, together with general business improvement and rising security prices, aroused widespread interest in the so-called beer and liquor stocks. Investors' Guide from time to time pointed out the speculative nature of the great majority of such investments. We said securities of only a relatively few well managed brewing and distilling companies offered investment possibilities.

Promoters were overenthusiastic immediately after repeal. Breweries and distilleries started up everywhere they were not forbidden by state law. People bought stocks just because they were brewing and distilling stocks. They discovered that the demand for beer and liquor is not limitless. The inevitable result is that many concerns promoted at that time have failed to make anticipated profits; a number have lost money.

The situation today is much as was forecast in 1933 and 1934. It remains highly competitive.

Despite intense competition, improved earnings are indicated for well intrenched brewers because of prospective lower raw material costs and expanding demand. High cost of ingredients and labor has cut into earnings this year, and aggregate profits probably will be less than in 1936. Larger crops promise lower prices for brewers' grains and should relieve the pressure on profit margins.

Competition probably will cut into earnings of weaker companies, but well managed concerns with aggressive merchandising policies should make a satisfactory showing.

A similar situation exists in the distilling industry, except that the outlook is clouded by abnormally high stocks of liquor in bonded warehouses. Were it not that much of this supply is held by sound, well managed companies the outlook would be decidedly unsatisfactory. As it is, distillers in recent months have curtailed production—which had been running nearly three times demand. Continued overproduction inevitably would demoralize price structure.

If production is adjusted to demand the outlook appears favorable for sound companies. Although whisky prices naturally have receded from levels reflecting the scarcity of supply immediately after repeal, present prices still afford satisfactory profit margins and demand has been showing a modest increase over 1936.

BANK CLEARINGS FALL, INDICATING BUSINESS SAG

Total Below Preceding Week and Year Ago.

The Chicago Clearing House association reported clearings of member banks for the week ended yesterday totaled $284,900,000, compared with $320,800,000 in the corresponding 1936 period. The figures for both years cover five days, both weeks including the Armistice day bank holiday.

Below Preceding Week.

Last week's total was also below the preceding six day week's clearings of $311,900,000. The daily record of Chicago clearings last week follows:

Date—	Clearings.	Balances.
Monday	$ 40,900,000	$ 3,500,000
Tuesday	51,400,000	8,500,000

Total for week	$284,900,000	$29,900,000
Corresponding week last year	$320,800,000	$37,400,000

*Armistice day.

New York Clearings Lower.

The New York Clearing House association reported clearings of member banks were $2,927,531,245 in the week ended yesterday, compared with $3,198,542,157 in the preceding week. Both weeks included a bank holiday in New York.

The report on bank debits in the principal cities of the Chicago reserve district, usually released on Saturday, will be issued tomorrow because of the delay in compilation caused by Armistice day.

SLUMP IN LIVE STOCK CHECKS MEAT IMPORTS

Foreigners Meet Stronger Domestic Competition.

Foreign farmers and packers are not finding the American markets as satisfactory an outlet for their meats and meat products since the severe break in prices in this country in recent weeks. Imports declined with the slump in the markets and the increase in domestic slaughtering.

Farmers and packers in the United States have become stronger competitors for consumer trade through the lower prices for meats as well as the larger volume they are producing. Although imports still are far above normal, and production in this country is well below average for this time of year, there has been a marked change in the situation in recent weeks. This was more apparent in the week ended Nov. 6 than in any recent week.

Beef Imports Decline.

Imports of beef and veal that week at New York dropped to 78,165 pounds, according to the department of agriculture, the smallest weekly imports of beef this year. This compared with 815,926 pounds two weeks earlier, and with 1,333,683 about the middle of September.

Imports of hams for the same week declined to 613,118 pounds, compared with 925,841 two weeks earlier and 1,180,756 pounds about the middle of September, when live stock and meat prices in the United States were much higher. This was a drop of 48 per cent in seven weeks. Only 85,628 pounds of other pork came in, the smallest weekly total of the year and 83 per cent less than in September.

Ham imports were less affected by the slump in markets than other meat products because of the tarif advantage canned hams enjoy in this country. While hams in cans, and most of them imported are canned, are brought in over a tarif of only 3¼ cents per pound, other canned meats are taxed six cents.

Domestic Output Increases.

The attached table indicates how American meat production has increased in three months. Figures are in millions of pounds, showing the output of packers in the United States under federal inspection.

1937.	Beef.	Veel.	Pork and Lard.	Lamb.	Total.
July	365	56	297	53	771
August	397	62	275	58	792
September	421	65	341	64	891
*October	432	63	447	58	1,000

*Preliminary estimate.

All live stock prices in the country's leading markets continued to fall last week. Steers at Chicago averaged $10.85, lowest since May, indicating a drop of $3.55, or 24 per cent, from the 1937 high. Top grades closed at $18.25, compared with $19.85 early in the preceding week. Final sales of steers and yearlings were unevenly 25 cents to $1 lower than the close of the preceding week. Hefers sold weak to 25 cents lower, but cows held steady. Calves advanced 25 to 50 cents.

Hogs Lowest In Three Years.

Live costs of hogs sank to the lowest levels in almost three years. The week's average at $9 was $3.25 under the year's high week, a loss of 26 per cent. The market closed 25 to 60 cents lower than a week ago. A new break carried the lamb average down to $9.80, second lowest since January and $3.10 under the 1937 high, a drop of 24 per cent. This branch finished 25 to 50 cents lower for the week.

A few sales of good to choice 160 to 260 pound hogs were made at weak to 10 cents lower prices yesterday, from $8.75 to $8.90. Three carloads of fed western lambs sold steady at $10.

Theoretical vs. Practical Capacity.

The theoretical capacity of an industry is the output possible if each unit in the industry is producing its exact rated quota. Theoretical capacity may be either greater or less than practical capacity, but the variation in either direction should be small.

In April of this year the steel industry was operating at from 90 to 92 per cent of its theoretical capacity. Actually, operations were much nearer than 90 per cent to practical capacity, due to the fact that a number of plants were incapable of producing their rated quotas without first shutting down for minor repairs made necessary by constant activity throughout the winter.

In May of 1929 the steel industry was producing ingots at a rate of 103 per cent of its theoretical capacity. This was possible for short periods of time, with all units in good condition and some mills turning out more ingots than they were originally expected to be capable of producing.

Estimates of operations of any industry are usually based on a percentage of theoretical capacity, since this figure is increased or decreased only by the actual expansion or contraction of the industry. Practical capacity is less stable, since it depends largely on accidental conditions of the moment.

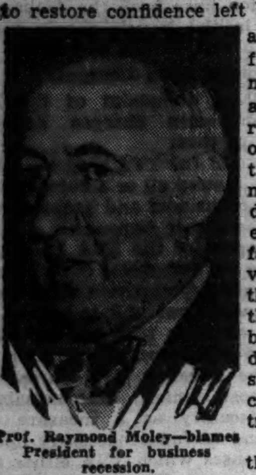
BUSINESS WAITS TANGIBLE MOVES TO AID REVIVAL

Still Skeptical of Roosevelt Plans.

BY WILLIAM YATES.

Administration overtures last week to restore confidence left business in a skeptical frame of mind. The apparent reversal of attitude toward many fundamental economic factors revived hopes that something tangible will be done to stem the recession in trade.



Prof. Raymond Moley—blames President for business recession.

Whether the Democratic leaders will have the courage to curtail excessive government spending, balance the budget, readjust the tax structure and remove the threat of burocratic competition and interference, factors which business blames for its troubles, were questions no one could answer. With business indices continuing to slip lower a "wait and see" attitude was adopted.

Analyze Official Utterances.

Some skeptics viewed the Washington ballyhoo promising a "good neighbor" policy toward business as a "negative" change of front, and termed the various utterances of officials "trial balloons." However, the statements emphasized the concern which exists among the economic planners over the drastic setback business has received in the last few months.

Early in the week Mr. Roosevelt conferred with his advisers on ways and means to check the depression. At his Tuesday press conference he made a friendly gesture toward the utilities, with which the administration has been at war since it took office. He said the government would not compete with private power companies if they would accept his methods of arriving at fair charges for electricity.

Roosevelt Asks Advice.

The President called in a group, including industrialists and a prominent banker. He is understood to have asked them to prepare a plan for stimulating business. Details were not disclosed, but it was said it would be designed to bring about a building boom financed by private capital.

The speech of Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau calling for a reduction of 700 million dollars in federal spending to put the budget in balance and citing the desirability of adjusting tax laws which have worried business men [the capital gains and undistributed profits taxes] proved particularly heartening.

Business read into the statement a victory for the budget balancing faction as opposed to the Hopkins-Wallace spending enthusiasts, for it was held likely Mr. Roosevelt had approved the talk before it was delivered.

Vast Demand for Goods.

It is agreed that a vast demand for goods exists which could easily reverse the tide of declining business. But until assurance is given that new shackles will not be imposed, that excessive currency manipulation will not be employed, that heavier taxes will not be created, business is unwilling to risk its capital in building up inventories, erecting new plants, expanding operations, and modernizing machinery and equipment.

A huge reservoir of utility capital is dammed up waiting only the courage of officials to go ahead. Removal of the threat of direct competition by the government would do much to revive this courage. But the capital will not be released by unofficial rumor and will wait on either direct statement or action by the President that will place him on record as to the rights of private companies.

Utilities Hope for Change.

Business is not overly optimistic concerning the meeting between the President and utility officials this week, although it is regarded as a thaw after a long, cold winter for the utility industry, and observers are glad to grasp any straw which may point to a solution of the trouble.

Blame for the present situation was placed on the doorstep of the President last week by Prof. Raymond Moley, once the No. 1 braintruster of the administration. He said the recession in business has been minor but warned that it may become serious. Should this occur, he added, it can be traced directly to the tax on surplus profits and administration policies which increase the cost of living. He termed the levy on capital gains the greatest obstacle to permanent recovery.

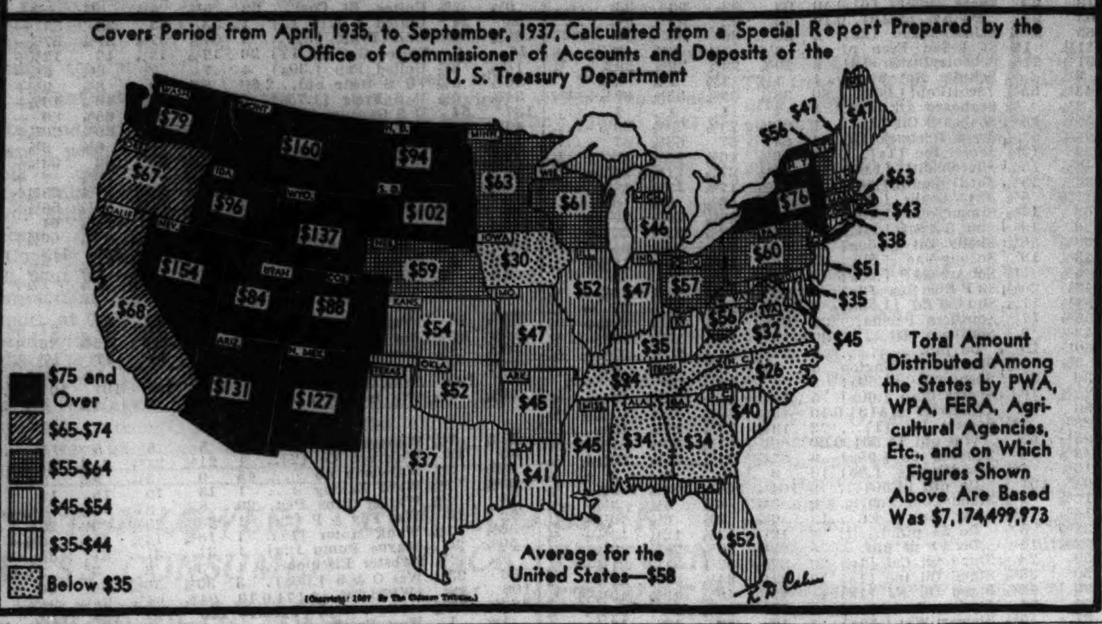
Trade Indices Decline.

Business considered the overtures to a more conciliatory attitude pleasing, but found little to cheer about in indices for the week. Lower production of steel, electric power, and automobiles was accompanied by a decline in railroad carloadings and spotty conditions in retail trade.

The stock market seemingly ignored these signs. Instead, it focused its attention on Washington and maintained a strong tone most of the week. The bond market showed strength for the first time since the autumn decline set in, with railroad and utility loans in demand much of the time.

Administration officials do not believe the President's program to check the trade recession will be spectacular.

Per Capita Expenditures of the United States Government in Each State



Rise in Profit Is Reported by Pacific Gas

Net profit of the Pacific Gas and Electric company in the year ended Sept. 30 amounted to $25,474,239, James B. Black, president, reported to stockholders yesterday. This was equal after preferred dividends to $2.84 a share on common stock and compares with $23,391,329, or $2.51 a share, in the preceding year.

Gross revenues for the twelve months amounted to $99,543,243, compared with $99,922,924 in the year ended Sept. 30, 1936. Black's statement said that as the result of nonrecurring deductions in connection with past bond refunding taxes were $915,000 less in the latest period than they otherwise would have been.

Total Taxes Increase.

However, he added, taxes of all kinds increased to $14,067,000, a rise of $2,532,000 over the preceding twelve months, and were equivalent to 14 per cent of gross earnings.

The Weston Electrical Instrument corporation reported third quarter net income of $122,750, equal to 62 cents a share on common, against $60,854, or 29 cents a share, in the same period of 1936. Net for the first nine months of 1937 was $373,720, equivalent to $1.88 a share, against $161,885, or 73 cents a share, for the comparable 1936 period.

The Standard Oil Company of Kansas reported net in come for the nine months ended Sept. 30 of $611,890, after charges, equal to $4.54 a capital share, compared with $179,527, or $1.23 a share, in the like period last year.

United States Freight Report.

The United States Freight company announced September quarter profit of $44,624, or 15 cents a common share, against $277,964, or 93 cents a share, in the same period a year earlier. For the first nine months net loss amounted to $11,641, compared with net income of $545,704, or $1.82 a share, in the corresponding nine months of the preceding year.

The International Great Northern railroad had a loss of $168,784 in September, against a loss of $207,716 last year, and a nine month deficit of $1,734,865, compared with a loss of $2,088,080 in the same period a year earlier.

Nicaragua Requests Bids on $10,000,000 of Roads

[Copyright: 1937: By the New York Times.]

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Nov. 13.—The government is requesting bids for a $10,000,000 highway system throughout the country. The program will include the Pan-American highway, roads between Managua and Matagalpa, and a highway between the Atlantic coast and the interior. The highways must be of asphalt or concrete. Bids must be submitted within sixty days.

North Western to Get Nine New Locomotives

Nine new streamlined steam locomotives will be delivered to the Chicago and North Western railway in January, the company announced yesterday. They will cost $145,000 each. The locomotives are capable of hauling fifteen passenger cars at eighty miles an hour and are covered with a light steel shroud for streamlining. The road plans to place them in service between Chicago and Omaha, Neb.

CHICAGO STEEL OUTPUT TO FALL THIS WEEK; ONLY 26% CAPACITY

Steel ingot production this week in the Chicago district is scheduled for only 26 per cent of capacity, compared with 35 per cent last week, according to an estimate by Dow, Jones & Co. Operations at Pittsburgh, however, are expected to rise 4½ points to approximately 38½ per cent, the first upturn in the Pittsburgh rate since the middle of September.

A month ago the rate in the Chicago area was 42.9 per cent of capacity. Every producer in this district is adjusting production downward. Inland Steel company will take off 10 more open harth furnaces, leaving only five of its thirty-one furnaces active. The company is also shutting down one of its four blast furnaces.

Steel production in the Youngstown district is scheduled to continue this week unchanged at 43 per cent. Of the eighty-three open harth furnaces in the area thirty-nine will be active, but several of these will operate only five days.

U. S. OIL CASE DEFENDANTS TO ASK ACQUITTAL

Madison, Wis., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Attorneys for defendants in the federal government's gasoline price fixing case worked today on motions for directed verdicts of acquittal which they will offer before Federal Judge Patrick T. Stone Monday.

Besides the motions for directed verdicts, which will be offered both generally and individually for remaining defendants, Chief Defense Counsel William J. Donovan will have ready a motion to strike from the record much of the testimony offered by government witnesses.

The government charges the oil companies and their officials with combining in violation of the Sherman anti-trust act to raise midwestern gasoline prices in 1935 and 1936 by means of two programs of purchasing gasoline of small independent refineries in the mid-continent and east Texas fields.

INDUSTRY INDEX AT LOW MARK SINCE MAY, 1936

New York, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Industrial activity this week was at the slowest pace since early May, 1936.

The Associated Press seasonally adjusted index based on 1929-'30 as 100, fell to 88.1 from 90.3 in the preceding week and 97.0 a year ago. It was the seventh consecutive weekly decline.

The seasonally adjusted index, based on the latest available statistics and with 1929-'30 as 100, compared as follows:

Rail Revenues Dip Sharply in Last Month

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 13.—A decline of $15,000,000 in operating revenues for October as compared with the same month a year ago is shown in the preliminary reports of the nation's leading railroads, the Association of American Railroads announced today.

Operating revenues amounted to $293,545,220, against $308,700,655 in the same month of 1936 and $379,053,552 in the same month of 1930. Operating revenues of those roads in October, 1937, were 4.9 per cent below those for October, 1936 and 22.6 per cent below October, 1930.

Freight Revenues Fall.

Freight revenues of eighty-seven class 1 railroads in October amounted to $239,993,472, compared with $255,632,742 a year ago and $302,686,358 in 1930. These revenues were 6.1 per cent below the same month of 1936 and 20.7 per cent below 1930.

Passenger revenues totaled $29,229,912, compared with $27,807,853 in October, 1936, and $43,556,541 in October, 1930. They were 5.1 per cent above 1936, but 32.9 per cent below 1930.

In the western district, 34 class 1 railroads, representing 69 per cent of total operating revenues in the western district, had estimated operating revenues in October of $102,986,999, compared with $105,312,486 in October, 1936, and $135,644,494 in October, 1930. These revenues were 2.2 per cent below a year ago and 24.1 per cent under October, 1930.

Eastern District Figures.

In the eastern district, 35 class 1 railroads, representing 91.2 per cent of total operating revenues in the eastern district, had estimated October operating revenues of $164,402,468 compared with $175,411,954 in 1936, and $211,527,463 in 1930. Revenues of these roads were 6.3 per cent below a year ago, and 22.3 per cent below 1930.

Eighteen class 1 southern railroads, representing 60.1 per cent of total operating revenues in that district, had estimated October operating revenues of $26,155,753, compared with $27,976,215 in 1936, and $31,881,595 in 1930. They were 6.5 per cent below 1936, and 18.0 per cent below 1930.

EDISON EXTENDS DEADLINE FOR STOCK EXCHANGE

The Commonwealth Edison company yesterday notified stockholders of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, Western United Gas and Electric company, and Illinois Northern Utilities company of an extension of time in which to exchange their holdings for Edison stock in connection with the financial merger of the four concerns. The deadline had been originally set for today.

The extension granted Public Service holders runs to Dec. 21. Feb. 15 has been set as the deadline for Western United and Illinois Northern shareholders.

James Simpson, chairman of Edison, announced that more than 80 per cent of Public Service stock has been exchanged.

Home Loan Bank to Offer $25,000,000 Debentures

Washington, D. C., Nov. 13.—(AP)—The Federal Home Loan bank system announced tonight it would offer about $25,000,000 of debentures next week. The issue, the announcement said, was made necessary by "a continuing demand for home financing funds."

South African Gold Output Sets Record for 10 Months

New York, Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Production of gold in South Africa in October amounted to 983,577 ounces, lifting output to 9,768,000 ounces for ten months, a record for any similar period, according to cable dispatches received here today.

WESTINGHOUSE SHARES PROFITS WITH EMPLOYES

Pays Out $9,500,000 in Nine Months.

BY WILLIAM BROMAGE.

Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, under a profit-sharing program inaugurated in 1936, paid out approximately $9,500,000 in extra compensation to its workers during the first nine months of 1937. The distribution resulted in a pay increase of nearly 15 per cent for the more than 40,000 employés of the company.

The corporation, a leading producer of electrical equipment, is one of many large companies which maintain regular profit-sharing and employé stock ownership plans.

Plan to Build Goodwill.

Westinghouse officials say that the profit sharing arrangement, the company's first plan applying to rank and file workers, was established because it was believed that the employés should have a larger financial interest in the business than the regular pay check. The officials regard the program as a long range plan for building goodwill and loyalty among the workers.

The Westinghouse plan is purely a profit-sharing arrangement with extra distribution made as part of the regular pay. In this respect the arrangement differs from the plans maintained by Sears, Roebuck & Co., and Procter & Gamble company.

These two companies, as explained in preceding articles in this series on profit sharing, add contributions from their earnings to savings by employés and invest the total in capital stock of the companies under definite savings plans.

Income Determines Pay.

The Westinghouse plan became effective on May 1, 1936, and applies to all employés. The basis of the plan is that the company's net income for any consecutive three months determines the pay that each employé receives for the next succeeding month.

The employés participate in profits after the first $600,000 average monthly earnings. The monthly pay roll at the time the plan was inaugurated was approximately $5,000,000 and it was provided that for each $60,000 of earnings in excess of the $600,000 base the employés would get a 1 per cent pay increase during the next month, which would take $50,000 of each extra $60,000.

Thus, if monthly earnings were $1,200,000 and the pay roll $5,000,000, there would be $600,000 profits in which the employés would participate, which would mean a 10 per cent pay raise.

Variations Are Explained.

As the size of the pay roll varies, and it has increased substantially since the plan was put into effect, the $60,000 increment varies proportionately. For instance, if the pay roll is $6,000,000, a 1 per cent pay increase is given for each $72,000 over the first $600,000 monthly earnings.

The wages of hourly paid workers may vary from a base wage upward only. Salaried workers, whose base rate is more than $118.75 a month, however, are subjected to pay reductions when the average earnings fall below the $600,000 monthly figure. On a $5,000,000 monthly pay roll the salaried worker would get a 1 per cent pay cut on the proportion of his salary over $118.75 for each $60,000 below the $600,000 base. Such cuts are limited to 10 per cent.

Average Boost 14.6 Per Cent.

The company has reported average profits substantially over the $600,000 base in every month since the plan became effective. The profit sharing distributions in the first nine months of 1937 varied from a low of 13 per cent wage increase to a high of 16 per cent with an average of 14.6 per cent.

During the last eight months of 1936 there was an average pay increase of 11 per cent with the lowest monthly increase 8 per cent and the highest 14 per cent.

The additional wages and salaries paid under the profit sharing plan are regularly included in the cost of operation in determining company profits.

Wheat Eases When Traders Take Profits

CHICAGO GRAIN PRICES

Closing prices of principal December deliveries on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday:

	Yesterday.	Monday.	Yr. ago.
Wheat	$ .91¾	$ .92⅞	$1.16¾
Corn	.54⅛	.55⅛	1.02⅜
Oats	.30	.30⅝	.43⅜
Rye	.71¾	.73⅝	.90
Soy beans	.92⅝	.93	1.26¼

Wheat futures declined ⅞ to 1¼ cents a bushel on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday as traders took profits following the sharp advance earlier in the week. All other grains also lost ground, and December corn established a new low since June, 1936.

Selling of wheat also resulted from late cables indicating that early reports of frost damage to the growing Argentine crop had been exaggerated. Failure of the large export business of Friday to continue also was disappointing.

Trading in the wheat pit was light. Liquidation was most pronounced in the December contract, which fell to a larger discount under the deferred months. Outside interest in the market was light.

Wheat Prices Open Lower.

Despite another moderate improvement in Liverpool prices, wheat opened lower here. After marking time early in the session, prices drifted lower until shortly before the close, when there was some improvement. All other North American markets also receded.

Corn futures declined 1 to 1¼ cents a bushel as a result of hedging sales and liquidation. Some short covering developed around the lowest levels of the day, traders said, but this did not prevent all contracts from closing at or near the bottom prices. In addition to the new low made by the December contract, the May contract equaled the 1937 low.

Corn Receipts Are Heavy.

Receipts of corn here again were heavy at 437 cars and large country offerings were reported. Small lots of corn were reported to have been sold for export, but no figures were given.

Rye slumped 1½ to 2 cents a bushel on profit taking and liquidation. Oats receded ¼ to ⅜ cent a bushel and soy beans declined ⅝ to 1 cent a bushel.

Wheat finished the week with gains around 5 cents a bushel. Corn and oats showed moderate losses, but rye was about 5 cents a bushel higher. Soy beans were ¼ to ⅜ cent a bushel higher.

FRANCE TO REPAY $200,000,000 LOAN TO BRITISH BANKS

PARIS, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Finance Minister Georges Bonnet announced tonight that improvement in the government's financial position permitted payment of £40,000,000 [nearly $200,000,000] due London bankers between Dec. 12-26 in complete settlement of a loan to French railroads. The loan, announced Jan. 29, was for ten months with 3½ per cent interest.

Bonnet's announcement followed other signs of improvement in French finances under the policy of the government of Premier Camille Chautemps, which included lowering of the Bank of France's discount rate from 3½ to 3 per cent yesterday.

MEXICO TO GET $5,000,000 LOAN IN BIG OIL DEAL

Strengthen Britain's Grip on Industry.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Authoritative sources disclosed today an agreement virtually had been completed to provide the Mexican government with a $5,000,000 loan and, at the same time, permit development of state owned oil lands.

President Lazaro Cardenas was reported to have agreed to the terms and the promoters were understood to have cabled their London colleagues for permission to sign. The signing was expected to take place next week.

Provisions of Agreement.

The agreement reached with the Mexico City promoters, headed by the wealthy former secretary of public works, Alberto J. Pani, in combination with four British brokerage houses, included:

1. The promoters would lend the government $5,000,000 in cash.

2. They would build two, 6,000 barrel and one 8,000 barrel refineries at a cost to the government of $4,000,000.

3. They would underwrite construction in British shipyards of ten merchant ships for coastwise commerce at a cost to the government of another $4,000,000.

4. They would drill thirty to forty wells at a cost not to exceed $4,000,000.

Pays with Royalties.

5. The government would deliver 60 per cent of its Poza Rica oil field royalties—which under terms of a new lease to the Royal Dutch Shell Oil company would not be less than 2,000 tons of oil daily for the first ten months—to pay off the loans.

The local group of promoters, which was organized as the Central American corporation, included, in addition to Pani, Jack Rowe, an American contractor, and David Alfred Thomas.

The contract would be guaranteed by the Banco Nacional de Mexico, in coöperation either with the Bank of London or the Westminster bank.

NEW MUNICIPAL BANKRUPTCY ACT RULED ILLEGAL

Fresno, Cal., Nov. 13.—[U. P.]—Federal Judge Leon Yankwitch ruled today that the new federal municipal bankruptcy act interferred with state's right and therefore was unconstitutional. The ruling opened the way for a direct appeal to the United States Supreme court under provisions of the new judiciary reform act.

The attack on the constitutionality of the new law was brought by the bondholders of the Tulare county Strathmore-Lindsay irrigation district of California.

It was the second time that such an act was ruled unconstitutional. The United States Supreme court outlawed in May, 1936, a similar law passed in 1934. Judge Yankwich said that he was bound by decision of the Supreme court on the original law in reaching his decision on the new act.

Mint Cost of Small French Coins Exceeds Face Value

PARIS, Nov. 13.—M. Bardoul, director of the mint, reported to the chamber of deputies finance commission today that the cost of minting five and ten centime pieces exceeds their face value. As a result the chamber may adopt his suggestion to discontinue the manufacture of these coins in a new schedule covering additional small change necessitated by devaluation.

START OF TVA LEGALITY TEST DUE TOMORROW

18 Utilities Fight U. S. Competition.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Constitutionality of the Tennessee Valley authority act—pet 520 million dollar project of the federal administration in water power and social-economic planning—is challenged in a trial before three federal judges which is set for tomorrow at Chattanooga, Tenn.

The case involves the issue of whether the federal government has the right to enter the electric power business in competition with private enterprise and whether the TVA "yardstick" to measure fair prices for power is an honest one or an India rubber measure. The decision may have a bearing not only on TVA but on the administration project to blanket the United States with seven little TVAs. Batteries of lawyers are mobilizing in Chattanooga for what is deemed one of the most important legal struggles the power companies have ever engaged in.

18 Companies in Suit.

The suit was brought in May, 1936, by nineteen operating utility companies in the Tennessee valley. Since then the Georgia power company has been enjoined from participating, leaving 18 companies in the litigation.

What the power companies in the area are seeking is to enjoin TVA from further operation, and to have the act creating it, the hydro-electric power program authorized by the act, and the power program promulgated by TVA all declared invalid as in violation of the constitution. The TVA and its three directors, Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, Harcourt A. Morgan, and David E. Lilienthal are named as defendants.

The trial will be held under President Roosevelt's court reorganization act, passed by congress. This calls for a three judge tribunal in suits involving the constitutionality of acts of congress where relief is sought through injunction.

Judges to Hear Case.

Judge Florence E. Allen of Cleveland, member of the Circuit court of the Sixth judicial circuit, and District Judge John D. Martin of Memphis, Tenn., both Roosevelt appointees, and District Judge John J. Gore, Cookeville, Tenn., a Harding appointee, will hear the case. Judge Allen, who is to be presiding judge, said at the time preliminary motions were disposed of at Nashville she hoped the trial could be completed in six weeks. Under the new court act appeal is taken direct to the United States Supreme court.

Counsel for the power companies will be headed by Newton D. Baker, secretary of war in the Wilson administration. James Lawrence Fly, TVA general counsel, and John Lord O'Beran of Buffalo, N. Y., will head the authority's legal batteries.

Solicitor Fly of TVA, in an answer filed last year to the bill of complaint, indicated that the government will rely heavily on the decision of the United States Supreme court in the Ashwander case. TVA contends this decision means in effect that in the case of a constitutional dam serving constitutional functions, the government can make use of power generated by the fall, convert it into electrical energy, and transmit it to a market.

Contention of Companies.

The power companies point out that as a matter of fact the Supreme court in the Ashwander case ruled solely upon the validity of sales of power from Wilson dam, which was built for purposes of national defense, the original conception of the development at Muscle Shoals being for war purposes under the national defense act of 1916, in anticipation of America's entry into the world war.

The decision in the Ashwander case in its final paragraphs says: "We [the Supreme court] express no opinion as to the validity of such an effort, as to the status of any other dam or power development in the Tennessee valley, whether connected with or apart from the Wilson dam, or as to the validity of the Tennes-

Warned of COLLAPSE
Warning of a price collapse was given clients of TECHNIGRAPHICS in a wire dated August 12, 1937:
"STOCKS INCREASINGLY BEARISH . . . CONTINUE TO LOOK FOR LOWER PRICES — POSSIBLY COLLAPSE."

This telegram which also advised short sales, climaxed consistently bearish advices from July 28 on.
On August 25, the day TECHNIGRAPHICS sent this warning to clients, the Dow-Jones industrial average was 181.70. Since then it lost 65 points in the second greatest collapse in stock market history.
Just as these advices anticipated the March-to-June decline on March 18-20 (and recommended 100% liquidation in investment and semi-investment accounts, short sales in trading accounts), so TECHNIGRAPHICS again anticipated this disastrously swift decline.
What action is indicated now? Send One Dollar for a three weeks' trial of TECHNIGRAPHICS' specific recommendations (both stock and grain). Write today to

STOCKS DRIFT AIMLESSLY IN DULL SESSION

Steel Group Firms After Early Recession.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 13.—Stocks drifted aimlessly today in a dull session. There was a semblance of firmness, especially in steels, in the last hour of trading. It was one of the dullest Saturdays in months with volume only 509,500 shares, against 766,390 a week ago and 1,154,330 a year ago.

Pivotal shares reflected only a meager speculative interest and their movements were mixed. There seemed to be no incentive for traders to take on new commitments and they remained onlookers. They awaited developments over the week-end with eyes focused on Washington, especially with respect to the utility and tax situation.

Steel Shares Finish Strong.

Some of the leading steel shares were among the stronger issues in the market. United States Steel opened ⅛ point lower but improved in the final hour to show a gain of 1 point. Bethlehem was up 1¼ and Youngstown improved 1⅝, while Republic gained a fraction. News from the steel centers was no worse than expected, so there was no real cause for liquidation.

Among other issues which recorded gains were American Telephone, up 1⅝; Westinghouse, up ⅞, and Anaconda, up 1⅛.

Public utility shares were fairly active in relation to the total turnover, but prices in this section showed little change from Friday's close. Railroad shares were inactive. Some of the oil issues were firm in moderate trading.

Non-ferrous metals rallied on firmness in copper metal abroad. The automobile division was dull, but prices steadied.

Profit taking came into several of yesterday's wide gainers, but was insufficient to cause more than a small decline.

Stocks Higher on Week.

The administration's more conciliatory attitude toward business brought a recovery into stocks this week after the industrial average made a 2 year low on Monday.

Individual issues recorded gains ranging to more than 12 points, while the main body of stocks was up 1 to more than 3 points. Trading failed to pick up substantially on the improvement and total sales for the five day week aggregated 6,742,916 shares, compared with 6,248,030 shares in the preceding five day week.

The week's advance, which culminated in an irregular trend in dull trading today, brought the "averages" up generally to around the Nov. 1 levels, erasing most of the recession of the previous week.

A total of 771 issues showed gains for the week, while 216 declined and 96 were unchanged. In the preceding week 110 issues advanced, while 914 declined and 78 were unchanged.

START OF TVA LEGALITY TEST DUE TOMORROW

18 Utilities Challenge Constitutionality.

see Valley authority act, or of the claims made in the pronouncements and program of the authority, apart from the questions we have discussed in relation to the particular provisions of the contract of Jan. 4, 1934, affecting the Alabama Power company." This contract, provided for the purchase by the authority of transmission lines from the Alabama company in the Muscle shoals area and for an interchange of power.

Some of Main Charges.

The bill of complaint of the 18 power companies charges among other things that:

Execution of the TVA program will inevitably destroy all or a substantial part of the business and property of each of the power companies.

The purpose of the TVA program is to drive the companies out of business by unfair competition subsidized by the government and to set up a yardstick of rates that has no relation to the actual cost of operation.

That the so-called TVA yardstick is dishonest, unfair, unreasonable, and confiscatory as a measure of service, and excludes necessary operating expenses which TVA either ignores or recoups from state and federal taxpayers instead of from rates.

Offers Arbitrary Rates.

That TVA has solicited large industrial customers of the power companies, and for the purpose of detaching such customers has offered to supply electricity for industrial purposes at arbitrary, noncompensatory, confiscatory, and discriminatory rates.

That TVA is conspiring with Harold L. Ickes, public works administrator, to carry on a systematic campaign to coerce and intimidate utility companies in the TVA area to sell their distribution systems and transmission lines either to TVA or to municipalities at prices arbitrarily fixed by TVA far below the fair value of the property.

FIND AMERICANS OF MIDDLE CLASS SEEK OWN HOMES

New York, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Four out of every five "middle class" Americans have the urge to own their own homes, the magazine "Architectural Forum" said today in publishing the results of a nationwide survey in its November issue.

The magazine said the chief obstacle to ownership is that "the prospect thinks he cannot afford the kind of a home he wants." This feeling, it said, is caused by the "widespread ignorance of the relatively new phenomenon—the 20 year amortization mortgage."

"In capitalizing on this manifest desire for the feeling of ownership," the magazine continued, "the biggest task to be done is to translate the total price into the monthly price in the consumers' mind. It is probable that a large number of these people felt they could never afford anything with a $5,000 price tag, and were never told into what small monthly payments this sum could be split by the 20 year amortized mortgage.

"A potent phrase to reiterate now is—pay for it just like rent."

LIFT TAX BURDEN, MANUFACTURERS URGE CONGRESS

Hit Laws Preventing Free Flow of Capital.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Congress tonight was urged by the manufacturing industry to halt the present business recession and restore confidence to business by immediate relaxing of tax handicaps and shelving plans for further restrictions on industry.

William B. Warner.

William B. Warner, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, said in an open letter to all members of congress that the connection between the present business recession and the effect of laws which hamper the free flow of capital through private enterprise become "plainer every day."

Urges Tax Changes.

"It is fortunate that congress is about to convene," Mr. Warner said, "for it is within its power to apply a remedy at once. It can act immediately upon the tax situation."

In addition to the proposal that immediate steps be taken to aid business, Mr. Warner urged that the treasury and revenue committee of both the senate and house hear and study facts of business experience to show the operating effect of the present "awkward, ambiguous, and frequently destructive" tax structure. He proposed, however, that immediate action not be deferred pending the outcome of such inquiries.

Points to Recent Survey.

He emphasized the necessity of confidence to permit business to take up slack in production and employment, and cited a survey just completed of manufacturers in all lines of industry throughout the country as revealing the situation now faced by business.

"While 59.5 per cent of those replying to our inquiry expected the same or better business during the next six months," he said, "40.5 per cent expected less business activity. In the first classification, only 14.5 per cent anticipated better business while 45 per cent foresaw business continuing at about the same level as in the last six months.

"As good as in the past is not enough. We must go forward to attain our goal of reëmployment and the constantly rising standards of living which all seek."

Suggests Five Remedies.

The letter outlines five specific immediate remedies. These were:

1. Amendment of the undistributed net income tax to provide that all money spent by corporations for improvements, expansions, and replacements of machinery and plant facilities be relieved from the penalties of the tax and thus stimulate expenditures to bring about production, service, and greater employment. This amendment would be effective for the present year.

2. Repeal of the capital stock and excess profits taxes to eliminate discriminations against corporations with widely fluctuating earnings.

3. Modification of the capital gains tax to provide that losses on what is owned can be fully offset against gains.

Would Call Out Capital.

4. The calling of "discouraged capital" into active service by reducing the present maximum individual surtax rates by a reasonable percentage.

5. Assurance "that new uncertainties involving drastic regulation will not be legislated" upon industry.

"Every circumstance of this hour is calling to the congress to make this, first of all, a tax corrective session," Mr. Warner said in conclusion.

Truckers Ask to Intervene in Rail Freight Boost Plea

Washington, D. C., Nov. 13.—(AP)—The American Trucking association, Inc., asked the interstate commerce commission today for authority to intervene in the petition of class 1 railroads for an increase in freight charges and fares. Its petition did not disclose whether it would oppose or indorse the carriers' plea for a 15 per cent increase in freight rates.

British and Netherlands Moneys Advance on Dollar

The British pound and Netherlands guilder advanced in value against the American dollar yesterday, but other foreign currencies showed little change. The pound closed at $4.98½, up ¼ of a cent. Guilders rose 0.03 of a cent. The French franc closed unchanged at 3.385 cents.

Exchange Suspends Trade in Sutherland Paper Stock

The common stock of the Sutherland Paper company will be suspended from trading on the Chicago Stock exchange tomorrow in accordance with an order by the Securities and Exchange commission. The company requested the action several weeks ago.

Commodities Turn Irregular After Rally Earlier in Week

Commodity prices closed irregular yesterday after making substantial recovery earlier last week from the low levels reached in the sharp recession of the preceding week. Futures quotations, especially in some metals, showed the largest improvement last week. The Dow-Jones futures index closed at 54.06, up 1.46 for the six day period despite a loss of 0.55 yesterday. Cash prices made little progress except in a few cases.

Metal markets closed the week with prices firm for both cash metals and futures contracts.

Hint Advance in Copper.

Demand for domestic copper at 11 cents a pound was so good that officials of custom smelters said they might raise their price to the 12 cent level still being charged by producers.

Copper futures advanced 0.15 to 0.21 cent a pound yesterday. Small transactions were made in copper for export at 10.58 cents a pound, compared with a price range Friday of 10.58 to 10.67 cents a pound.

Demand for cash lead also improved during the week and was especially strong yesterday, but prices were unchanged. Lead futures were unchanged to 0.02 cent higher yesterday.

Hide futures closed irregular yesterday, 0.04 cent a pound higher to 0.02 cent lower. Cash prices were unchanged all week following the sharp break during the preceding week when trading was renewed after a lapse of three months.

Rubber Futures Ease.

Rubber futures dipped 0.31 to 0.35 cent a pound yesterday in fairly active trading. Cottonseed oil lost 0.10 to 0.11 cent a pound. Coffee futures, however, advanced moderately on trade buying, which represented mainly hedge lifting against sales of actuals.

Sugar futures were unchanged to a shade lower. Cocoa finished the day with losses of 0.04 to 0.07 cent a pound.

Staples which showed gains for the week in futures trading included wheat, oats, rye, soy beans, lard, cotton, butter, cocoa, cottonseed oil, coffee, rubber, hides, silk, lard, tin, copper, and zinc. Eggs and corn were lower, and sugar was about unchanged. Among the cash commodities showing advances were export copper, tin, and rubber.

COTTON LOWER; LESS CONSUMED THAN YEAR AGO

Prices Recede Mildly in Chief Markets.

Cotton futures declined moderately in leading American markets yesterday. The recession amounted to 0.10 to 0.13 of a cent a pound in New York, and 0.06 to 0.10 cent in Chicago, and 0.08 to 0.11 cent in New Orleans.

American markets opened lower following a decline in the Liverpool market. Trading was quiet during the short pre-holiday session and final quotations in most instances were at or only a shade above lowest levels of the day.

Cotton Consumption Lower.

The United States census report, issued early in the day, placed October cotton consumption at 526,464 bales. In the same month last year, 651,086 bales were consumed. Cotton held in public storage and at compresses at the end of the month totaled 9,758,419 bales, against 8,034,194 bales on the same date a year ago. Exports during the month were 798,921 bales, compared with 861,016 bales in October, 1936.

Middling cotton for immediate delivery sold at 8.05 cents a pound in New Orleans, or 0.05 cent below the previous close, and at 8 cents a pound in New York, down 0.13 cent. The price was 7.70 cents in Galveston and 7.75 cents in Houston.

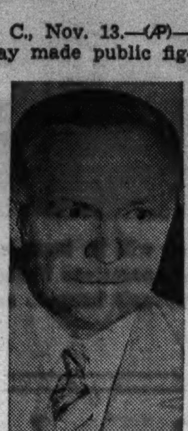
CLOSED ILLINOIS BANKS REPAY 71% TO DEPOSITORS

Return of 12 More Million Is Expected.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 13.—(AP)—The treasury today made public figures showing depositors in 191 Illinois banks which were in receivership prior to the banking holiday, March 6, 1933, or closed immediately afterward, have been repaid $106,908,599, or an average of 71.29 per cent of their deposits.



J. F. T. O'Connor.

J. F. T. O'Connor, controler of the currency, said the receivers of 122 banks still in receivership estimated that there will be additional recoveries totaling $12,353,264, so that the ultimate recovery is set at 80 per cent or more.

196 in Receivership.

O'Connor's report said 125 national banks in Illinois were in receivership prior to the banking holiday. After the 10 day holiday 71 banks were added, making 196 national bank receiverships the controler's office has handled. Five banks were restored to solvency, leaving 191 receiverships with deposits at the time of failure amounting to $149,964,673.

The report said that in the four and one-half years since the holiday, 69 of the receiverships with total deposits of $21,543,686 have been "completely liquidated." Repayments in these 69 totaled $17,081,354, representing an average payoff of 79.29 per cent.

The report showed the 122 banks still in receivership had total deposits of $128,420,987 at the time of failure. The depositors had been repaid $89,827,245 as of Sept. 30, "an average percentage of deposits paid off including offsets allowed and payments in cash in connection with the redemption of collateral of 69.9 per cent."

15 Will Pay in Full.

O'Connor said the receivers have estimated that 15 of the 122 in receivership will return 100 per cent or more to their depositors. He estimated the cost of liquidation has been less than seven per cent on the money collected by the receivers, including administrative costs and legal fees.

Since the banking holiday, the Reconstruction Finance corporation has loaned 139 of the Illinois banks a total of $28,853,137. On September 30 last, 14 of them owed the RFC $895,655, the remainder having been repaid.

WALWORTH CO. TO VOTE NOV. 23 ON STOCK PLAN

New York, Nov. 13.—[Special.]—Stockholders of the Walworth company will meet on Nov. 23 to authorize payment of a dividend partly in cash and partly in new 6 per cent preferred stock, it was announced today.

The company estimated earnings for the year at more than $1 a share, explaining that those for the first ten months were almost at that level. It announced a plan to declare a dividend payable at the option of the shareholder either as 30 cents a common share in preferred stock or 25 cents in cash. Later, according to the plan, a dividend of 70 cents, all in preferred stock, would be paid.

Business Bits

John W. Boatwright will be promoted from analyst to manager of the sales research department of Standard Oil Company of Indiana effective tomorrow, the company announced yesterday. He succeeds Jervis J. Babb, who resigned.

Floyd W. Larson, executive secretary of the Minneapolis chapter of the American Institute of Banking, has been appointed assistant secretary of the institute, and Prof. William A. Irwin, head of the economics department of Washburn college, Topeka, Kas., has been made assistant educational director of the institute.

Mrs. Lorraine L. Blair, founder of the Women's Finance Forum of Chicago, will address members of the Chicago Financial Advertisers at the Hotel Sherman Nov. 17 on "Women Control the Purse Strings."

William J. Klibanow, president of the real estate and investment firm bearing his name, has been elected a director of the Central National bank in Chicago.

B. J. Schwoeffermann, president of the Citizens National bank, Chicago Heights, will be speaker at a meeting of the Association of Chicago Bank Women on Nov. 18 on "Security at Retirement Age."

Howard H. Zorn, Springfield, Ill., former president of the Illinois Pharmaceutical association and representing the Illinois Fair Trade association, will discuss "The Economic Advantages of Fair Trade in the Drug Industry" on Tuesday, Nov. 16, at the Hotel La Salle before the Illinois Manufacturers' Costs association. Q. Forrest Walker of R. H. Macy & Co., Inc., New York, will speak on "The Case Against the Fair Trade Laws."

Dr. Virgil Jordan, president of the National Industrial Conference board, will discuss "The Business Outlook" at a luncheon meeting of the Chicago Association of Commerce on Nov. 17 at the Palmer house.

BREWER VOTES EXTRA DIVIDEND OF $4 A SHARE

Anheuser-Busch Pays $8 This Year.

An extra dividend of $4 a share on the 180,000 shares of capital stock was voted yesterday by directors of Anheuser-Busch. It is payable Dec. 1 to holders of record Nov. 18.

This makes $8 per share paid or declared so far this year. The company disbursed $12 a share last year, including a special year end dividend of $5.

An extra dividend of 20 cents and the regular quarterly payment of 15 cents were declared by the Cook Paint and Varnish company on the common stock.

Declares Initial Dividend.

The Continental Can company voted an initial quarterly dividend of $1.12½ on the new $4.50 cumulative preferred stock.

The National Oats company will pay a dividend of 50 cents on its capital stock. On Sept. 1 a dividend of 25 cents was paid.

The Mutual Telephone company, Honolulu, declared a dividend of 12 cents, bringing payments this year to $1 a share, compared with $1.30 in 1936.

Dividends declared yesterday, with rate, period, and payment and record dates, follow:

EGG FUTURES PRICES DIP ON SUPPLY REPORT

Egg futures tumbled ⅝ to ¾ cent a dozen on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday in heavy selling induced by the government report late Friday showing larger reserve supplies of eggs than on the same date a year ago.

Offerings were particularly heavy during the first hour. After opening ⅜ to ½ cent a dozen lower, prices at one stage of trading were down about a cent a dozen. They reacted in the last hour on news that current withdrawals were large at leading market centers.

Trading involved 360 carlots, equivalent to 4,320,000 dozens, largest volume since Oct. 28. Closing prices were 19⅞ cents a dozen for November contracts, 20 cents for December contracts, and 19¾ cents for January contracts. In the cash market, fresh eggs were unchanged, but refrigerator eggs declined ½ cents a dozen.

December Crude Oil Needs 3,491,000 Barrels Daily

Washington, D. C., Nov. 13.—(AP)—The bureau of mines estimated today that December daily production of 3,491,000 barrels of oil would be needed to meet market demands.

MOTORS—TRAFIC—HIGHWAYS

Trafic Lanes Staggered at Intersection

Here, where the four lane Lincoln highway (U. S. 30) crosses the four lane U. S. 41, just east of Dyer, Ind., the pavement has been widened to six lanes (60 feet) with the slab apportioned to fit requirements. Trafic leaving the intersection in all four directions is given two lanes. Trafic approaching the intersection is given four lanes, one for turning left, one for turning right, and two for proceeding straight.

VOICE OF TRAFIC

HE LOST HIS SON.

Belvidere, Ill., Nov. 3.—I have noticed your graphic portrayal of driving hazards and I appreciate your efforts to eliminate those hazards through publicity. It does seem to me, however, that you have overlooked the worst of these risks, that is the trenches in the dirt shoulder next to the edge of the highway slab.

I had a son, a fine fellow, who had an orchestra and had been playing an engagement a short distance this side of Freeport. In the early morning of Oct. 15 he was returning home to Belvidere and was killed and his body badly burned in the wreck of his car.

This is how it happened. He was coming up a hill about 11 miles east of Freeport. Witnesses who were with him said he was tuning his radio. He was approaching the top of a hill where there was a curve, not very abrupt. At the edge of the concrete a ditch had been washed out, probably eight inches wide and five or six inches deep.

It is evident that two of his wheels dropped into this ditch. The front wheel climbed back onto the concrete and started the car diagonally across the pavement. As the rear wheel came out of the ditch it was evident that a tire was ripped off the wheel.

The day following the accident I visited the scene and could reconstruct what happened as accurately as though I had been an eye witness. The marks on the pavement told the story. Also, the ditch had been filled that day with fresh gravel, nicely tamped in and not a wheel mark on it. The maintenance men knew what caused the accident.

The coroner's jury gave a verdict of death due to an accident caused by the fact that the driver was tuning a radio and driving at high speed. As for the speed, he was driving a 1929 Packard. I took exception to the verdict. Not one word had been said in the testimony about the condition of the road.

I believe we pay taxes enough to have our roads as safe as they can be made. Certainly we are entitled to road shoulders smooth and at the level of the slab. If the shoulder at the scene of this accident had been as it is now on the morning of Oct. 15 my son would still be living. S. F. BAKER.

SPECIAL PRIVILEGES.

Chicago, Nov. 11.—I find it no great wonder why some Chicago motorists get thoroughly disgusted with the way trafic laws are violated.

While the writer was waiting for the green light at the corner of Jackson and Wells street where "no left turn" signs are plainly visible, a car coming from the west pulled to the center of the intersection and a policeman held back cross trafic so this "gotta drag" motorist could turn left into Wells. The driver then pulled his car to the curb and parked under a "no parking" sign with a mounted policeman nearby.

It certainly burns up a law abiding citizen to see these big shots do whatever they please. E. J. G.

DANGEROUS INTERSECTION.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—Yesterday was not an unusual day at Halsted and 159th streets in Harvey, Ill. Two persons were killed and seven others injured in smashups. The Illinois highway department should have an engineer drive west in 159th and note that as the Halsted intersection is lighted it is very hard to see the stop sign. In the name of God, why doesn't some one act quickly? H. B. BOLDEN.

DRIVE OVER WOMAN'S HAT.

Chicago, Nov. 12.—I wonder what there is about driving that brings out the beast in man? Last Saturday I saw a hat blown off a young lady into Michigan avenue. At least two dozen motorists ran over it before a gentleman pedestrian recovered it for her. WILLIAM RADIK.

ILLEGAL PARKING.

Chicago, Nov. 11.—You will find plenty of "No Parking" signs on Rush street from Delaware to Cedar, and on State street from Cedar to Division, yet not only are cars parked solid along the curb but double parking is encountered frequently. Every night going north it is almost impossible to get by without rubbing fenders or wasting a lot of time because of these inconsiderate law breakers. DISGUSTED.

ENFORCE PRESENT LAWS.

Chicago, Sept. 27.—I wonder if it has ever dawned on the proponents of a drivers' license that such a law is hardly a panacea for our trafic problems. It certainly will in no way affect the staggering toll on grade crossings and miscalculations at street intersections, nor curtail the careless pedestrians—all of which account for a very large percentage of our casualties.

Should such a law be enacted, and it is no better enforced than our present motor laws, it will all have been in vain. Strict enforcement of existing laws, minor and otherwise, would prove as effective as anything new.

It is these very minor infractions that are responsible for many avoidable accidents. An officer issuing arrest slips for these supposedly insignificant violations indicates an alert one, and unquestionably is being a factor in saving many lives as a result of his devotion to duty. F. L.

NEEDLESS NOISE OFTEN IS CAUSE OF CAR CRASHES

City Ordinance Forbids Blatant Honking.

BY GEORGE W. FLEMING.

[General Secretary, Keep Chicago Safe Committee.]

A city ordinance and a state law both forbid unnecessary noises as a menace to trafic. One of the objectives of Mayor Kelly's Keep Chicago Safe Committee in its trafic safety campaign is the elimination of thoughtless drivers who use their horns unnecessarily and those who operate motor vehicles with mufflers wide open.

Such practices not only are unnecessary but also often lead to automobile crashes. The noise making driver is as dangerous as the one who weaves in and out of trafic.

Loud Tooting Rank Nuisance.

Unnecessary tooting of horns is a rank nuisance and is only indulged in by heedless and irresponsible drivers. This committee is opposed to the loud horn gentry, and is just as adamant in its efforts for the enforcement of the law against violaters of the anti-noise ordinance as it is in the prosecution of those who indulge in excessive speed or violate other trafic laws.

The city ordinance provides that horns or signalling devices shall be sounded only when necessary to give timely warning of the approach of a vehicle and shall not be sounded for any purpose other than as a warning of impending danger to persons driving other vehicles or to persons upon the street. It specifically provides that it shall be unlawful to operate a vehicle which makes unusually loud or unnecessary noises.

Code Provides for Mufflers.

Section 66 of the Illinois trafic code of the city deals with mufflers and warning devices as follows. "No motor vehicle shall be operated upon any street unless the same is provided with a muffler in efficient working condition, and the use of the cutout is forbidden." The Illinois state law also requires that a car be equipped with a horn capable of emitting sound under normal conditions from a distance of not less than 200 feet, but no horn or other warning device shall emit an unreasonable loud or harsh sound or a whistle.

ATTENDANCE AT AUTO SHOW SETS A NEW RECORD

Chicago's 38th annual automobile show was ended last night. The management announced that the eight days' attendance set a new all-time record of 345,000, as compared with a previous high of 318,000 last year.

The Chicago Automobile Trade association, which sponsored the event, reported that sales were satisfactory. Authoritative figures on the sales will be available in three weeks, when new car registrations for November are published.

DRIVERS LEARN NOT TO WARM UP ENGINE IN GARAGE

BY HAL FOUST.

Motorists are learning not to warm their engines in garages. The national safety council last week reported that the annual toll of accidental deaths from such conduct has dropped in four years from 609 to 352.

But the public still doesn't seem to appreciate other hazards from the odorless and colorless carbon monoxied gas exhausted by automobile engines. The subtle poison also strikes on the streets and highways, and it leaves no record of this toll.

A driver is cruising across country on a winter day. The pavement is dry and straight. There is little trafic. The visibility is perfect. No risk is evident, unless it is noticed that all of the car windows are closed. Carbon monoxide seeping into the automobile can't be detected by taste, sight or smell.

Driver Becomes Dizzy.

For no reason that he knows, the driver becomes dizzy, or has a dull headache, or his eyes may smart. He loses control of his car and there's a crash. He hits a pedestrian, or a ditch, or a bridge abutment.

In official statistics such accidents are not charged against carbon monoxide gas. They appear in records as due to the motorist leaving the roadway, or failing to heed a stop sign, or driving on the wrong side of the highway. The driver himself rarely knows the real cause of his mishap.

The national safety council, with its staf of trafic engineers and of statisticians, is authority for the surmise that such accidents are much more common than generally suspected. This applies to urban as well as rural crashes.

Dangerous for Second Car.

"Particularly in heavy trafic," reads a statement in a current issue of the council's publication Public Safety, "it is possible for a car to pick up a sufficient quantity of exhaust gas from a vehicle preceding it to result in a dangerous mixture in the second car."

A more common cause of asphyxiation on the streets and highways is due to gas leaking from a manifold or muffler and seeping into the automobile through floor boards. In any hour's drive in Chicago trafic, you'll hear at least one or two motors with exhaust leaks so bad that they are audible. And on a chilly day, you'll see lots of cars with all the windows closed.

Two Other Recommendations.

In addition to doing your engine warming outside of garages, two other recommendations are good for combating the seasonal carbon monoxide risk:

1. Have cars inspected regularly for leaky exhaust connections, loose or broken floor boards, defective floor coverings, and defective exhaust pipes and mufflers.

2. Stop driving and get plenty of fresh air at the first sign of headache, dizziness, smarting eyes, drowsiness, or nausea.

CALL ZONING CONFERENCE.

Secretary Ickes, chairman of the national resources committee, has called a nation-wide zoning conference to be held in Chicago, Dec. 13 and 14.

AMONG THE FOLKS IN HISTORY

National Realty Board Urges FHA Changes to Stimulate American Home Building

ASKS FOR LOWER INTEREST RATE, LARGER LOANS

Plan Includes Revival of "Title One."

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Drastic reorganization of the Federal Housing administration in an effort to bring about an immediate nation-wide stimulus to home building is urged by the National Association of Real Estate Boards in a program outlined yesterday by President Paul E. Stark of Madison, Wis.

Paul E. Stark.

Asserting that the present economic situation demands prompt action to boost residential construction, lagging despite federal pump priming of various sorts, the national realty group, which has its headquarters in Chicago, urges larger mortgages, lower interest rates, a revival of Title One of the FHA [covering modernization and repair work], and the establishment of a central mortgage bank to purchase sound mortgages.

Other Changes Suggested.

Other changes suggested include the lengthening of the period of amortization and the development of an approved list of operative home builders eligible for FHA insurance on their construction loans as well as for insurance of general mortgages covering their entire operations.

The latter change can be done under the regulations of FHA and is consistent with the present practice of FHA in having a list of approved mortgages, it was said.

"The average American family can make only a 10 per cent down payment for its home," said Stark. "Four-fifths of all homes are bought with 10 per cent down payments and therefore carry 90 per cent mortgages of one kind or another.

"We believe that on the whole it is better that first and second mortgages be consolidated in one instrument with one mortgage so that the borrower can have the benefit of a repayment plan over a long period of years which is adjusted to his needs.

Wants Title One Revived.

"The association, therefore, asks that the FHA be amended to permit insurance of mortgages up to 90 per cent of the value of land and structures on homes of $6,000 or under. Such mortgages would be insured under procedures already established by the FHA. At present loans are made up to 80 per cent of value.

"It also urges that Title One of the FHA be rewritten or revived so as to provide for insurance of bank loans made to operative home builders to assist in financing construction."

Title One of the FHA, which had mostly to do with modernization, repair, and rebuilding of homes, became inoperative by statute several months ago.

Changes Requested Previously.

President Stark said that the national realty group previously has requested the following changes in FHA:

1. Reduction of insurance premium as capital amount of the insured mortgage is reduced.
2. Provision that in case of a defaulted mortgage the mortgagee receives cash or its equivalent for his claim.
3. Provision for insurance of any sound large scale housing project without unworkable limitation on rentals.
4. Provision for releases from the general mortgage obligation on large scale projects for sales made.

Discussing the new United States Housing authority [which recently has taken over the housing activities of the Public Works administration] of which Nathan Straus is head, the realty association suggests changes in operation.

Stark Suggests Policy.

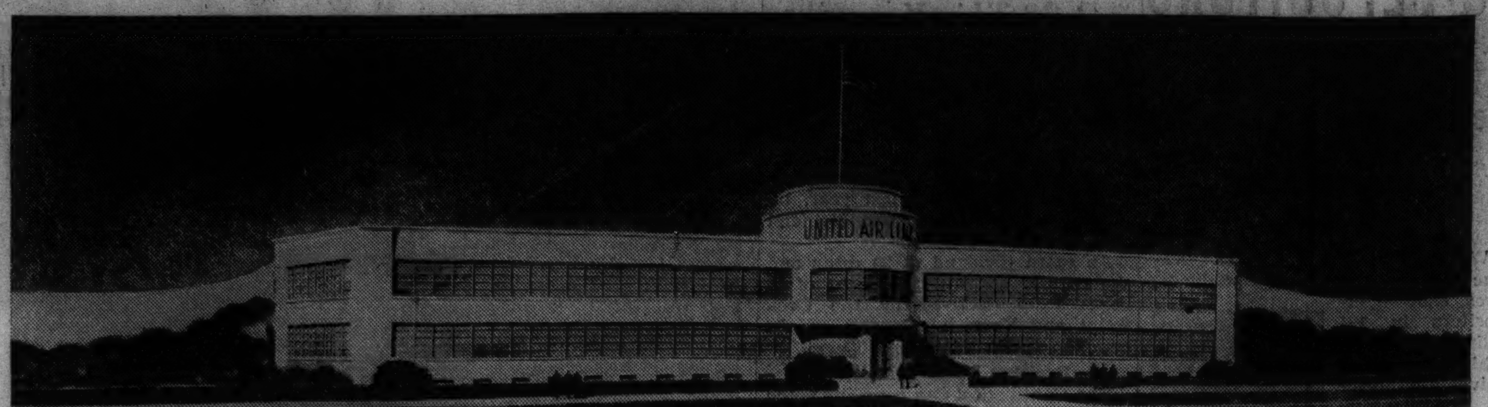
"Private capital could best be drawn into this field through encouragement by the national authority of privately capitalized companies operating under the supervision of the local housing authority," Stark said. "Such companies would be most effective in large scale operation and might be concerned both with properties erected and operated for rent and properties developed and built for sale."

The federal housing act of 1937 under which the United States Housing authority operates provides that it can advance to local housing authorities loans, annual grants or single capital grants. It may not build itself.

LEASE 79TH-RHODES CORNER.

The Joy Candy company, operators of a retail candy shop chain of twenty-four units, leased the corner store of the Rhodes theater building at the northeast corner of 79h and Rhodes, for five years on a flat rental basis. John McCarthy was broker.

United Air Lines Will Build $300,000 Office Building



Construction will start on this $300,000 office building for the United Air Lines at the northeast corner of Cicero avenue and West 60th street within thirty days, according to President W. A. Patterson. Designed by Albert Kahn, Inc., Detroit architect, it will be of steel and reinforced concrete with exterior walls of Indiana limestone and glass brick. Year round air conditioning will be installed. Completion is set for March 15. It will house the operations headquarters of the air lines. The site is opposite the company's hangars at the municipal airport.

REPORT GAIN IN SALES FOR TEN MONTHS

Despite the recession in the real estate market during midsummer and the stock market slump in October, McKey & Poague report an almost steady gain in business during the ten months of 1937, with August and September declines offset by an upturn in October.

According to Frank J. O'Brien, vice president, the October, 1936, sales totaled $110,000. In October, this year, the total was $256,000. The increase for the first ten months of this year over the corresponding period of last year, he said, amounted to $500,000 in gross sales.

The rental situation in the districts in which McKey & Poague operate continues to improve—from the landlord's viewpoint. With approximately 12,000 residential units under their supervision they report the following percentage of vacancy: South Shore, 2.93 per cent; Kenwood, 2.7 per cent; Hyde Park, 2.2 per cent; Woodlawn, 1.5 per cent; West Highland, 1.2 per cent; Chatham, 0.36 per cent.

"With increased occupancy collections are improving. Collections are in better shape at this period than they have been at any time during the last few years," O'Brien said.

LEASE MERRILL, 71ST CORNER FOR NEW RESTAURANT

One of the few remaining vacant corners in the East 71st street business district, the property at the southeast intersection of Merrill avenue, has been leased for fifteen years by Chicagoland Restaurants, Inc., from Bertha M. Turner at an undisclosed rental. Schiller W. Framhein of McKey & Poague represented the lessor.

The lessee is erecting a modern type one story building, designed by Loerner & Gerhardt, architects, which will be operated as a restaurant where no liquors will be sold. This is the first of a series of similar eating places contemplated by the lessees, it was said.

The initial unit will cost a reported $20,000 and will stand on a lot 125 by 125 feet. It will have fifty feet of frontage, on 71st and sixty feet on Merrill; the balance of the property will be used for customers' parking space.

Apex Smelting Company Buys West Side Plant

The Apex Smelting company yesterday purchased a group of industrial buildings on the south side of Taylor street, 381 feet west of Campbell avenue, occupying a site 246 by 134, from the Container corporation of America, for an indicated $58,500. The buyer, which has its plant at 2556 Fillmore street, just south of the property purchased, will remodel and occupy the former Container corporation buildings. This will double its present plant capacity, it was said. J. H. Van Vlissingen & Co. were brokers.

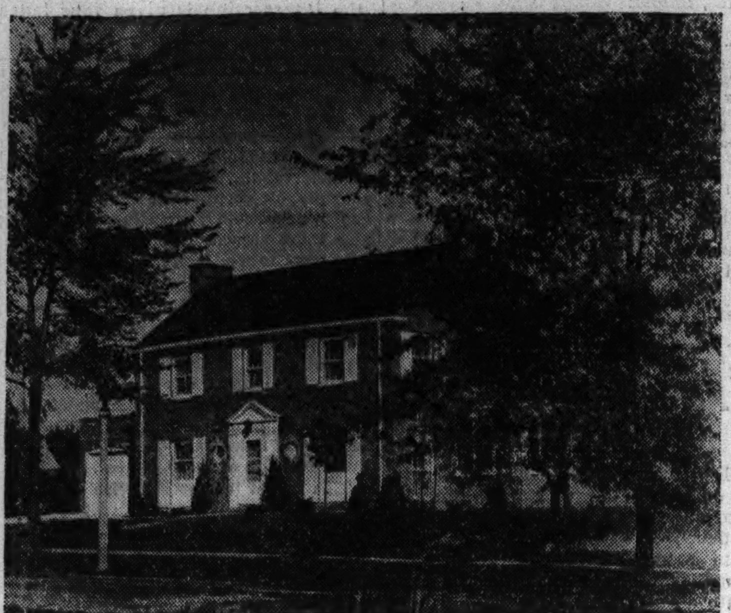
At the Realty Boards

The following nominating committee has been appointed for the Evanston-North Shore Real Estate board to name officers for 1938: Herbert L. Lucas, chairman; Jules F. Fisher, George J. Cyrus, H. L. McDaniel, and W. A. Sadler. The committee is expected to make its report at the regular business meeting to be held tomorrow at the Georgian hotel.

John S. Clark, Cook county assessor, will speak before the Oak Park Real Estate board tomorrow noon at the Oak Manor hotel on "How the Assessment of Intangibles Will Reduce Real Estate Taxes." George B. Waterstraat is chairman of the program committee.

Roger P. Minwegen, chairman of the educational committee of the North Side Real Estate board, announces the first of a series of lectures to be held on alternate Monday evenings at the New Lawrence hotel. Arthur Kruggel, president-elect of the Chicago Real Estate board, will be the principal speaker at the initial session tomorrow. His subject will be "Knowing Your Properties."

New Flossmoor Residence



Frank B. Marshall, vice president of Underwood & Underwood Illustrations Studio, built this eight room residence on Hutchison road, near McDonald lane, in the Flossmoor Park subdivision of Flossmoor, from plans by W. Vernon Pipher of that suburb. In addition to the conventional rooms the house has a card room on the first floor with bay window and book shelves. The basement area under the living room is arranged for a game room. The house is heated by gas. In order to have a formal garden in the rear the kitchen is in the front of the house. The living room overlooks a back terrace extending the entire width of the building. There is a two car attached garage on the north and a screened porch on the south. Exterior walls are of red face brick, cream woodwork, and shutters, and a black wood shingle roof.

Under Construction at Lake Forest

Randolph Bohrer, attorney at 33 North La Salle street, is building this stone residence on a wooded site at the southwest corner of Sheridan road and Northmoor road, in Lake Forest, Rissman & Hirschfeld are architects. C. A. Hemphill & Associates have the general contract. In addition to eight rooms and a two car attached garage there will be a large recreation room in the basement. The living room will be 1½ stories with exposed wood timber trusses. The exterior is in the English manor house style, of Wisconsin Lannon stone, with exposed hand hewn timber and stucco. The total investment in land and building is reported to be $40,000.

Merchandise Mart Has 2 New Furniture Leases

Two new furniture leases, aggregating 12,000 square feet of floor space in the Merchandise mart, were reported yesterday by A. E. Westphal, general manager. They are for the Ypsilanti Reed Furniture company and the Estey Manufacturing company. In addition leases were signed with the following: Hardware Wholesalers, Inc., Gund Manufacturing company, Tru-Test Marketing and Merchandising corporation, and the Easy Washing Machine company.

Start Work on Freight House in West Kinzie St.

Work has been started on a freight house and office building for the North Shore Motor Express Company, Inc., at 1512-24 West Kinzie street, from plans by Fox & Fox. C. A. Bloomaert is general contractor. The cost is reported to be $25,000. Edward P. Byrnes Jr. is president of the company. The company will move from its present quarters in the Chicago and Alton freight house on Dec. 1.

Contracts Awarded

Contracts awarded in Chicago during the week of Nov. 5 to 11, according to figures supplied by the F. W. Dodge corporation, totaled 30, with a combined cost of $1,286,775. For the corresponding week last year there were 43 contracts totaling $662,800. So far this year the total cost of contracts is $50,651,333, compared with $38,684,987 for the same period last year.

Yeast Concern Rents New North Damen Avenue Plant

The Wagner-Fagan Yeast corporation of Chicago has leased for ten years, with an option to purchase, the one story warehouse and office building recently erected by Frederick E. Hummel at 415-17 North Damen avenue. The Hummel company was builder. Frederick E. Hummel & Co. and E. N. Durlein & Co. were brokers.

Pepsodent Will Move Offices to Clearing

Work has just been started on an expansion and remodeling program by the Clearing Industrial District, Inc., for the Pepsodent company's Clearing plant which will cost a reported $100,000. The concern's general offices, now in the Palmolive building, will be moved to the laboratories and manufacturing plant at 6901 West 65th street, near the west end of the Clearing district.

All of the company's products sold in the United States are made there. The concern also has manufacturing plants in nine foreign countries, none of which is as large as the Chicago unit.

Most of the $100,000 expenditure will be used in the erection of a cafeteria building south of the present plant, and in rearranging office space, addition of new offices, and installation of air conditioning. The cafeteria unit, a one story structure 41x161 feet, also will contain private dining rooms and storerooms.

Work is scheduled for completion by Feb. 1. The Pepsodent executive staf is expected to move to Clearing one month later.

DU PAGE COUNTY CALLS FOR BIDS ON COURTHOUSE

Clarence V. Wagemann, county clerk of Du Page county, yesterday announced that bids for the proposed first unit of a new courthouse group of three sections at Wheaton will be received up to Dec. 7

According to R. Harold Zook, architect, the new building, to cost about $75,000, will be of stone and will house the recorder's office, map department, county surveyor, superintendent of schools, highway department, veterinary department, and offices of county commissioners. It is expected work will be started about the middle of December, with completion set for June. The building will be of Georgian design.

Originally it was hoped to secure federal cash to finance the project. Recently it was announced that it had been decided to abandon any plan to secure federal aid, owing to red tape and long delays in negtiations with Washington and to use county funds already on hand.

Kling Brothers Will Move Offices to Price Building

With the renewal of the lease of the ground floor and the sixth, seventh and eighth floors of the Price building, 319 West Van Buran street, by he Ed V. Price company, clothing manufacturers, Aldis & Co., agents, report that a $35,000 modernization program is planned. It also was announced that the executive offices and sales rooms of Kling Brothers & Co., parent organization of the Price company, will be moved from 2296 West Wabansia avenue to the Price building, which is reported to be 100 per cent occupied.

New French Cafe for North Side

The three story building at 101 East Walton place has been leased by Gustav Leduc from the Carey estate and will be entirely remodeled for use by a French restaurant to be known as the Ile de France. Plans by Herbert B. Beidler, architect, call for complete air conditioning. Hogan & Farwell, agents for the estate, negotiated the lease.

First of Ten Suburban Homes

The above house is the first completed in a proposed ten house building program of Strom, Storey & Reitzel, Inc., of Oak Park, in Scarsdale subdivision, Arlington Heights. The owner is A. S. Sturm of Antioch. Located at 447 Banbury road, the house has six rooms, with attached garage, and wood burning fireplaces in living and recreation rooms. It has a gas fired winter air conditioning system and is insulated. The cost of house and lot is reported to have been $12,500. Work on nine more homes is scheduled to start this month, it was reported. The houses are being built by the A. S. Hedstrom Construction company of Chicago.

DOUGHNUT FIRM LEASES FLOOR ON HALSTED STREET

What is said to be the largest doughnut plant in the middle west and the second largest in the United States will be installed at 1929-33 South Halsted street by the Mayflower Doughnut corporation, a subsidiary of the Doughnut Corporation of America. According to the commercial leasing department of Baird & Warner, Inc., the doughnut concern leased the entire sixth floor.

With leases recently made to Wheelco Instrument company, Continental X-ray, and the Mayflower corporation, the building, containing 46,900 square feet of rentable space, is 100 per cent occupied.

Lease Activity Reported for the Insurance Center

More than 10,000 square feet of office space has been rented in the Insurance Center building, 330 South Wells, during the last sixty days, according to Arthur Rubloff & Co., agents. The Gillette Publishing company, formerly at 400 West Madison street, leased 3,000 square feet for five years. Other leases were closed with the Highway Mutual Casualty company, F. & S. Sales Co., Terman Stores corporation, Medical Collection company, K. L. Pearce company, Vedra & Vedra, and the Sterling Casualty Insurance company.

Complete Clearing Plant of Pellar Baking Company

The Pellar Baking company will move into a new one story factory constructed for it by the Clearing Industrial District, Inc., at 5101 West 65th street, constructed at a reported cost of $100,000. Containing 40,000 square feet of floor space, the building is completely air conditioned. Fred C. Foltz was architect.

NORTH MICHIGAN AVENUE LEASE.

George Sprafka, golf professional, has leased the entire third floor of 430 North Michigan avenue for a golf school, through Arthur Rubloff & Co.

NEW BUILDINGS IN SUBURBS TOP CHICAGO TOTAL

Construction of Homes Lowest Since January.

Despite a decided slackening in home building in Chicago suburbs during October, construction totals, including all types of building, were higher than during September and also above those of October last year. In addition, building of all kinds in the 61 suburbs listed in the monthly survey compiled by the Greenebaum Sons Investment company exceeded the October total for Chicago itself.

The suburban October total for all classes of building was $3,239,932. This compares with $2,301,638 in October, last year, and $2,463,836 in September, 1937. This is a gain of 41 per cent over the same month last year and 31 per cent above September, this year.

Surpasses City Total.

The suburban October total of $3,239,932 compares with $1,386,980 of building permits issued in Chicago during the same month. The Chicago total declined from a September total of $2,664,445.

Home building dropped to the lowest level in number of permits since last February and fell in dollar value to the smallest total since January. There were 135 permits issued last month for new homes costing $1,123,716. This compares with 211 permits totaling $1,424,392 in September, and 158 permits for homes costing $1,294,865 in October last year.

Totals for the ten months of this year continue to show sizeable gains in dollar value in both home building and in all types of construction. The ten months' total for home building this year was $16,127,992, compared with $9,796,130 for the same period last year.

Total Building Rises This Year.

The ten months' total of all types of construction this year is $30,748,560, against $21,967,825 for the same period last year, and $12,314,411 for ten months of 1935.

Analysis of October home building figures discloses a tendency toward higher priced residences than in September. Following are the cost of some of the suburban homes: Two in Berwyn will cost $20,550; one in Chicago Heights costs $18,500; Evanston, three, $30,500; Flossmoor, one, $12,000.

In Glen Ellyn one house is costing $13,265; in Glenview five are costing $100,000; Highland Park, three, $35,540; Hinsdale, three, $34,345; La Grange Park, two, $27,950; Maywood, two, $16,000; Niles Center, one, $15,550; Oak Park, three, $44,680; Park Ridge, two, $25,675; River Forest, two, $30,400; Riverside, three, $33,530; Villa Park, two, $25,675; River Forest, two, $30,400.

Building in Other Suburbs.

One new house in Wheaton will cost $12,000; four in Wilmette are valued at $66,910; and in Winnetka two will cost $60,000. Markham reports a total of six homes, of which three costing $24,800 represent higher priced units in a new building program.

One of the largest projects of the month is the $600,000 dormitory for Northwestern university in Evanston. Another large permit was issued in Chicago Heights by W. H. Johnston, building inspector, for a $205,000 building for the Gold Seal Asphalt Roofing company.

NEW RELIGIOUS JOURNAL MAKES ITS APPEARANCE

Lutherans Publish The Cresset.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

The United States mails yesterday carried a new kind of religious journal to several thousand of its original subscribers. The magazine, put up in the popular digest format, is to be published monthly under the title, "The Cresset," by leaders of the Walther league of the Evangelical Lutheran Missouri synod at 6438 Eggleston avenue. The editor is the Rev. Dr. Otto P. Kretzmann, executive secretary of the league.

Dr. Kretzmann.

Among other unique features described by its sponsors is the name of the journal. The word "cresset" is an old English word, drawn from Norman-French sources, meaning "torch." The interest cited in the name arises from the fact that the journal's source is one of the strongest German traditions in America, and that the adoption of such a name now acknowledges the acceptance of a newer American tradition with its inevitable effect upon the future of the former German synod.

City Interests Stressed.

The Cresset, with its emphasis on arts and literature, leaders state, also acknowledges a transition over the period of ninety years of the synod's existence from rural to city interest in its religious expression. The Missouri synod, beginning as a country church for immigrants is now a strong city church and now recorded as the most rapidly growing Protestant church in Chicago.

The Rev. Adelbert R. Kretzmann, pastor of St. Luke's church, Greenview and Belmont avenues, said that The Cresset cannot be regarded an official publication of the Missouri synod, or even representative of all American Lutheranism as such.

"The Cresset is being published simply because there is nothing else like it in religious journalism," said the Rev. Mr. Kretzmann. "Church programs, reports of actions of church boards or doings of denominational leaders are absent from Cresset pages.

Emphasizes Christian Ideal.

"But the Cresset does emphasize a Christian ideal which, while not the special property of Lutheranism, is stressed in Lutheran teaching; that all human action, the love of beauty, and human thought expressed by the masters must be considered in the light of the nearness of God.

"A major tragedy of the church today is the invidious tendency to divide life into departments, with false distinctions made between the Christian as a member of his communion, and the Christian as a citizen.

Dr. Kretzmann, editor of The Cresset, said this is the first religious journal to adopt completely an editorial policy laid down by St. Paul:

"Whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just . . . are pure . . . are lovely . . . of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things."

Mrs. Jesse M. Bader, chairman of the women's committee of the national conference of Jews and Christians, and wife of Dr. Jesse M. Bader, an executive secretary of the Federal Council of Churches and national chairman of the Preaching mission, will speak tomorrow at the monthly luncheon meeting of the Chicago Round Table in the Carson Pirie Scott tea room on "Jews and Christians in a Democracy."

A Chicago chapter of the Orthodox-Anglican fellowship, designed to bring about closer working relations between the eastern Orthodox and Episcopal churches was organized last week. The Rev. Edward S. White, rector of the Episcopal Church of the Redeemer, Hyde Park, was appointed president.

Marking the conclusion of the "Schools in Christian Living" held last week in ten Chicago communities, there will be an inter-denominational massmeeting at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the Chicago temple, 33 North Clark street. The speakers will be Prof. Justin W. Nixon of Colgate-Rochester university; Dr. T. Z. Koo of China, and Prof. W. C. Bower, head of the department of religious education at the University of Chicago.

Sunday School Teachers to Open Institute Friday

The Christmas institute of the Chicago Graded union of Sunday School Teachers will open at 11:30 o'clock Friday morning with an exhibit in Temple hall, the Capitol building, State and Randolph streets. The devotional service for the afternoon [illegible] led by Mrs. D. M. Somerville, [illegible]est Adams street, and the Rev. [illegible]fred Diman, pastor of the First Baptist church of Elmhurst, will preach on "The Birthday of Hope."

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

If they win, we hope they don't come back with a too overwhelming Oxford accent, but Our Town congratulates William McNeill, 5745 Blackstone avenue, and Floyd R. Stauffer, 5455 Ellis avenue, who are the two Chicago men among the five students named at the University of Chicago as candidates before the Illinois committee on Rhodes scholarships. McNeill is editor of the Daily Maroon and Stauffer, a graduate student in physiological chemistry, was last year's winner of the Big Ten conference medal for his work on the swimming team.

The two Illinois candidates will be selected in December and then will appear before the regional committee representing Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana, Kentucky, Michigan, and Ohio. The regional committee will name four winners from among the twelve state candidates.

The Grand Crossing-Chatham Chamber of Commerce will sponsor the opening of the Warner Brothers' Rhodes theater, 79th street and Rhodes avenue, on Friday. Frank Dooley is chairman, assisted by George Thompson and Clarence Lambesis. Miss Eleanor Root, the 8th Ward Charter Jubilee beauty queen, will assist Toby Wing and Lois Wilson, movie stars, in the unveiling of movie star plaques in the theater lobby.

Four south and southwest side students at the University of Chicago law school were among the seven from Chicago and vicinity who won places as council members in the school's bar association in recent elections. In the senior division John Lynch of Crown Point and Sheldon Klein, 10951 Vernon avenue, were named. Charles Dunbar, 1226 East 79th street, a junior, and David Scheffer, 4926 Blackstone avenue, a freshman, were the others.

Final south side winner at the Midway institution is Charles B. Baker, 2131 West 110th street, who was awarded a Raymond scholarship to the University of Chicago law school. Three Raymond scholarships, established by Mrs. Anna Nelson as a memorial to her late husband, are awarded annually.

New president of the journalism teachers' division of the Illinois High School Press association is Miss Loudene Anderson of Thornton Town-Township High school of Harvey.

An example of the fact that there is still opportunity for an ambitious young man to work his way up in the army service without going to West Point is Private William C. Rakestraw of East Chicago, who has been appointed a flying cadet and who will receive schooling at Kelly field, Tex., with the prospect of a commission as lieutenant in the flying corps. Rakestraw enlisted last spring and was assigned to Selfridge field, Mich.

Central Y. M. C. A. college, 19 South La Salle street, conferred honors on four south and southwest siders last week. Honor scholarships, based on the students' academic record for his last thirty semester hours of credit, were awarded to Dale McDowell, 11227 South Spaulding avenue, senior who received a full scholarship, and Raymond Devault, 7000 East End avenue, a junior who received a half scholarship in the school of arts and sciences.

Vice President and secretary-treasurer, respectively, of the Central Fellowship fraternity, new social group, are Walter Ackerman, 1834 West 107th place, and Hoyt Sauer, 10310 South Seeley avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Abbott, 7029 Yale avenue, who were married fifty years ago tomorrow, will celebrate their golden anniversary with open house at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon. They were married in 1887 in Wichita, Kas., and moved to Englewood three years later. Both Mr. and Mrs. Abbott have been active in Masonic circles. They have two daughters, Mrs. F. J. Kucera of Chicago and Mrs. L. G. Street of Louisville, and one son, Llew Abbott Jr.

Arthur G. Erdmann, immediate past president of the Illinois Building and Loan league, was given a testimonial banquet Wednesday evening at the Hotel Sherman. In addition to his leadership in the building and loan field, Mr. Erdmann serves on the board of the Federal Home Loan Bank of Chicago, committees of the Chicago Mortgage Bankers' association and in various civic organizations.

Dalies Frantz, son of Mrs. Amalia Frantz, 5149 Cornell avenue, will appear Tuesday evening at Orchestra hall as the second soloist on the Adult Education council's musical arts series. Mr. Frantz, pianist, was graduated from the University of Michigan in 1930.

German-Austrian Club to Dance Next Saturday

The Southtown German Austrian club of the 19th ward will hold its annual dance and card party at 8 o'clock Saturday night in the South Side Masonic temple, 64th and Green streets. Gilbert F. Blaul, president of the group, has appointed the following on the arrangements committee: Harry O. Fitch, chairman; Emmett Fissinger, Harry C. Brandenburg, John Bollinger, John Paeth, Albert Leiser, Gerhard Koch Jr., Raymond Holland, Robert Daubert, W. A. Minogue, Burton A. Scheidt, Joseph Meyers, A. C. Viering, Louis Hanson, and John Wolf.

When Queens Match Wits, One Must Die

In the game of Britain's destiny during the latter part of the 16th century two queens meant a full house. It was in the cards that one must die. Never were stakes so high. England's Elizabeth, of the royal poker face, dealt with great intrigue and imprisoned Mary, queen of Scotland. No feminine plea was of avail and the block was prepared. This dramatic and historic struggle furnishes the plot for Maxwell Anderson's "Mary of Scotland," which will be produced this evening and tomorrow evening by the Little Theater Players of the College of St. Francis in the school auditorium, 303 Taylor street, Joliet. Chief characters of the cast are (left to right): Miss Dorothy Anne Rigney as Elizabeth, Miss Olive Pommier in the role of Mary of Scotland, and Miss Blanche Marie Hagen as Mary Fleming, a lady-in-waiting.

BAZAR TO MARK 20TH BIRTHDAY OF CHILD HAVEN

Protestant Home Will Get Proceeds.

In celebration of its 20th anniversary, the Protestant Child haven, 6323 South Yale avenue, will hold a bazar Tuesday and Wednesday in the Englewood Masonic temple, Marquette road and Wentworth avenue.

The home was established 20 years ago in the old Dr. William Weir home to care for 35 dependent children. Funds were obtained from private sources and the Juvenile court.

Heading the bazar committee will be Mrs. Charles Woodman, 6926 Lowe avenue, one of the founders of Oak Haven and a director of the home. She will be assisted by Mrs. Frank Specht, 2137 West 114th place, past president of the home and president of the Chicago Federated Charities, and Mrs. R. C. Planthaber, 7711 South Morgan street, president of the home.

Others Giving Aid.

Others on the committee will be Mrs. H. G. Hieronimus of the Liberal church, Mrs. Lovell L. Nelson of the Englewood Junior Woman's club, Mrs. William Peters of the Hamilton Park Woman's club, Mrs. J. F. Hoffman of the Englewood commandery, Mrs. A. R. Cook of Natal Star chapter 1936, Mrs. Everett Nieburger of the Beverly Hills Woman's club, Mrs. Joseph Newton of the Englewood Woman's club, Mrs. F. C. Lane of the North Side Service club, Mrs. Margaret Kennedy of the South Side Associate club, and Mrs. R. M. Reed of the Englewood Woman's club.

Others are Miss Sophia Rathje of the Mary and Martha club; Mrs. Jane Bonato, Mrs. Lillian Mukuis, Mrs. James Silhavey, and Harry Cole of the child haven, and Mrs. Sydney Creek of the Englewood Woman's club, Mrs. Jewel Fonda of the Phi Lambda Delta sorority, and Mrs. Catherine Creek of the Normal Park chapter of the sorority.

Community Fund Affiliate.

The Protestant Child haven is endorsed by the Council of Social Agencies and the Chamber of Commerce. It is affiliated with the Community fund and is governed by a board of directors. Ten thousand dollars is its annual budget.

AUBURN PARK LIONS RED CROSS DRIVE TO OPEN ON WEDNESDAY

The Auburn Park Lions' club will open its Red Cross drive at a meeting Wednesday in Greene's restaurant, 7919 South Halsted street, under the chairmanship of Myron I. Burtness, 8400 South Ashland avenue, committee head of the new Southwest Community unit of the Red Cross.

Myron I. Burtness.

The program for the afternoon will include a talk by Roger Holden, director of disaster relief of the American Red Cross, and three short motion pictures, "The Greatest Mother," "Red Cross to the Rescue," and "Behind the Flood Lines." Edward Williams, 8412 South Marshfield avenue, will entertain with popular and semi-classical piano-accordion selections.

Other members of the club who will serve on the Red Cross committee are Roy F. Healy, 8746 South Loomis street, accident prevention; E. J. Hanlon, 7741 South Green street, first aid; Michael Dwyer, 7914 South Halsted street, registration and information; Dr. L. F. Draper, 757 West 79th street, rescue; R. H. Burno, 1512 West 63d street, survey, and Harry R. Waxstein, 7209 South Stony Island avenue, transportation and communication.

Assumption Parish Society to Meet First Time Today

The St. Joseph fraternity, a recently organized unit of the Third Order of St. Francis in Assumption parish, 6001 South Marshfield avenue, will hold its first meeting this evening at the church. The Rev. Joseph Stuckel, pastor, and the Rev. Frederick Beck, O. F. M., will address the group. Meetings will be held regularly at 1 o'clock the second Sunday afternoon of each month.

27 TEACHERS ASK BOARD TO RECORD MARRIED NAMES

Group Lists 5 in High School Faculties.

Twenty-seven more of Chicago's public school teachers have fallen prey recently to Dan Cupid. This is apparent from requests to the board of education for changes in the official school records, which were granted.

Five high schools are represented in the new list of name changes. The former Aimee Deuter of Schurz High is now Aimee Rada. Josephine A. Lippenga of Phillips High has become Josephine Lenters. Rebecca Nitka of Tuley High is now Rebecca Glick. She who was Mary O'Brien of Kelly High is now Mary Prendergast, and Lottie Mae Swartz of Farragut High has changed her name to Schell.

Two in Burke Faculty.

Cupid skipped many of the elementary schools in his recent forays, but visited at least two twice. Of the Burke school faculty, Bernice D. New's surname is now Slutzky, and Alice L. Rees is now Alice Fisher.

Teachers of the Peck elementary school who recently made their marriages a part of the official records, with their given, maiden, and married names in that order are Anna Dooley Carey and Lillian Shannon Morris.

Three elementary school Evelyns are on the new list. They are Evelyn Chaloupka Rahn of Peirce, Evelyn Murphy Doherty of Irving Park, and Evelyn Schwartz Edidin of Brownell.

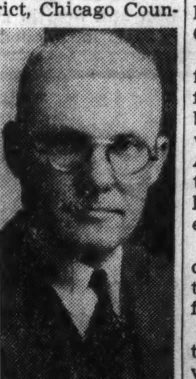
Others Change Names.

Other regularly assigned elementary teachers on the "newlywed" roster are Estelle Bihl Swift of Healy, Edna Bullock Kane of Monroe, Lucy Davis Redd of Douglas, Marie Morrisey Moore of Drake, Ellen Nicholas Hart of Shakespeare, Marion Phelan Penney of Sumner, Kathryn Ray Devereux of Trumbull, Olivia Ring Ward of Bright, and Margaret Scherwat Garitee of Goethe.

Teachers not regularly assigned who have changed their names on the records, with their surnames before and after marriage, are Ruth Horlick Neukom, Harriet Jacobsen Erickson, Cecilia Larkin Horan, Marjorie Lugge Kennedy, Catherine Mahoney Neidhart, and Helen Regan O'Connor.

SOUTHWEST DISTRICT OF BOY SCOUTS TO HOLD DINNER TOMORROW

The annual dinner and meeting of the Southwest district, Chicago Council of Boy Scouts, will be held tomorrow evening in the Hamilton park fieldhouse, 72d street and Normal boulevard, under the direction of Dr. W. F. Henderson, 9833 South Hamilton street, district chairman.



Dr. W. F. Henderson. [Rayhuff-Richter Photo.]

Featured on the program will be Dr. Allen D. Albert, sociologist and editorial writer. In addition there will be an election of officers and selections by the Armour Jubilee singers. Carle W. Handel, district Scout executive, will report on the year's activities and growth in membership.

Leaders in charge of the dinner and program are A. J. Clauter, 9730 South Damen avenue; William Collins, 7718 South Indiana avenue; Raymond S. Blunt, 733 West 64th street; W. A. Mrs. Kinnally Peers Down 90 Year Corridor

BY RITA FITZPATRICK.

Peace was thought of by millions of Americans last Thursday. Mrs. Cornelius F. Kinnally, 29 West Garfield boulevard, knew the meaning of the word because it was her 90th birthday.

Mrs. C. F. Kinnally.

When the whistles blew and the bells pealed and the hurrying crowds stopped in the streets, Mrs. Kinnally sat in her rocker looking out the window. No expression flickered on her face or movement touched her hands. There was nothing to say that time was, only a clock ticking on the dresser, or that time had been, except long shafts of memory.

Laura Burke Again.

She was Laura Burke again, riding a farm horse beside her tall, blacksmith father in Syracuse, N. Y. He was telling her tales of old Ireland in his rich brogue and quoting many "fine old sayings" for her to remember.

Now she was in the fields picking ripe strawberries with the neighboring farm boy, Cornelius Kinnally. The sun was slanting gleams in her blonde curls and Cornelius was looking at them. What a strapping lad he was, six feet two, and he walked with the easy swing of a woodsman.

Suddenly it was Chicago . . . and her widowed mother settling into a strange house on Taylor street with a brood of six. It was going to be lonesome without Cornelius. But no . . . he had followed her and took to the trains as an engineer.

That was the time he boarded at Mrs. O'Leary's house where they used to milk the cow every evening for oysetr stew. It was queer how the night of the great Chicago fire he had left the house early and as his train pulled out he saw great flames shooting up. "The old cow must have kicked the lamp over," he had joked to his fireman. And, yes, that's the way it had been.

Married After Fire.

After the fire they were married. Since the west district had burned, Cornelius came to the south side where her mother had moved.

It was August and she a bride in a white dress and tiny veil. Cornelius brought her blue flowers and took her to Father John Leyden at St. Anne's church. Then she became Mrs. Cornelius F. Kinnally and set up housekeeping in a little cottage at 29 West Garfield boulevard. The lake was only a few blocks away and it was a long walk to 29th street where you got a horse car to go downtown.

They lived in that house only seven years when Cornelius had it torn down and built a fine frame house with a ballroom for his girls. He was always one to live well. But it had been a job cleaning that house. There were eight rooms and, in time, eleven children. Four of them never grew up to use the bathroom. All the children and twelve grandchildren were baptized and went to school at St. Anne's.

Family Kept Together.

That was because Cornelius kept the family together. When the boys and girls began to marry he had moved the big frame house down to 60th street and Lafayette avenue and had built his third house at 29 West Garfield boulevard.

Forty thousand dollars he spent for a combination residence and four flat building. The architect, who had been a man from Germany, said it was the only one of its kind in America. How the people had flocked to visit it because it had electric light! And that was only twenty-eight years ago.

It was a good thing Cornelius had quit the railroads and had bought those coal yards. He had a fine head for business.

How frightened he had been the time of the race riot when a bullet whizzed by her head as she sat on the porch. He had wanted to sell the house then but the children were all happily settled in the flats.

A Big Day.

What was today again? O yes, Armistice day and her birthday. All the children, John, Daniel, Frank, Loretta, Margaret, and Sally, their children, and their children's children, eight of them would be there. It would be a big day.

It was just nineteen years ago that James, her only soldier son had come home sick from the war. He's gone now.

The whistles had stopped their blowing, and Mrs. Kinnally napped. There was no sound in the bedroom, except a small clock ticking on the dresser.

Vincentian Seminary Aids to Give Benefit Tuesday

The Chicago branch of the Vincentian Seminary auxiliary will give its annual card party Tuesday evening at the Morrison hotel. Proceeds will be used to assist boys studying for the priesthood. Miss Elsie Lohr, 2453 West Gunnison avenue, is chairman.

St. Leo Altar Society Will Conduct Card Party Friday

St. Leo Altar and Rosary society will give its annual fall card party Friday evening at Leo High school's auditorium, 79th and Peoria streets. Mrs. Ray Weimerskeich is chairman.

BOARD TO SPEND HALF MILLION ON IMPROVEMENTS

Share Is More Than Half of Total.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Public school housing on the south and southwest sides is to be improved before the end of the year by a half million dollars that the board of education recently voted to spend for alterations, repairs, and other improvements.

The south side's share represents more than half of the $970,000 improvement program for elementary and high schools that was announced last week from the office of James B. McCahey, president of the school board.

By ordering "full steam ahead" in the schools' rehabilitation program the board is continuing the pace it set earlier in the year by the launching of an extensive schedule of new and auxiliary building.

Plan Downtown School.

The recently approved work includes $18,700 worth of improvements in the old Jones school at 607 Plymouth court, which is being converted into a downtown commercial high school at a total cost of $150,000.

This new work includes roof repairs, interior remodeling, yard improvements, plumbing and electrical work, and the installation of lunchroom facilities.

Also among the new projects is improvement of the swimming facilities in the Spalding School for Crippled Children, 1628 West Washington boulevard. The main feature of these improvements is a device for lowering the crippled youngsters into the water and hoisting them out at the close of their exercise periods. These operations hitherto required the services of two attendants, and were the source of discomfort to many of the children.

Device Is Trolley System.

The new device consists of a trolley system whereby chairs can be slid from the pool rim to positions over the water and then lowered into the pool.

Other improvements of general interest include alterations in the school board offices at 228 North La Salle street. These operations represent a total cost of $3,850.

High schools on the south side will benefit by $350,000 of the $500,000 being spent in this area. Heading this list is Englewood, where $232,500 is currently being paid out for construction, decoration, and equipment of its new $400,000 addition.

Other Projects Listed.

Other south side high schools and the nature and costs of the pending projects are:

Bowen—Chemical storage room, $1,919.

Calumet—Roof repairs, $7,427, and cleaning, painting, and redecorating, $6,727.

Fenger—Laboratory equipment, $1,086.

Curtis branch of Fenger—Laboratory equipment, $1,185.

Harper—Redecorating, $3,891.

Hirsch—Enlarging and improving library, $2,285.

Lindblom—Roof repairs, $3,248; linoleum, $2,266; iron and wire work, $910, and heating plant repairs, $1,488.

Morgan Park — Redecorating and cleaning, $28,623; laboratory alterations and equipment, $2,310.

Parker—Library alterations and equipment, $2,579.

Phillips—Alterations in old building, $35,549; installation of gymnasium and swimming pool equipment in the new building, $10,301, and yard improvements, $2,915.

McAllister branch of Tilden—Iron and wire work, $886.

Elementary School Work.

Elementary school rahibilitation and repair projects pending or recently completed include:

Iron and wire work — Armstrong, Beale, Bradwell, Dixon, Foreman, Harvard, Irving Park, Key, McPherson, Oglesby, Parental, Pope, Agassiz, Mayfair, Poe, Prussing, Scammon, Anderson, Avondale, Brainard, Prentano, Hamilton, Hay, Healy, Hibbard, Knickerbocker, Logan, McLaren, Mulligan, Mark Sheridan, Thomas, Von Humboldt, Ward, Waters, Yates, Burns, Darwin, Davis, Funston, Gary, Goethe, Gray, Moos, and Reilly.

Cleaning, painting, and redecorating—Esmond, Tilton, Fulton, Avalon Park, Riis, Bryant, Brainard, Westcott, Coonley, Libby, Marsh, Revere, Pullman, and Healy.

Yard improvements — Kenwood, Prescott, Betsy Ross, and Kellogg.

Ten Get Floor Covering.

Floor covering—Chase, Drummond, Earle, Le Moyne, Longfellow, Moos, Oglesby, Pullman, Tennyson, and Waters.

Heating plant—Dante, Haines, Orr, and Portage Park.

Masonry and other work — Armstrong, Ruggles, Hubbard, J. A. Sexton, Hookway, O'Toole, Henry, Holmes, Whittier, Jahn, Lawson, Linne, Bridge, Funston, Shakespeare, Motley, Scammon, Gray, Goethe, Mozart, Norwood Park, Mann, Belding, Edwards, Ericsson, Von Humboldt, McLaren, Drake, Lafayette, Scanlan, Budlong, Fernwood, Penn, Peterson, Plamondon, Pope, Prussing, Agassiz, Healy, Burr, Doolittle, Hawthorne, Jungman, Morrill, Alcott, Forestville, Goudy, Kenwood, Newberry, and Everett.

RED CROSS UNITS OPEN ROLL CALL ON SOUTH SIDE

43 in City and Suburbs Aiding Campaign.

Generous residents of 43 south city and suburban communities are being asked to open their hearts and their purses again for the annual roll call membership drive of the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross. The campaign to raise operating funds began on Thursday and will continue through Thanksgiving day, according to James B. Forgan, chapter chairman.

This drive is one of the high spots of the 22d year of the Chicago chapter, started at the outset of the war, and given a trying workout almost at once by the Eastland disaster. The year now closing has been one of the busiest in the organization's history, Mr. Forgan said.

Never before has the Chicago chapter been so well organized for general activities, or so well prepared for disaster service, officials pointed out last week.

Now Has 128 Units.

There are now 128 units in the Chicago chapter, which last year had but 97 and two years ago had only 65 auxiliary groups. The south and southwest areas' share of this blanket organization is 19 neighborhood units in Chicago and 24 in nearby suburbs.

Of the 19 roll call solicitation units on Chicago's south side, five are headed by Myron T. Burtness, 8400 South Ashland avenue. These are: Auburn Park, Brainerd, Grasham, Highland, and Southwest. Four units—Avalon Park, Avalon Park Heights, Chatham Fields, and Illinois Central Heights—are headed by Wayne A. Johnston, 8221 Kenwood avenue.

The other south side roll call chairmen are: Clearing, Mrs. William D. Gilmour, 5507 West 64th place; Englewood, Judson L. Parker, 6240 South Halsted street; Fuller Park, Miss Margaret Blaugh, 235 West 53d street; Gage Park, Jerry Pech, 2514 West 55th street; Garfield Park, Archie J. Marschak, 4010 Madison street; Kenwood, Dr. Mandel Cohen, 4706 Lake Park avenue; Oakland, Miss Grace K. Bean, 3920 Lake Park avenue; Roseland-Pullman, Arthur J. Zimmerman, 10736 South Normal avenue, and Woodlawn, George Webster Jr., 310 East 63d street.

Chairmen in Suburbs.

Argo-Summit—Mrs. Louis DeKrauze, 7648 West 63d street, Argo.

Chicago Heights—Mrs. Harry Hood, 1848 Euclid avenue.

Crestwood—Mrs. E. F. Schampel, Midlothian.

Dolton—Mrs. H. W. Slaughter, 231 Lincoln avenue, Dolton.

Flossmoor—Mrs. Charles A. Ford.

Homewood—Mrs. Karl P. Schmidt, 1751 Cedar road.

Lemont—Mrs. S. A. Lemke, 2 Logan street.

Matteson—Frank E. Allemong.

Midlothian—Mrs. E. F. Schampel.

Oak Lawn—Mrs. Ernest Luse.

Olympia Fields—Mrs. W. S. Becker.

Orland Park—Mrs. Sherman S. Knox, Brook street.

Palos Park—Mrs. H. W. Crowley, 80th avenue.

Riverdale—Mrs. H. W. Slaughter, 231 Lincoln avenue, Dolton.

Robbins—Mrs. Leona E. Kellar, 3213 Robbins avenue.

Steger—Mrs. G. S. Salmon.

Thornton—Mrs. J. N. Miller, Ridge road.

Tinley Park—Mrs. Omar C. Ebenbach, 17615 65th avenue.

Willow Springs—Miss M. A. Rust, Archer avenue.

The Red Cross has a congressional charter and so is an auxiliary arm of the government, yet it levies no taxes, depending altogether upon voluntary support. It confines its fund raising efforts in Chicago to residential communities, inasmuch as it gets part of the Community fund and does not want to duplicate this solicitation.

Has Million Deficit.

Mr. Forgan stressed the urgent need for wholehearted response in the present fund campaign.

"Record breaking demands upon the Red Cross for its service," he said, "have brought record breaking needs for generous support.

"In disaster relief alone the Red Cross this year has spent $1,000,000 more than it has received in order to meet the needs arising from 127 natural disasters.

"Once a year, and only once, during the annual roll call, the public is asked to support the Red Cross year 'round program of service. All signs point to a 1937 total that will strengthen the Chicago chapter's position not only as the largest but as one of the most generous of the country's chapters."

The sympathetic response of the Chicago area in time of great need was well illustrated during the Ohio valley floods, it was pointed out by Roger Holden, director of disaster relief for the Chicago chapter. Soon after appeals for help were sent out Chicagoland men and women had contributed $1,448,658 in cash, thus exceeding the area's quota by 800 per cent.

Cites Work in Emergency.

The recent rapid growth of the organization is not unhealthy, but has a very practical purpose, it was pointed out by James T. Nicholson, manager of the chapter.

The January floods, which gave the organization one of its greatest peacetime problems, graphically demonstrated the necessity, Mr. Nicholson said, of maintaining a disaster preparedness organization so alert and well drilled that it can face any emergency calmly and with a maximum of efficiency.

"Throughout the area, therefore, the chapter has appointed capable men and women to build and inspire the necessary organization to meet sudden disasters, and to reherse them constantly in the activities that mean so much to stricken unfortunates," he pointed out.

Survey of Needs.

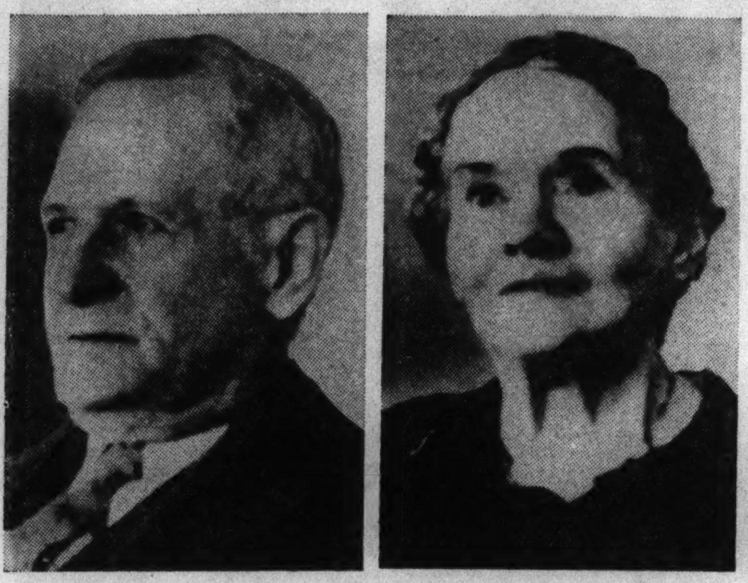
These activities include the survey of disaster needs, rescue efforts, medical aid, the gathering and distribution of food and clothing and the provision of shelter, the setting up of emergency transportation and communication machinery, maintenance of registration and information service, and the raising of funds.

But disaster preparedness is but one of the peacetime activities of the Red Cross, the local chapter officials declared. General activities of the organization include the promotion of health, education in life saving, accident prevention and first aid, help for war veterans and their families, nursing service, volunteer service and junior Red Cross promotion and health, good citizenship and international good will.

Completing Bennett School Murals

There are books of histories on the shelves of the Bennett school library, 10115 South Prairie avenue, and the history of a book on the walls. Murals, depicting the evolution of printing, were completed last week by WPA artists and will be dedicated Wednesday afternoon at a meeting of the Bennett Parent-Teacher association. The association financed the project. Putting the finishing touches to the scene of a primitive press are (left to right) Miss Lucille Ward, 4925 South Blackstone avenue, and Gustaf Dahlstrom, designer of the layout and head of the murals department of the federal art project.

Lockport Couple Wed Sixty Years



Mr. and Mrs. William Merritt Goss, 331 East 9th street, Lockport, Ill., recently celebrated their sixtieth wedding anniversary in the home of their eldest son, Charles O. Goss, 908 Madison street, Lockport. Mr. and Mrs. Goss were childhood friends when attending the public school at Joliet. They have been residents of Lockport for fifty-two years.

SUNDAY EVENING CLUB WILL HEAR ST. LOUIS RABBI SPEAK TONIGHT

Rabbi Ferdinand M. Isserman of Temple Israel, St. Louis, Mo., will address the Sunday Evening club tonight in Orchestra hall on the topic, "A Jewish View of Jesus." Dr. Isserman, who is making his second appearance on this platform, was born in Antwerp, Belgium. He came to America when 8 years old and completed his education at the Universities of Cincinnati, Pennsylvania, Toronto, and Chicago. Participating in the service will be Dr. Alfred Lee Wilson and Henry P. Chandler, and Clifford W. Barnes will preside. At the 7 o'clock service Dr. John A. Wilson, successor in 1935 to the late James H. Breasted as director of the Oriental institute, will describe the expeditions sent out by the institute to areas mentioned in the Old Testament. He will show colored pictures of historical finds which confirm a biblical narrative.

Rabbi F. M. Isserman.

EPISCOPALIANS TO OPEN $800,000 CAMPAIGN TODAY

Funds to Be Utilized in Charitable Work.

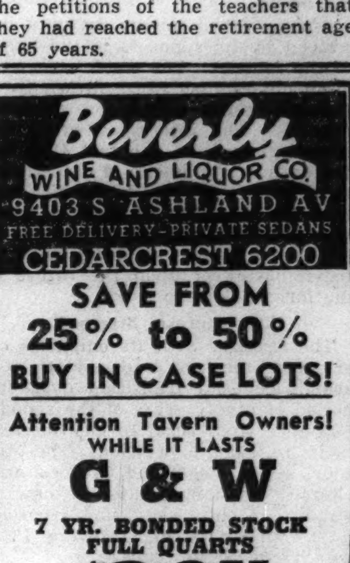
For the last fortnight the story of the missionary work of the Episcopal church in Chicago has been told by four minute speakers in fifty centers and today the campaign starts in all the 125 parishes and missions of the diocese to raise $800,000 for the local and national work of the church directed by the Rev Gowan C. Villiam, rector of St. Mark's church. Glen Ellyn.

The Rev. G. C. Williams.

The beneficiaries of these funds to be raised by this annual every member visitation will be more than thirty public and charitable hospitals and homes in the city, including such social settlements as the Cathedral shelter where Canon David E. Gibson and his staf assisted last year more than 100,000 individuals.

"In addition to the city-wide projects involved," said Dean Williams, "local parish work is likewise included and the local diocesan quota to the national council of the Episcopal church."

C. Y. O. Actress



Miss Olga Peterek, 5410 South Honore street, will be in the cast of "Cheerio My Deario," a three act comedy, to be presented by the Girls' C. Y. O. of SS. Cyril and Methodius parish, Nov. 21 and 22, in the school auditorium, 5017 South Hermitage avenue.

CHANGES AFFECT 214 TEACHERS IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Personnel changes involving 214 members of the Chicago public school faculties were announced last week by James B. McCahey, president of the board of education. The changes include the election of two assistant principals and three head teachers, transfer of one principal, 72 high school and 62 elementary school teachers, and the retirement of two others.

Fred J. Moehle and Mrs. Hazel Impey are the teachers who were elevated to assistant principalships. Mr. Moehle, formerly a teacher in the McKinley High school, is now assigned to the Franklin branch of Waller High. Mrs. Impey, former teacher of Volta elementary, is now assistant head of the school.

New Head Teachers.

Helen Hanrahan, a teacher in the Holden branch of Englewood High, was named to head the Holden staf. The others are Catherine E. Conner, teacher of McPherson elementary now head at the new Phillip Rogers school, and Marguerite A. O'Malley, former teacher of Hibbard who is now head teacher of the new Eliza Chappel school.

The principal transferred is Vernon L. Bowyer. He was formerly in charge at the Skinner school, but now is assigned with his old rank to the bureau of curriculum.

Twelve of the high school teachers shifted went from Tilden to other schools. Eight were from Lane Technical High and six were from Lake View. Lindblom, Du Sable and McKinley had five each.

Two Retire at 65.

The two teachers who were placed on pension, effective Nov. 1, are Josephine A. Brinkman of Walsh elementary and Stella McArthur of Hanson Park elementary. The school board approved both retirements on the petitions of the teachers that they had reached the retirement age of 65 years.

LEADERS TO HAVE CLINIC ON CLUB AIMS THIS WEEK

Third District to Join in Meeting Friday.

Plans and problems relative to club work will be discussed by officers, department and committee chairman of the Third district, Illinois Federation of Women's clubs, at a district directors' board meeting Friday morning in federation headquarters, 30 West Washington street. Mrs. Arthur H. Swett, president of the district, will call the assembly to order at 10:15 o'clock.

Beverly Hills Woman's Club.

Wednesday will be meeting day at the Ridge park fieldhouse, 96th street and Longwood drive. The morning session will open at 11:15 o'clock, when two one act plays will be presented by the drama department under the direction of Mrs. W. N. Strack, chairman.

The guest speaker of the afternoon will be Leon Pescheret, artist, who will tell of "Making an Etching." In addition Mrs. T. J. Mapp of the Vanderpoel Art association and a member of the club will give a brief talk on "New Pictures in the Vanderpoel Gallery."

A literary tea will be held Tuesday at the home of Mrs. A. G. Williams Jr., 10456 South Seeley avenue, at which time Mrs. E. C. Davis will review E. J. Benson's "Old London;" Mrs. W. R. Jeffrey will discuss Dr. Arnold Mulder's essay, "American Criticism for American Readers," and Mrs. Henry Heineman will read Robert Hillyer's poem, "A Letter to My Son."

Blue Island Woman's Club.

The annual card party held for the benefit of club philanthropies will be given Tuesday afternoon in the Elks' clubhouse, 13046 South Western avenue. Mrs. John Hart will be in charge.

Brainerd Woman's Club.

The regular meeting of the club will be held Tuesday morning in the Ridge park fieldhouse, 96th street and Longwood drive. After a short business meeting the drama department will present a one act play entitled "Be a Little Coo Coo."

Chicago Heights Woman's Club.

The art and literature department will meet Wednesday morning in the Chicago Heights public library to hear Miss Geraldyn True Fawcett lecture on "Current Events in Literature." The last session of the parliamentary procedure class will be conducted Friday morning in the library.

Chicago Lawn Woman's Club.

International relations day will be Tuesday in the Marquette park fieldhouse, 67th street and Kedzie avenue. The main speaker of the morning session will be Mrs. Nicholas Latloff, who will tell of "My Life in Jerusalem," where she helped to organize the Y. M. C. A. Mrs. Homer Spencer, Third district chairman of international relations, will talk on "The United States and World Affairs" at the afternoon assembly.

Marquette Manor Woman's Club.

Music and literature will combine for a program Wednesday afternoon in the Marquette park fieldhouse, 67th street and Kedzie avenue. Mrs. Paul Grundman, 3d district music chairman, will be guest speaker, and the Parker Woman's chorus will entertain. The soloists will be Mrs. Ida Prymas of Riverdale and Mrs. E. R. Walter, 3d district literature chairman, will review "Remember the Day" by Kenneth Horan.

Morgan Park Woman's Club.

New members day will be observed tomorrow afternoon in the Morgan Park Methodist Episcopal church, 110th place and Longwood drive. Mrs. Reid M. Bennett will conduct the second of a series of better speech classes at 10 o'clock in the morning and Miss Jennie F. Purvin, head of the clubwoman's bureau at Mandel Brothers, will be guest speaker at the 11 o'clock assembly. She will discuss "New Books of the Year."

Mrs. Laura Hughes Lunde, education chairman of the Illinois League of Women Voters, also will talk on the morning program. Her subject will be "Live Topics in Education."

West Lawn Woman's Club.

Plans for a Christmas party on Dec. 20 will be discussed at a business meeting of the club tomorrow afternoon. Mrs. William Klos, chairman of the holiday party, will preside.

Portray Life in Pre-Headline Spain

In the days of the glamor girls of sunny old Spain even "The Belle of Barcelona" had competition. It was the time when flashing heels and high mantillas vied for honors and lady Cook tourists of the western world looked on in awe. Students, teachers, and parents of the Calumet High school, 80th and May streets, will call back the scenes in a production of "The Belle of Barcelona," a romantic musical comedy, Thursday afternoon and Friday evening in the school auditorium. Members of the cast are (left to right) Hazel Johnson, Fred Blackmore, Catherine Welch, leading lady; Ruth MacGowen, Robert Daley, and Joseph Dickman, faculty member.

MRS. G. H. NIPPERT HEADS ILLINOIS DRIVE ON CANCER

Mrs. George Hanly Nippert, widely known woman's club worker, has just been named Illinois commander of the Women's Field Army Against Cancer, a branch of the American Society for the Control of Cancer. This was announced last week by the executive committee of the Illinois division.

Mrs. G. H. Nippert.

Mrs. Nippert, who resides at 4438 Magnolia avenue, has headed the radio committee of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs for three years. She formerly was president of the Southern Women's Club of Chicago.

"Cancer is curable—fight it with knowledge," is the slogan of the women's field army, which works under the direction of the cancer committees of the various state medical societies.

Holding that present knowledge of cancer control can save 60,000 lives annually if the public would learn and coöperate, field army representatives aim to spread knowledge of control as widely as possible. They point out that there were 10,000 cancer deaths in Illinois last year, as against only 6,000 in 1920.

Lecture on China.

Miss Dorothy Jones will speak on "Flashes from West China" at the Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, 99th street and Winchester avenue, next Sunday morning. For many years Miss Jones has been in charge of the city and district day schools in Chungking, West China.

JUNIOR WOMEN OF ENGLEWOOD EXPAND ACTIVITY

Club to Undertake Five New Departments.

Activities of junior clubwomen this season are taking on senior proportions. The ambition of the Englewood Junior Woman's club, third district of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs, will come to light tomorrow afternoon at a board meeting in the home of Mrs. Roy William Shields, 9133 South Ada street, corresponding secretary.

Announcement will be made of five departmental programs, American home, art and music, drama, literature, and public welfare. Mrs. Lovell L. Nelson, public welfare chairman, will tell of plans for the clubs booth to be sponsored at the Protestant Child Haven bazar, 6323 South Yale avenue, Wednesday and Thursday. Articles are being made by the members at special departmental meetings.

The junior club chorus, under the direction of Mrs. Thomas Carley, chairman of art and music, will make its debut Nov. 22 in the Englewood Masonic temple, 6734 South Wentworth avenue, at the regular meeting of the club. Mrs. D. Kice Sheppard will be the instructor of the group and Mrs. Roy H. Winkler will be accompanist.

Plans for the drama department, of which Mrs. O. Irvin Fox is chairman, include morning classes conducted on regular meeting days by Mrs. William F. Crouch, dramatic coach.

Mrs. William A. Watson, chairman of the literature department, will announce the formation of a book club and a program of study will be drawn up. The American home committee, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Everett B. Eckland, will make available for general club use the special books on child study used by the child study class. Mrs. Norval B. Stephens will conduct the class every meeting day at 12:45 o'clock.

Blue Island Junior Women.

The club will give a benefit card party Tuesday in the Elks' clubhouse, Blue Island, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Robert Withers. Proceeds will be distributed among the Park Ridge School for Girls, the Blue Island Baby clinic, world war veterans at Oak Forest infirmary, the Indian Scholarship fund, and the Blue Island Infant welfare.

Members of Mrs. Withers' committee are Miss Betty Klenk, co-chairman; Mrs. E. C. Hungerford, Miss Ruth Schultz, Miss Marie Dean, Mrs. Ray Schraeder, Mrs. Wallace Sundquist, Mrs. Roy Proctor, Mrs. Edward Boyd, Mrs. Norman Beasley, Mrs. William Snyder, Mrs. Harry Anderson, and Miss Virginia Brondell.

Homewood Juniors.

The second of a series of card parties will be held Friday in Library hall. Mrs. Robert Burdett will be in charge.

Brainerd Junior Woman's Club.

The Rev. John H. Hubbard of St. Mary's Episcopal church of Park Ridge, will speak before the club Tuesday evening in the Ridge park fieldhouse, 96th street and Longwood drive. "You and Youth" will be his topic. The program will be arranged by Miss Eleanor Armon, chairman of the public welfare department.

Third District.

Board members of the third district junior women's clubs will meet Wednesday evening in the home of Mrs. Helen Morgan, 10129 South Wood street. Plans for a holiday dance at the Lincolnshire Country club and a fine arts festival in January will be discussed.

Aiding Reunion

Miss Edna Gray, 440 West 60th place, will be on the committee in charge of Calumet High School Alumni association's annual homecoming Nov. 26 in the school gymnasium, 81st and May streets.

St. Philip's Episcopal Church Opens Golden Jubilee Today

Fifty-two years ago the old Grace church, which is now connected with St. Luke's hospital, formed a Sunday school to serve the English and Welsh employés of the Union Rolling Mills. The growth of the organization over the period of a half century will be the theme of its golden jubilee this week at St. Philip's Episcopal church, 36th street and Hamilton avenue.

The Rev. Stephen Sims.

The anniversary will begin at 10:30 o'clock this morning with a Thanksgiving service conducted by the Rev. Stephen Sims, pastor.

Bishop Stewart to Speak.

The Rev. Bishop George Craig Stewart will be the main speaker at a jubilee banquet Tuesday evening in the parish house. Afterward, an anniversary service will be held in the church. The celebration will close Friday evening with a party and bazar given by the women of the parish.

The founder of St. Philip's is Dr. Clinton Locke, former rector of Grace church. As early as 1885 he gathered together the mill workers of the Archer road district and conducted Sunday school in Blossenger's hall, Wood street and Archer avenue. The project was financed largely by Mr. and Mrs. William Gold Hibbard and W. R. Stirling, president of the Illinois Steel company.

Assisting Dr. Locke in the management of the school was the young Charles Herbert Young, later rector of Christ Church of Woodlawn and headmaster of Howe Military school, Howe, Ind. He is at present the chaplain of St. Katherine's school, Davenport, Ia. Another helper was the late Rev. N. B. Clinch, army chaplain.

New Building in 1887.

In 1887 a newly erected church building took the place of the old Sunday school and the Rev. R. W. Springer, curate of Grace church, was placed in charge. He was succeeded by the Rev. William Elmer, Canon H. G. Moore, now attached to the Episcopal cathedral, and the Very Rev. Gerald G. Moore, now dean of St. Luke's pro-cathedral, Evanston.

A parish house was built in 1885 and dedicated by the Rev. Bishop E. M. Stire, now bishop of Long Island and former rector of Grace church.

Corpus Christi Fete.

Corpus Christi church will close its fall festival this evening in the parish hall, 4910 South parkway. The Altar and Rosary sodality will serve a turkey dinner from 1 to 6 o'clock this afternoon.

'POUND' PARTY TODAY WILL AID ST. JOSEPH HOME FOR FRIENDLESS

Seeking a quota of 10,000 pounds of contributed food and clothing, the St. Joseph Home for the Friendless guild will hold its annual pound party this afternoon at the home, 739 East 35th street. The program will begin at 3 o'clock with the solemn benediction of the most blessed sacrament.

Paul Ryan.
[Drake Photo.]

The St. Laurence church choir, directed by Richard Keating and accompanied by Miss Lorraine Sheridan, will give a musical program. Soloists will be Paul Ryan, tenor; Miss Valia Oliaro, soprano, and Miss Betty Helminski, contralto. Refreshments will be served.

Mrs. Joseph F. Herrmann is president of the guild, which has sponsored the annual party for 25 years. The home, in existence since 1874, is the oldest Catholic charitable institution in the city.

DINING ALCOVE IN NEW HOME HAS WALLS OF GLASS

Space Is Surrendered for Larger Living Room.

Give new life to old furniture! Learn how to refinish it. Directions which any one can follow are given in the booklet, "Refinishing Furniture," by Louise Bargelt, Tribune home builders' editor. On sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, or Tribune Tower. Price, 5 cents. Postpaid, 7 cents.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

It is always a pleasure to show a finely built, small home, which has been skillfully designed for one family's individual needs, tastes, and desires.

Such a small house has much to interest others who are hoping or planning to build or to buy the same size house.

A six room home probably has the widest appeal of any size house in our country at the present time. Yet many prospective owners are considering the possibility of a five room house, with six room capacity.

It was on this type house that Mrs. John Oudholff, 10436 South Oakley avenue, decided. And in the hands of George W. Repp, architect, 1743 West 100th place, the house was designed and took tangible shape.

Glass Block Walls.

Mrs. Oudhoff availed herself of a present trend, slight, but nevertheless noticeable, toward a combined living-dining room. Only instead of merely apportioning one end of a living room for dining purposes Mr. Repp included an octagonal dining alcove of new sparkling glass block in the floor layout. This is conveniently close to the kitchen, and while it serves as a small dining room, it adds considerably to the apparent size of the living room.

With most home builders and home buyers the separate dining room is still in high favor. Many women say: "I wouldn't mind a combination living-dining room, but I woud want it furnished more like the living room than the dining room, so that it would really increase the living quarters." Then, when it comes to the point of making the final decision, it is in favor of the regulation separate dining room with regulation furniture.

In all recent architectural polls, conducted with the serious idea of finding out what women want most in their homes, it is obvious that long familiar room arrangements, deeply rooted in the past, still hold preference by overwhelming odds.

More Spacious Living Room.

However, this shift in attitude in favor of the elimination of the conventional dining room has certain obvious advantages and where the family is small, its loss need not be seriously felt.

There is the fact that costs may be cut. Or if there is no need to consider the cost, the space the dining room would occupy could be used for other purposes. Usually it is added to the size of the living room. And since spacious living rooms always are a delight, the gradual shrinkage and sometimes the disappearance of the dining room, is more easily understood.

In the exterior design of this house the owner again showed a preference for the very modern. She chose a home with a flat roof and large corner casement windows. Colors and lines, however, have been kept quiet and restrained. The exterior walls are of brick which has been painted a very light shade of gray. [The beauty of brick never fails to add a certain tone and distinction to the severely simple lines of many of our houses moderne.]

The compact first floor plan is step saving. Rooms open logically into each other. There is a small entrance hall at the front which acts as a buffer between the family and the outside world. And instead of the lavatory at the front of the home, it has been built at the back, near the kitchen, and is reached by a small service hallway.

On the second floor there are three bedrooms. Two of them have large, corner casement windows. There also is a generous bathroom. This has linoleum walls and floor and the same treatment is given to the kitchen and the first floor lavatory.

In the living room a modern touch is seen in the wall treatment. The north and south walls are painted a soft yellow, while the east and west walls and stair rail are a soft gray.

20,000 Cubic Feet.

The cubic content of the house is approximately 20,000 cubic feet, and the cost of building it in metropolitan centers is from 40 to 42 cents a cubic foot.

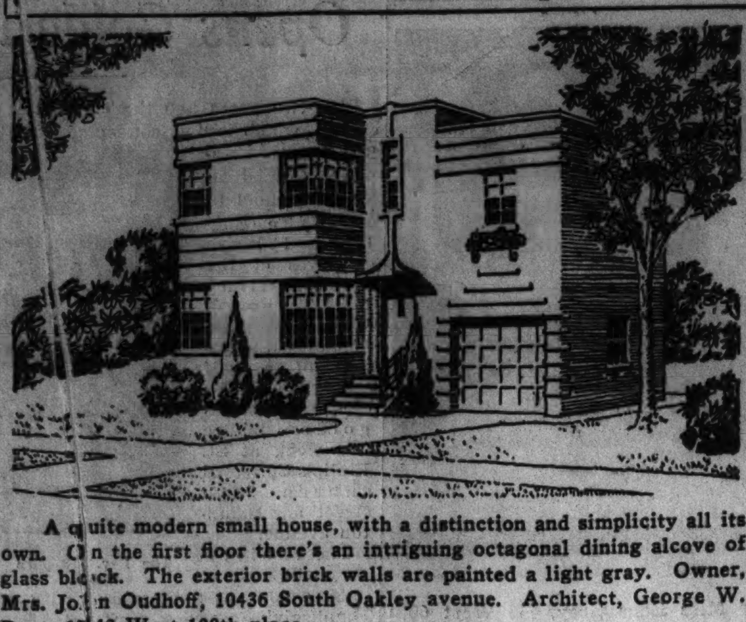
Residential building goes steadily on, and so does the purchase of already built homes. The choice of whether to buy or to build must always remain more or less a personal one.

There is a large class of prospective homeowners who can discover already built homes which are so close to what they want in every respect that they promptly decide to buy what they can see. Again there is that class of prospective owners which prefers to build homes individually designed to special needs and tastes.

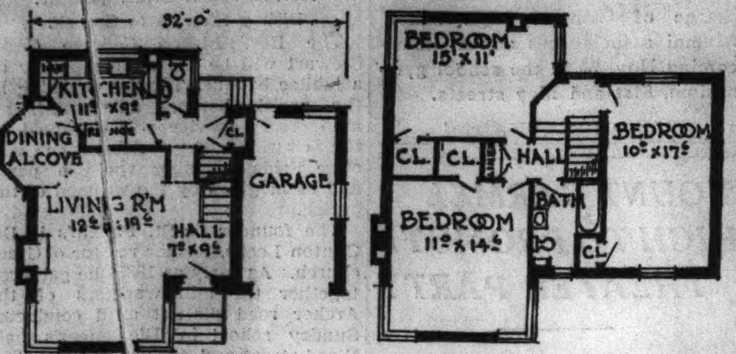
These are splendid times to look around and see what your money will buy in a home for tomorrow.

Mrs. Bargelt will speak over W-G-N tomorrow at 2:15 p. m.

Distinctive and Simple



A quite modern small house, with a distinction and simplicity all its own. On the first floor there's an intriguing octagonal dining alcove of glass block. The exterior brick walls are painted a light gray. Owner, Mrs. John Oudhoff, 10436 South Oakley avenue. Architect, George W. Repp, 1743 West 100th place.



First Floor. Second Floor.

SPEAKER AT CARROLL FORUM TODAY TO BE BRITISH HISTORIAN

Donald Attwater of London, England, will address the Charles Carroll forum this afternoon in the Red Lacquer room of the Palmer house. His topic will be "The Catholic Church in Europe Today." For the subsequent discussion the Rev. James A. Magner will be chairman. As an editor, author, and historian, Mr. Attwater is well known in Europe for his literary work, especially for his translations of the Russian philosopher Berdyaev, as a leader in universal peace movement, and an upholder of rural life as opposed to urban. He is among the recognized authorities on the eastern churches, his chief published work, besides contributions to current periodicals, being "The Catholic Eastern Churches." This is Mr. Attwater's first trip to America.

CITY RECREATION CONGRESS TO BE HELD THURSDAY

Community minded residents of the south and southwest districts will attend the third annual meeting of the Chicago Recreation commission which will be held as a city-wide congress on Thursday in the Hotel Sherman. The conference will be the culmination of citizens' recreation training institutes which have been held during the last two months in various communities, according to an announcement made by Dr. Philip L. Seman, chairman of the commission.

The congress will begin in the afternoon and will close with a dinner meeting in the evening.

Southwest side community chairmen who will be present are Miss Margaret Blough of Fuller Park, William P. Baumann of Kelly High school, the Rev. Jesse Hickman of Archer road, Wayne G McCarty of Bridgeport, Stewart Knarr and William Fuka of New City, William F. Stelzer of Chicago Lawn, J. P. McFarland of Englewood, Michael Dwyer of Auburn-Gresham, and Miss Gertrude McCleery of Beverly.

M. E. Church to Present 'Cafe Gresham' Thursday

A program entitled "Café Gresham" will be presented Thursday and Friday evenings at the Gresham Methodist Episcopal church, 87th street and Emerald avenue. Featured on the program will be the Beverly Harmonians, directed by Harry K. Meech; "Three Singing Waitresses," including Phyllis Putnam, Dolores Ridley, and Lois Axberg, and two local singers, Elaine Morgan and Cecil Winnie. Edward Waterman will be master of ceremonies and Howard Ferguson will be chairman of the event.

SCHOOLS TO FORM 1,000 PIECE BAND FOR MUSIC FETE

Plans are under way for a 1,000 piece high school band to participate in THE TRIBUNE'S 1938 Chicagoland Music Festival, it was announced last week by E. V. Hughes, president of the Chicago Public High School Band and Orchestra Parents association.

General objectives of the association are to promote more and better bands and orchestras in the schools, and to help small music groups to finance their activities and purchase good instruments.

In its work and aims the organization has the backing of numerous principals and other school officials. One of the most active sponsors is Miss Helen Howe, director of music for the board of education.

Capt. Howard Stube, president of the Chicago Bandmasters association, is first vice president of the high school group. The second vice president is F. T. Croad of Hirsch High school. Mrs. J. E. Cress of Parker is recording secretary, Mrs. Grace Hanson of Parker is corresponding secretary, and William Kulling of Lindblom is treasurer.

LINDBLOM HIGH ALUMNAE TO GIVE WELFARE PARTY

The Alumnae council of Lindblom High school, composed of 200 selected women graduates, will conduct a card party Friday evening in the South Side Masonic temple, 64th and Green streets, for the benefit of girls' welfare work at Lindblom.

Part of the proceeds will be used to promote a health program for entering pupils. This will consist of medical and dental examinations and correctives.

The executive board of the council is headed by Mrs. Gladys Heim Caughey, president; Miss Velma Ball, executive secretary, and Mrs. Lillian Pacer Potocki, treasurer. Miss Mary E. Courtney, former dean of girls at Lindblom, established the council in 1920 and still acts as its sponsor.

Chicago High R.O.T.C. School News

Head R. O. T. C. at Illinois

LEO ALUMNI TO MARK GRID TITLE SATURDAY WITH AUTUMN FROLIC

In celebration of Leo High school's championship in the south section of the Catholic Football league, the alumni association of the school will sponsor an autumn frolic Saturday evening in the Furniture club, 666 North Lake Shore drive. Robert A. Podesta, president, and Ned Youngs, general chairman, will be in charge of the arrangements. Members of their committee are Bernard Ludden, vice president; Thomas Hickey, corresponding secretary; William Ryan, treasurer; Jack Murray, Patrick Evans, Thomas Gilmore, David Scanlan, Hugh Murningham, and Daniel Coombs, directors; James Doyle, Douglas Martini, James Monahan, and William Clifford.

Robert A. Podesta.

4 MAJOR CHANGES WILL APPEAR IN RULES OF R.O.T.C.

City, Corps Area Rifle Matches Combined.

Four important changes will be incorporated into the public high school R. O. T. C. regulations now being revised and condensed by Maj. John H. Ringe, adjutant on the staf of Col. William F. Morrison, professor of military science and tactics for the 27 units.

Maj. John H. Ringe.

The first will establish the combination this year of the city and corps area rifle matches. Teams of 15 cadets will fire only once in contest on the ranges of their schools. The 10 highest scores will count in the corps area match, and the five best scores of eligible cadets will apply in the city match.

Will Fire Early in Year.

The firing probably will take place between Jan. 1 and Feb. 15 as previously, and a trophy will be presented to the winning team. Awarding of school letters will be determined by the athletic board also.

The second change will provide for the creation of a qualification course in marksmanship in which cadets will receive a ribbon bar for firing a score of 290 of a possible 400.

The third alteration will change the name of the brigade staf to the cadet corps staf and provide for the appointment of staf officers only once a year instead of twice as in the past.

Set Tests for March.

Four candidates from each school will take an examination the second Saturday of March. From the unit commanders participating, the cadet corps commander with the rank of colonel will be selected; from the majors, two lieutenant colonels will be chosen; from the majors and the captains, four majors will be named, and from the captains and lieutenants, four captains will be picked.

The fourth change will provide for the preparation of the table of organization by each school unit instead of by the headquarters staf as was done previously.

—Englewood—

Maj. Joseph I. Lambert, supervisor of the R. O. T. C. units of the south side high schools, will present commissions to newly advanced officers of the Englewood High school unit in a formal ceremony soon in Armstrong hall, the school auditorium. The cadets are now engaged in squad and platoon drill, and members of the best squad will receive awards.

INSIGNIA OF RANK GIVEN OFFICERS AT TILDEN TECH

Two Battalion Leaders Named Majors.

Staf Sergeant Michael J. Moore, military instructor of the Tilden Technical High school, recently presented Arthur Dusenbury, commanding officer of the unit, his commission as cadet major, and the latter then awarded commissions to the other newly promoted officers.

Walter Bullinger and Frank Walsh, battalion commanders, also were named majors. Robert Thompson and Joseph Shepke, range and supply officers, were appointed captains; Robert Kehoe and Herbert Smith, adjutant and plans and training officer, were advanced to first lieutenants, and Thomas Blake and Byron Bey, publicity officer and assistant adjutant, were designated second lieutenants.

Other promotions, according to companies, were those of the following:

COMPANY A—Walter Willis to cadet captain and Robert Neher, Raymond Kozanecki, Martin Clark, and Edward Eads to cadet second lieutenants.

COMPANY B—Arthur Gramzinski to cadet captain and Edward Berk, William Orr, and Richard Phelps to cadet second lieutenants.

COMPANY C—Edwin Berkes to cadet captain, Charles Kester to cadet first lieutenant, and Edwin Kujana and Max Mast to cadet second lieutenants.

COMPANY D—Edward Barlecki to cadet captain and Harold Clodgio, Alfred Jones, Spiro Kapranos, and Adolph Leberes to cadet second lieutenants.

COMPANY E—Ralph Abrams to cadet first lieutenant and Gordon Nelson, DuWayne Lynn, and Malcolm Nielson to cadet second lieutenants.

COMPANY F—Robert Wilson to cadet first first lieutenant and Alden Green and William Anderson to cadet second lieutenants.

Sergt. Moore presented warants to sixty-three newly promoted non-commissioned officers also during company inspections.

The high ranking officers are Cadet Master Sergeant Hugh Story, Cadet Technical Sergeants Judson Hixon and Warren Thiel, and Cadet Staf Sergeants Jack Kerksick, Earl Long, and Arthur Schmakel.

The new sergeants are the following:

William Bassett	Seymour Lorber
Alvin Baxter	Walter Mason
Arthur Becker	John Mooi
Rudolph Berg	Robert Nickola
Richardson Biederman	William Norder
Hal Blackwell	Robert Person
Jack Bonshire	Walter Peterson
Richard Burk	Edward Reed
Charles Collins	William Rozynek
Jack Fleck	Chester Siwek
Edward Gendek	Charles Smaltz
Axel Johnson	Russell Tagler
Harry Lemmer	Ben Sutton
Wilfred LeSanche

The new corporals are:

Charles Atterbury	Theodore Kalwasinski
Kenneth Beeman	Maceo Liddell
John Brill	Robert Lynn
John Brown	Harold McCoy
Eugene Curtis	William Muir
Donald Daufenbach	Arthur Olson
William Denny	Ellis Rishel
Edward Dietz	Miles Severia
Robert Eddy	Joseph Snave
Melvin Friedlander	Frank Stevens
Arnold Gavin	Kenneth Swanson
Sam Golch	Donald Tibbets
Linton Heide	William Walsh
Edward Hemzacek	Bernard Wozneski
Durward Hill	Edward Zielke
Charles Harroun

A company of outstanding cadets, selected from the six regular companies and under the command of Cadet Major Dusenbury, joined with Post 333 of the American Legion in commemorating Armistice day.

—Calumet—

Sixteen cadets of the Calumet High school R. O. T. C. will take the parts of marines in the school operetta, "The Belle of Barcelona," Thursday afternoon and Friday evening. They have been rehersing under the direction of Sergt. Stanley J. Tutlis, military instructor.

MORGAN PARK LOWER SCHOOL MOTHERS TO GIVE BENEFIT DINNER

The Mothers' club of the Morgan Park Military academy lower school will give a turkey dinner at 7 o'clock Thursday night in Alumni hall of the academy, 2153 West 111th street, for the public.

After the dinner, a professional troupe will present a vaudeville performance. Mrs. Frederick Welsh, 10340 South Prospect avenue, treasurer of the club, is serving as chairman of the party. Proceeds will be used for the purchase of books for the lower school library.

Mrs. Frederick Welsh. [Bloom Photo.]

Other members of the committee are Mrs. James M. Shaw, Mrs. William Rumpf, Mrs. Ralph Riggs, Mrs. Jack Fox, Mrs. Edwin A. Hulse, Mrs. Jack Westberg, and Mrs. Michael Kasper.

Other officers of the club are Mrs. Louis Mintz, president; Mrs. J. Dudley Miller, vice president, and Mrs. Arthur Martin, secretary.

LISTENER SAYS OLD SETS SOUND AS GOOD AS NEW

Sarnoff Blames Attitude on Tin Ear Effect.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

A fortnight ago the view was expressed here that any one using a radio ten years old is missing just as much, as a listener, as a motorist who sticks to a car of the predepression days. One consequence of that assertion was the receipt of several letters from irate owners of those early electrically operated sets which, they insisted, still perform better than the new sets.

"Why buy a new one until the manufacturers are through changing them?" one complacent owner of a 1929 set inquired. "Can't we assume that the new sets will be outdated in a similar length of time?"

The question brings to mind an incident in our short lived career as a salesman. Peddling brushes during collegiate vacations, we induced a farmer's wife to expend a dollar on a long handled bath brush. The lady had a family totaling six or eight persons. Ten years later we encountered the same woman while on a vacation. She complained in all seriousness that the brush was showing signs of wear and that it had not measured up to what she expected of it.

Perfection Not Yet Achieved.

The answer to the above question is: Yes, one can assume that by 1948 most of the present radio sets will be outdated. If the gentleman wants the perfect, the ideal radio receiver, one that will give him complete sound fidelity, he should wait.

He may extend this rule further and avoid buying new motor cars, refrigerators, cameras, razors, and 1,001 other items which are being modified, and possibly improved year by year. If he needs a new collar button, however, he is reasonably safe in buying one today. While not perfect, the collar button people have practically given up doing anything further about them.

There are persons who honestly believe that no progress is being made in the manufacture of radio receivers. They insist that their sets of a decade ago, deliver just as faithful sound reproduction as the new ones, the testimony of sound engineers notwithstanding.

A Nation of Tin Ears.

David Sarnoff, RCA president, recently complained that radio has made us a nation of tin ears. Many set owners swear that no receiver has the tone their own has, no matter how unbearable it may sound to their acquaintances. It matters not whether their set is a five tube job with about 3½ functioning and the new receiver one of a dozen or more, all delivering full power, the inferior one, because of long aural habit, sounds the better to their particular ears.

One encounters in the studio sometimes persons who insist that even station receivers aren't up to their own. The truth is that usually these receivers come closer to delivering complete fidelity than any home receivers, because their sound cargoes are "taken off the line," that is, cut in as they leave the studio and before they are "piped" by wire to the transmitter and put on the air. For there actually are available, receivers that can deliver higher fidelity than telephone wires are able to carry.

Another Type of Response.

There was another type of response from readers typified by this letter:

"You seem amazed at the number of predepression radios and autos still in use. We, who are using these out of date sets, are well aware that they are inadequate and would like to have others, but many of us are still unemployed."

No offense or slight was intended for the many who can ill afford to buy an up to the minute receiver.

The fact that four out of every five families in America, nine out of ten in Illinois, own radios, despite the fact that the unemployment rolls are still exceedingly heavy, serves to remind one that radio is the one form of entertainment available to every one almost without cost. In summer when the doors are open, one may hear the radios sounding from even the poorest city homes.

HENNING BRINGS BACK COMMENT PROGRAM TODAY

Arthur Sears Henning, dean of the newspaper correspondents covering national affairs in Washington, D. C., returns to W-G-N at 7:45 tonight for a new series of his Capital Comment programs.

Capital Comment has been one of W-G-N's most popular series of commentaries for three seasons.

W-G-N VARIETY HOUR FEATURES HOST OF TALENT

"On a Sunday Afternoon" to Bow In Today.

"On A Sunday Afternoon," a new 60 minute variety show, will make its bow over W-G-N and Mutual System from 2 to 3 o'clock today. The production will be staged under the direction of Harold Stokes, W-G-N maestro.

Seventy performers will take part in the production, including names well known in national radio circles.

Tom Ewell, who plays "Dan Crawford," star athlete in the George Abbott play, "Brother Rat," now at the Selwyn theater, will be the guest star on today's show, playing the lead in "An Incident in the Argonne," by Morrison Wood.

The singing stars include Arthur Wright, tenor; Edna O'Dell, contralto; the Three Graces, Jess Kirkpatrick, who will also be master of ceremonies, and a new quartet, "Three Men and A Maid." The W-G-N Dance orchestra and Glee club will be conducted by Maestro Stokes. A series of comedy blackouts will be inserted at intervals. A feature of the show will be called "Opportunity Knocks." Two professional singers or entertainers, chosen through a series of auditions, will appear on each program. The audience, both in the studio and on the air, will be asked to vote on the two selected by audition and the winner will be given a guest appearance on the W-G-N and Mutual show "Symphony in Rhythm," heard at 7:30 p. m. every Tuesday cago contralto, and Nate Cherney. The two to be heard on today's show are Virginia Stone, 16 year old Chi- baritone, who will sing "Why Darkies Were Born."

The afternoon show replaces "Rhythm and Romance," which has been heard from the main studio on Sunday evenings. Other visible shows:

9:45 p. m., Monday—The Pageant of Melody, with Henry Weber and the orchestra, Concert chorus, Berenice Taylor, soprano, and Attilia Baggiore, tenor.

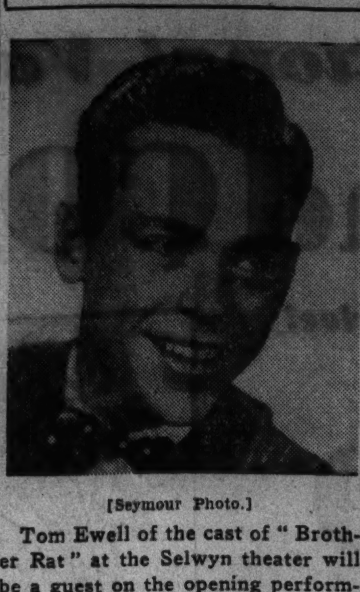
9:30 p. m., Tuesday—The Northerners, with Opol Craven, soprano, as guest star.

9:30 p. m., Wednesday—Melodies from the Sky, with Harold Stokes, the W-G-N Concert orchestra, soloists and chorus.

9:30 p. m., Thursday—The Concert Revue, with Henry Weber's orchestra, the Concert chorus, Kathryn Witwer, and William Miller, soloists.

9:30 p. m., Friday—The W-G-N dramatic show, "Curtain Time," directed by Blair Walliser, featuring "The Righteous Mr. King" by Ruth Glassett, with Hugh Studebaker, Cecil Roy, and Bill Bouchey.

On W-G-N Today



[Seymour Photo.]

Tom Ewell of the cast of "Brother Rat" at the Selwyn theater will be a guest on the opening performance of W-G-N-Mutual's new On a Sunday Afternoon series at 2 p. m. today, appearing in a sketch titled "An Incident in the Argonne." The W-G-N orchestra, chorus, and soloists under Harold Stokes' direction also will be featured.

PAUL WHITEMAN BACK TO DRAKE, W-G-N ON FRIDAY

Bandsman Will Feature New Songstresses.

Paul Whiteman, his orchestra and singing stars, a company of more than thirty musicians and entertainers, will return to W-G-N and Mutual next Friday, when they open in the Silver Forest room at the Drake hotel. They will be heard on a nightly series of broadcasts.

Whiteman returns to Chicago from a long summer engagement at Casa Manana at the Frontier Fiesta at Fort Worth, Tex.; a fall engagement at San Francisco, and a series of one night dance and theater dates en route from the coast to Chicago. The Whiteman troupe will remain at the Drake until after the Christmas holidays.

Many of the Whiteman favorites are returning with "The Dean of Modern Music." Jimmy Brierly, young tenor; the Whiteman "Swing Wing," composed of the Teagarden Brothers, Jack and Charlie, and Charley Le Vere; Bob Lawrence, baritone soloist; Roy Bargy, piano wizard; Mike Pingatore with his banjo, and Al Gollodero, the fastest saxophonist in the band business, all will be back on the stand.

In addition, Whiteman is introducing two girl singers to Chicago, Marion Manners and little Jeanine Ellis, a 10 year old songster with an unusual style and voice.

Whiteman's two girls are unusual artists. Little Jeanine has been entertaining since she was 3 years old. Miss Manners is a native of Arizona, having been born on a ranch. She won her first singing engagement in a contest with 1,300 songstresses and was discovered by Maestro Whiteman in Oklahoma.

After the first week at the hotel the Whiteman unit will present their famous Sunday evening concerts, a portion of which will be aired over W-G-N and the Mutual network. These concerts attracted much favorable comment last season and attracted mail from listeners in every section of the country.

Toycenter Tonight Offers Three Dramatic Stories

Toycenter Tonight, in which youngsters have fun with the night watchman in the toy department of a big store, on Wednesday [6 p. m.] will present the story of The Doll Dance; on Thursday, Sonja Henie's Skates, and on Friday The Railroad Mystery. The program is aired over W-G-N.

Met Auditions to Present 3 Midwestern Singers

Three operatic aspirants from the middle west will sing in the Metropolitan auditions of the air over WENR-NBC at 4 p. m. today. They are Lillian Knowles, contralto, of Kalamazoo, Mich.; Kathleen Kirsting, soprano, of Wichita, Kas., and Harold Haugh, tenor, of Cleveland, O.

Veterinarians Crusade against Hit-or-Miss Dog Feeding

CASE HISTORIES PRESENTED BY SWIFT AND COMPANY World-Famous Purveyors of Fine Foods

THIN, UNDERWEIGHT DIARRHEA

Condition illustrated by McKenzie

Treated by *Dr. A. C. M——, who reports: "This water spaniel's symptoms—diarrhea and thin, rundown condition—were disturbing to its owner, but not nearly so serious as the real underlying trouble. Like so many dogs brought to me, this one was suffering from malnutrition, caused by incorrect feeding." Dr. M........ is just one of the many outstanding veterinarians who are actively crusading against hit-or-miss dog feeding, and particularly against the feeding of nutritionally deficient rations. (This spaniel, shown in the photo at right, is now at normal weight and in perfect condition on Pard, Swift's canine-tested feeding formula.)

PARD . . SWIFT'S CANINE-TESTED FEEDING FORMULA

JAGGED, GLEAMING TEETH show your dog was meant to be a flesh-eater. But domestication has radically changed his way of life, and his diet must be re-adjusted to fit his present-day living habits.

Swift & Company's research laboratories and experimental kennels have developed a formula that solves this problem for you in a simple and effective way. Called PARD, it is made of fresh beef meat food products and seven other fine ingredients. Feeding tests on over 100 dogs, extending to 4 generations, have proved it a thoroughly adequate formula. Put your dog on Pard! Swift & Company, Chicago.

The Human Foot

And, like all fine mechanisms, it requires care.

All of our present day mechanical wonders have been developed upon a small but solid foundation by skill and fine craftsmanship.

Every child, no matter what his ultimate occupation, will depend far more upon his feet than upon any other physical attribute and, just as complicated machinery requires a solid foundation, so do your child's feet require care and correct development.

SIMPLEX FLEXIES are made in such a way that the natural, normal development of the foot is aided and encouraged. Perfect support, sufficient and correct sizes, and long-lasting endurance, make Simplex Flexies the ideal shoe for growing feet.

VASTLY DIFFERENT FROM ORDINARY LIPSTICK COLORS

These are not just ordinary lipstick reds. They're thrilling, tantalizing reds that make hearts beat faster. And how indelible they are! They stay on like mad . . . last all day . . . all night . . . longer really than necessary. Select the one that best suits you at your favorite department or drug store. Heed the beauty-wise South Sea maiden. TATTOO your lips!

Here are the Five Reds that have the Power to Enchant

No. 1 has an orangish pink cast. Rather light. Ravishing on blondes and titian blondes. Called "CORAL."

No. 2 is an exotic, new shade, brilliant yet transparent. Somehow we just cannot find the right words to describe it. It is called "EXOTIC."

No. 3 is a medium shade. A true, rich blood red that will be an asset to any brunette. It is called "NATURAL."

No. 4 changes hue when applied. Gives an unusually transparent richness and warmth. Called "PASTEL."

No. 5 has the rich intensity of Hawaii's most gorgeous flower . . . the wild Hibiscus. It's vivid, very vivid, yet has a lovely softness that's thrilling. Anyone can wear it. It is called "HAWAIIAN."

TATTOO YOUR LIPS for romance!

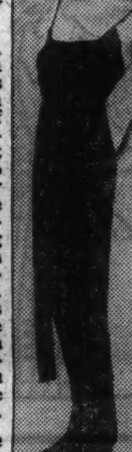
Keeps Weight Down

WILL you do only two pleasant things to take off your ugly fat?

First, eat sensibly. Second, mix ¾ of a glass of Welch's Grape Juice with ¼ of a glass of water and drink before meals and at bedtime. You do not suffer a hungry moment. There are no strenuous exercises or taking drugs. Yet!—in an actual test conducted by Dr. Damrau with this method, an average weight loss of seven pounds was registered per month among a large number of people.



Irene Rich, over 40, weighs the same as she did at 16. She says: "Eat sensibly—Drink Welch's Grape Juice."

This remarkable method is just as beneficial and effective for overweight men as it is for overweight women. There is only one thing to watch. Eat sensibly, and be sure to use Welch's Grape Juice—made from the finest grapes grown; always full strength; always pure.

Try This Amazing Welch's Tomato Juice

If you think all Tomato Juice is alike, try Welch's new, vitamin-protected Tomato Juice. It is so rich and thick you can add ⅓ water or ice and still have the most delicious Tomato Juice you have ever tasted.

SAFE HERE IN THIS FILTHY BASEMENT? HA! HA! YES-SAFE! LIKE A RAT IN A TRAP- THE POLICE SAW ME- CALLED ME BY NAME- EVERY COPPER IN THIS CITY IS HUNTING FOR ME, RIGHT NOW-
BUT NOBODY BUT ME KNOWS ABOUT THIS HIDE-OUT- I'VE BRUNG YOUR DINNER AND TH' PAPERS- THIS PLACE AIN'T NOTHIN' LIKE YOU WAS IN JAIL-
TCH! TCH! TCH! NELSON BRITTLEWIT IS NO MORE--- TO THE PAPERS AND PUBLIC, HE PROBABLY WAS ONLY ANOTHER OBSCURE VICTIM OF THE POLICY RACKET--- BUT TO CHAIN, AND THE POLICE, WHO WERE JUST IN TIME TO WITNESS HIS VIOLENT TAKE-OFF, THE TRUTH IS CLEAR--- BLABBLE ESCAPED CAPTURE THROUGH A HAIL OF BULLETS--- BUT HE WAS RECOGNIZED--- HIS DOOM IS SEALED--OR IS IT?
BR-R-R--- SHUT UP, FOOL--- IF I ONLY KNEW WHO IS BACK OF ALL THIS- TAPPING MY OFFICE- AND THOSE POLICE- SOME ONE TIPPED THEM OFF- IT COULDN'T HAVE BEEN BRITTLEWIT--- WHO---
OH, I MEANT TO TELL YOU- THE POLICE- THEY FOLLOWED ME--- THEY STOPPED ME ON MY WAY HERE---AND---
WHAT? WHAT DID THEY SAY? DIDN'T YOU GET ANYTHING OUT OF THEM?
WELL, I GOT THIS LUMP ON MY JAW FROM TH' SERGEANT. BUT THEY WERE ASKIN', NOT TELLIN'-
YOU IDIOT- NO DOUBT THEY'VE TRAILED YOU RIGHT TO THIS DOOR-
NO- ONE DETECTIVE DID HANG ON FOR 'MOST TEN BLOCKS, BUT I LEFT HIM CHASIN' HIMSELF IN A REVOLVIN' DOOR, LIKE ONE O' THEM LITTLE SQUIRRELS IN A CAGE-
THAT BRAT- SHE'S BEEN POISON FROM THE FIRST- SHE'S AT THE BOTTOM OF THIS SOME WAY- BUT HOW? SHE'S DEAD--- IT ALL SEEMED SO SURE- AN UNKNOWN ORPHAN---- TCH! TCH! AND ALL THAT MONEY GONE- SUCH A LOT OF WORK, ALL FOR NOTHING- TCH-TCH-TCH!
WHILE AT THE OLD BLADE HOUSE----
WHAT? YOU WANT MRS. BRITTLEWIT TO THINK MR. B. DIED A HERO? AFTER HIM TRYIN' HIS BEST TO KILL YOU? WHY, IT WOULDN'T BE HONEST- IT'D BE A LIE-
POPPYCOCK! IT'D BE A WHITE LIE- I'M ALIVE- HE ISN'T- WHY SHOULD I HOLD A GRUDGE- SHE LOVED HIM- TRUSTED HIM- SHE'S BEEN HURT TERRIBLE- WHY HURT HER WORSE?
CAN'TCHA GET IT? NOBODY IS GOIN' TO GET ACCUSED O' TRYIN' TO KILL ME- BLABBLE'S BIG TROUBLE IS FOR WHAT HE DID TO BRITTLEWIT--- WITH WITNESSES-
HM-M-M--- I GUESS THE TRUTH CAN BE KEPT FROM MRS. BRITTLEWIT AT THAT- I'LL SEE WHAT MR. BLADE HAS TO SAY----
I SAY DO EXACTLY AS ANNIE REQUESTS- THERE'S TOO MUCH CRUELTY AND HEART-ACHE IN THE WORLD AT BEST- WHY ADD TO IT NEEDLESSLY? WHAT SOCIETY NEEDS IS MORE SOULS AS KIND, THOUGHTFUL AND FORGIVING AS ANNIE'S-
I GUESS YOU SAID SOMETHING THAT TIME, MR. BLADE- I'LL KEEP MY BIG MOUTH SHUT-
OH- SO CECIL GOT AWAY FROM YOU, EH? HOW COULD A DUMB OX THAT BIG GET AWAY FROM EVEN A BLIND CRIPPLE?
CHEE! I DUNNO- I WAS SO CLOSE I COULD TOUCH HIM, SEE? WELL, HE GOT ME SPINNIN' IN A REVOLVIN' DOOR, AND WHEN I GETS LOOSE HE'S GONE!
IT MAKES LITTLE DIFFERENCE- ALL WE WANT IS TO BRING BLABBLE INTO THE OPEN- THAT WILL BE EASY, I FANCY- HE BELIEVES ANNIE DEAD- HEH! HEH! HEH! ANNIE! OH, ANNIE! COME HERE A SECOND, PLEASE-
TWENTY MINUTES LATER CECIL'S FAITH IN THINGS-AS-THEY-SHOUD-BE IS BLASTED TO THE VERY CORE-GHOST! IT'S HER GHOST! OH, I MUST TELL MR. BLABBLE RIGHT AWAY!

IT'S TRUE! NEW SOAP MAKES OLD MACHINES WASH WHITE CLOTHES 4 TO 5 SHADES WHITER

Yet This Amazing Soap Is So Safe, That Every Washable Color Comes Out Sparkling, Brilliant!

Don't blame your washing machine because it is old—because clothes come gray and dingy! Simply switch to this new and amazing laundry soap, OXYDOL, and see your white clothes wash 4 to 5 shades whiter! OXYDOL is the latest amazing laundry soap, developed by the makers of gentle Ivory. It is the result of a new formula which makes mild, gentle soap 2 to 3 times whiter washing—yet keeps it safe! And—a patented process which makes it far faster acting!

What It Does

OXYDOL works on an utterly new principle. It soaks out the dirt while the washer is running . . . you get a double action wash! Thus white clothes wash snowy white in record time . . . even in old model machines!

You get your wash done in 25% to 40% less time! You save wear and tear on clothes, because you don't have to run the washer so long. No dirty spots to scrub out by hand, either, because OXYDOL'S thick, 3-inch suds soaks out the dirt for you!

In tub washing, OXYDOL saves the back-breaking scrubbing and boiling. You soak clothes just 15 minutes to the tubful, and white clothes wash 4 to 5 shades whiter than with less modern soaps. Even the "tough" spots come snowy white with a quick rub between the fingers.

Yet OXYDOL is so safe that every washable color comes out brilliant, fresh! Even sheer cotton prints washed 100 consecutive times in OXYDOL suds, showed no perceptible sign of fading.

No wonder women by the thousands are switching to this whiter washing, faster washing laundry soap. And finding that their old washing machine gives results that amaze them!

OXYDOL is economical, too. Tests show that, cup for cup, one package will go 1/3 to 1/2 again as far as even the latest soap chips on the market. Get OXYDOL today. Procter & Gamble.

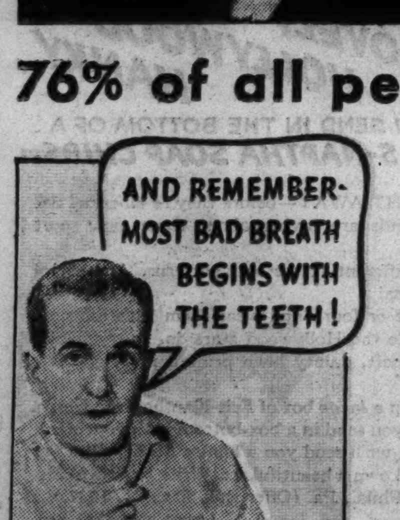
76% of all people over the age of 17 have bad breath!

Read how Colgate Dental Cream protects you



TESTS among 2,152 men and women (of all ages and from all walks of life) indicate that 76% of all people over the age of 17 have bad breath! Tests also show that most bad breath comes from improperly cleaned teeth!

Ordinary cleansing methods, which merely polish the exposed surfaces of your teeth, fail to remove the decaying food deposits in hidden crevices between your teeth. And these deposits, tests show, are the source of most bad breath, dull, dingy teeth, and much tooth decay.

But Colgate Dental Cream has a special penetrating foam which gets into every tiny crevice —emulsifying and washing away those food and acid deposits that cause bad breath.

At the same time, Colgate's soft, safe polishing agent gently yet thoroughly cleans and brightens enamel—makes your teeth sparkle—gives new brilliance to your smile.

So brush your teeth, gums, tongue with Colgate Dental Cream at least twice daily and have cleaner, brighter teeth—sweeter, purer breath!

...JOE'S CONSTANT COLDS ENDANGERED HIS JOB!

How PEPSODENT ANTISEPTIC helped 400 Illinois people GET RID OF COLDS FASTER! *

Amazing test made on people living together, working together, eating the same foods . . . some gargled — some did not

● A doctor supervised this controlled test—an eye-opening test that positively proved that Pepsodent Antiseptic did reduce the number and duration of colds.

He worked for two winters, with 1400 cases in all. The people lived together. They worked together. They ate the same kind of food. One group of 400 people gargled with Pepsodent Antiseptic twice a day. The other group did not.

The doctor's report showed that:

1. The group which did not gargle with Pepsodent had an average of 70% more colds than those who gargled with Pepsodent Antiseptic regularly.
2. Those who gargled with Pepsodent Antiseptic regularly, and did catch cold, got rid of their colds faster.

There's definite proof! Pepsodent Antiseptic actually helped prevent colds! And considerably cut down the average length of a cold!

Goes 3 times as far

To kill germs, ordinary mouth antiseptics must be used full strength. A majority of the people in the test used Pepsodent Antiseptic diluted with 2 parts water! Thereby you not only get clear-cut proof as to the effectiveness of Pepsodent—but also proof as to the real economy of Pepsodent Antiseptic.

* These statements are based upon the reports in our own files. Naturally, in cases of severe or recurring colds, the advice of a competent physician should be sought.

SHE'S OUT OF GAS, SKEEZIX! THROW OUT YOUR CLUTCH AN' LET HER COAST.
IT IS OUT!
BOY! LOOK AT THAT!
ARE WE AFRAID OF DANGER? WE EAT IT UP!
CAN YOU IMAGINE A BREAK LIKE THIS!!
OUR LUCK HAS SURE CHANGED, TOPS!
WE'VE DITCHED OUR JINX! LOOK AT THAT!
HOW MANY?
ONE GALLON.
TWENTY-FOUR CENTS.
GIVE IT TO HIM, SKEEZIX AN' LET'S GET GOIN'
ME? I HAVEN'T GOT A NICKEL ON ME.
I'LL LEAVE MY DOLLAR WATCH WITH YOU UNTIL WE BRING THE MONEY, MISTER
AN' MY SIX BIT JACK KNIFE
NOTHIN' STIRRIN'
THERE'S JUST ONE THING YOU CAN PAWN WITH ME—YOUR CARBURETOR.
BUT WE CAN'T MOVE WITHOUT IT
HOW WILL WE GET THE MONEY?
SUIT YOURSELF. EITHER THAT OR I'LL DRAIN THE GAS.

MARINELLO
NOVEMBER 14, 1937.

AN OPEN LETTER TO AMBITIOUS GIRLS.

I wonder if, after reading all the advertisements, you are not of the same opinion as I am—that it is all rather confusing, if you were to believe all you read. So, lets get down to cases on Beauty Culture and let your own good judgment determine your choice of school. Here is the way I would put it. Don't you agree that this sums up your basis for selection?

FIRST—I would choose a school with an organization background as manufacturers which guarantees contact with the better beauty salons throughout America. Why? Because then I would be more positive of my future opportunity for success. SECOND—I would choose a school where I would be assured thorough instruction in ALL lines of Beauty Culture [Zotos Permanent Wave is an exclusive Marinello product and is taught only at Marinello]. THIRD—I would prefer a school where classes are limited to a number which permits the maximum of INDIVIDUAL INSTRUCTION. After all, even the best teachers are handicapped if the classes they teach are unwieldy, and so large that close contact with each student is not possible. The "largest" [whether in square feet of area or number] would not interest me, because I know, just as you do, that education cannot be put on a mass production basis. I would select the foremost of all schools as judged by its world-wide reputation, the outstanding successes achieved by its graduates, and the demand by employers for beauticians trained in its courses.

If you are planning a career in modern scientific Beauty Culture it will be to your advantage to have a personal talk with me at Marinello [National School of Cosmeticians, Inc.], 108 N. State-st. If you cannot do this, write, or phone State 5057 for National Descriptive Manual. A limited number of students enrolling for our class of Nov. 22d will receive an extra dividend.

LOUIS A. PERRAUD, DEAN.

Famous Hairdressers Indorse and Welcome Wilfred System of Beauty Culture to Chicago

The merger of Wilfred Academy and the Chicago Hairdressing Academy—under the Wilfred banner and under John Mueller's guidance, has brought forth innumerable letters which welcome and praise the world renowned Wilfred System of beauty culture training.

Read what Chicago's most outstanding beauty experts say about Wilfred Academy and John Mueller.

MARC GARTMAN of the exclusive Marc Gartman Salon writes: "I am familiar with the Wilfred System and am certainly glad that Wilfred trained operators can now be secured more easily. Under the leadership of John Mueller, I know you will continue to stand out as America's leading beauty culture school."

MAX HOEFER, Outstanding Hair Coloring Artist, states: "Allow me to congratulate you and the Wilfred System, and to wish you many more years of continued success which you have so long enjoyed as Chicago's prominent Beauty School owner. I sincerely believe that the success of Chicago's Wilfred Academy is already assured, and the students desiring competent training will find it in your institution under your supervision and training, and the finest of modern equipment."

Visit Wilfred Academy. See why Marc Gartman, Max Hoefer, Stone & Flechtl, Condos, Emil Rohde, and others recommend Wilfred training for success in beauty culture.

An old, conservative, nationally known and advertised $34,000,000 Eastern Corporation must expand its sales organization. Sales increased 55% in 1936 over preceding year and so far this year are 62% ahead of 1936.

Our business, which has universal appeal, is building guaranteed incomes [not life insurance]. Over 40,000 customers in the Chicago area.

We want ambitious, successful men between 30 and 55 years of age, of high character, appearance, reputation, and background, capable of earning at least $500.00 a month on a generous commission and bonus arrangement, and who want to become permanently associated with this rapidly growing institution which offers an unusual opportunity for advancement in executive and managerial positions. Selling experience not necessary as the few men selected will be trained thoroughly.

Mention experience, references, phone. ADDRESS E G 535, TRIBUNE.

WHAT KIND OF JOB ARE YOU LOOKING FOR?

Isn't a permanent position with good income and opportunity for advancement with a large company what you want? If you are a serious minded young man interested in your future and if you are 21 to 35 years of age and of neat appearance, Commonwealth Edison Company will consider you for a position in the Appliance Sales Department. If you meet with the above qualifications and you have the right attitude, previous experience is unnecessary. The electrical business is a growing business and men in it receive good percentage plus bonus and in addition a drawing account is available for those who qualify. Apply Monday, Room 1230, 140 South Dearborn street, 9 a. m. to 11 a. m. only.

AIR CONDITIONING AND REFRIGERATION

YEAR 'ROUND INDUSTRY NEEDS TRAINED MEN AT ONCE.

Get started NOW in the new but already booming Air Conditioning and Refrigeration Industry. Get started NOW while there are far more jobs than trained men to fill them . . . while the field is wide open for quick jumps to important posts . . . while there is plenty of room at the top.

HOW to get started? It takes training such as you get in Thermo Institute courses. Home-and-shop or resident study in fully equipped Chicago school gives you theory and principles . . plus actual practice on the very equipment that you'll build, sell, install, operate, or service after you graduate.

The "early birds" are getting this training NOW. Do you have the vision and plain "get-up" to be among the first in this rising industry? Prove it . . send for free 16-page book, "The Air You Breath." Day School opens November 15. Join Night Classes now in session.

WHITAKER'S
PHOTO-TOUR.
In the quiet comfort of our photo-tour room you may conveniently and profitably survey the North Shore Real Estate market. Homes which meet your needs and are in your price range in any one of the villages will be brought to you by means of 4x5 foot projections. In a few minutes you can comb the North Shore and outlying suburbs and see many houses which otherwise you would miss. Detailed information on the properties that interest you will be given by well informed territory specialists in the privacy of a photo-tour room. With ease you can select the houses you wish to inspect. When you are ready to make your final decision you can act with certainty.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Bob Becker

Swans Moved In

November 13, 1937.

THREE black swans, four white swans, and the white cygnet hatched this spring on the experimental farm have been moved into their winter quarters. When cold weather arrives the birds will have a snug shelter close to the big pond.

It didn't take long for the black swans to show their dominance over the white birds after they had been moved. When we looked into the swan house the other morning the three black birds were paddling around in the tank and forcing the white birds to stay away from the swimming. Last winter the black swans monopolized the tank most of the time so the white swans had to go outside to the pond when they wanted a swim.

The men on the farm will have to start a duck laundry if they want to keep some of the Muscovys clean. Some of the ducks in the barnyard like to get under the automobiles which visitors drive into the yard. If the car happens to drip grease the white Muscovys take an added color while they're resting. We saw several of these blackened Muscovys the other day. One old drake had been in a tank of water taking a few dips to get the grease off, but he hadn't been very successful. His tail feathers still were black!

Guinea Fowl Separated.

The guinea fowl on the Wheaton farm, which have been sticking together in one big flock since this summer, now have separated. About 40 guineas were together all summer—grazing in the fields to form a sort of united front against the turkeys and the chickens in the barnyard. The other day we noticed that some of the guineas were in the barnyard, a few were in a plowed field, and others were in a pasture near the sheep barn.

Very little snow this winter—that is the forecast of weather prophets on the Wheaton farm, who base their predictions on the condition of the breastbones of the Muscovy ducks dressed for table use. Up to this time four Muscovys have been examined. The first breastbone was white, but the other three were gray. According to Indian tradition, white breastbones of ducks indicate lots of snow during the winter, while gray breastbones indicate very little snowfall. We have watched this weather indicator for several winters. Each time it has been quite accurate.

Squirrels Land in Trap.

A live trap which has been set near one of the farm ponds to catch poultry killing predators has provided a victim almost every other morning. The only trouble is that the animal caught is not the kind wanted. This trap has been put out near one of the ponds to catch raccoons or opossums, but its only victims so far have been fox squirrels. The other morning we walked past one of these traps and saw that a squirrel had walked into it and sprung it. The boys visit the traps each morning and release the squirrels.

Among the predators that the traps are waiting for are house rats, which seem to be traveling at this season of the year. Two of the men on the farm told us recently that while they hadn't seen signs of rats this summer, they now are being bothered with the animals, which have come into the barns. During the next few days these unwelcome visitors will get a few meals of red squill powder on meat and bread. Red squill will kill rats, but government tests show that it will not harm chickens, dogs, cats, cattle, or other farm animals. It was successfully used on the Tribune farm last fall, when most of the rat population was cleaned out.

REAL ESTATE LOANS, MORTGAGES.

MR. & MRS. K. WERE SO THANKFUL when we made their mortgage. The house a frame bldg, about 22 yrs. old, did not permit a loan large enough to pay off the old mortgage in back taxes, so we got the present mortgage reduced from $4,800 to $3,500 & thus saved our client's from losing their home by foreclosure.
Now they are really happy, for they are paying off their mortgage in 15 yrs. by making comfortable monthly payments. There won't be any more commission, fees, or other charges to be paid, no more run around, no more anxiety or headaches.
We lend 80% of the value on homes, apts., stores—brick, stucco, frame—to build, refinance, repair or buy. F. H. A. 5%, 20 yrs. or 4 other plans. Small charges; on choice loans none.

USED AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE.

Community Motors Used Car Factory

Community Motors retails more new and used cars than any other company in Chicago, and it is because of this tremendous volume that we were able to develop a

NEW PROCESS

This new process is so new and so different that it will completely change the automobile industry.

No matter what your previous idea may have been about a used car, you will change it completely when you see a "COMMUNITY RE-NEWED" Good-Will Used Car, because nothing like this has been done before.

To introduce these "COMMUNITY RE-NEWED" Good Will Used Cars to Chicago quickly, we offer

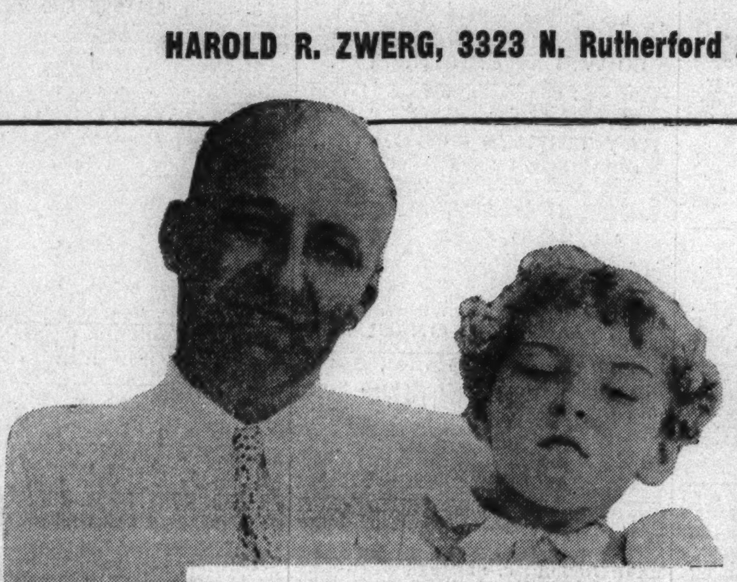
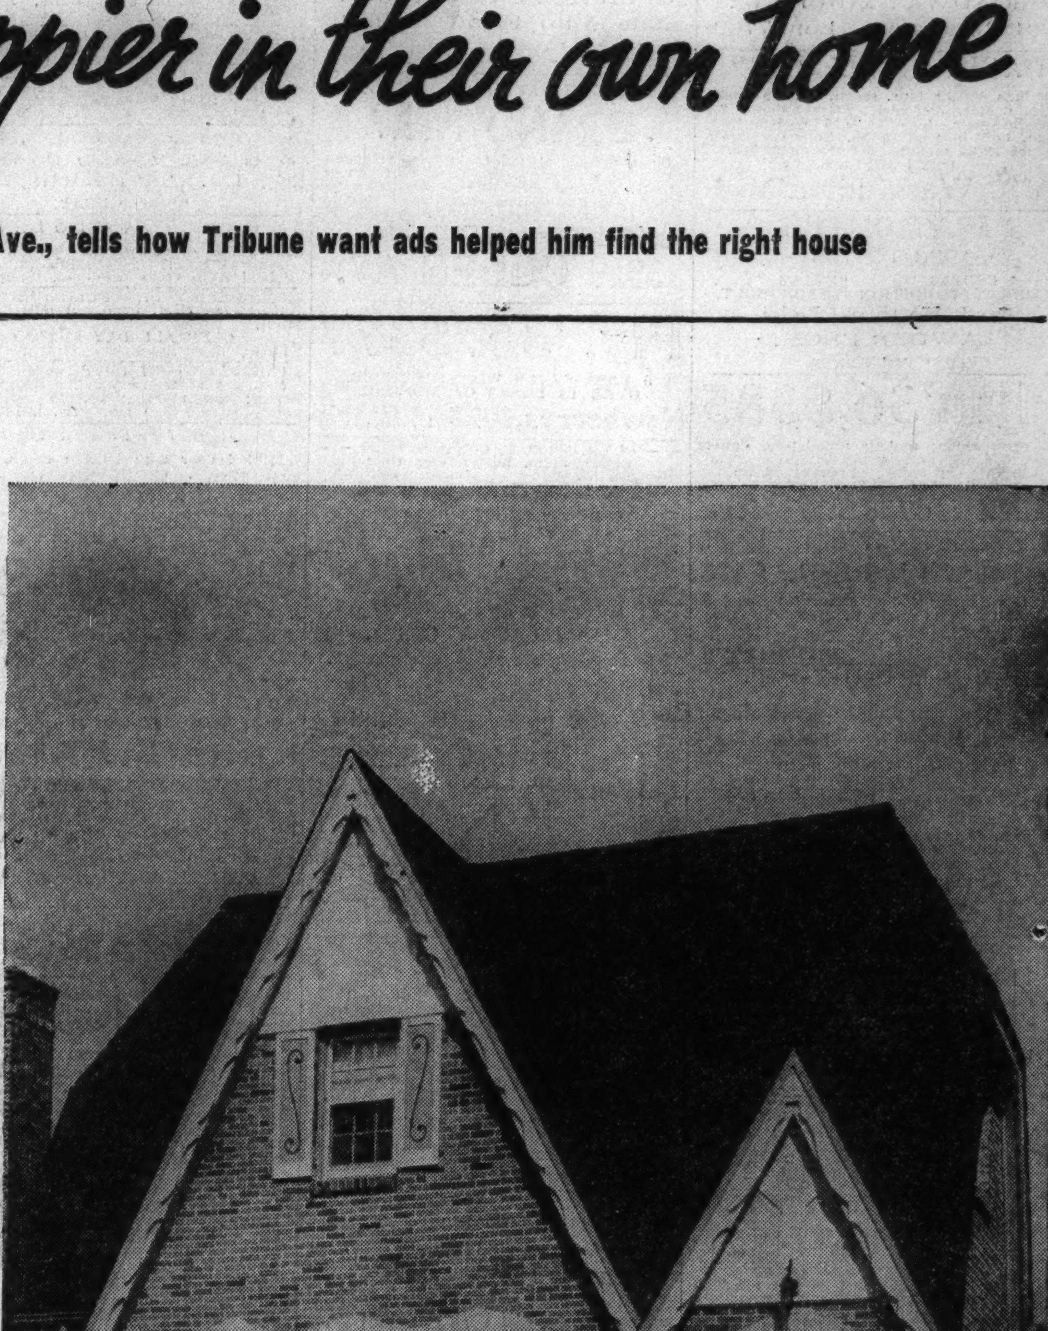
"Children are happier in their own home"

HAROLD R. ZWERG, 3323 N. Rutherford Ave., tells how Tribune want ads helped him find the right house





Harold R. Zwerg located this house through a Tribune want ad. There are five rooms, bath, and a garage.

"OUR experience indicates that people will often do for their children what they won't do for themselves.

"We lived in apartments after we were married. But when our daughter, Carolyn, started to grow up we began to think that she might be happier living in a house of our own.

Wanted a Modern Home

"From time to time we looked at houses without seeing anything we particularly liked. We wanted something very modern in a small house—arched doorways, the latest in plumbing fixtures, steel cabinets in the kitchen, and all the rest of it.

"Somewhere in our search we got the idea of looking in the Tribune want ads. A Tribune want ad brought us to see this house which was just nearing completion on a street of new houses.

"We called up the advertiser, Albert J. Schorsch & Co., 6059 Irving Park Boulevard, and talked business to Martin Schorsch.

Payments $67 a Month

"As a result, we bought the house for $9,500. The cubic foot cost comes to only thirty cents. I don't know how they can do it at present building costs.

"Our payments amount to $67 a month. This includes interest, taxes and prepayments. Heating is about another $100 a year. All items not accountable to principal actually come to less than rent.

"In every way our purchase is very satisfactory to us. We are glad we consulted Tribune want ads."

Albert J. Schorsch, Albert J. Schorsch & Co. 6059 Irving Park Blvd.

"A short time ago one of our advertisments in the Chicago Tribune want ad section brought Mr. and Mrs. Harold R. Zwerg to inspect one of the homes in our new development in the 3300 block on Rutherford Avenue. They were pleased with the building, price, and terms, and a sale was soon consummated by Mr. Martin Schorsch.

"Rutherford Avenue is a street of new homes. There we have twelve houses now under roof, and are starting ten more. Fifty per cent of them have already been sold—mostly through the Tribune. More than twenty years of advertising have convinced us that your newspaper is the best medium."

Living room in the Zwerg's new home

The quick, easy way to find the house, bungalow or building site you want is through the Tribune want ad section. The Tribune has helped thousands of families buy homes advantageously. It can help you. Today, as for more than 20 years, the Tribune prints more real estate want advertising than any other Chicago newspaper.

Dress Parade Clothes Are Stealing the Fashion Spotlight

Clinging, Supersophisticated Evening Gowns Are Fashioned of Materials That Drape Softly and Subtly

By RHEA SEEGER

DRESS parade clothes steal every spotlight; they're the top attraction of every fashion show; they are so new and different that every one spends the cash supply without resistance. For the first time in years there is a definite trend or influence toward encouraging the desire for "dressing." You can't slip into a dress in the early hours of the morning and still be well enough dressed to cling to the same gown through dinner and a theater engagement. There are afternoon dresses that no one in her right mind would think of wearing before 2 p. m. There are wickedly sophisticated cocktail costumes that were made expressly for those exciting sixty minutes before dinner, and there are so many stunning dinner clothes that how any one can resist them is beyond a good alibi. And there are dozens of such superlatively smart evening gowns that properly appreciative shoppers will stage a party of their own just for an excuse to wear them.

Dance dresses are classed by themselves—usually decoratively full skirted affairs, visions of net, clouds of tulle, lace, or chiffon, some made with as many as twenty yards in the skirt, a mere scrap of the material for the fitted bodice, and with slender waistlines, accented with flashing bands of metal ribbon or braid.

Clinging, supersophisticated gowns are of this year's vintage. Materials are used that reveal the streamlines, that drape softly and subtly; daringly dramatic creations are the result. High waistlines are featured, and deep, deep necklines that are wide and low. Uncut velvet, duvetyn, and a new fabric, a silk and wool jersey, are the most popular materials. Black leads the parade in the newest of clinging dinner clothes, and long, fitted sleeves are "in" again. It takes a smooth, slender streamline to wear them, but the finished effect is well worth a couple of weeks' strenuous dieting.

Color combines are raging most successfully, but they're combines mixed by experts. Nothing crude or gaudy, but color with color, knowingly combined. There are more feminine accents—not the bold, breath-taking get-togethers, but subtle dramatics in typical French alliances, colors that we haven't seen, much less worn, for over a decade of fashions. Wools as soft as chiffon, thick drapable crêpes, luscious satins are the materials that come in such colors and jewel-like tones for contrast with dull black or deep brown and black-greens.

It's quite true that the current fashions have a bad case of glitters, but stunning unsequined dresses can be found, and lots of them, beautifully simple things, with details and fine workmanship and exquisite materials that invariably mark the loveliest of gowns. Some of the most beautiful gowns of the winter will be draped, slinky dinner clothes made of a newly achieved silk and wool jersey material, a material that will not snag, will not stretch, and that will drape alluringly and gracefully over any streamline. Long fitted sleeves are new, especially in smart dinner costumes, costumes with daringly low cut necklines, with long, revealing silhouettes. These come in dull black and colors and will not be trimmed with the flashing inches of sequins.

Fringed creations, probably the most feminine of gowns, are exceptionally attractive. Luscious white dresses with the fringe swinging from the waist or high hipline take the breath away from the more susceptible; steel gray crêpe combined with matching silk fringe is something to lure the last penny from the most hardened of shoppers. Black silk fringe combined with heavy dull black crêpe still takes all votes among the masculine spectators, and red can do almost the same trick.

Lace, in indescribably beautiful patterns, is this season's pet. Fragile feminine costumes for dinner combine net with fine lace, making a gown and jacket; without the jacket, a most appealing gown for dancing. Gray lace, lacker red lace, and black make the best spotlights, with frosty white used for some highly decorative debutante models and lovely dance dresses for the younger crowd. Copper brown and cocoa brown lace, two stunning colors for redheads, are finds in the lace collections.

Slipper satin in picturesque bonbon colors makes ideal full skirted fancy dresses, the kind with a mere scrap of a bodice and a circular cut, very full skirt. Cloud blue, pastel pinks, mint greens, and white are the most popular shades. Some have short detachable boleros of silver or gold, and there's a slick new old gold color that can't be equaled for copper-tops in this shimmering slipper satin.

Yards of taffeta, good, noisy, rustling stuff, makes the best of the picture book party gowns, romantic, full skirted gowns copied from Spanish costumes. A very full skirt is shirred onto a long waisted bodice, with either very short sleeves or long affairs that end in points well down over the hand. They have deep, wide, and daring necklines in front, with a prim row of covered buttons down the back.

Children Need to Be Taught Money's Value

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1937: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

I HAVE a lot of faith in the ability of the average, intelligent, normal person to deal with life as it comes along. And I don't think boys and girls have necessarily to be trained, I mean specifically trained, to meet all the practical problems they will be faced with when they grow up and earn their own living and run their own homes.

But, on the other hand, I certainly do not believe in bringing a boy or girl up to be helpless. If, however, you have good solid, common sense, you can use daily family living so that, little by little, your children will learn to use their hands and their heads, learn to do things for themselves and other people, to become self-reliant, to handle money, and in general to develop character and adaptability. Such an upbringing as this fits them to cope with life, fundamentally and practically too.

What brought this to my mind was the wail of a mother one evening not long ago.

"I'm in despair about my children. Neither Anne, nor Ben, nor Allan has the faintest idea of the value of money. It slips through Anne's fingers like water, she's so extravagant. Allan is so generous he never has anything left. And Ben isn't overly generous, but he's utterly irresponsible about it. Yet they all do know that to pay for their education we have to do the most careful managing. I tremble to think how they're going to get along. I've surely failed on that score."

These young people are all of college age, and any one who knew them couldn't help agreeing mentally that this part of their home training had been entirely overlooked. The fact that they had spent all their winters in boarding school made it all the more necessary that principles in the use of money should long ago have been inculcated, at least during their vacations.

THE wise use of money was one of the things I was thinking of when I said I didn't believe children needed specific training for every practical problem they will be faced with when they are grown, but that a general training in living all along the way would give them the ability to use judgment and self-discipline in meeting the various situations that arose.

But as we carry on this general training to help our child in the whole business of living, surely some sense of the value of money and a sense of its right place in the world is part of even this general training and should be gradually implanted in him. Doing it gradually and beginning young is infinitely better than trying to do it all at once when your child is nearly grown.

First, to be impractical perhaps but fundamental, there's the sense of the right place of money in life. If there ever was anything more absorbable by a child than the attitude of his parents on this point I don't know of it. How can one expect a child to value people absolutely for themselves if he has lived in a family where wealth or "means" are considered the greatest advantages in the world, or where penuriousness or money greed exists.

I've seen avarice gleam in a boy's eyes, money-envy or snobbery in a girl's because those things were in the air at home.

SECOND, there are several ways in which parents can inculcate ideas of the practical value of money.

To begin with, there are the opportunities that constantly come up in every day life. A child is sent on errands and is taught to be responsible about them, knowing what things cost, counting the change the grocer or butcher gives him, and reporting back with the articles and the money.

Or older boys and girls are taken shopping. They can learn, then, something of what clothes cost, the matter of quality, and perhaps the budgeting. "If you want this special pair of slippers you will have to spend less on your gloves," or "We'll have to cross off the new slicker if you want an entire new football outfit."

There are some family discussions of money that a boy or girl can "sit in" on, to his or her real advantage. The parents who have this general education in the value of money in mind can find other opportunities, or sometimes make them gradually over a period of years.

ALLOWANCES, I believe and have found from experience, are a great help. The very little child who starts with five cents a week all his own, then progresses birthday by birthday by fives to ten, twenty, and thirty cents a week, can learn a lot about money. He sees that money can be wasted, that it can be frittered away, that it can be made to get him something he really wants.

And he can learn one of the most important lessons of life with it, self-control and vision. How? By denying himself many small indulgences of the moment and saving that money to buy later on something of greater importance. And he can learn to save by self-discipline so that he will have money with which to buy something for those he loves.

Many advisers to parents recommend giving young boys and girls an allowance with a great deal of coverage, for clothes, room furnishings, pleasures, and so forth. Well, their budget—lay such a sum aside. Most of us have to do too much juggling with our funds for this. But an allowance should be increased and its purposes expanded where possible. However, this whole subject of allowances we went into fully not long ago.

"Allowances, or the Wise Use of Money" is the name of a booklet helpful to parents. It will be sent out on receipt of a 3 cent stamped, self-addressed envelope. Address Mrs. Bevans, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

By Clotilde.

ALL the smart lines which are being sponsored for slim, young things are incorporated in this charming afternoon frock available in sizes up to 50. Which proves that clever stylists CAN do graceful things for the larger figure without sacrificing chic or adhering to dowdy lines.

Slenderness is inherent in the design of this frock. No matter what your proportions, it will make you seem slim as a skyscraper, tall and distinguished. It has a plain V neckline which may be adorned with a touch of contrasting fabric, if desired. The soft fullness emanating from the waistline sector glorifies the bodice. The sleeves are broadened at the shoulders and may be long, short, or short and full. Around the waist you may have a tailored belt or a graceful sash. The skirt is a paneled affair without plaits but with plenty of width for both grace and comfort.

Sheer woolen, satin crêpe, silks with novelty weaves, velvet and plain flat crêpe all are suitable and seasonally smart. Black is, of course, a standby for the mature figure, but others of the year's smart shades are equally effective and slenderizing.

This dress is amazingly simple to sew. Even if you are an amateur at dressmaking you can fashion the model for yourself, because there is very little fitting to be done and a diagrammed chart accompanies the pattern, making it wonderfully easy to follow.

Style No. 2009 is designed for sizes 16, 18 and 20 years, and 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 4 yards of 39 inch material.

Glamor Girls Clutter Paris Style Salons

By Bettina Bedwell.

THE Pariscape these last weeks has been so cluttered up with international glamor girls that you combed them out of your hair and brushed them off your best suit. I didn't step into any of the big league dressmaking places once without practically falling over several. I'm not talking about small fry but such big timers as the duchess of Windsor, duchess of Kent in the nobility class, Marlene Dietrich, Constance Bennett, and Ruth Chatterton from movieland, and Mrs. Harrison Williams and others from overseas, and ladies like baronne de Rothschild and adorable little Princess Karam of international society.

They all shopped. Bien entendu. Paris is having a rich season in clothes and the dressmaker's cash registers click to the quick tempo of 1929 again. The big milliners' salons look like a bargain basement and so on right through the most expensive jewelers and on down.

Marlene Dietrich's Paris orders make it look as if she was trying to top her last year's record of sixty trunks full. She is looking more beautiful than ever and has been getting around everywhere during her late visit.

THERE'S a girl who understands herself and who picks her clothes with an assurance which cannot be bettered by any of the best dressed. It's too bad she doesn't choose her own clothes for the movies she acts in.

Roughly, Marlene's new Paris clothes can be divided into three parts—like Gaul. One part boyish, not to say mannish; one part Greek—remote, classic, and exquisite, and one part woman of the world, the latest idol of the style makers.

Alix, the drapery and line genius, made Marlene's Greek clothes. She has one gown in three versions in black velvet, dark green, and plum color. The drapery begins around the left shoulder and sleeve and winds up at the hem of the skirt which has yards and yards of material in the front. The cap that goes with it is made of tulle covered by felt corkscrew curls, and is the color of the dress. Open gold sandals are worn with it.

ANOTHER Alix frock that Marlene Dietrich ordered is made of very sheer, black silk jersey and is held up by faith, I guess. The drapery is masterly and leaves no doubt about the beautiful femininity of the person inside it, but don't ask me to describe it, for whence it cometh or whither it goeth is just one of those mysteries that baffle master minds.

Alix has designed a whole flock of other clothes for Hollywood's best dressed [in private life] but I must hurry on to some of the other things.

Marlene ordered three suits of pajamas from Schiaparelli among other stunning clothes. They are to garb her boyish moods when she's at home among intimate friends. One of these is an ensemble made of black velvet that never wrinkles and costs a plenty. A jacket that fits skin tight is embroidered in pearls at the front of the shoulders and on the pockets. The men's tailored trousers are attached to a low cut bodice.

Schiaparelli also made her an evening gown of black crêpe that has armlets of Peruvian embroideries that slip on over bare arms, just for the fun of it, and a full length looped panel at the back.

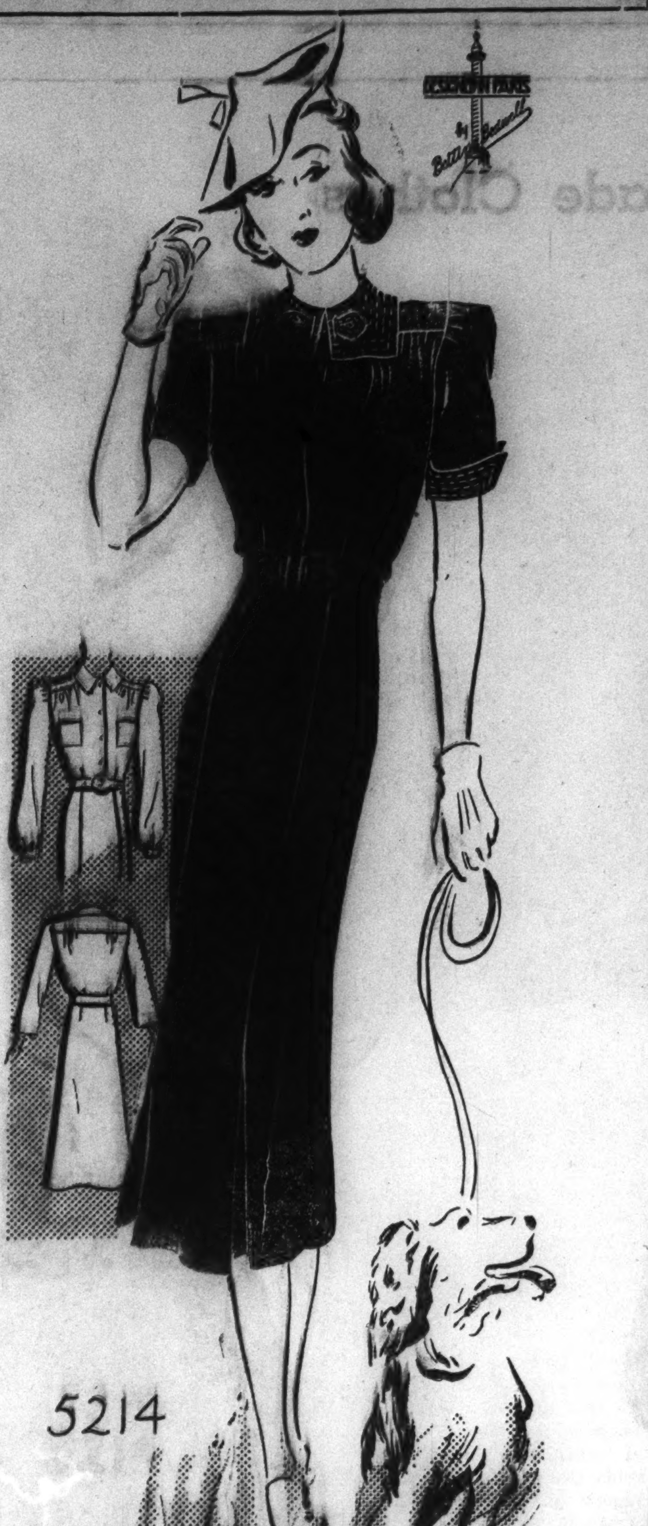
AT Paquin's Marlene ordered a black velvet evening gown with long sleeves and buttoned all the way up to the chin in front, while at the back there is practically nothing but bare flesh just to the waistline. She ordered a number of fur coats and worldly woman ensembles, among them being a dress which is made of very wide striped gold brocade, the stripes being in most of the colors of the rainbow. To slip over this she has a purple velvet evening cloak which is lined with the rainbow striped brocade of the dress.

She likes the high hats that the Paris millinery experts are showing and ordered a dozen of them in different versions. Marlene is one of the few women who doesn't look scared to death under one of these towering structures. She has headdresses or hats to go with almost all of her new clothes.

"Bunny Ears" Are Amusing Trim of This Paris Frock



No. 5214—The Paris pattern for this frock is available in sizes 14 and 16, and in 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46 inches bust measurement.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Trust Paris to make the most of novelties! Details of styling which might hit the conservative American mind as too frivolous are thought "the thing" over here. One of the latest fads in this category are the "bunny ears." You'll see them used to advantage in the smart Paris frock I have adapted for our pattern today, No. 5214.

The dress is strictly tailored, in the best autumn tradition. The collar is a wide and squared one, and is adorned with the "ears." Stitching is important, too. It is repeated in the trim cuffs on the short, square-shouldered sleeves. The same stitching and "ears" appear on the neat and novel belt at the waist.

Shirring is important. It appears just under the shoulder yoke. Tiny stud buttons are used on the front closing of this tailored dress, the French original of which is made of sea spray tissue serge. The stitching and the ears are in the coral reef shade. All sheer woolens and heavy crêpes make up well in this model, and there is no end to the distinctive color combinations you can achieve.

Early Shopper for Christmas Cards Is Wise

What linens should be included in the bride's trousseau? A complete list of linens for bathroom and dining room is given in the helpful booklet, "Selecting the Trousseau," by Helen Bartlett, Tribune etiquet editor. On sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn and Tribune Tower. Price, 3 cents. Postpaid, 5 cents.

By Helen Bartlett.

THERE are a few people in the world who are worse procastinators than I am [I personally know some of them], but my standing still ranks pretty high. So high, in fact, that I keep putting off the day when I start to train myself to overcome the failing, or at least lessen it to some degree. Particularly is this true of my Christmas shopping. I seem to have difficulty in understanding the people who manage to get their Christmas shopping done early and those who have their presents wrapped and tied weeks before the twenty-fifth.

For reasons stated above I find it contrary to my disposition and previous training to get down to the business of the morning, that of discussing the selection, ordering, and engraving of Christmas cards. But, in spite of my own natural tendencies to put off the fun until the last week, I have all the arguments in favor of the early bird. For instance, the early shopper avoids the necessity of battling with the multitude at the stationery counter; she is given a full and complete stock from which to make her selections; and she is assured of good and prompt service from the printers and engravers.

THE actual selection of cards is up to you individually and, like the selection of anything, is a direct reflection of your own tastes and personality. We cannot advise you about that, but we do want to put in a word or two about addresses and signatures.

Printing on Christmas cards is every bit as popular as engraving and is in equally good taste. In fact, in informal cards, printing lends itself much more readily to interesting color and design than does engraving. Whatever your choice happens to be, remember that the two different types of lettering do not combine effectively on the same card. Keep the type on the cards uniform. If the greeting is engraved have the name engraved in as nearly the same type as possible.

There are some people who prefer, for one reason or another, to write their messages of greeting in longhand. This is quite acceptable and appropriate, especially for intimate friends.

THE form of the name or signature on engraved, printed, or personally signed cards depends on the form of the card itself. For instance, if the name preceeds the greeting, the title is used in this way:

Mr. and Mrs. John Smith
Wish You a Merry Christmas . . .

This form seems to be lessening in popularity with each succeeding year.

But if the name or names follow the greeting titles are not used, but rather the signature just as if you were signing a note:

With Best Wishes for a Merry Christmas
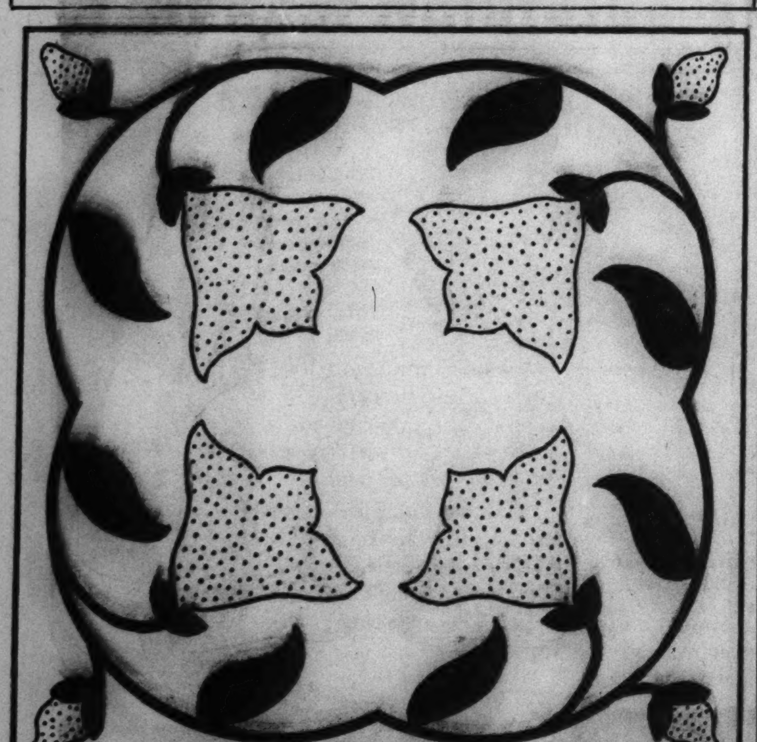
Helen and John Smith

The rule about the correct sequence of names [Helen and John] is that the woman's name should appear first.

Floral Quilt Uses Shades of Blue for Naturalness



BLUE BELL WREATH.

By Nancy Cabot.

"BLUE BELL WREATH" is one of those lovely floral patterns which are made in shades of blue most closely approximating the original flower. If you prefer a color scheme that does not include blue, this applique block may be made equally effective by the judicious use of rose and pink for the flowers and buds, and soft green for the leaves and wreath effect. The beauty of appliqueing this block is that the patches are large and easily sewed together. The finished coverlet measures 84 by 111 inches, since only 12 of these 24 inch squares are required. They are set together with three inch bands between blocks, and surrounded by a three inch border.

Knitted Vestee Is Ideal for Wear Under a Suit

By Jean Macdonald.

SINCE fur capes are so fashionable this fall and winter there is a smart addition which every well dressed woman must wear with it, that is the sleeveless hand knitted vestee with a zipper up the front. The pattern, the ever popular moss stitch, adds great charm to the jacket, which is made for style as well as comfort. These handy vestees may be also worn under a suit or coat, and they have more style value than the old-fashioned hug-me-tights. The ribbing at the neck serves a double purpose. First, it is a trimming for the moss stitch and it aids in the perfect fit of the neck. Tweed mixtures are ideal in shades of tan and brown for wear with brown furs. There are beautiful oxfords and gray tweed mixtures which may be worn with gray kidskins or black. Brilliant cherry reds are handsome additions when worn over a black sheer wool with a black cloth coat. A vivid jade green vestee is stunning when worn with navy blue, if that is the individual preference. An unusual, but effective combination for blondes is a woodland green vestee worn over a deep wine shade in a hand knitted or sheer wool dress.

HOW TO ORDER

If you wish instructions for knitting the vestee illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Jean Macdonald, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago. Be sure to send name and address with your letter.

Turkish Woman Reaches U. S. to Study Economics

A RECENT arrival on the campus of Pembroke college is Miss Afife Sayin of Istanbul, Turkey, who is doing graduate work in economics at Brown university.

A feminist to her finger tips, Miss Sayin believes that if she obtains a Ph. D. in economics before returning to her home she will be the first woman to have such a degree in Turkey. She studied economics at the American College for Girls in Istanbul, from which she was graduated in 1936.

Here's New Trick in Making Tasty Ice Cream Molds

DAINTY individual molds of ice cream may be made by melting chocolate candy bars and pouring part of the melted chocolate into paper baking cups. Tilt the cups to coat the sides and bottoms and then quickly fill them with ice cream. Let the molds stay in the freezing tray of the mechanical refrigerator or in a mold buried in salt and ice for about an hour. Discard the cups before serving time.

Best Remedy for Coughs is Easily Mixed at Home

Needs No Cooking. Big Saving.

To get the quickest relief from coughs due to colds, mix your own remedy at home. Once tried, you'll never use any other kind of cough medicine, and it's so simple and easy.

First, make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. A child could do it. No cooking needed.

Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. This is a concentrated compound of Norway Pine, famous for its prompt action on throat and bronchial membranes.

Put the Pinex into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. Thus you make a full pint of really better medicine than you could buy ready-made for four times the money. It never spoils, and children love its pleasant taste.

And for quick, blessed relief, it has no equal. You can feel it penetrating the air passages in a way that means business. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the inflamed membranes, and eases the soreness. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep.

Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

A FRIEND IN NEED

If you are in need, perhaps I can help you. If you have household articles or clothing you no longer use, please let me place them with needy families. Address correspondence to Sally Joy Brown, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago. Activities of this department are sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

By Sally Joy Brown.

CLOTHING suitable for severe weather is one of the greatest needs facing the poor of the city at the present time. Numerous families on small incomes are unable to provide it for themselves and, because of a serious shortage of funds for relief, none of the thousands of persons on the rolls this year will receive clothing. Budgets have been pared to the limit and it will be impossible for families to purchase attire on such extremely limited incomes. Clothing allowances never have been generous and few families have apparel from last winter.

We have appeals from persons of all ages and sizes, and in all parts of the city. Warm coats, dresses, underwear, stockings and shoes can be easily placed. Won't you look through your surplus clothing and see if you have anything wearable to give to those in need?

E. R. is 25 years old, and has been wearing the coat she now has for eight years. It is no longer usable and she needs a heavy one, size 38, and also would appreciate a sweater and shoes, size 4½C. She recently completed a course of study and is ready for a position, but must have suitable clothing.

"My husband deserted us two years ago and we are on relief. I have three children who need clothing and unless you can help us I don't know what I can do, since my case worker told me that there would be no clothing issued. My boy, 14, needs a suit and coat, size 16, the little girl wears size 4, and the youngest, a boy, wears size 3. I am able to sew and will be glad to alter anything. The oldest boy is attending school and needs a pair of sturdy shoes, size 7½. Please don't think me forward in asking for these things, but I don't know who will aid us if you cannot.—Mrs. F. A."

This address is on the south side of the city.

Mrs. M. on the near north side, has eight children, six of them attending school. All are in need of clothing. There are girls, 13 and 9, and boys 11, 10, 7, 5, 3½ and 1½.

There are five small children in the P. family. All are in need of warm clothing, particularly coats. There are boys 8, 10 and 14, and girls 6 and 11 years old. There are no rugs on the floors and since the home is a basement flat, proper floor covering is necessary to keep it comfortable. A heating stove of some kind also is required. The address is on the north side.

Mr. M. is working, but earns such a small salary that he is unable to provide clothing for his wife and small daughter. Another child is expected and, after paying for rent and fuel and food and setting aside a little for medical and hospital care, there is no money for clothing. The little girl, 4, is delicate and needs warm clothing. The mother needs a coat and dresses, size 52, and is anxious to have clothing for the expected infant. The address is on the north side.

Clotilde Children's Fashions

VERY few models are as suitable for juveniles as the sailor dress, and yet it has been in obscurity for quite some time. We thought it was time for a revival, so here it is in a new version for the current season. The sailor collar is, of course, the largest and the jauntiest yet, complete even to a sailor's knot bow. A pocket to match the collar adorns the left side of the extremely wide skirt, and the same trimming may be attached to the sleeves, either short or long.

Buttons are used down the front of this model, which is basically a princess frock, and either small or large ones may be employed.

Cottons, woolens, challis, poplin, mulle, and silks all make up well. The original is of navy blue serge, with the collar and pocket of white flannel.

Let us not forget something very important—the pattern for a doll's dress. It accompanies No. 2516, and dresses a 19 inch doll. So, when you're buying material for Betsy's dress, remember to buy a little additional of the same fabric for the identical frock for dolly.

Style No. 2516 is designed for sizes 4, 6, and 8 years. Size 4 requires 1½ yards of 35 inch material, with ¾ yard of 35 inch contrasting for the short sleeved dress. The dress for the 19 inch doll requires ⅝ yard of 35 inch material, with ¼ yard of 35 inch contrasting.

Through the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle

[TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

Not since the days of the "hour glass" figure have a well rounded bust and beautiful back and arms been so important in the beauty picture. The flat chested woman must, if she's to be in fashion, adopt a lengthy program of development exercise.

IF we seem preoccupied with the particular beauty problem of the woman who is flat chested, it's only because we find more and more appeals from them in our mail each day. Curves are fashionable and you know what a driving force the urge to be fashionable is!

It isn't easy to develop the flat bust, but it usually isn't impossible. Exercise does it. No lotions or creams will do the trick. The flat chested woman needs arm and shoulder exercises and needs to do them religiously. Deep breathing exercises help, and so do the "flexings" that pull on the muscles at the upper part of the chest. Swimming is wonderful.

If it is at all possible financially, take the exercises under supervision. Lots of salons offer what you need, and at varying prices. In between your supervised sessions do the exercises at home, working with weights if your instructor advises it. Locate the nearest swimming pool and find out what fun and what beautification are to be found in being a mermaid.

There is something to be said for various types of apparatus for building the upper part of the body. In one salon there is an arm and chest exercising machine, on the weight lifting principle, that we think is most efficient. A workout with it, always under supervision, a couple of times a week will show results in a surprisingly short time. Not only are the arm muscles developed, but those important muscles that control the size and firmness of the bust are benefited. For the high, firm line which ever ywoman wants, exercise with this is just about unexcelled.

For the thin woman gaining weight generally is a help, but many stout as well as thin women are flat chested, since the muscles in that part of the body never have been properly developed. To achieve results one must work steadily and patiently. It can be done, and it's worth the effort.

Eleanor Nangle, "through her looking glass," sees everything that is new in the fascinating realm of beauty aids, and tells you about them daily in The Chicago Tribune.

"Camay showed me my skin has Real Beauty"

SAYS THIS DELIGHTFUL FLORIDA BRIDE

SHE'S THE GIRL of his dreams—the girl he loves—and she's a girl with a Camay complexion! "A nice, smooth complexion makes such a difference in your looks!" says lovely Mrs. Wind. "It's pretty nice to know that even if you can't change the color of your eyes or the shape of your nose, you can make your complexion lovelier. Using Camay regularly worked wonders for me!"

It's a wise girl who knows that clear, smooth skin gives her a special charm. And it's a wiser girl who plans, like brown-eyed Mrs. Wind, to keep her complexion clear and smooth the easy Camay way!

If you're looking for a lovelier complexion, here's something you ought to know. No soap has the quick, creamy-rich lather Camay has. Its beauty bubbles are thorough in their cleansing, careful in removing all the dirt and grime that destroy the skin's true beauty.

No other complexion soap is gentler than Camay. Time after time, in tests against leading soaps, on every type of skin, Camay—the real beauty soap—has been the winner. It is definitely, provably milder.

No other complexion soap is better than Camay. Yet this fragrant, fine beauty soap costs so very little. Buy half a dozen cakes today. Start using Camay now for a brighter, fresher-looking skin.

Camay THE SOAP OF BEAUTIFUL WOMEN

Paper Plays Leading Role in Room Design

Do you want help when choosing a color scheme for your home? Dozens of practical, helpful suggestions are given in the inexpensive booklet, "Color Magic in Your Rooms," by Claire Winslow, Tribune stylist in interior decorating. Get a copy at either of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower. Price, 3 cents. Postpaid, 5 cents.

By Claire Winslow.

ROOMS have personalities, just like people. Some are cold and stand-offish, rich looking, but hard to live with. Others are as informal and distracted as a hen with a dozen chicks, while some are pleasant, agreeable, and as comfortable as an open fire on a chilly day.

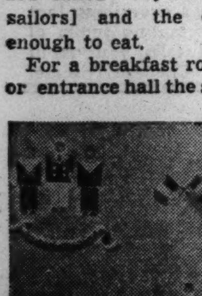
Roses and Roosters.

The sort of room you want depends on the sort of person you are. But no matter what your mood or your income, wall paper will be a powerful factor in the room's personality. It can lift any interior out of the drab, monotonous, uninteresting class and put it in the artistic, or the ultra-smart, or the beautifully traditional ranks.

One new series of designs we saw recently would bring loveliness to any home simply because of their delicate, exquisite colors, but coupled with that are their patterns which are equally unusual and charming. So, taken altogether, they are irresistible.

For a child's room, or a game room or bar [sounds funny, but the pattern is so naïve it fits in any of these places] there is a brand new paper showing three jolly tars in a repeat motif with a pair of crossed flags. It's called "Joyeux Marins" [happy sailors] and the colors are good enough to eat.

For a breakfast room, dining room, or entrance hall the same firm is showing a paper copied from an old flower print. The background, which comes in a number of pastel tints, is barred off into squares and in each of these is a lily [white or colored]. It is one of the most attractive wall papers we've seen in ages. We liked it best in a soft blue with a pure white ground.



Jolly Tars.

A large, sprawly, loose cluster of flowers makes a lovely bedroom paper for a room with a four-poster mahogany bed, or for that matter, for any room except one with a frankly modern setting. Again you have your choice of a half dozen soft, light tones for the background.

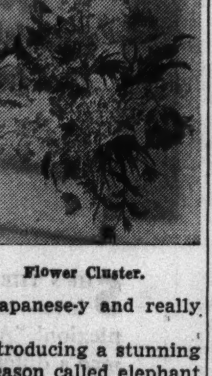
Some of these papers are also made with a gorgeous silver ground. These, of course, are more expensive and are truly distinguished.

A sailing ship that looks as if it were hand painted, instead of printed by a machine, is pictured against a light pink or a pale yellow, a green, a blue, or a silver background and is called "Sargasso."

"Fairfield" is an utterly lovely design that is simply a colored outline of flowers on a tinted ground. With the outlines in blue on white, and in beige on white it is especially pleasing.

Remember the scarlet emery in your grandmother's darning basket? It was shaped like a strawberry. One of the cleverest of the new papers simply showers emeries all over the place. To the uninitiated they are strawberries, but to those of us who recall the white glass darning egg and the satin lined "work basket" of the Victorian era they are emeries.

If you think whimsicality doesn't enter into the manufacture of wall papers, just look at "Roses and Roosters," a delightfully amusing design of roses with white roosters atop of them. Against a background of pale gray, beige, blue or silver they are a bit Japanese-y and really enchanting.



Flower Cluster.

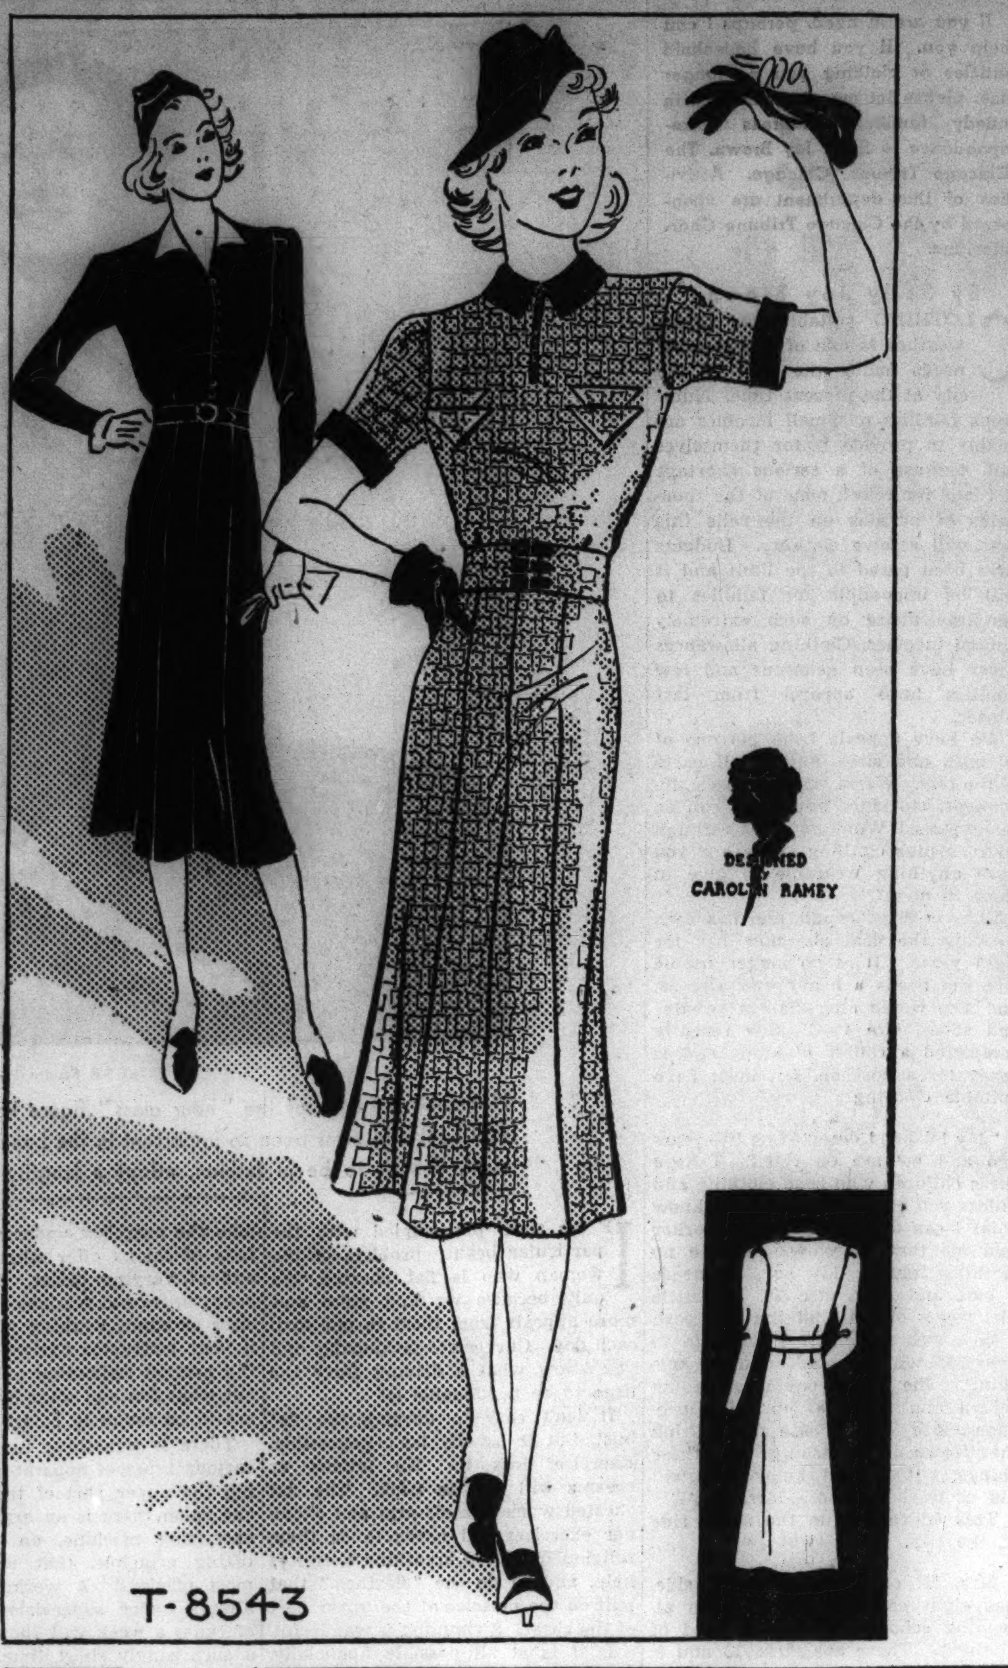
This firm is introducing a stunning new color this season called elephant gray, which makes an unusual background. It looks a little like gunmetal with a plum tinge and is decidedly for the carriage trade.

Then there are a number of engaging flowered papers, among them "Nicotiana," "Horse Chestnut," and "Anemone," as well as some gorgeous, huge, wide stripes. One of the latter in a combination of light yellow and white is unusually smart, and is brand new.

HONEYMOON IN BERMUDA

Mrs. Robert O. Berger was Miss Nancy Lander until her marriage on Oct. 29. She is the daughter of Mrs. Charles Joseph Lander of 1000 Loyola avenue. The wedding took place in the Kenilworth Union church, and Mr. and Mrs. Berger left immediately for a honeymoon in Bermuda. Upon their return the middle of November they will be at home in Kenilworth. [Balfour Photo.]

Campus Modes by a Co-ed



MY life on the campus brings me close to the wardrobe needs of college girls. I know what they want most, and for classroom wear they love the trimly tailored shirtwaist frock. Of course, they've loved this style for years, but it's a perennial favorite that takes beautifully to annual variations. I've designed a model that has a few new details that make it 1937, but definitly!

Take the tricky pockets, for example. They consist of triangles placed one above the other, and they're effective because they're the only decoration on the bodice. There is, of course, the contrasting collar, which is an abbreviated version of the shirtwaist neckline. Cuffs matching it trim the short sleeves, which have only the slightest puff at the shoulders. The wide belt of the material is stiffened to give it body, and a buckle effect made of the contrasting fabric is used. The gored skirt is simple, but just what you want for freedom in walking.

My own dress, which I made to prove this experiment in shirtwaist frocks, is of marine blue woolen. Plaid woolen and velveteen are other practical campus fabrics.

The sketch at the left shows still another adaptation of the pattern. It has revers on a V neckline, long sleeves, buttons, and no pockets. It's a dressier version and may well go to all kinds of informal events.

Tip to business girls: This pattern is for you, too.

Style No. T-8543 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20 years.

Advanced Courses Are Added at N. J. Women's College

ADVANCED courses in chemistry, mathematics and physical education have been added to the curriculum at New Jersey College for Women this fall. Other new courses include studies of comparative religions, races and nationalities.

The new course in comparative religions includes a study of primitive religion, the histories, beliefs and sacred writings of the religions of India, China and Japan, and of the religions native to Persia, Arabia and Palestine. It appraises the value and importance of these in the modern world. The Rev. C. Everard Deems, religious counselor at the college, teaches it.

Races and nationalities, the new sociology course, is open to all students who have studied elementary sociology and is given by Dr. John W. Riley, who was appointed assistant professor of sociology.

Motor ability and achievement tests is a new study in the senior year curriculum of students majoring in physical education.

"Overstuffed" Holiday Menu Thing of Past

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1937: By The Chicago Tribune.]

HOW would you like to sit down to Thanksgiving dinner and labor over eating a menu like this: Beef and mutton soup, roast turkey with chestnut stuffing and giblet gravy, scalloped oysters, jellied cranberries, mashed potatoes, plum jelly, chicken pie, baked ham, and sweet potatoes in cider and maple sirup——?

Did I hear a groan? Well, that's only half of a typical holiday meal, 1860 style. Cornmeal gems, potato bread, squash, pickles, creamed onions, succotash, quince preserves, celery, rice with raisins and brown sugar, mince and pumpkin pies, white and chocolate cakes, fruit, cider, nuts, and coffee completed the meal proper, and then, just to top off everything, bread and cheese were served.

NO wonder great-granddaddy had dyspepsia and great-grandmama had to call in all the neighbors to help get the Thanksgiving dinner ready! A modern hostess, no matter how efficient she may be in kitchen lore, shudders at the thought of preparing that much food for a single meal. Modern Thanksgiving menus have been simplified to make preparation easier and consumption more comfortable. Nobody wants to mow his way through a huge banquet as though he were plowing the east forty and had to take in every square foot of territory.

So the modern Thanksgiving dinner goes something like this: A chilly fruit cocktail of some sort, followed by roast turkey and dressing, either mashed white or candied sweet potatoes, a cooked vegetable, a crisp salad, cranberry sauce, hot rolls, a dessert, coffee, and perhaps after-dinner mints and nuts. This menu is easy on the cook and easier on the digestion.

Although many women continue to serve two kinds of potatoes and several cooked vegetables at a special dinner, this practice is to be discouraged, for it throws the meal out of proper nutritional balance and makes it too heavy for even hard laborers.

THIS is the Thanksgiving dinner which I plan to serve in my own home this year. Many other menus are suggested in this department's booklet, "Holidays and Holiday Meals."

THANKSGIVING DINNER, MODERN STYLE.
Cocktail of Avocado Balls and Grapefruit Segments in Citrus Fruit Juice
Roast Turkey with Oyster Dressing and Cranberry Sauce
Fluffy Mashed Potatoes with Giblet Gravy
Cooked Frozen Peas in Butter
Jellied Raw Vegetable Salad with Carrot Curl Garnish
Hot Rolls Jam
Thanksgiving Date Pudding with Whipped Cream
Coffee Fruit Bowl Nuts

Although turkey is traditional at Thanksgiving, duck, chicken, or ham is quite appropriate. For a simple home dinner to which no guests have been asked, chicken with celery stuffing makes an adequate main course. The objection to chicken for a crowd is that several birds will be required, and the problem of carving at the table will be quite complicated.

The 64 page book which I mentioned carries menus for five different types of Thanksgiving dinner, and the recipes used in the various menus are given. A bit of the history of Thanksgiving also is included in the book. Looking forward to other holidays, there are plans for meals at Christmas, New Year's and other festive holidays. The book may be obtained for 20 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower, or may be ordered through the mail. The mail cost is 23 cents in stamps. Address all mail requests to Mary Meade, CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Miss Meade contributes daily to the feature pages of The Chicago Tribune, guiding housewives to the best knowledge of cookery and hostessing.

Here Are Subtle Ways to Employ Your Fragrances

SMART women are placing several of their frocks on the shower rod while they draw their tub so that the bath oil they use to scent their bath perfumes their dresses at the same time.

A few drops of eau de cologne in the shampoo rinse makes hair smell as fresh as sweet grass. A carnation fragrance is best for this purpose.

The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning value. Do not ask where stamps may be sold, as the Postage Stamps and Coin advertising section adjoining contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

THE discussion of "Chicago Street Car Railway Postoffices" by Robert B. Gear of this city was one of the most interesting subjects brought before the Third American Philatelic congress during its sessions at the La Salle hotel during the last three days of October.

Mr. Gear stated that this service came about in an effort to use the newly organized street railways to speed up the distribution of mail. Chicago was chosen as a subject for the experimental service on account of its great area, which at that time was about four times as large as the territory included within the city of New York.

The first service was instituted late in May, 1895, on the Madison street line of the West Chicago Street Railway company. Later in the same year the postal cars commenced operations on the North Clark street line of the North Chicago Street Railway company and on the Milwaukee avenue line of the West Chicago Street Railway company. During the following year the Cottage Grove line of the Chicago City Railways company was added to the list, and in 1900 the Wentworth avenue line of the same company was equipped with postal cars.

In 1902 the Milwaukee avenue service was extended from its terminal point at State and Randolph streets so that it served a territory southwest of the "loop." This addition was known as the Millard avenue line and took its name from the Millard avenue postal station, and not from the street of that name.

Various changes were made in the length of runs, chiefly due to the opening of pneumatic tube service in various parts of the city in 1904, and it was ultimately discontinued in 1915 after motor truck service had been adopted for collecting and distributing mail. While the latter is no doubt a speedier and more flexible type of service, it did not duplicate the railway postal cars, which were equipped for the sorting and distribution of the mail while in transit.

Collectors are principally interested in the cancelations applied to mail on board the cars, and from the experience of Mr. Gear, who has specialized in this subject for only a short time, it should be possible to obtain a representative collection of these postal markings from letters of the period.

These markings include a circular town mark and a killer. The town mark usually includes the abbreviated name of the line and the date, exceptions being noted in the case of certain Cottage Grove and Wentworth avenue markings in which the town mark contains only the city name, with other information included in a flag killer.

The killers include such forms as stars and cut cork designs in the early period, but usually are an oval of horizontal bars with the letters R. M. S., R. P. O., Street R. P. O., or with a numeral, depending upon the date and the division of postal authority which had control of such matters at the date of cancelation. The flag killers noted above contain some such legend as "Wentworth Avenue R. P. O."

Typical town marks of each line are as follows: Chi. & N. Clark St. R. P. O.; Chi. Ill. Clark & Linc. Ave. R. P. O.; North Clark St. R. P. O.; Chicago, Cott. Gro. Av. R. P. O.; Chicago, Mad. St. R. P. O.; Chi. & Mil. Ave. R. P. O.; Chi. & Millard Ave. R. P. O.; Chi. & Went. Ave. R. P. O. Prior to its complete abandonment in 1915 the service had been curtailed and various lines had been discontinued, while the last of them had been modified, since no cancelations have been seen which are dated during the last four or five years of its existence.

Scott's United States Stamp catalog for 1938 continues the program of expansion which commenced when the publishers adopted the larger size and the volume just received has a total of 350 pages devoted to the specialized listing of United States stamps and allied labels. Entirely new features included embossed revenue stamps and sanitary fair issues. The former group lists these embossed stamps, which are usually an impression only without color, from the very early examples of Massachusetts down through the British colonial and federal issues to the final emission which was intended to defray a portion of the costs of the war of 1812.

The Sanitary Fair stamps were labels sold at the "postoffices" set up at some of the fairs held to raise money for the health and general comfort of the civil war Union soldiers. These labels often appear on envelopes along with United States stamps and are highly prized by their owners. Another new feature is the listing of commemorative stamps with exposition station cancelations and the illustrating of the cancelations themselves. Altogether this handbook is invaluable to the collector of United States stamps. It is published by the Scott Stamp and Coin company, No. 1 West 47th street, New York, N. Y.

Club Notes.

International Philatelic week will open Sunday, Nov. 14, with a meeting of the Cicero-Berwyn Philatelic society from 10 a. m. until 6 p. m. at the Olympic building, 6138 West Cermak road. The program includes an exhibit and bourse, door prizes, and an address by Elmer Stuart. Other featured meetings are those, on Monday evening, of the North Shore Philatelic society, at the Edgewater Beach hotel, and the Evanston Philatelic society, at the North Shore hotel; the three cornered meeting of the Chicago Woman's Stamp club, Chicago Philatelic society, and the Chicago Precancel club, Tuesday evening at the La Salle hotel, and the Wednesday evening meeting of the Austin Philatelic club in the town hall at Lake street and Central avenue. During the three final days of the week an exhibit of stamps will be held at the Medinah Michigan Avenue club, under the auspices of the Central Federation of Stamp Clubs. This exhibit will be open to the public from 11 a. m. until 10 p. m., on Nov. 18-20, and will represent the best collections of twenty-three local and nearby clubs.

The Jacksonville [Fla.] Stamp Collectors' club will hold its second annual exhibition during International Philatelic week in the Jacksonville Art galleries in the old Chamber of Commerce building, at Duval and Julia streets. This club holds regular meetings on the second and fourth Thursdays of each month at 8 p. m. in Room 217, Burgess building, Jacksonville, Fla.

The Ogden Hills Stamp club will hold a miniature competitive exhibition on Nov. 14 at the Chicago Boys' club, 6405 S. Hermitage avenue. This exhibit will open at 1 p. m. and visitors are welcome.

Cachets and Covers.

William P. Gabel, 10600 Thrush avenue, Cleveland, O., will sponsor a cachet for Thanksgiving day. Send covers ready to go and include 1 cent per cover to defray the cost of forwarding.

The Monroe County Tuberculosis association, Bloomington, Ind., has been authorized to prepare a first day cover for the 1937 Christmas seal. This will be mailed at Santa Claus, Ind., on Nov. 25. Since all profits in this transaction will be used to fight tuberculosis The Stamp Collector is permitted to print this notice, even though it requires the collector to send money instead of a stamped envelope. Send 10 cents for each cover desired, together with your name and address, at once to Earl T. MacMillin, Box 427, Bloomington, Ind.

Postage Stamps and Coins

UNITED STATES CONSTITUTION SERIES.
Neither Jubilees, Coronations, or Farleys created as much excitement among collectors as the U. S. Constitution series. This pageant of patriotic stamps is unprecedented and will perhaps never be repeated. Several countries have out done themselves to do honor and homage to our country on the 150th Constitution anniversary. Honduras has issued a 46c airmail stamp which is destined to become the most famous stamp in the world. Large and extraordinarily beautiful, it is printed in 6 colors, inscribed in two languages and shows the U. S. Flag in its natural colors, red, white and blue. Nicaragua has issued a bi-colored airmail stamp and France a blue postage stamp, showing flags of both countries. Later Ecuador will issue a set showing our flag in red, white and blue, the American eagle and George Washington, Guatemala will issue a sheet of stamps showing the portraits of President Roosevelt, George Washington, etc.
As with other famous and desirable issues we shall have them all. Those already issued we are now sending "ON APPROVAL." The others will be sent "ON APPROVAL" as soon as issued. All Constitution issues are small ;at present they are inexpensive. Soon they will go sky high. Our current "Monthly Bulletin" contains full details. Upon request we shall send it FREE together with a fine approval selection.

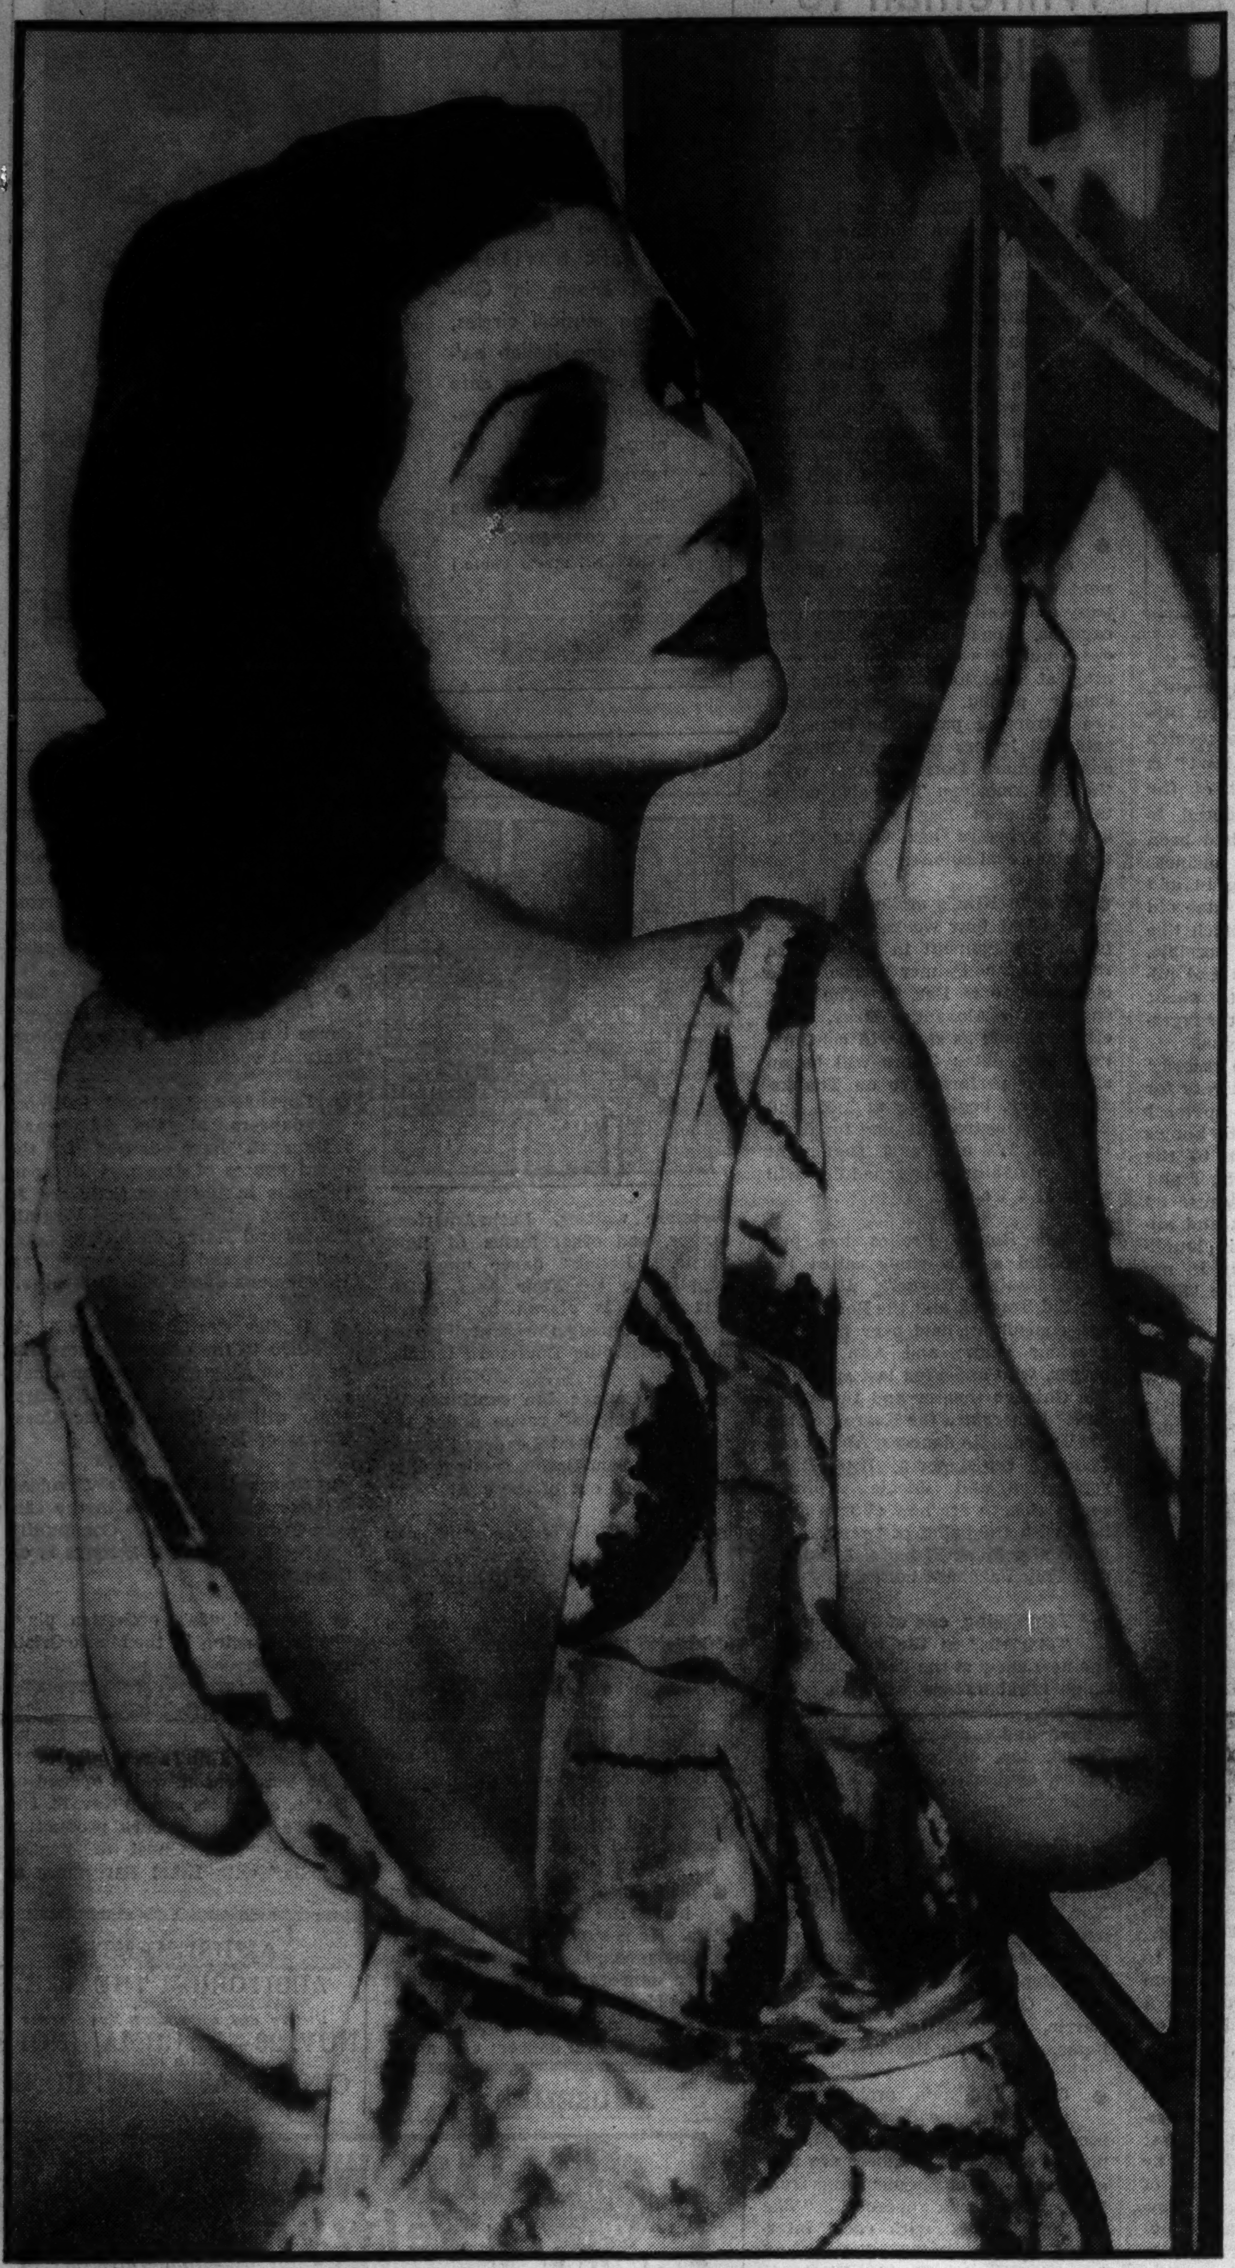
NOVEMBER 14, 1937.



This sophisticated and lovely looking lady is Loretta Young. She's co-starred with Tyrone Power in her next film, titled "Second Honeymoon."

Below: Lawrence Grossmith, who has had a distinguished career on the English and American stage, appears prominently in "Yes, My Darling Daughter," the comedy at the Grand Opera house.

It won't be long before Nelson Eddy's myriad admirers will see him in a new production. "Rosalie" is the name of the piece.

Bettina Rosay, prima ballerina of the Chicago City Opera company ballet, is featured regularly in the lavish productions which mark the 1937 season.

Gale Sondergaard has, you'll remember, a prominent role in "The Life of Emile Zola," starring Paul Muni. We thought you'd like to have this interesting pose of Miss Sondergaard for your albums.

Forbes-Robertson Was Greatest Hamlet

By Charles Collins

THE recent death of Forbes-Robertson at the age of 84 recalls a stretch of theatrical history in contemplation of which modern followers of the drama feel like barbarians looking back upon the vanished glories of imperial Rome. His career covered the last twenty-five years of the Victorian period and continued in full activity until the close of the great war, when he retired to live for twenty more years in serene dignity, with the honors of knighthood and the reputation of having been the greatest Hamlet since Edwin Booth, perhaps the greatest of them all.

American playgoers saw him often after he passed into his Hamlet phase. He spent about ten years in American tours (1885, 1903, 1909, 1910, 1911, 1912, 1913, 1914, 1915, 1916) acting "Hamlet," "The Passing of the Third Floor Back," Shaw's "Cæsar and Cleopatra," "The Light that Failed," based on Kipling's story, and other plays. He traveled all over the country, and earned here the fortune which gave him the patrician old age that he deserved.

Forbes-Robertson's interpretation of Hamlet was the ideal one for nearly every critic who has passed an opinion upon it. He had all the physical requirements for the rôle; a fine figure, a noble face of the intellectual type, a magnificent voice which Bernard Shaw, in his drama critic period, compared to "a B-flat clarinet in the chalumeau register." (A chalumeau is a mediæval reed instrument of tenor and alto range.)

He had, moreover, a princely spirit and a poetic mind, and his Hamlet was a thorough aristocrat in the mood of Ophelia's speech which contains the lines: "The expectancy and rose of the fair state, the glass of fashion and the mold of form, the observed of all observers." Its emotional power was not remarkable, for the approach to the character was in the mood of mellow classicism rather than that of Elizabethan intensity.

As a blend of all the viewpoints from which Hamlet can be studied, it was supreme in its time, and perhaps for all time. The critical ecstasies over John Gielgud's Hamlet in New York last season came from a generation of writers who never saw Forbes-Robertson.

Here are a few notes upon his career and personality that depart from the conventional biographical routine:

The hyphen in his name was adopted at the suggestion of his press agent, Percy Burton, shortly before he was knighted in 1913. He was Johnston Forbes Robertson, born in Scotland, the son of a journalist who became prominent as an art critic in London and a close associate of the pre-Raphaelite school of painters and poets.

As a boy he heard the first reading, before publication, of Swinburne's "Atalanta in Calydon" in his father's house.

When he was fifteen, Dante Gabriel Rossetti chose him as a model for the figure of Love in the painting called "Dante's Dream," now hanging in the Liverpool Art gallery.

He planned for a career as a painter and studied art assiduously for three years in the Royal academy school. He continued painting as a lifelong hobby, and occasionally earned considerable money by his art work. On commission from Henry Irving, he made a painting of the church scene in Irving's production of Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing," which now hangs in the library of the Players' club in New York. In the Garrick club of London there hangs a portrait by Forbes-Robertson of the actor under whom he studied elocution, Samuel Phelps. Early in his career he designed all the costumes for Mary Anderson's production of "A Winter's Tale," and after he became an actor-manager he sketched the scene-designs for all of his productions.

He made his first American tour as leading man for Mary Anderson in 1885.

His start upon the stage was accidental. W. H. Wills, a dramatic author, was complaining about his difficulty in finding a young man of graceful presence to play the rôle of Chastelard in his tragedy, "Mary, Queen of Scots." Forbes-Robertson's father said casually: "Why not try Johnston?" and the playwright thought this a happy suggestion. This happened when he was 21. His next rôle, also secured through his father's influence, was with Ellen Terry in "The Wandering Heir."

Associations with Famous Victorian Players.

His early stage associations were with the greatest figures of the English stage—the Bancrofts, John Hare, Mr. and Mrs. Kendall, Ellen Terry, Henry Irving. The first time he acted the rôle of Romeo was with Helena Modjeska, whom he always regarded as one of the finest actresses in his experience.

He did not undertake the rôle of Hamlet until he was 45, and then only at the urging of Henry Irving, who placed his London theater, scenery, costumes and prompt-book at his disposal. After the première in London, in September, 1897, Irving came to him and said: "Well, you've done it, my boy. Now play it all over the world."

In the winter of 1898 he took his company, with Mrs. Patrick Campbell as leading woman, to Berlin, where he acted "Hamlet" and also "Macbeth" before the German kaiser. He and Mrs. Campbell were summoned into the imperial presence between acts of "Macbeth," wearing their makeup.

When Mrs. Campbell Made the Kaiser Laugh.

The kaiser chatted with them in excellent English with only a trace of German accent. He said, among other things:

"You must come again, Mr. Robertson—if only to teach my people not to bellow."

Whereupon the irrepressible Mrs. Campbell remarked: "I wish I could bellow," and aroused the imperial laughter in its heartiest mood.

His greatest failure as a producing manager was with Henry Arthur Jones' excellent play, "Michael and His Lost Angel," staged in 1896. At one performance the box-office gross was equivalent to $7.50.

His last regular performance in this country was in "Hamlet" at Harvard university in April, 1916, by special invitation of the president and faculty. This also was the official ending of his career, although he made a number of special appearances afterward, chiefly for charities.

He acted for silent film productions of "Hamlet" [1912], "Masks and Faces" [1916], and "The Passing of the Third Floor Back," 1917.

He wrote his memoirs under the title, "A Player Under Three Reigns," published in 1927. Columbia university gave him an honorary degree of Master of Arts.

Variety Bills

CHICK WEBB, Negro dance band leader, is making his Chicago vaudeville debut at the Palace theater. His featured singer is Ella Fitzgerald. Others on the bill are the comedian, George Beatty; the young dancers, Geraldine and Joe, and the trained dogs of the act known as Woolford's Pets.

"Waikiki Nights," a revue with a company of 50 players, appears at the State-Lake theater this week. In the company are Princess Luano, Princess Moana, the Hawaiian Troubadours orchestra, Harry Savoy, comedian; Ginger Dulo, the Three Byrons, Vincent Yerro, and a chorus of 20.

The Chicago theater's new stage bill consists of a ballet production in five scenes called "Around the Town," which provides impressions of the Gold coast, Navy pier, Orchestra hall, the Coliseum, and 47th and South Parkway. The cast of 40 players includes Katherine Witwer, lyric soprano; the Four Kraddocks, comedians; Mlle. Lalage, eerialist; the Evans ballet; Rudy Wagner, and the Chicago theater's choir.

'Amphitryon' Is Offering of the Lunts

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—We went typically Broadway last week. Put on all our finery, got out all our furs, dusted the sawdust out of the pearls and the dog collars, paid fancy prices for our tickets, crowded into two theaters to see the Lunts perform in "Amphitryon 38" and George M. Cohan cavort in "I'd Rather Be Right," and then announced that neither was as good as we thought it was going to be.

Here were potentially the two outstanding hits of the theater season assigned to the same November week and their coming had caused more excitement than any other two that I recall. It was quite like Broadway to be disappointed in them. The ballyhoo had been more than the attractions could bear.

They are, however, superior entertainments as theater entertainments go. Broadway is prepared to acknowledge that much. As soon as we get past this first feeling of resentment that neither S. N. Behrman, who adapted "Amphitryon," nor the Messrs. George Kaufman and Moss Hart, who wrote "I'd Rather Be Right," have "passed a miracle" we will be fair about it.

Lunts Already Had Tried "Amphitryon 38."

Taking them in the order of their appearance, as we do the actors in the program, "Amphitryon 38" came first. The Lunts, as you know, had tried this Jean Girandoux comedy originally in San Francisco last spring, and had also done a bit of touring with it this fall. Much had been printed and pictured of the appearance of the stalwart Alfred Lunt as an earthbound god and the splendidly dependable Lynn Fontane as a virtuous mortal wife.

There was no surprise, therefore, in anything these two had to say. Nor much surprise in the manner of their saying it, so well are they known to the Theater Guild patrons, but there was satisfaction and a not unpleasant shock in the audacities of the old legend. The first view of Lunt as Jupiter and Richard Whorf as Mercury, apparently sliding on their stomachs down a cloud, their heroic nude bodies stretched out back of them, shockingly emphasized by the heavenly sunlight, brought the audience to quick attention and set the less controllable element tittering outrageously.

The Behrman dialog through this prolog is also considerably bolder than old ladies from Dubuque might approve, though it is carefully swathed in those elegancies of language of which the practiced and cultured Behrman is master. Jupiter, viewing the somewhat impassioned Alkmena as she is bidding her warrior husband, Amphitryon, good-by for the day, is gloatingly considering an earthly visit with the conquest of Alkmena as its chief objective.

Mercury Suggests New Disguises for the Venture.

Mercury is quite willing to assist his father in this enterprise, but is a little fed up with the usual cumbersome disguises the older god has previously affected. Why not give up the animal idea and try something original? Why not send Amphitryon away to war and then take his place at home as a husband?

The idea appeals to Jupiter, as all you mythologists know, and the earth visit is ordered. Amphitryon is dispatched to the wars and Jupiter appears as his double in Alkmena's garden. [Amphitryon had only pretended to go to war, the sly Mercury explains to the astonished wife.]

Thereafter this so-called thirty-eighth version of the Jupiter-on-a-bust legend follows its course. In place of staying three days in the Amphitryon house, as the story ran in Lempriere's day, Jupiter stayed only one night and a part of the next morning, which simplified Mercury's job of holding back the sun.

It is the breakfast scene that furnishes the most amusement in the play. Jupiter is keenly eager to hear his prowess as both husband and god extoled, but Alkmena is not impressed. She is pleasant about it, but quite unemotional. Even in the matter of world-creation another probably could have done a better job than Jupiter. And as a husband she is sure she will always prefer Amphitryon. Jupiter goes back to his clouds. Not in a huff, but plainly disturbed, and when he comes again as himself and pleads as a god for the love of a mortal, Alkmena is still stanchly loyal. Friendship is even a greater blessing than love, she insists, and so gains the friendship of Jupiter.

The Lunts, who are marvelously deft at this sort of sly and subtle adult comedy and gorgeously impudent in playing it, have been acclaimed. Whorf's Mercury is also a perfect touch. These three carry the play, with Sydney Greenstreet rolling in for a laugh or two as a one-note bugler and Edith King playing a Leda who is still measurably excited by her memories.

Even More Excitement at "I'd Rather Be Right."

There was even more excitement at the opening of "I'd Rather Be Right" on Tuesday night than there was at the "Amphitryon 38" affair on Monday. The jolly old police, trying to keep the sidewalks clear for those who had tickets, were outnumbered and outpushed, but the show finally went on.

The first audience, naturally, was heavily anti-New Deal. It was prepared to make all sorts of fun of this daring satire in which the President of the United States figures, not as a symbol but as a fleshly fact, and ready to cheer every point scored against the taxmakers and the reform fanatics.

But what most of us did not figure on was that even an anti-New Deal audience also could be a pro-George Cohan audience, and right there the chance for any political demonstration was crushed. Cohan, the lovable veteran, could not possibly bring discredit on any man, whatever his political affiliations. This, added to the fact that the comedian plays Franklin Delano with a winning tenderness and gentle raillery as a kindly and slightly confused party leader who is looking for a way out of the nation's problems as sincerely as the next man, kept the audience wondering just where its sympathies did belong.

Only once, when the President decided that a third term might be necessary if anything was to be accomplished about balancing the budget, was there anything resembling a demonstration. And this ended quickly with a ripple of applause from the balconies and a light booing from the lower floor.

At every performance since the first one this abortive demonstration has been started. First comes the applause, then the hisses, and finally laughter enveloping both.

Previous Publicity Makes Laughter a Bit Subdued.

Most of the jokes and the best of the lyrics of "I'd Rather Be Right" have been generously printed in telegraphed accounts of the Boston and Baltimore engagements. As a result laughter has been subdued in New York. Roosevelt's line, "Cummings, take a law!" is still popular. The plight of the business man who is reduced to selling balloons after he had been taxed out of his furniture business is approved. The popping in and out of the Supreme court, nine old gentlemen all looking as much like Chief Justice Hughes as possible, and hiding back of bushes and pillars just to be ready to shout "No!" at every Roosevelt suggestion, gets a couple of laughs.

The President's "off the record" song, in which he "doesn't care for Bankhead, but would like to meet Tallulah," and in which he knows that even if things come to the worst "he won't die of hunger and he won't die of thirst," because he has one son with du Pont and another son with Hearst, is laughingly approved. "I sit up in my bedroom, reading books like 'Silas Marner,'" chirps F. D. R. "I'd read Sears-Roebuck catalogs to get away from Garner."

There is an amusing scene in which the President tries to settle a wage dispute on a merry-go-round by the application of the Wagner act and finds the act so cumbersome that he finally has to take over the merry-go-round and let the government run it.

Ballet "American Couple" Is Regarded as Stupid.

Both lines and lyrics, however, are considerably below the standard established by that real miracle which was called "Of Thee I Sing." That is the real cause of the Broadway crowd's disappointment. There is also a stupid ballet entitled "American Couple," and only one of the ballads is very promising, the one called "Meet Miss Jones."

I sat in the row with Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau on the opening night. He appeared to be having a grand time. When Mr. Roosevelt, looking for something to sit on to save his trousers from contact with a rock, picked up a copy of a newspaper and sat on Walter Lippman's column, the secretary indulged in mild hysteria.

The cabinet rôles are all well played, especially those of Postmaster General Farley, by Paul Parks; Secretary of Labor Perkins, by Bijou Fernandez, and Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, by Taylor Holmes. But it is the agreeably modest and tactfully satirized rôle of the President himself by Mr. Cohan that really saves the show.

There is a touch of real earnestness in his closing scene, a Fourth of July speech in which he calls all parties and all people to a realization that this is the only country on earth where people can talk and say what they think. Which is accepted by the audience as both a truth and an alibi for "I'd Rather Be Right."

Whiteman to Follow Lopez at the Drake

PAUL WHITEMAN will bring his orchestra and special entertainers to the Gold Coast room of the Drake hotel next Friday night to succeed Vincent Lopez, who gives his last performance next Thursday. Whiteman comes here directly from San Francisco for a four weeks' engagement. His last appearance at the Drake was in April of this year. The floor show that has been appearing during Lopez's engagement will remain until Whiteman's arrival.

● Eusebio Concialdi, baritone opera singer, formerly prominent in the Chicago Opera company and well known to many Chicagoans, sings Italian ballads and opera numbers every Thursday evening at L'Aiglon café during the dinner period. His appearances are attracting patronage from the arts and letters group of Chicagoans. Tamara Doriva, singer with the Pan-American Trio, also entertains. George Bay's concert and dance orchestra has Gloria Glenmore as vocal soloist.

● Wayne King's orchestra begins the last four weeks of its prosperous engagement in the Empire room of the Palmer house. The closing date is Dec. 8. The floor show, with Alexander Gray, operetta baritone, as star, will continue until that date. There will be an afternoon performance on Thanksgiving day, beginning at 3:30, and King's orchestra will play for dancing from 2:30 until 4:30. That night the entertainment schedule will start at 7 o'clock.

● The Royale Frolics has prepared a new show called the "Fall Fantasy Revue." Its stars are Sid Tomack and the Reis Brothers, comedians, held over from the previous show; and Ann Lester, singer, who appeared last spring at the Chicago theater and the Yacht club. Others are the Karre Le Barron Trio, adagio dancers; Abbott and Marshal, tap dancers; Rita Rhea, soubrette; and Jackie Hilliard, tenor. There are new chorus numbers with the ballet of twenty-eight girls; also Mark Fisher's, Al Turk's, and Tiny Parham's bands.

● Chez Paree will celebrate its fifth anniversary under its present management on Monday night, Nov. 29. Special entertainment will mark the event. The current program of cabaret entertainment, with Benny Fields as star, will continue. Other principals are Gracie Barrie, Dolly Arden, Janice Williams, and Rosita Royce.

● Orrin Tucker's orchestra remains in the Marine dining room of the Edgewater Beach hotel. Among its numbers are new arrangements of famous songs from Victor Herbert's operetta, "The Fortune Teller," with vocal interludes by the Bailey Sisters and Bonnie Baker. Drum Is Called the World's Oldest Musical Instrument

Cymbals, Flute and Harp Rank Next in Order

By Edward Barry.

WHICH of our musical instruments is the oldest?

If you mean which instrument has existed longest in its present form, then the answer is almost certainly the drum. If the question refers to the problem as to which can trace its ancestry back the farthest, then nearly every present day instrument except the electric organ will clamor for a chance to enter the competition.

For the principles on which our musical media are based lend themselves easily to accidental and early discovery. Striking, blowing, plucking—these three processes just about tell the story, and primitive man was not long in learning to use all of them. Virtually any instrument in the stock of an up to date music store will be found to be based on an idea which is far older than history.

In this confusing situation we are justified in insisting on the primacy of the drum. Ignoring the insoluble problem as to which of the three principles of music making was discovered first, it is strongly probable that the drum reached its present form far earlier than any other instrument.

Forgotten Savage the First Drummer.

The long forgotten savage who first thought of fastening animal skins over the apertures of a section of hollowed log made something much more important than a mere forerunner of the drum. He actually made a drum, and the percussion man of a 1937 orchestra would recognize this seedy looking instrument as substantially identical with the one which he himself bangs away on every night.

Here will be seen the superiority of the drum's claims over those, say, of the cymbals. A modern musician, confronted with the two blocks of wood which savages used to clap together to emphasize the rhythm of the dance, would not immediately recognize them as antique cymbals. His 1937 instrument differs importantly from its rude predecessors in material and tone quality alike. The ancestry is clear enough, but it is evident that there has been considerable evolution in the course of the ages which have passed since man first learned to work in metals. We are justified in believing that the drum finished its evolution [tree trunk to hollow log to membrane-equipped hollow log?] umpteen thousand years earlier. What changes it has since undergone may properly be called mere refinements.

Drums and Cymbals of Extreme Antiquity.

The above is an attempt to reconstruct some of the progress which was made in the misty eons before reliable records began, and to reconstruct it in the light of our present imperfect knowledge of early man's capabilities and resources. We emerge into clearer air and onto more solid ground when the days of recorded history are reached.

The first things we learn serve to confirm our ideas about the extreme antiquity of the drum and cymbals. The former was in use in ancient Egypt, Assyria, India, and Persia. An example of the latter, taken from the coffin of the Egyptian musician Ankhhape, reposes in the British museum today.

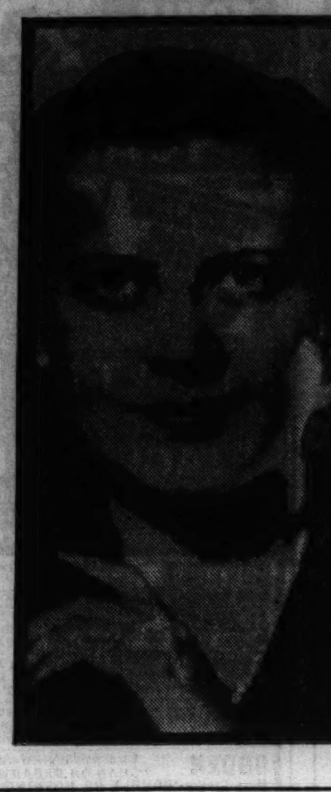
But it is interesting to find that at least two other important 1937 instruments were known to ancient peoples in something quite close to their present form. These are the flute and the harp.

Abandon, fanatical flautists, your contention that people were blowing through river reeds long before they were pounding logs and that the flute, in consequence, deserves to rank as the hoariest of instruments! Abandon it because it is essentially unprovable, and take satisfaction instead in the certain fact that no remote ancestor but an actual flute was in daily use among the ancient Egyptians! The principle by which pitch could be varied by means of holes bored in the side was probably discovered before history began. The Hindus, Chinese, Japanese, and Greeks all knew the instrument some thousands of years ago.

The Harp Known in Ancient Egypt.

The harp came to a high stage of development in ancient Egypt. It is depicted time after time on the monuments of the Nile dwellers and proves to be no embryonic little instrument that could be carried in the crook of the arm but a full blown, man sized harp. The larger ones were probably over six feet tall, and the performer had to stand to manipulate them properly.

Although the drum, cymbals, flute and harp thus seem to reduce the piano, violin, organ and other popular present day instruments to the rank of mere striplings, it is certain that these latter can trace a direct ancestry back to an age as misty as any of the others. The principles on which the piano, violin and organ are based date back beyond the earliest recorded history. More about these instruments next Sunday.



FOREIGN VISITOR TO SING

Hilda Konetzni, soprano of the Prague and Vienna opera, appears at the Auditorium theater today with the Salzburg Festival singers.

Three Red Letter Dates on City Opera Company Program

By Cecil Smith.

THREE red letter dates decorate the calendar of the Chicago City Opera company's third week at the Civic Opera house. Grace Moore, greatly publicized lyric soprano of the movies and the Metropolitan Opera company, will make her first Chicago operatic appearance Wednesday evening in a repetition of Massenet's "Manon." Montemezzi's superb tragic opera, "The Love of Three Kings," will receive its first performance in seven years on Monday evening. Wagner's "Lohengrin" will be sung Saturday afternoon by a stellar cast including Lotte Lehmann, Eleanor La Mance, Rene Maison, George Czaplicki, and Emanuel List.

The last performance of "The Love of Three Kings" in the Civic Opera house took place Nov. 22, 1930, with Roberto Moranzoni at the conductor's desk and the late Claudia Muzio, Rene Maison, Cesare Formichi, and Virgilio Lazzari in the four principal rôles.

The libretto is by Sem Benelli, also known to Chicago operagoers of 1926-'27 by "La Cena delle Beffe," set to music by Umberto Giordano, and to playgoers for an English translation of the same play acted in 1919 by John and Lionel Barrymore under the title "The Jest."

Scene of Opera Is Medieval Italy.

The story of "The Love of Three Kings" takes place in medieval Italy. Before the play opens, Fiora, the heroine, has been taken as a hostage in battle, torn from her home and her lover, Prince Avito, carried to a distant castle, and forced to marry King Manfredo.

The opera's action revolves about the daring romantic visits of Avito to his former sweetheart while Manfredo is away at war. These repeated clandestine meetings arouse the suspicion of Archibaldo, the old blind father of Manfredo. Discovering the couple together, Archibaldo strangles the unhappy Fiora to death and, in one of the tensest scenes in all opera, staggers off the stage with her limp body slung across his shoulder.

His blindness has kept him from recognizing the identity of Fiora's lover. As an act of revenge he smears poison upon the lips of Fiora as she lies upon her bier [a plot founded upon an actual incident in the bloody history of the Borgias]. Avito comes, as Archibaldo expects, for a farewell embrace—but not until Manfredo has already met his death in the same way. As the final curtain falls, Archibaldo is left in sightless contemplation of the horror he has wrought.

Music Rises to Great Heights.

In the force of its motivations, and in the profound yet compassionate delineation of its characters, Benelli's "The Love of Three Kings" is one of the most magnificent operatic librettos in existence.

Like the libretto, the music rises to great heights. It is as symphonic a score as the music dramas of Wagner, but here the resemblance ends. The vocal parts are a continuous line of rapturous Italian song, giving the voice its proper place as the central reason for opera, and pointing up the action with dramatic declamation of extraordinary poignancy.

"The Love of Three Kings" was first produced in Milan, Italy, in 1913. On Oct. 6, 1915, the Boston Opera company gave the first Chicago performance, with two members of the original cast, Luisa Villani and Edoardo Ferrari-Fontana, and with Roberto Moranzoni, who conducts it again tomorrow night, as conductor. Two months later our resident company gave the first of twenty-five performances it was to give. On Aug. 3, 1918, it was introduced at Ravinia, with Claudia Muzio as Fiora and Gennaro Papi conducting.

Great Singers Have Sung in Opera.

Many great singers have appeared in "The Love of Three Kings" here and at Ravinia. Among the Fioras may be listed Muzio, Mary Garden, Florence Easton, Lucrezia Bori, Louise Edvina, and Bianca Saroya. The rôle of Avito interested such notable tenors as Giovanni Martinelli, Edward Johnson, Lucien Muratore, Fernand Ansseau, and Rene Maison. Virgilio Lazzari, a breathtakingly effective Archibaldo, has sung this great rôle forty-two times here and at Ravinia.

Roberto Moranzoni, one of the most famous interpreters of the score, will conduct tomorrow evening's revival. Helen Jepson will sing Fiora for the first time on any stage. Her associates are José Luccioni as Avito, Carlo Morelli as Manfredo, and the incomparable Mr. Lazzari is Archibaldo.

Future opera bills are here listed in detail:

Monday at 8—"The Love of Three Kings"; Helen Jepson, Elizabeth Brown, Ruth Mills; José Luccioni, Carlo Morelli, Virgilio Lazzari, Giuseppe Cavadore; Roberto Moranzoni, conductor.

Wednesday at 8—"Manon"; Grace Moore [debut], Louisa Hoe, Josephine Swinney, Brown, Suzanne Merrill; André Burdino, John Brownlee, Chase Baromeo, Cavadore, Wilfred Engelman; Louis Hasselmans, conductor.

Thursday at 8 [popular prices]—"The Barber of Seville"; Margherita Salvi, Ada Paggi; Joseph Bentonelli, John Charles Thomas, Nino Ruisi, Vittorio Trevisan, Cavadore; Jacques Samoussoud, conductor.

Friday at 8—"The Man Without a Country"; Helen Traubel; Arthur Carron, Donald Dickson, George Rasely, John Gurney, Mark Love; Leo Kopp, conductor.

Saturday at 8—"Carmen"; Coe Glade, Hilda Ohlin, Charlotte Symons, Paggi; Luccioni, Jean Fardulli, Ruisi, Engelman, Cavadore; Ruth Page, Bettina Rosay, Blake Scott, and corps de ballot; Hasselmans, conductor.

Next Sunday at 8—Moniuszko's "Halka"; Anna Leskaya, Valerie Glowacka; Ivan Velik, George Czaplicki, Mark Love, Walenty Figaniak; Loda Haloma, dancer; Zdzislaw Skubokowski, conductor.

Harald Kreutzberg, one of the world's foremost male dancers, will make one of his too infrequent visits to Chicago today. He is to dance in the Civic theater both this afternoon and this evening. The afternoon program includes five dances never before given in Chicago. The evening program repeats four of these and adds two more new dances.

The Russian trio—Nina Mesirow-Minchin, pianist; Michael Wilkomirski, violinist; Daniel Saidenberg, cellist—plays the first of six chamber concerts at the Fortnightly club Tuesday morning under the auspices of the Lake Shore Chamber Music society.

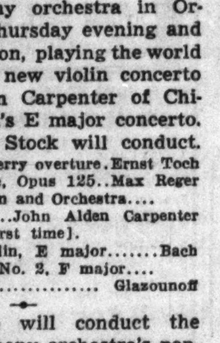
Vytautas Finadar Beliajus, Lithuanian dancer, will present himself and his group in a dance recital of "characteristic and unusual dances of the world" in the Woman's club theater this afternoon.

Portions of "Il Trovatore" will be sung at the Beaux Arts salon this afternoon by the Sihler Opera company, whose members are Alexandria Truax, Dessa See, Robert Danks, and Harry Swanson.

Notes of Music and Musicians

FIVE distinguished European operatic singers, banded together as the Wagnerian Festival Singers, will appear today at the Auditorium theater in a program largely composed of solos and ensembles from the music dramas of Richard Wagner. The members of the group are Alexander Kipnis, basso, remembered as one of the best singers of his voice range to appear with the Chicago Civic Opera company between 1922 and 1931; Hilda Konetzni, soprano of the Vienna State opera; Marta Krasova, contralto of the National Opera of Prague, Czechoslovakia; Henk Noort, Dutch tenor, and Joel Berglund, Swedish baritone. The ensemble is directed by Richard Hageman, nationally known operatic conductor and composer of the opera "Caponsacchi." The concert is presented by the Adult Education council.

This is an active week for the Adult Education council, for on Tuesday it presents the second of five low priced piano recitals in the Musical arts series. The pianist is the American born Dalies Frantz, making his first appearance of the season. His program:



Dalies Frantz.

Prelude and Fugue in F minor......

Believe it or not, the Illinois Symphony orchestra, at the Great Northern today, will play a program without a single novelty. Daniel Saidenberg is guest conductor and Mae Doelling Schmidt assisting pianist:

Symphony in D minor ....Franck
"An American in Paris"........Gershwin
Fantaisie de Concert, for Piano and Orchestra, Opus 56....Tschaikowsky

Alice Tully, American lyric soprano, accompanied by Arpad Sandor, presents the season's most attractive list of songs in the Studebaker theater today. Composers represented are Haydn, Gluck, Erich Wolff, Hugo Wolf, Mahler, Franck, Duparc, Schmitt, Roussel, Poulenc, Ravel, Grainger, Ireland, Watts, and Quilter.

Charles Henry Manney, Negro lyric baritone of growing reputation, will sing in Orchestra hall today, the proceeds to be given to the Good Shepherd Community center building fund.

Hilda Burke, soprano of the Chicago City Opera company, will sing, and Eugene Stinson, music editor of the Chicago Daily News, will lecture at Thorne hall Wednesday evening in a program entitled "The History and Development of Opera." The lecture-recital is a part of the "History and Enjoyment of Music" series given by Northwestern university.

Texas U. Pays a Tribute to Parent Nation

WHEN the University of Texas recently set aside one day as Mexico day on which to feature the culture of that country[particularly as relating to its earlier civilization, it was to pay tribute to the nation from which the state of Texas sprang. The most interesting exhibit was the Genero Garcia collection in the university library. This was brought in 1921 from Mexico City and affords an unbroken historical record of Mexico from Cortes to the present generation.

Some of the volumes in this collection are of extreme rarity, among them the oldest book printed in the two Americas, "Doctrina Breve," by Zumarraga; an epic poem in Indian dialect written in the 16th century and various Mexican codices of the same era.

Supplementing this Genero Garcia collection is a library of 7,000 volumes dealing with the Latin-American continent, presented some years ago by Archer Huntington, and more than 2,000 volumes of reprints and rare literary works donated by the Hispanic Society of America.

For the last several years there has been carried on an exchange of students between the university and the University of Mexico through the medium of the E. D. Farmer scholarship fund and the research work resulting from this interchange, both of students and faculty, has the effect of bringing about a better understanding between the two nations.

C. P. McCLELLAND, president of MacMurray college, in a recent address on the comparative youth in America and in Europe, pointed out that the important difference is that here the wishes of the individual make our government what it is, whereas in the totalitarian countries the policy of the state is paramount.

In Germany, for example, at the age of 14 students who do not plan to continue their school work are forced into an apprenticeship selected for them by German labor organizations. Dr. McClelland summed up the future of German youth in the motto of the Hitler Youth organization which in transaltion reads, "We were born to die for Germany."

THE trustees of Wabash college formally accepted last week funds for a new science building, the gift of ex-Gov. James Putnam Goodrich, a member of the board since 1904. His donation will include the cost of erection and a substantial endowment for its upkeep. The building will house the lecture rooms and laboratories of the departments of physics, chemistry, and mathematics. President Hopkins in the course of his speech of acceptance said, "with this addition to our present buildings we believe that further development of the campus will logically follow."

Sleeping Beauty

"THE SLEEPING BEAUTY," an American opera by Beryl Rubinstein, director of the Cleveland Institute of Music, with text by John Erskine, will be performed for the first time anywhere by the Juilliard School of Music Jan. 19. After four performances in New York the production will be taken to Cleveland, where it will be given twice. Albert Stoessel will conduct the cast of Juilliard students and graduates. Alfredo Valenti will be stage director and Frederick Kiesler will design the settings.

The Juilliard school has previously produced four operas by American composers. Two of these were written to librettos by Mr. Erskine, "Jack and the Beanstalk," with music by Louis Gruenberg, and "Helen Retires," with music by George Antheil.

"IT'S LOVE I'M AFTER"

This interesting "still" of Bette Davis and Leslie Howard was clipped from the film "It's Love I'm After." Prominent in the supporting cast are Olivia de Havilland, Eric Blore, and Bonita Granville. (Chicago.)

Princeton Permits Students to Major in Field of Music

THE music course at Princeton university, Princeton, N. J., instituted two years ago, has now been expanded to permit students to major in the field of music. Roy Dickinson Welch is head of the department. Other members of the faculty are Oliver Strunk, former head of the music division of the Library of Congress, who will be in charge of research in musicology; Roger Sessions, noted American composer, who will have charge of work in theory and composition; Robert Hufstadter, university organist and choirmaster, and Edward T. Canby, assistant.

Extra curricular opportunities in music include the sixty voice university choir, the University Glee club of 100 singers, the university orchestra, and chamber music organizations. Many attractive concerts are listed in this year's schedule.

The major concert series schedules appearances of the New York Philharmonic-Symphony orchestra in two concerts, the Stradivarius quartet in three concerts, Alexander Brailowsky, pianist, Povla Frijsh, soprano, Georges Enesco, violinist, and Heinz and Robert Scholz, duo-pianists of the Mozarteum in Salzburg.

Prize Contest

JUDGES for the current New York Philharmonic-Symphony orchestra's second annual American composers' contest are Deems Taylor, composer and radio commentator; Alexander Smallens, conductor, and Noel Straus, music critic of the New York Times. The contest for a prize of $1,000 for the best work of symphonic length closes Jan. 1, 1938.

Here and There in Hollywood's Movie Studios

By Rosalind Shaffer.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special.]—Glenn Morris, the ex-Olympic individual champion athlete, has his own ideas on ways to train for slimness and health. His system is interesting because it differs from the scores of others which masculine and feminine seekers of slenderness and health follow in Hollywood. Morris never takes exercise before 2 o'clock in the afternoon. He says: "It is harder to loosen up in the morning; that's why some people get muscle cramp."

Mrs. Morris, who was a co-ed at Colorado Agricultural college, where her title winning husband also attended, studied domestic science and worked out the diet which the young actor followed for his feats in the Olympic games at Berlin. Morris, who now is playing Tarzan in the series of jungle films which Sol Lesser is producing, made Mrs. Morris beam when he told us in her hearing on his film set, "all the credit for the Olympic championship really goes to my wife. Her diet did it."

The new heart interest of Producer Jack White, former head of Educational studios, is Ethelreda Leopold, beautiful blonde from Chicago, who is both a de luxe motion picture dancer and a portrait painter whose oils have a certain art following.

Milton Bren, the new "boy wonder," who has taken over the production reins at Hal Roach studio, is building up a considerable cast of established names for Roach's entry into the big production brackets with six featured films a year.

Constance Bennett, Roland Young, Alan Mowbray, Margaret Sullavan, and Ronald Colman have been added to the Roach contract list. The directors include Frank Capra, Lewis Milestone, and Norman McLeod. When Roach's high priced talent is not working for Roach, Mr. Bren figures to make just as much money with a quiet studio as a busy one by renting out his sure-fire stars to other studios.

Austrian Actress Asks for Citizenship Papers.

Luli Deste, who hasn't been here from Austria much more than a year, has made up her mind that she prefers America and has applied for first citizenship papers. Her debut was in Columbia's "I Married an Artist."

The kids playing in "Tom Sawyer" probably have more fun going to school than any other school children in the nation. That is because their schoolroom is a trailer which is wheeled around to the various sets of locations on which the picture has been shooting. Fletcher Clark is the school teacher and the youngsters range from the fourth to the ninth grade.

Isa Miranda, Paramount's new European exotic, broke down and confided to the writer that before she left Italy she had been "really frightened about the people I should have to talk to in America."

She went on to say she had paid heed to the warning of a friend that "in America you don't need to answer when people ask you questions that you would prefer not to reply to. I was told just to smile and not to say anything and that the Americans would be satisfied."

"Did you really find that that system worked on all Americans?" we asked her. In reply, Miss Miranda just said nothing and smiled.

The office of the late Producer Irving Thalberg has been left untouched since the sudden death of the M. G. M. producer in September, 1936. No other studio executive even put in a bid to occupy his business quarters on the studio lot and no attempt has been made to straighten up his desk. Only documents vitally necessary to the transaction of studio business have been removed to filing cabinets.

Broadway Actors Moan Over Work in Daytime.

New York entertainers have found it difficult to change their living schedules to accommodate motion picture making in Hollywood. Pictures are made here in daylight hours, usually from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., and this requires players to rise about 6 a. m., what with makeup preparations being the elaborate business it is.

To ex-Broadway people, used to work at nights, a daytime schedule results in insomnia, nervousness and general jitters. To solve this problem the New Yorkers in the Twentieth Century-Fox picture, "Love and Hisses," who number a good majority of the cast, petitioned Director Sidney Lanfield to make the scene in which they figure on a night schedule, from 6 p. m. to midnight.

Lanfield, who was at his wits' end in getting "Love and Hisses" finished on schedule, with its strange jinx of injured thespians, consented, although it meant an eighteen hour day for him, working the daylight shift on general shots not requiring the Broadway principals and nights on the shots which feature the Gotham sun dodgers.

Sufferers were Ben Bernie, Bert Lahr, Walter Winchell, and Alice Faye, who is a very nervous type when making a picture.

The Paul and Grace Hartman dancing team were said to be bothered with the same trouble when they were here for "Forty-five Fathers." Fred Allen frankly told his studio that if "Sally, Irene, and Mary," his next picture, puts him under as a great a nervous strain as the last he is through with films.

One of the song writing partnerships busy these days is Walter Bullock and Harold Spina at Twentieth Century-Fox. They are preparing the scoring for "Sally, Irene, and Mary." This is their first joint effort for T. C.-F. Their last job was for "Fifty-second Street," the Walter Wanger production. Spina is an alumnus of New York's Tin Pan alley, where he composed "Annie Doesn't Live Here Any More."

He became a friend of Irving Berlin when the two discovered that unknown to each other they had written a song with the same title, although with different words and music. The common name was "Soft Lights and Sweet Music" and Berlin bought Spina's tune to clear title to his song of like name which was the final score in the stage production, "Face the Music."

Bullock's background is the Indiana town of Shelburn, where his father was a Methodist minister, baseball pitcher, insurance salesman and owner of a beverage parlor. Bullock Sr. ultimately left the church upon request, says the song writer, but not for the reason you'd believe. The charge was playing ball on Sunday. Anyway, that's Bullock's story. Another one is that his first film song, "A Bowl of Chop Suey and Youie," for a Ben Bernie flicker, was so bad he felt he had to stay in the composing business to live down the reputation. He's a graduate of De Pauw.

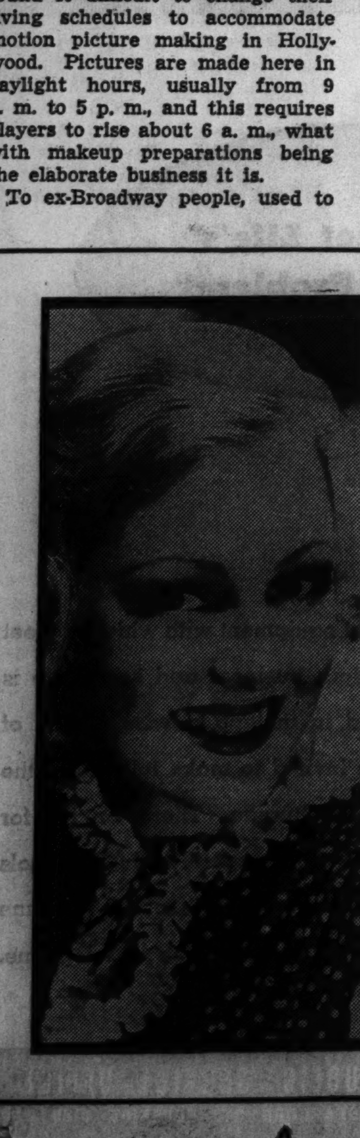
"LIVE, LOVE AND LEARN"

Before you—Mr. Robert Montgomery and Miss Rosalind Russell, living, loving, and learning. Meaning which? Meaning that's the name of their new picture—"Live, Love and Learn." It's at the Oriental.

Wynn on Stage

ED WYNN returned to the stage after an absence of five years in Boston recently. The comedian made his footlight comeback as the star of "Hooray for What," a musical extravaganza presented by the Shuberts. The show was written by Russel Crouse and Howard Lindsay, after a story by H. Y. Harburg. Wynn appears as an apple grower who becomes an international problem.

His company includes, Hannah Williams [Mrs. Jack Dempsey], Kay Thompson, radio singer, and Paul Haakon, dancer. The production was staged and directed by Vincente Minnelli.



SHE PLAYS IN "BAD GUY"

Virginia Grey plays the leading feminine role in "Bad Guy," now at the State-Lake. Bruce Cabot shoulders most of the masculine responsibility.

By Mae Tinee.

Good Morning!

SO far as the story's concerned "Bad Guy" is a pretty awful hodgepodge. But it provides Bruce Cabot with the most fitting rôle he's had since he made "Show Them No Mercy" and, so, is deserving of some attention.

Mr. Cabot is expert in portraying the compleat worthless cuss. . . . The sort of handsome, unscrupulous, devil may care, shrewd yahoo who eels in and out of trouble with no regard for the other fellow.

In the present opus he's "Luck" Walden, a superlinesman. Hard as nails, smart as pepper—and the idol of his brother Steve. Both young men have been reared in an orphanage. . . . Both are A1 "trouble shooters." But—Steve's a nice, clean chap—that's the difference.

In a fight "Luck" kills a gambler with a wrench. He escapes sentence—and from then on leads a life of constant lawbreaking and excitement.

But there comes a day when he finds, once and for all, that crime doesn't pay. The wires he's handled so long and dexterously bring about his finish.

"Bad Guy" is poorly directed and the continuity is terrible. But Mr. Cabot's good performance, that of Edward Norris as his brother, and some excellent bit work by veteran male players keep the piece from being a washout.

See you tomorrow!

Please Remove Hats.

The program books of the Boston Symphony orchestra now carry the following note: "Attention is called to the growing tendency to wear hats which obstruct the vision of others. Ladies are respectfully asked to remove their hats before the concert begins."

MAJESTY'S RANCHO

By Zane Grey

A Furious Gun Battle in the Darkness, and Gene Stewart and His Daughter Are Further in Debt to Lance

THE STORY TO DATE

● Lance Sidway, about to leave Hollywood with his horse, Umpqua, to look for a cowboy's job, rescues a blonde co-ed from threatened arrest. Next afternoon Lance waits to meet the girl, whom he knows only as Madge, but changes his mind when he overhears her talking to Honey Bee Uhl, a gangster, who is pressing an old flirtation on the girl. Lance rides Umpqua to Douglas, Ariz., where, short of funds, he stops to look for work. At a service station on the highway Lance is hailed by a man in a car whom he recognizes as Uhl. Hoping to get a line on the gangster, Lance agrees to drive an empty covered truck to Tucson for Uhl. He suspects Uhl is using trucks to transport stolen cattle. His job finished, Lance continues on to New Mexico, where he meets Ren Starr, who owns a garage and who gives Lance a letter to Gene Stewart, owner of Majesty's Rancho. Depression and cattle thieves have brought Gene Stewart to the verge of ruin. Nels, an old-time Texan who runs a store on the ranch, suggests that Gen throw in with Danny Mains, who has also suffered cattle losses. Danny has a Mexican wife and a pretty daughter, Bonita. It is a complete surprise to Lance when he gets a job from Gene Stewart and Gene's daughter, Madge, returns, expelled from college, and turns out to be the girl who moved Lance so deeply at first sight. Madge insults Lance by accusing him of following her to the ranch and then trying to buy Umpqua from him. Ren Starr arrives at the ranch with news of a truck raid on Gene's cattle that night.

INSTALMENT VIII.

(Copyright: 1937: By Zane Grey.)

STEWART strode so swiftly that Lance could not hear anything while they were moving. But presently they halted and the trample of hoofs and bawl of cattle became plainly audible. On the third halt Lance distinctly heard the thump of hoofs upon a board floor.

"———!" swore Stewart. "Loading already! Won't that make Nels snort? It should be getting hot over there. But Nels would move slow."

After another hundred steps or so Stewart led off the highway into the sage. Lance divined that the rancher wanted cover to drop behind in case the truckmen flashed their lights. Nevertheless it was not long before Stewart went down on all fours to crawl. This was tremendously exciting to Lance. The thump of solid hoofs on wood drowned all the other sounds except an occasional snort or bawl. The cattle were being moved with amazing celerity and little noise.

"Beats me," muttered Stewart, then crawled on. They had scarcely gotten even with a point opposite, where a high black bulk loomed up squarely above the horizon and marked the position of the trucks, when huge glaring lights gleamed out of the darkness. Lance flattened himself beside Stewart. A low fringe of sage on their right saved them from detection. But Lance's throat contracted. A harsh low voice, a sudden bursting of an engine into whirring roar, a grind of wheels left no doubt that a truck was starting. It moved quickly down to the road, and turned so that the lights swerved to the right, leaving the men in darkness. Then the truck stopped and the driver called. Stewart jerked Lance to his feet, whispering: "We've got to move careful now. Keep your head."

Stewart ran along the sage and up on the road to the truck. Lance, sharp eyed and tense, kept at his heels. The engine was purring. Reaching the front of the car Stewart jerked open the door and commanded: "Hands up!"

Lance over Stewart's shoulder saw the big gun go prodding into the driver's side. "Agg-h!" he ejaculated, and lifted his hands off the wheel.

A quick grating footstep on the other side of the car caused Lance to crouch. A man came swiftly round the front.

"Beat it, Bill—we're held up!" rasped the driver.

But this man cursed and swept up his arm. Lance, having him covered, had only to pull the trigger. His shot preceded the other's only by an instant. A crash of bursting glass, a thud of a bullet and Stewart staggered away from the truck to fall. The driver, with hoarse bellows of alarm, shoved his power on so quickly that the cattle in the truck banged against the gate. Then the truck roared down the road.

THE horror that gripped Lance at Stewart's fall nearly overcame him for a moment. Then strident yells, the flashing of lights and roaring of engines added to his fighting fury. Nimbly he leaped beyond the broad flares. And as the second truck whizzed down upon the road he emptied his gun at the front of the first one. The splintering crash of glass, the lurching of the car, the loud yells told that his bullets did some execution. Both trucks gained the road. As they roared on shots rang out from the bank. Then Lance, resorting to his rifle, aimed above the red rear light of the last truck and sent ten shots after it. Lowering the hot rifle he stood a moment, shaking, wet with cold sweat, realizing all shots had ceased. He caught a clatter of rapid hoofs, the crowding of cattle, then a ringing voice:

"Hey, over there," called Nels. "What'n hell was yore hurry?"

"Nels! Come—quick! Stewart's ——" yelled Lance, hoarsely.

"Keep your shirt on, cowboy," intercepted the cool voice of Stewart. Then Lance saw his tall dark form against the lighter gloom.

"O—Ste-wart. I was afraid," gasped Lance.

"Hello. Where are you fellers?" shouted Danny Mains, and then following Starr's cheery voice. "Busted, by thunder!"

"Here," called Stewart. Presently the three loomed on the road.

"Gene, you let 'um git away," protested Nels, hopping mad.

"Trucks vamoosed in spite of us How about the riders?"

"Wal, we was creepin' up behind, all set, when you opened up the ball."

"Did you identify any of them,"

"Hell, we didn't even see them. Slick an' fast ootfit, Gene. Makes me more curious."

"I ain't so damn curious as I was," growled Danny Mains, enigmatically.

"Pard, you shore done a lot of shootin,'" declared Starr, peering into Lance's face.

"Here's what happened," explained Stewart. "Sidway and I got here just as that loaded truck came off the sage. When it turned on the road we jumped and ran. It stopped. I opened the door and stuck my right gun in the driver's ribs. He yelled in spite of that. Then his pardner came running. Bill, the driver called him. Bill sure saw me. For he came up with a gun. I threw my left on him, but it struck the car door, low down. Sidway shot this fellow—broke his aim—or sure as God made little apples he'd have killed me. At that he hit me. His bullet knocked me flat."

"Gene! You shot? Whar? Not a body hit?" exclaimed Nels.

There was a moment's silence, during which the cold began to creep into Lance's marrow.

"Don't know where," returned Stewart calmly, as he felt of his body and shoulders. "I'm bleeding. Busted glass cut me. That hombre saw my body outside the door and, believe me, he threw his gun on it. But Sidway's shot knocked him off and up. Maybe the bullet didn't hit me at all. Maybe it did, because I'm bleeding all over my face and head."

"Aw, then it cain't be serious," declared Nels, with relief. "An' Sidway hit this hombre?"

"Bored him plumb center," replied Stewart, grimly. "He stood just inside the light. I saw him drop like a sack. He's lying here somewhere."

STARR produced a flashlight and with the two men began searching the immediate space.

"Heah! . . . Daid, I'll tell the world!" rang out Starr. "Lousy lookin' little ———! One of them hophaids."

"Search him, Ren, and drag him off the road. . . . Sidway, you're too damn good a shot. Dead men tell no tales."

"Wal, if you ask me, our new cowboy is a man after my kind. Gene, don't call him fer shootin' fast an' straight."

"I was kidding. But at that I wish Sidway had only crippled him. . . . What'd he have on him, Ren?"

"Automatic tight in his mit. . . . Watch, knife. Cigarets. . . . An' this wad of long green. Fellers, will you look at thet! A hundred dollar bill on the ootside!"

Lance gradually dragged himself closer to the trio, and discerned Starr on his knees beside the dead man, a slack spare figure, terribly suggestive, showing in the flashlight a crooked visage, ghastly in hue and contortion.

"Wal, you lousy hophaid," broke out Starr, in genial levity, "bumped up agin the wrong hombre, didn't you? . . . Lay hold, Danny, an' help me hawl him over heah."

The cold grip on Lance's internals slowly lessened, and he helped it pass by a desperate effort to conceal what he felt to be his squeamishness before these ranchers. He thought he could get by in the dark.

"Sidway must have stung more than this hombre," Stewart was saying to Nels. "He shot the front glasses out of both cars. And he sure cut loose with his rifle as they drove away. I heard the bullets hit that last truck."

"Wal, thanks to him, it didn't turn oot so pore. Mebbe thet money will more than pay fer the cattle they rustled."

"Boss, reckon I'll hev to drive to Bolton in the mawnin' an' report this execution to the sherif," said Starr, joining them.

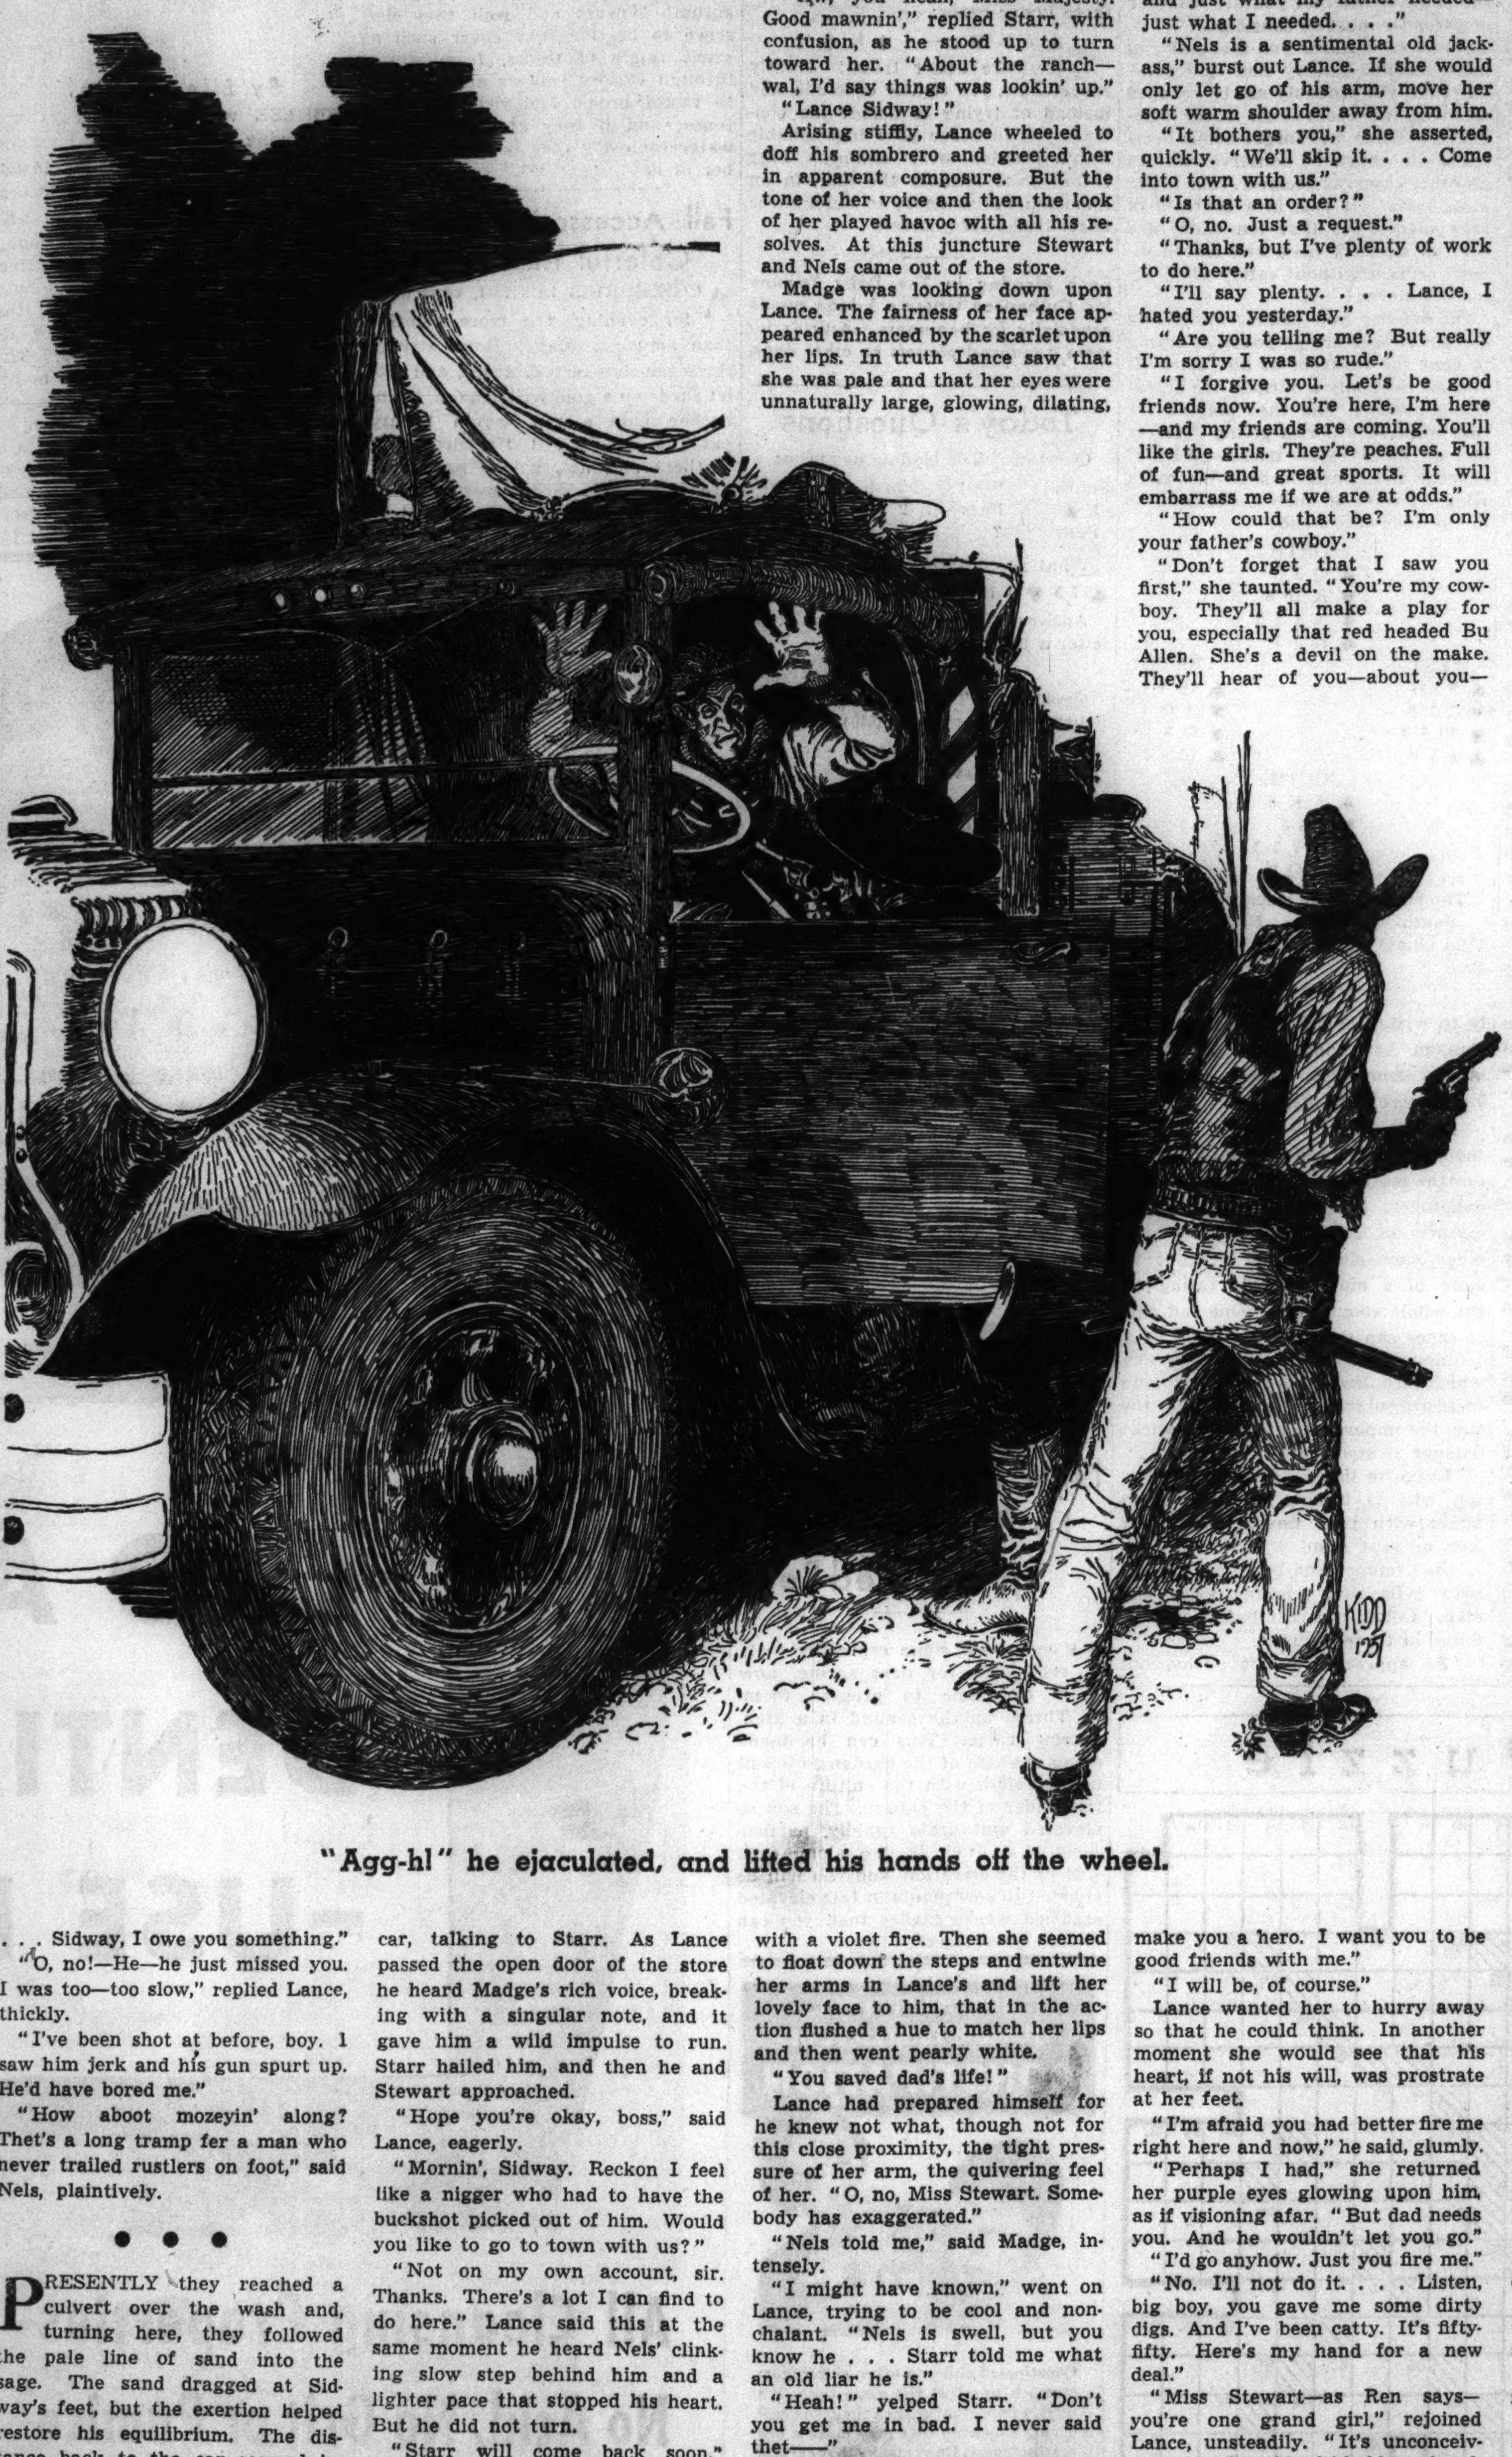
"Yes. And I might have to see a doctor."

"Lemme look." Starr flashed his light upon the side of Stewart's face which he turned for inspection. Lance saw with concern that the rancher was bloody enough to have been struck by a load of shot. The cowboy wiped the blood off and, peering closer, he ran his fingers over Stewart's cheek and temple and neck. "Hell! You ain't been shot atall, boss. Jest a blast of glass, I reckon. . . . Leastways I cain't find any bullet hole. . . . Gosh, I'm glad them glass bits missed yore eye."

"Feel here—back of my ear."

"Ah-ha! Shore, he creased you thar. . . . Hot as fire, huh. Thet was made by a bullet, boss."

"A miss is as good as a mile.



"Agg-h!" he ejaculated, and lifted his hands off the wheel.

. . . Sidway, I owe you something."

"O, no!—He—he just missed you. I was too—too slow," replied Lance, thickly.

"I've been shot at before, boy. I saw him jerk and his gun spurt up. He'd have bored me."

"How about mozeyin' along? Thet's a long tramp fer a man who never trailed rustlers on foot," said Nels, plaintively.

PRESENTLY they reached a culvert over the wash and, turning here, they followed the pale line of sand into the sage. The sand dragged at Sidway's feet, but the exertion helped restore his equilibrium. The distance back to the car seemed interminable and proved how, on the way down, the excitement had made it short. They found the car at length and were soon bumping over the uneven ground. Starr had no incentive now to drive slowly and noiselessly. He certainly gave his passengers a rough trip back to the ranch. It was 4 o'clock.

Lance went to bed at once. For half an hour Nels and Mains, dressing Stewart's wounds in the adjoining room, kept Lance awake, going over the adventure. When quiet settled down he soon fell asleep.

When he entered Nels' bunkhouse to have breakfast he sensed such a great transformation in himself that he felt certain his friends would exclaim about it. But they did not notice any difference in him. During the meal they did not once mention the affair of last night. All in the day, for them thought Lance! He essayed a cool and quiet demeanor which he meant to make permanent.

"Nels, what'll I do today?" he asked.

"Dog-gone if I know, son," drawled the other, scratching his gray head. "They're all goin' to town. Go wrangle yore hawse an' I'll ask Gene when he comes down."

Umpqua had made the most of the huge grassy pasture. Lance found him in the extreme far corner, more than a mile from the corrals, and rode him bareback to the corrals. After rubbing him down and saddling and bridling him, Lance led him up the lane to the court. Stewart, his head swathed in white bandages, stood by Madge's car, talking to Starr. As Lance passed the open door of the store he heard Madge's rich voice, breaking with a singular note, and it gave him a wild impulse to run. Starr hailed him, and then he and Stewart approached.

"Hope you're okay, boss," said Lance, eagerly.

"Mornin', Sidway. Reckon I feel like a nigger who had to have the buckshot picked out of him. Would you like to go to town with us?"

"Not on my own account, sir. Thanks. There's a lot I can find to do here." Lance said this at the same moment he heard Nels' clinking slow step behind him and a lighter pace that stopped his heart. But he did not turn.

"Starr will come back soon," went on the rancher. "It might be a good idea for you and him to fix up your quarters. Nels said they had gone to rack."

"How about the cattle?" asked Lance.

"They have been left free to run the range and, as you saw, have worked low down. Danny and I will be driving a big bunch to the railroad soon. Maybe next week. I'll make that deal in town today. As for immediate jobs, I want you and Ren to repair the water flume and the telephone line pronto."

"Yes, sir. I'll get started on them today."

"Nels, did you make out your list of supplies?"

"Majesty writ it oot fer me."

"Say, what have you been tellin' that girl?" demanded Stewart.

"Me? Why, Gene, nothin' at all," drawled Nels, innocently.

"You old liar! Look at her!"

Lance wished to do this with an almost irresistible desire. But he sat down on the edge of the porch, dragging Starr with him, aware that the others had stepped into the store.

"Ren, you'll not forget my baggage? It'll be C. O. D. Have you any money—if this isn't enough?"

"Shore, pard. An' what's mine is yours. . . . Say, how's yore bunkhouse fixed up? I didn't look."

"It's not fixed up at all," replied Lance. "No mattress, no chair, no mirror, nothing to wash in or with. No towels. I've been using Nels'."

"Wall, mine cain't be no wuss."

"Ren, buy what you need today," said Madge Stewart, from behind them. She had not gone into the store at all. Manifestly she had heard their talk. "Whatever is this ranch coming to?"

"Aw, you heah, Miss Majesty. Good mawnin'," replied Starr, with confusion, as he stood up to turn toward her. "About the ranch—wal, I'd say things was lookin' up."

"Lance Sidway!"

Arising stiffly, Lance wheeled to doff his sombrero and greeted her in apparent composure. But the tone of her voice and then the look of her played havoc with all his resolves. At this juncture Stewart and Nels came out of the store.

Madge was looking down upon Lance. The fairness of her face appeared enhanced by the scarlet upon her lips. In truth Lance saw that she was pale and that her eyes were unnaturally large, glowing, dilating, with a violet fire. Then she seemed to float down the steps and entwine her arms in Lance's and lift her lovely face to him, that in the action flushed a hue to match her lips and then went pearly white.

"You saved dad's life!"

Lance had prepared himself for he knew not what, though not for this close proximity, the tight pressure of her arm, the quivering feel of her. "O, no, Miss Stewart. Somebody has exaggerated."

"Nels told me," said Madge, intensely.

"I might have known," went on Lance, trying to be cool and nonchalant. "Nels is swell, but you know he . . . Starr told me what an old liar he is."

"Heah!" yelped Starr. "Don't you get me in bad. I never said thet——"

"Miss Stewart, please——" interposed Lance. "You mustn't give me undue credit. I was there—and I'm glad—I made myself useful. I didn't want to kill the man."

"You killed him?" she cried, aghast. "O, Nels didn't tell me that."

LANCE spread wide his hands to the watching men, as if to say, "Now see what you've done!" But it was not the revelation that distracted him.

"So you're bound to be our good angel!" she exclaimed, softly, and shook him gently.

"Really I—you—it was—it's not so much."

"Nothing! And you killed a robber who'd have murdered my father? I wonder what you'd consider very much. Come away from these grinning apes, so I can thank you."

She led him out to her car and still clung to his arm. "It's impossible to thank you," she went on, her voice breaking. "I can't even try. But I'm unutterably grateful. I'll do anything for you."

"Thank you, Miss Stewart."

"My friends call me Majesty," she interrupted, sweetly.

"I—I appreciate your excitement and feeling. It's kind of a tough spot for you. I hoped they wouldn't tell you. But they did . . . and I won't let you make too much of it."

"Too much! Aren't you glad?" she rejoined, incredulously.

"Glad? That I was there—with him? Good heavens! Of course I am."

"Nels told me you were a bad hombre to meet in a fight. That you reminded him of an old pard, Nick Steele. But that you were different from the old time bragging gunmen . . . modern, modest—a new kind to him, but dangerous, and just what my father needed—just what I needed. . . ."

"Nels is a sentimental old jackass," burst out Lance. If she would only let go of his arm, move her soft warm shoulder away from him.

"It bothers you," she asserted, quickly. "We'll skip it. . . . Come into town with us."

"Is that an order?"

"O, no. Just a request."

"Thanks, but I've plenty of work to do here."

"I'll say plenty. . . . Lance, I hated you yesterday."

"Are you telling me? But really I'm sorry I was so rude."

"I forgive you. Let's be good friends now. You're here, I'm here—and my friends are coming. You'll like the girls. They're peaches. Full of fun—and great sports. It will embarrass me if we are at odds."

"How could that be? I'm only your father's cowboy."

"Don't forget that I saw you first," she taunted. "You're my cowboy. They'll all make a play for you, especially that red headed Bu Allen. She's a devil on the make. They'll hear of you—about you—make you a hero. I want you to be good friends with me."

"I will be, of course."

Lance wanted her to hurry away so that he could think. In another moment she would see that his heart, if not his will, was prostrate at her feet.

"I'm afraid you had better fire me right here and now," he said, glumly.

"Perhaps I had," she returned her purple eyes glowing upon him, as if visioning afar. "But dad needs you. And he wouldn't let you go."

"I'd go anyhow. Just you fire me."

"No. I'll not do it. . . . Listen, big boy, you gave me some dirty digs. And I've been catty. It's fifty-fifty. Here's my hand for a new deal."

"Miss Stewart—as Ren says—you're one grand girl," rejoined Lance, unsteadily. "It's unconceivable that I could withhold my hand, if you offered yours. But I can't forget so easily as you evidently do."

"I see. You can't take it?"

"Do you still believe I found out who you were—where you lived—and came out here to—to——" he queried, hotly, and ended, unable to finish.

"Why, certainly I do."

"When I swear on my word of honor that I didn't?" went on Lance, passionately.

"Yes," she retorted, almost with like heat. "And I'd think more of you if you'd not lie about it. This word of honor stuff! . . . I thought it was a swell stunt. I was tickled pink. I'll still think it grand of you if you'll only stop bluffing. What more could you want?"

"I must seem ridiculous to you. But I'm neither a callow college youth nor a thick headed gangster. I'd expect a girl to believe me. Else I couldn't be her friend. You're just kidding me. You'd play with me in front of your college crowd—and let me down afterward. Why, you even have nerve enough to try to get my horse!"

"Yes I have, Lance Sidway," she blazed at him. "I've nerve enough to get him, too, at any cost—unless you show yellow and ride away!"

Lance bowed and turned away toward the bunk houses, forgetting the others and afraid to go to Umpqua. He heard her call to her father, and presently the sound of the cars wheeling away. In that moment of passion he divined if he approached Umpqua it would be to ride away from that ranch. Neither pride in himself nor loyalty to Stewart accounted for that victory over himself. The paralyzing and staggering truth was that he did not ride away because he could not bear to leave this beautiful and tormenting girl.

EARLY and late Sidway was out on the road job, overseeing the Mexican laborers, while Starr and Mains, with the vaqueros, repaired the telephone and then drove upward of fifteen hundred head of cattle to the railroad.

No sooner was the road fit for heavy trafic when it appeared all the trucks in Bolton came along loaded to capacity with the crated furniture and bales and boxes that Madge Stewart had sent from Los Angeles. There were four small trucks and two large ones. The contents, Lance calculated, must have cost the girl thousands of dollars; and the sight of them aroused an unreasonable resentment in him.

On Saturday afternoon of that busy week Lance was glad to see Starr drive up with Stewart and Mains in his car, and an empty truck behind.

The road job was finished, very much to Stewart's satisfaction, and he paid off the Mexicans, and sent them back to town.

"Well, I reckon we're ready for Madge's outfit," said Stewart, eyeing his cowboys.

"Who is, boss?" queried Lance.

"Not me, neither," added Starr, making a wry face. "All summer long! Gene, they'll drive us nuts. An' shore one of them swell college sprats will cop my girl."

"O, Bonita, you mean," returned Lance, laconically, as he rested against the car. "Ren, I haven't noticed—so much—that she is your property."

"Sid, you double-crossin' son-of-a-gun! I might have knowed it."

"Look head, Sidway, hev you been after my daughter, too?" demanded Danny Mains.

"Danny," interposed Stewart, "cowboys are the same now as we were. Only a good deal better. I think Bonita is better off for friends like Starr and Sidway."

"Wal, I reckon," agreed Danny, dubiously. "Only I'm afraid they might do some mischief to Bonita's several vaquero beaus."

"Mischief! Say, Danny, you ain't got me figgered," replied Ren, doggedly. "I love Bonita an' hev asked her to marry me."

"Ren! So that was it?" ejaculated Lance.

"So that was what?" queried Starr, suspiciously.

"I don't want to embarrass you here, pard."

"Ren, you'll excuse my cantankerousness," said Mains, simply. "I didn't hev you figgered."

"Starr, this here Oregon ladies' man is not only stepping on your preserves but he's kidding you," rejoined Stewart with a laugh. "Hook her up and let's go. Sidway, it's a good job well done. . . . O, yes, I have a message for you by phone. Madge wants you up at the house to open boxes."

"Boss! I'm a tired man," expostulated Lance. "And Umpqua needs to be worked over. Up and down this dusty road for a week!"

"Haw! Haw! Haw!" laughed Starr, fiendishly.

"All right. I'll tell Madge not tonight."

STARR grinned knowingly at Lance and drove off. From where they had caught up with him it was only a short ride to the ranch. Yet it seemed a long and thoughtful one for Lance. It began to look as if Madge Stewart either meant to try him with odd stable boy jobs or else she wanted him to be unable to avoid her, as he had tried so hard to do. The former made him furious and the latter made him weak.

By the time he had put Umpqua away it was dark, the store was closed, and bright lights shone from Nels' window and door. Lance washed his grimy hands and face before he went in.

"Jest in time, son. Come in and get it," said Nels, cheerily.

"Pard, what say to a swim in the lake after supper? She's bank full already," suggested Starr.

"Okay by me. But, boy! That water is cold."

"An' you from Oregon!"

It turned out to be warmer water than Lance was used to at home, and he enjoyed the bath. On the way back he realized that Ren had something on his mind. Lance clapped him on the back.

"What's on your chest, Buddy?"

"It's Bonita."

"Say, Ren, I was surprised at what you admitted to Danny. I had no idea you were serious. I'm sorry, old man."

"You like Bonita?"

"She's a charming girl, Ren. I honestly think she'd make a swell little wife. But there are a lot of guys who're after her, and not all of them with your good intentions."

"Some of them Mexican vaqueros."

"Yes. But town fellows, too. And I'm suspicious of them. I've a hunch some of them might know something about that rustling."

"My hunch, too. We'll find out."

At breakfast a message came from Stewart requesting the cowboys to come up to the house, not dressed in their Sunday clothes.

"That means work. And it's Sunday!" complained Lance, honestly and fearfully divided between bliss and panic.

Upon ascending to the ranch house the cowboys, with Nels accompanying them, found a busy and excited household. Front porch and part of the patio were packed with crates, bales, boxes, trunks, and packages. Stewart, in his shirt sleeves, apparently in a trance, was helping the beaming Danny Mains carry furniture into the house. Mrs. Stewart, flushed and radiant, was bustling about with the servants. Bonita was there, red lipped and pretty, her arms full of linens. And Madge, in slacks and a backless waist, cool and sweet and smiling, evidently was boss.

She put Lance and Ren to opening crates. For a couple of hours they worked diligently at this job, and after they had unpacked everything they carried boards and boxes and burlap and paper out to be hauled away on the morrow. The next job was to move things into the patio rooms. Lance observed that these were light, high ceiled rooms, with colored adobe walls and shiny floors. He had a glimpse of Madge's rooms, and was reminded of some of the luxurious motion picture sets he had seen in Hollywood.

As the minutes sped by Lance seemed hardly conscious of anything besides Madge's presence—her intense and zestful activity, her requests and suggestions, and her talk in between, the intimacy that she seemed not to notice but which he felt so subtly, the play of her lovely features, and the changing expressions in her violet eyes, her laugh, her smile, her grace, her disheveled golden hair falling over her face to be brushed back with a beautiful hand.

And at last, how it came about he could not say; they had finished all present tasks, and she was offering him a cigaret.

"Lance, you're one swell assistant. I think I'll promote you, if——"

"To what?"

"O, major domo or gigolo—or just cavalier."

"It'll be all I can do to make good as a cowboy. That is—here!"

"How modest and cool you are! I'd like it if I could be sure you were sincere. You don't ring true, darling."

● ● ●

HE HAD no reply for that. They had come out into the patio, and Lance was walking slowly toward the back with apparent composure and the respectful demeanor of a cowboy toward the boss' daughter. She walked with him, blowing rings of blue smoke from her red lips. Lance felt that he must escape at once, or he would betray what he knew not.

"O, I forgot. There's a nice room at that end of the patio. I want you to have it."

"But, I—thank you, Miss Stewart. I have my bunk house lodgings."

"Yes. I peeped in there one day while you were out. Nels showed me. Rotten for even a cowboy. And you're a gentleman, Lance."

"Thanks again. But I'm satisfied down there."

"I expect you to help entertain my guests."

"What!" He was tremendously surprised, and could say no more.

"Why should you be so surprised? Because you've been rude to me and I've been selfish? That's nothing. We can give, and take it, too. . . . These boys and girls will be tenderfeet. I must have some real western he-man around on occasions—especially where my horses are concerned. I'd like to trust you with that job."

"But your father wants Ren and me to ride the range, build and dig, and what not."

"So Dad told me. Ren can attend to that with the vaqueros. I want you."

"Are you giving me an order?"

"I am inviting you—asking you to be a friend—a good sport," she retorted, her eyes flashing.

"You are very kind. But in that case I must refuse."

"Don't you like me?" she demanded, incredulously.

"Miss Stewart, that is a personal matter," he replied, looking straight ahead.

"You do like me," she asserted.

"If you put it that way I'm afraid I must be rude again. You are mistaken," he rejoined, and his voice sounded curiously strange to his throbbing ears. But he was telling the truth. He did not like Madge Stewart, because he loved her. The silence grew almost unbearable. He steeled himself against sarcasm, anger, wounded vanity. When they reached the wide, green bordered exit from the patio, when she stopped, he simply had to look at her. The last thing he expected was to see her eyes brimming with tears. She looked by him, out over the slope to the range. Her wide eyes were softly blurred, dark with pain.

"Lance, I can take it," she said, presently, and lifted her cigaret to her lips. It had gone out. "Have you a match?" He produced one, struck and held it for her, and she blew a cloud of smoke, with apparent unintention, into his face. When the blue cloud cleared away he could not have believed she could possibly have looked hurt.

"Any one can start something. But it takes a real sport to finish."

Did she refer to an affair with him or the acquisition of his horse, or was it the passionate pride of a woman in herself? He answered by saying that he feared he, at least, had undertaken something he could never finish, and, bidding her good-night, he left her.

ONE of the enterprising young women of the magazine field, Louise Paine Benjamin, assumes that the other sex, sometimes called the nobler, stronger, and handsomer, likes us of the opposing sex camp. So assuming, and not without considerable evidence to support the assumption, she endeavors to present good reasons why they should like us, when they do like us, that is.

It isn't to be presumed for a moment that all of us are liked. On the contrary, we are liked only in ratio to our powers—mental, physical, and to some extent spiritual — to please the men. Being nothing, if not a generous soul, Mrs. Benjamin doesn't hug her information to her herself and a few chosen friends. She gives you the benefit of her research among the men in her recently published book, "Why Men Like Us" [Stackpool], in which you are more than likely to find the reasons why you get the orchids and diamond bracelets and why some other women get the dishwashing privileges only.

Indeed, you may discover a number of answers to questions that have attacked you from time to time as to why, for instance, some little habit of which you may or may not be cognizant rubs the masculine fur the wrong way. Of why, let's say, with all the information you may possess, you had better not develop a passion for communicating it, in case, as Mrs. Benjamin explains, you soon may find yourself without an audience to which to communicate it. And why you'd better groom yourself to the teeth, since that is the standard set by so many women that less than that need not be considered.

AS Mrs. Benjamin says in her explanation of her assumption that the other sex views us with affection, "they continue to hire us, serve us, court us, marry us, and even be kind to us!" To make us worthy of our hire, therefore, the author supplies us with any number of valuable hints, gleaned first hand from the men themselves.

We learn from men, via the Benjamin route, that the girls who get the most invitations are those who are well bred, carry their clothes well, and convey a sense of "aliveness." This last is important, Mrs. Benjamin interprets. No man wants to escort a clothes dummy around, no matter how good looking.

"As a matter of fact," we are told, "it doesn't matter a continental whether a girl is good looking or not these days if she has style. Lots of girls who would have been considered downright homely in their mother's day are rushed to death now."

It appears, too, from the author's record, that you can be frankly thirty and no cribbing, frankly forty, frankly fifty. The query, "What age do men like women?" brought this response: "Past thirty! At least, mentally. Once we are out of the twenties bubbling youth loses its fascination. As we get older we find more understanding in mature women, and more appreciation. These fluffy headed youngsters don't want to listen to us, don't know what we are talking about, anyway, and certainly do not appreciate our pearls of wisdom. No charming woman in her thirties need fear competition from the 20 year olds."

How a waiter sees and judges one is revealed in Mrs. Benjamin's book, and how the hairdresser sizes you up and measures you for a charmer or another kind of female arriving in bad humor for an appointment because she let herself sink to the nadir in self-respect and coiffure neglect before appearing for shampoo and wave.

Through Mrs. Benjamin you may see yourself as the shoeman sees you, and he does see you often as a woman with little judgment about shoes for herself and hard to convert to the idea of what's good for the foot.

THE chronic kicker is no novelty to the shoe salesman, who is likely to write her off as a disagreeable soul in her home, too. The shoe men's confidence about shoes is worth recording here:

"Young girls are not as vain as their mothers used to be. Even today the mothers are vainer than their daughters. Striving for youth at the expense of good shoe sense is the older woman's common attitude in spite of a more sensible rating on the whole about shoes. One bad pair of shoes can ruin feet for life."

Among the concrete charm tips with which Mrs. Benjamin would have you fortify yourself for a place in the sun, the importance of being a patient listener is stressed:

"Learn to listen. Look at the person who is talking to you. Don't fidget with your fingers, with your feet, or your mind.

"Bad temper and bossiness are the twin evils that frighten away any man. Count the cost before you indulge in these luxuries.

"Be appreciative, not gushy, but sincerely responsive. Thoughtfulness begets thoughtfulness.

"Don't be on the defensive. March forward with banners flying, and watch old age retreat."

Things men don't like about us, to name a few confided to Mrs. Benjamin, are deep red nails; always keeping men waiting; crooked seams and run down heels; being catty; finding fault, and interrupting to help finish a sentence.

Contract According to Culbertson

By Ely Culbertson

(Copyright: 1937: By Ely Culbertson.)

Match Point Duplicate

THE philosophy of match point duplicate varies from that of rubber bridge on two definite points.

The first point has to do with bidding—especially competitive bidding. In rubber bridge, if neither side is vulnerable and you feel certain that the opponents will fulfill the game contract they have reached, a sacrifice effort on your part need be figured only approximately. Opponents have bid four hearts, let us say. You and partner have been bidding spades. You are undecided whether four spades will go down two tricks or three. Technically the former is a good sacrifice and the latter not good. But if, in a spirit of optimism, you make the bid, get doubled (as you know you will be), and go down the dreaded 500 points instead of the hoped-for 300, you have lost very little. Opponents' game was worth about 420 points. You need not be deeply chagrined over the 80 points you have squandered.

In the same situation at duplicate it is quite another matter. Here the sacrifice must not exceed by so much as 10 points the score your opponents could have made! Perhaps if let alone they would have made five-odd for a total, including nonvulnerable game bonus, of 450 points. You, at your four spade "save," lose only 500 points —a measly 50 points additional. But when at the end you examine the traveling score sheet you are pretty sure to find that that 50 points was anything but measly! You will receive either a nice round zero or, if there was another sap in the room, the dubious satisfaction that you have tied for bottom!

Thus, you will see, sacrifice bidding at duplicate must be figured more precisely than at rubber bridge. Since it is often impossible to foresee whether you will go down two tricks or three at the contract under consideration, it follows that a general policy of conservatism in "saving" must be employed. Always remember that even though the success of your opponents' game contract may be a foregone conclusion, you may, by superior defense, by a shrewd selection of opening lead, allow fewer tricks to be made than will be made at other tables. In that case you will have assured yourself of a far better than average match point score without having risked a thing to get it.

As I have preached on innumerable occasions, the one place for aggressive bidding at duplicate is in the skirmish for low part scores. Very rarely will it be advisable for you to permit the opponents to play a suit contract of one, or even a minor suit contract of two. Obviously, if you know your current opponents to be timid; if there is a distinct possibility that they have stopped at one spade whereas they should have been up to three at least, investigating game chances, you will have to guide yourself accordingly. The appraisal of a particular opponent is something that cannot be taught at long distance.

But this low-level skirmishing, and closer penalty doubles, are the only exceptions to the general policy of conservatism that pays the best dividends at match point duplicate. Don't bid doubtful slams; don't bid highly doubtful games! And don't even double too liberally if you are sure the opponents are in the wrong spot, i. e., that they could have reached or still can reach a better contract (better for them) than the one where they are resting.

Let us leave the bidding and consider the play.

A rather anomalous situation develops here. In so far as a policy is concerned—aggressive or conservative—the point of whether you are declarer or defender must be considered.

When as declarer you see that you have reached a very fine contract—one that will probably not be reached all over the room—use every safeguard possible and forget about overtricks—in short, be conservative. In all other cases, as declarer, take legitimate risks! If you, in a contract of four spades, see that ten tricks are cold on a safety play, and eleven almost certain without safety play, try for the eleven!

On defense you cannot afford the correct rubber bridge policy of trying to beat the contract at all costs! If you see that only a miracle can defeat the opponents, and that playing for that miracle will risk giving declarer one or more extra tricks—give up! concede the contract, save the extra trick. I refer to such a situation as in the following hand:

NORTH
♠ Q J 3
♥ K 10 6
♦ A J 9 2
♣ K J 7

WEST
♠ 9 8 7
♥ 7 3 2
♦ 10 6 4
♣ 8 5 4 3

EAST
♠ 10 5 4 2
♥ A Q J 5
♦ Q 8
♣ 10 6 2

SOUTH
♠ A K 6
♥ 9 8 4
♦ K 7 5 3
♣ A Q 9

The bidding (both sides vulnerable):

South	West	North	East
1 no trump	Pass	3 no trump	Pass
Pass

You, dear reader, are East.

West, let us suppose, opens the nine of spades—surely the best "blind stab." Dummy ducks and declarer wins with the king. The diamond king is cashed and a low diamond led and and finessed—declarer not having been favored, as you and I have been, with a peek at the singly guarded diamond queen. You scoop in the trick and consider your return lead. Your choice must hinge on whether you are playing rubber bridge or duplicate!

You identify the opening lead of the spade nine as the "top of nothing"; declarer started with ace-king. Hence spade tricks for your side are out of the question. The one chance of defeating the contract, you see, depends on your partner having the club ace. If he has it, a low heart return by you will do the trick. When West takes his club ace he will lead another heart and you will trap dummy's king and cash three heart tricks.

All very fine—but what are the odds against West's holding the club ace? If you are playing duplicate you must think of those odds—and naturally you will decide it is a long shot. If declarer is queen high in clubs, he bid an original no trump, vulnerable, on these honor cards:

♠ A K ♥ —— ♦ K ♣ Q

Three bare honor tricks! Hardly conceivable, you rightly conclude, and instead of trying to defeat the contract you preserve your impregnable heart position over dummy's king rather than concede the king in an almost hopeless effort to build three heart tricks for yourself.

Each Monday in The Daily Tribune Mr. Culbertson writes a bridge article especially for beginners. Articles for more advanced players on other days.

Today's Questions

Question: The bidding has been:

South	West	North	East
1 ♦	Pass	2 ♣	Double
Pass	?

What should West bid with:

♠ 7 5 ♥ J 10 8 6 3 ♦ 9 5 ♣ K Q 9 4

Answer: Two hearts. East's double is for a takeout.

Question: The bidding (North-South have part score of 40) has been:

South	West	North	East
1 ♦	Pass	2 ♥	Pass

Must South bid again with:

♠ 6 3 ♥ A Q 7 ♦ A Q J 8 6 ♣ J 10 5

Answer: Yes, he should bid three hearts. Although with the part score North's two heart bid is enough for game, a forcing takeout is still forcing —in this case, for one round.

Candle Light Adds Friendliness to the Dinner Table

THE soft glow of candle light adds cheer and friendliness to the evening dinner table. And the candles themselves and their holders add to the decorative scheme of the table.

A new idea for a lovely table decoration is to surround the bases of the candles with the same kind of flowers that are used in the centerpiece. There are special holders of either pottery or metal that are made to hold both candles and flowers, but any ordinary low candle holder may be set in a small bowl and the flowers arranged around it.

One centerpiece was made with the daisy type of single chrysanthemum combined with the double type. An interesting effect was obtained by first making a solid ring of the larger flowers just above the edge of the bowl and then placing the single blooms in an irregular mass higher up. Yellow candles were used with deep golden yellow and bronze flowers in this centerpiece and candle combination, but any desired colors may be used.

These smaller types of chrysanthemums are among the most popular autumn flowers and well they deserve to be, for they cover such a great range of colors, from white through various yellows and bronzes to russet brown and rich wine red tones; and if they are given fresh water each day they last for a number of days.

Fall Accessories More Colorful Than Amusing

ACCESSORIES this fall, especially for evening, are more colorful than amusing. Maggy Rouff strings three pouches in red, green, and violet suede on a gold wrist chain. Mainbocher puts a red sequin beauty patch on a black veil. Headdresses of feathers and net, gold ornamented, are important. Schiaparelli does a nice black envelope bag, latticed in silver and gilt chains.

Blouses Are Excellent for an Eight Year Old

By Ellen Bruce.

THESE wintry school days are trying when children must be dressed comfortably for inside as well as for out of doors. Sheer wools, fine angoras and soft crêpes are the solution for young children whose skins are sensitive. The cunning hand crocheted blouse illustrated today is designed for the busy 8 year old girl and is one of the most simple of crochet jobs. The beginner may attempt this model without any hesitancy. The expert crochet worker can do the blouse in one day. The narrow band at the waist and the simple mesh effect of the body of the blouse are both done in stitches which all crochet workers know. Single and double crochet for those who know the stitches may be done with the eyes closed. The ascot tie is a pleasing addition to a garment and especially for the 8 year old miss who is just beginning to enter that dreaded period called "the awkward age." To insure the success of this little garment do not make it of shetland or heavy yarns because it will lose its effect. These yarns are excellent for garments not using this particular stitch in the body of the blouse.

If you wish instructions for crocheting the blouse illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Ellen Bruce, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune's Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby.

Flower Scents Are Best Worn Directly on Skin

THERE'S a definite trend this fall toward the modified oriental perfume for formal afternoon and evening wear. Not the heavy, stupefying musk and amber creations of a bygone day, but a modified version that still retains the deep and languorous beauty of the oriental conception of perfume without its cloying, almost sickening undertone —a version that far better suits the gay modern temperament.

The lovely ladies of the 1900s trailed auras of oriental perfumes with their feather boas. Perfume follows fashion. And like fashion in its return to the turn-of-the-century styles with a soupcon of Directoire thrown in, perfume also shows the same influence. In neither case do we go the whole way backward, but retain only the best features in gown and perfume modified to suit the 1937 glamor scene.

The modified oriental type of perfume is particularly good with brocades, lames, velvets. It has the same rich and stately feeling. Yet flowers continue to grow abundantly in the fashion field to be reflected in perfumes. If you're wearing a flower ornament in your evening coiffure, or a wide flower bracelet, the modern floral bouquet perfumes are tremendously appealing.

Two things to remember, according to one perfume authority, are that flower perfumes are best worn directly on the skin. The warmth of the skin seems to bring out the scent as the warmth of the sun does in the real flowers.

Mothers Co-Operating in Research Study of Babies

WIVES of farmers, college professors, lawyers, and salesmen are coöperating in an unusual study of child development now under way at the Fels Research institute in Yellow Springs, O. They have loaned 120 babies to give scientists a chance to discover what makes one infant different from another.

Now Is the Time to Prepare for Spring Seed Beds

IF you want some especially early seed beds for next spring, now is the time to prepare them. Throw up the ground in a high, narrow ridge. This can be made along one side of the garden so it will not interfere with the culture of the remainder of the garden. The soil so elevated will drain rapidly, particularly if a ditch is dug along each side of the elevation, and you will be enabled to sow plants in this elevated seed-bed weeks earlier than you can on the lower level.

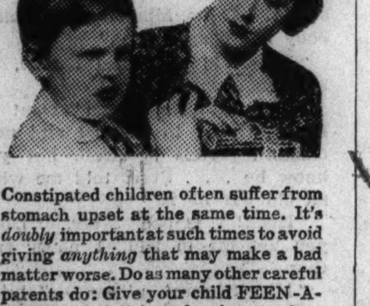
DON'T PUNISH HIS STOMACH TO RELIEVE HIS CONSTIPATION

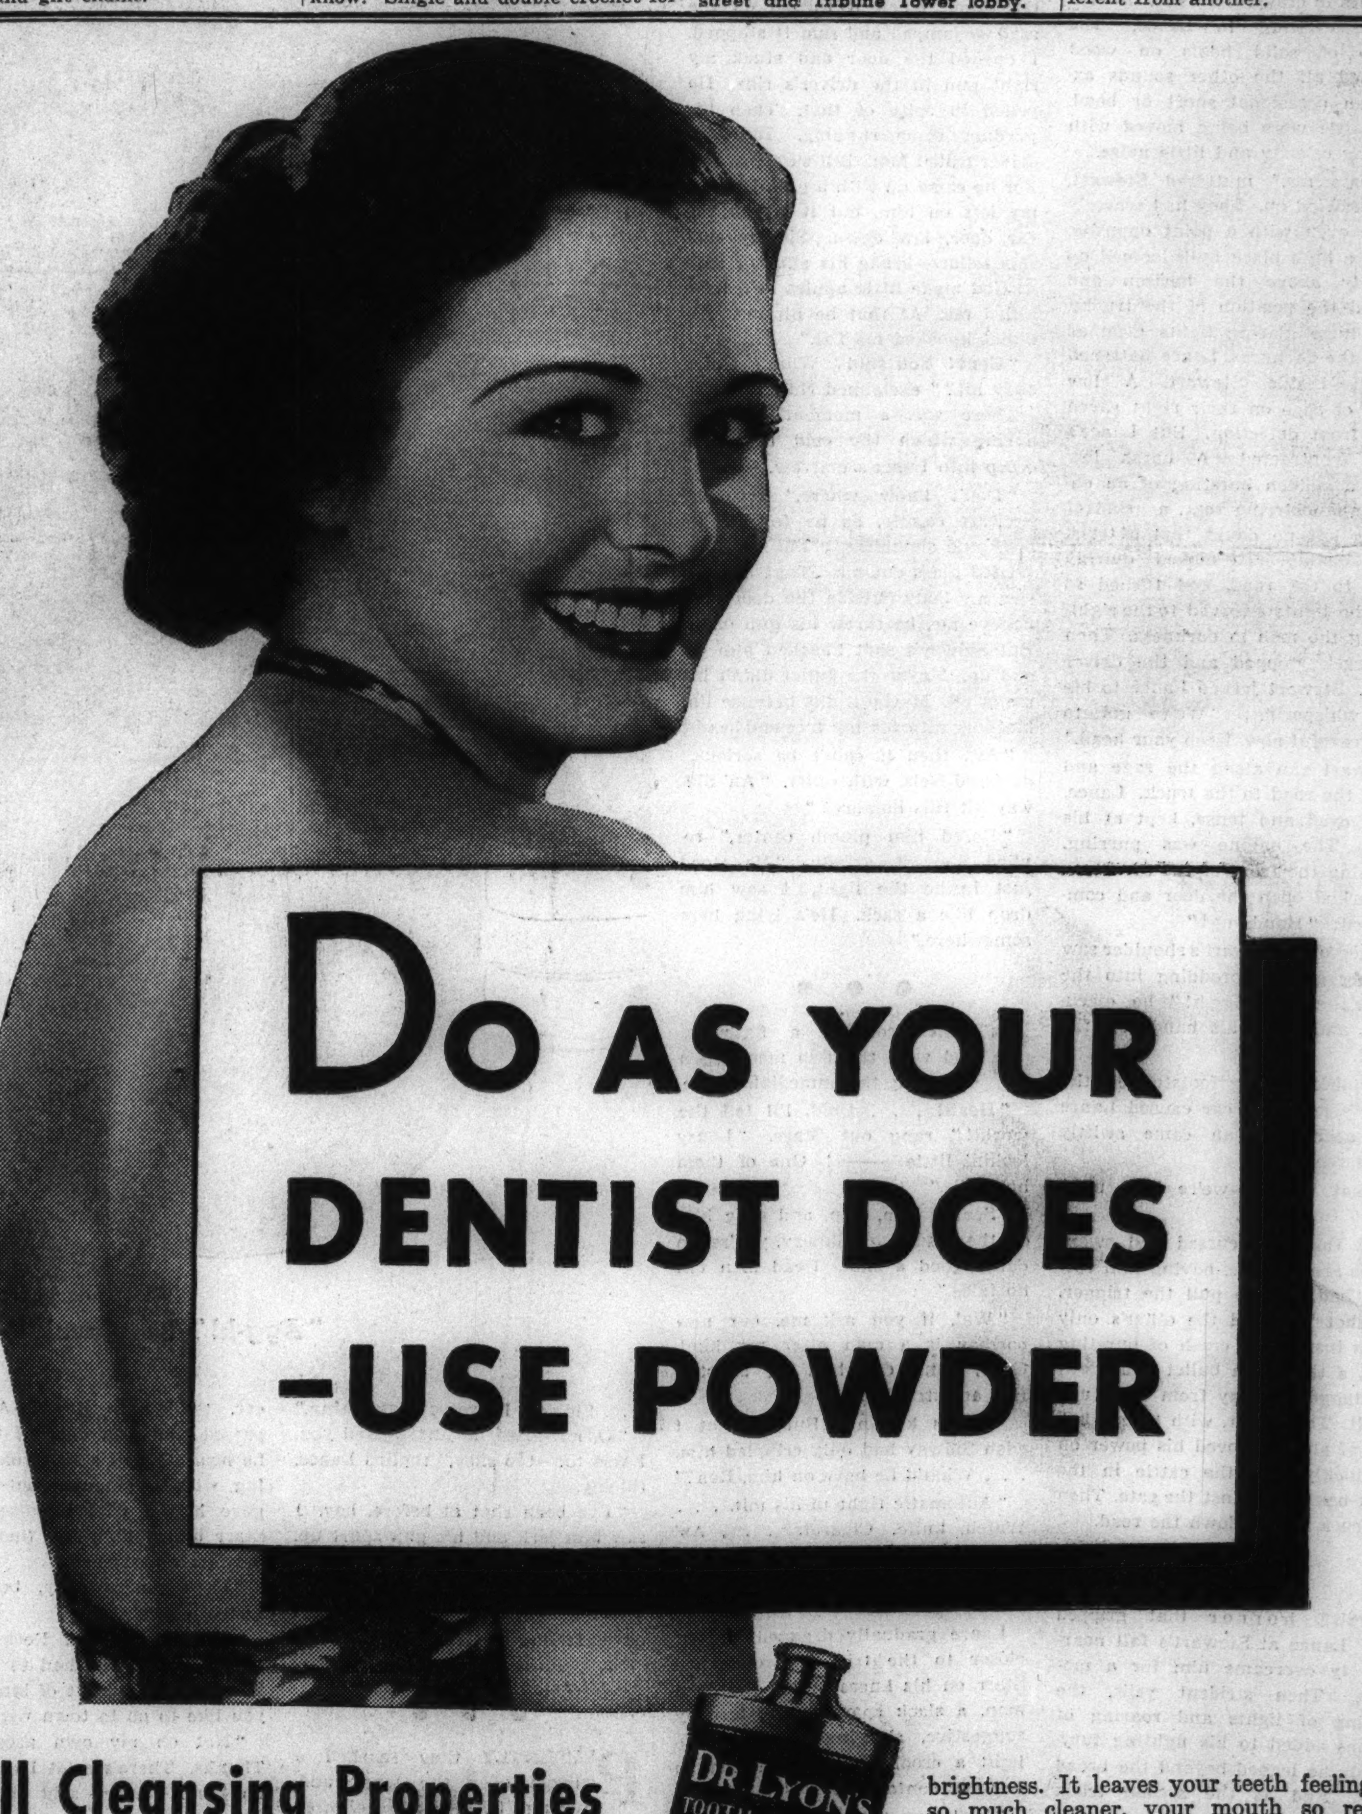


Constipated children often suffer from stomach upset at the same time. It's doubly important at such times to avoid giving anything that may make a bad matter worse. Do as many other careful parents do: Give your child FEEN-A-MINT—the delicious chewing gum laxative that rates 3 stars for its special benefits:

1. NO STOMACH UPSET—you don't swallow a heavy, bulky dose; there's nothing to burden your overworked digestion.
2. CHEWING AIDS DIGESTION—the chewing increases the flow of the same natural alkaline fluids that help food digest.
3. ACTS WHERE YOU NEED IT—in the intestine. Does not interfere with stomach action.

Children love FEEN-A-MINT's delicious flavor — its freedom from pain, griping, nausea, or sleep disturbance. Use it for yourself or your child, and you will be delighted! Get a package of FEEN-A-MINT today!

NO OTHER TYPE OF LAXATIVE CAN DO EXACTLY WHAT FEEN-A-MINT DOES



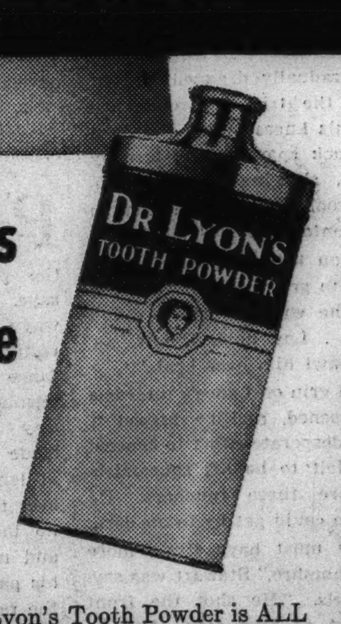
DO AS YOUR DENTIST DOES -USE POWDER

All Cleansing Properties

No Acid, No Grit or Pumice

Cannot possibly injure or scratch

Costs Less to Use



NOTHING else cleans and polishes teeth more quickly and leaves them more naturally white than POWDER.

That is why your dentist, when cleaning your teeth, as you know—almost always uses powder.

As it is only the powder part of most dentifrices that cleans, a dentifrice that is all powder just naturally cleans effectively. Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is ALL POWDER—all cleansing properties.

For over seventy years many dentists everywhere have prescribed Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder because normal teeth simply cannot remain dull and dingy looking when it is used.

Dr. Lyon's cleans and polishes the teeth in a harmless and practical way that leaves them sparkling with natural brightness. It leaves your teeth feeling so much cleaner, your mouth so refreshed and your breath so sweet and pure.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is a special dental powder developed for HOME USE by a distinguished practicing dentist. Free from all acids, grit or pumice, it cannot possibly injure or scratch the softest enamel as years of constant use have shown.

Even as a neutralizer in acid mouth conditions, Dr. Lyon's is an effective antacid.

Brush your teeth with Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder regularly—consult your dentist periodically—eat a diet rich in minerals and vitamins, and you will be doing all that you can possibly do to protect your teeth.

Dr. Lyon's is more economical to use. In the same size and price class Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder outlasts tooth pastes two to one. Even a small package will last you for months.

Friday Club Observes 50th Anniversary

By Cousin Eve.

MRS. REGINALD DE KOVEN, who was first president of the Friday club, came out from New York to the 50th birthday party last week. This was a grand gala indeed with a birthday cake twelve feet across and a long luncheon table down the room at which the surviving eighteen charter members sat and regaled themselves on old memories and choice viands. The Friday club meetings take place at the Fortnightly club in Bellevue place, a lovely old house once the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Lathrop, leaders in the cultural life of Chicago in the early years of the century.

The present ballroom of the Fortnightly as designed by the late Rue Winterbotham Carpenter was the former billiard room of the old mansion, now a gray room with many mirrors and flame hangings of satin. At the north end is a dais framed in old Chinese Coromandel screens. Against this background Mrs. de Koven, in sweeping black velvet and flaring, feathered velvet chapeau, read for an hour from the manuscript of her new book of memoirs. It was not so much Friday club as the author's recollections of Washington life, with memories of her sister, Rose Chatfield-Taylor, the great Chicago beauty of those days. Perhaps it is good business to read from advance sheets of one's new book. But, on the other hand, perhaps it isn't if the subject matter has somehow lost its savor in the tremendous clash of the present.

Mrs. Hermon Butler, also a charter member, was greatly applauded when she added her memories to the program with wit and the gayety an audience such as hers dearly loves. They heard of the first meeting in the old Charles Farwell house in Tower court, still standing, and many drolleries of other meetings. Mrs. Cyrus Bentley followed with a short, vivid résumé of the half century of Friday club high spots, equally delightful. Among the eighteen charter members also seated at the birthday table were Mrs. William Burry, Mrs. George Fisher, Mrs. George Carpenter, and Mrs. John V. Farwell.

ANOTHER similar celebration of the week, but not going so far back into history, was the Racquet club dinner for Howard Gillette, since gone with Mrs. Gillette to a beauty spot in Arizona. The dinner was arranged by Arthur Meeker and Herman Waldeck, and thirty-eight of Mr. Gillette's particular cronies were seated at table. There was a program calling for excellent food and drink and, in large black type, speeches from various and sundry guests, such as Ralph M. Shaw, "Boots and Saddles"; Charles S. Dewey, "Life on a Dude Ranch," and Herman Waldeck, "The Ladies."

Arthur Meeker gave the keynoting speech, referring to Artemus Ward and the famous occasion when his subject was "Egypt," and he spoke for forty minutes to a thrilled audience. But never once did he mention Egypt. So the other speakers, more or less, did not stick to their texts, especially Mr. Waldeck, who never even peeped about the fair sex.

The dinner went along, as dinners do, and with all the sad and depressing remarks about the departure of the proponent and, with all the flowers and candles, might have fallen into a funereal event and had everybody weeping had not a guest, who shall remain unnamed, saved the night by proposing a toast to Howard Gillette, to be drunk standing, one foot on the table, a good old Philadelphia custom. Now some of the guests apparently had never been in the Quaker capital, for they tried it one foot on the floor, and that wasn't so good. The true spirit of this toast is one foot on the chair and t'other on the table.

After this, the same life saver marched the party singing round and round the festal board, and it ended by being one of the best dinners in Chicago history.

A DEBUT party, also on the side of things charming and beautiful, was Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine's tea at the Casino for her blonde slip of a granddaughter, Betty Armour. There one met what the French call "la vieille roche," and the atmosphere was like a greenhouse from the massed baskets of flowers in fabulous numbers. A man guest met on the outside of the Casino remarked that "the simple decorations pleased him."

This was to laugh. It was the poor fellow himself who was simple, not the decorations, which were unique. The double row of silver columns supporting the ballroom each bore a huge bouquet of pink roses, ten feet from the parquet. In the center was a long tea table covered with blush pink, and here again were pink roses with Easter lilies. At each end was a young bud of this season in demure street dress; Vesta Culbertson and Mary Adams were doing the honors late in the afternoon. And there too was the magnificence of silver tea and coffee services of design and beauty rarely seen any more, each upon its own gorgeous plateau of silver, a perfect specimen of the silversmith's art. Candelabra of great beauty graced the table, and there was not a housewife in Chicago's innermost set who, on observing these splendors, did not do the kotow to this particularly expensive and recherché sort of simplicity—the kind of simplicity, in short, of which even the upkeep is fabulous.

There were naturally many Armours at this party, and Mrs. W. Vernon Booth, who came on from New York, and Mrs. J. Ogden Armour, handsome and charming always. She has the idea of running down to her Connecticut place for a New England Thanksgiving, after settling in and rebuilding a new Lake View avenue apartment, bought from Noble Judah. Mrs. Armour in these days is seldom without a little building job of one kind or another. Last year she finished an extremely fine English house, near Onwentsia, designed by David Adler, which has never yet been occupied.

Mrs. Armour seems to be the answer to the architect's prayer. And that reminds me of the Bau-Haus out in Prairie avenue. This is the name allotted to the old Marshall Field house, 1805 Prairie avenue, now a school established by the Chicago Arts and Industries. The house, given last year by Marshall Field III., has been transformed, they say, for I did not go out to the opening party. It is sort of heart breaking to visit the scenes where one gayly frisked and frolicked as a youngster and from which the hosts have vanished forever.

But I did go with many other guests to the Bau-Haus banquet in the Red room of the Palmer house and heard with interest what it is all about.

DR. WALTER GROPIUS, now a professor at Harvard, founded an architectural school at Dessau and, being unable to accept a contract from Miss Norma Stahle, moving spirit of the Arts and Industries, secured a fellow executive from London. This was a young Hungarian with Rooseveltian teeth named Moholynagy, nicknamed by London architects "Holy Mahogany." These men were met at the dinner where Dr. Gropius explained at great length in closely written theses his theories, in complete opposition, by the way, to Beaux-Arts principles. There seem to be three years of practical work in wood, metal, textiles, color, light, photography, cinema glass, clay, stone, and staging. After that an architect's course is in order. The general opinion of one's fellow diners seemed to be that they should change the name of Bau-Haus to something else before it is too late. Among the many present were Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Parsons, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brewster, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Paepcke, Mr. and Mrs. Shreve Badger, Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose Cramer, Mrs. Inez Cunningham, Del Quest, Shepherd Vogelgesang, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Fletcher, Mr. and Mrs. John Root.

Another high spot was the luncheon talk of the fascinating Dr. Koo of Shanghai before the Foreign Relations council at the Palmer house. I will not go at length into his brilliant résumé of the points under discussion between China and Japan and the way that China has met these increasingly insistent demands. It was a very rapid and temperate recital by a philosopher who knows that in a little while, say fifty years, all these matters so troublous today will be dead as mutton. Dr. Koo had spoken years before in the same scintillating manner, ending his discourse by an enchanting flute solo. This time he wound up with a plea for kindness and understanding between peoples "unless by hatred we become unfit for peace," a plea which left many of his hearers in tears.

Mrs. John Alden Carpenter is now president of the American Friends of China, and this afternoon receives its members, who will be addressed by Dr. Koo, in her Lake Shore drive house.

MRS. THEODORE ROOSEVELT Jr. lectured before an enormous galaxy at the Woman's Athletic club, holding everybody spellbound. Her narrative was a simple description of a trip to Shanghai in August for her health, escorted by her youngest son, Quentin, a lad of seventeen. Mrs. "Teddy" is a slight, almost elfin creature with a dry humor, very captivating. Looking about twenty, it suited her to stress her grandmotherly status and how her loving family shoved her away to what proved to be four escapes by inches from violent death.

The first laugh came when Mrs. Roosevelt said she must explain that "she was an Oyster Bay or out-of-season Roosevelt." And the next when Nelson Johnson, American ambassador to China, diverted her by cable from Peiping, where she would have been safe, to Shanghai, where all the trouble in the world was brewing. The talk included a trip by air to the borders of Tibet and a proposed flight to the south, which was canceled. That plane fell and twelve were killed.

In pale blue organza ball dress, Mrs. Roosevelt surveyed the opening battle from a little car, running unchecked behind the lines in the dark with her son. But the worst was yet to come when these Oysterbayites saw the Chinese aviators let loose their bombs on Shanghai and reduce that lovely, bright shopping street, Nanking road, to a horrible shambles full of human fragments. A droll finale was the pair of identical cablegrams from Col. Roosevelt, the agitated père de famille, at home on Long Island: "Hereafter you stay at home. I repeat: hereafter you stay at home." The last time I had seen Grace Roosevelt was at Alexander Kirk's home in Rome three years ago, when she and her husband were returning from Manila and their gubernatorial post of the Philippines.

A GAY tea of the past, Consul General Baer's, in honor of Mme. Erna Sack, star of the Dresden opera. Mme. Sack came in rather exhausted from her rôle of Rosina in "The Barber of Seville," where she had sung with or perhaps against, John Charles Thomas, Charles Hackett and a vast male chorus. Mme. Sack's coloratura, which has the world's highest range, is a magical affair with which she throws off the world's highest notes in the most casual manner. She is a charming woman with cornflower blue eyes and blonde hair.

Mrs. John Carpenter's tea late Monday afternoon was in honor of her cousin, Mrs. Breckinridge of Kentucky and Señorita Amor, the Mexican guest of her daughter, Mrs. Robert Pirie.

This delicate little creature is responsible for the showing of Mexican art now on at the Arts club, which was opened by a most crowded tea Tuesday after the concert. Almost every celebrity now in town was present, Mme. Sack, Mlle. Iturbi, who had soloed at the symphony; Dr. and Mrs. Frederick Stock, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hackett.

FOR several years one has celebrated the Armistice picturesquely with feasting and dancing in the company of les Camarades de Combat, who dine annually at the Drake and recall old souvenirs. It is an affair of flags, military band, many gayly decked tables with convives in grand tenue, and a long speakers' table full to the tip ends with guests of honor. Each of these has heard with sore distress that he is expected to make a speech on the great war and one's heart pities them as they sit, distrait, making notes on their program. Commander Boisdeau lets none escape.

Mrs. James Winston, in a sweeping creme moire robe, had gathered in the noncombatants this year and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Hinde and Mrs. L. Hamilton McCormick had round tables decked with violets for their guests. Consuls General Bernays, Fontana, Gavronski, Rosier, and Benetatos all spoke and Admiral Ellis and Gen. Frank Parker made exceedingly concentrated and apt addresses. The latter hit the nail on the head and minced no words when he said that America could never have won the revolutionary war without the French, and France in the world war was sunk until America came in and turned the tide. Lewis Bernays is always a good sport, like Lord Riverdale, who celebrated Fourth of July with us Yankees in Berlin, and he, too, was brief.

Another nice party, that at the Drake for M. Olivier, former governor of Madagascar, now head of the French Lines in Paris. A charming man and a large turnout to meet him. He spoke to me of a mysterious lovely island where he spends his summers, called the Isle of God. Capt. Waters was host and a few of many guests were Mr. and Mrs. Ira W. Morris, Max Epstein, Mrs. L. H. McCormick, Mrs. Charles Goodspeed, Rene Weiller, Ulrich Beusch, Jean Schloesing and Jean Allabrune.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Nov. 15.

If the ground has frozen it is time to protect outdoor plants to prevent losses through winter injury. Heavy soils, with little or no drainage, and heavy rains may cause losses because the average plant does not like to stand during winter with wet feet. This is especially true of roses and some bulbs. Protection is given by covering the ground with litter, cornstalks, straw, manure, peat, or other material after heavy frost. Gravel and limestone of small size are excellent materials to use for plants in rockeries.

Tuesday, Nov. 16.

Poinsettias should be kept growing by making sure they never dry out. An application of complete plant food will help to develop their flowers. Keep in a sunny place free from sudden changes of temperature. Never allow the flowering pot plants to suffer from lack of water. Chrysanthemums wither rapidly if not kept watered. Stand the pots in a bucket of water until thoroughly soaked and then allow to drain.

Wednesday, Nov. 17.

Keep calla lilies in sunlight in the window. They require watering every day and small amounts of plant food at ten day intervals. If a commercial plant food is used, scatter a small amount over the surface of the soil and water in. Turn the house plants about every ten days to prevent them from growing one-sided. Keep all dead leaves removed. Watch carefully for the appearance of insect pests and at the first sign of one begin spraying. Palms, ferns, aspidistra, sansevieria, and dracæna or corn plant do well in a north window if there is an abundance of light.

Thursday, Nov. 18.

If the ground is suitable some kinds of bulbs still can be planted. Work in a few groups of tulips in the perennial border. Masses of early spring flowering bulbs look well in practically any situation in the garden, the low plants being grouped in the foreground and the taller ones toward the rear. The best narcissus for outdoor use is King Alfred; it is fine for cutting and may remain undisturbed for a number of years. Evergreens frequently are injured during winter as the result of excessive evaporation. Soaking the ground thoroughly in late fall before it freezes will provide moisture during the winter.

Friday, Nov. 19.

Evergreens standing in wind swept locations should be protected by a board fence, windbreak, or by wrapping with burlap. Mulching the ground with straw after it is frozen is beneficial. This is about the last date that trees may be fed. Fall feeding is preferable to early spring feeding, for the food will be readily available at the earliest indication of activity in spring.

Saturday, Nov. 20.

Keep cacti in a temperature ranging from 50 to 55 degrees. These plants enter a period of rest or partial rest during winter and if kept cool and given but little water they will come through the winter in good condition. The cooler they are kept the less water they require.

[Prepared in coöperation with the Garfield park conservatory.]

Leaks in Chimneys, Roofs, Windows May Raise Fuel Bills

CHIMNEYS, roofs, and windows should be inspected and put in tiptop shape if one wants to keep warm in winter at lowered fuel costs.

Check up on the chimney to see if by chance it is leaking above the roof line. The mortar may have come out of the bricks, and these leaks can interfere with the draft. If the roof has holes or thin spots, they should be mended. Be sure, too, that the gutters and downspouts are in good order, and also the water tight flashings around the chimney.

There is a great deal of heat loss through windows which have no storm sash, since ordinary glass conducts heat. Storm sash, it is figured, will cut heat loss of the glass area; it also will retard, and sometimes eliminate entirely, moisture condensation on the window panes.

Weatherstrips are a big aid in reducing losses through cracks around doors and windows. Storm doors are another aid for the cold weather months.

Leisure Time Will Be Theme of Conference

YOUTH will be pitted against society in a mock trial conducted as a feature of the third annual recreation congress next Thursday at the Hotel Sherman. "Problems of Leisure and Citizen Leadership" is the theme of the meeting, which is sponsored by the Chicago recreation commission in coöperation with the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers and a number of other organizations.

Failure to train youth for wise use of leisure is the charge to be brought against society at the trial, which will be held at 3 o'clock, with Judge J. M. Braude of the Municipal court presiding. Representing youth will be ten young men and women students at Northwestern university, the University of Chicago, the Central Y. M. C. A. college, and other colleges. Society will be represented by leaders of the Boy Scouts, the Girl Scouts, the Y. M. C. A., the Chicago park district, and other agencies providing recreational facilities. The jurors will be chosen from the audience.

AMONG those taking part in the trial will be Mrs. George Bayrd of the Girl Scouts, Mrs. Belle Compere of the Campfire Girls, Miss Elise Moeller of the Y. W. C. A., Mrs. Homer Whitcomb and C. E. Oneal of the Junior Garden clubs, Dorothy Stahl and Wilton S. Clements of the board of education, Ralph Pierce of the Chicago park district, Norman Cook of the Chicago Boys' club, Max Kroloff of B'nai B'rith, Dr. Frank Garrett Ward of the Y. M. C. A., G. W. Lawrence of the Federation of Settlements, and Mrs. John Fox, Mrs. G. W. Lawrence, and Mrs. Herbert H. Siddall, representing the home.

Mrs. Earle Ruther will be clerk of the court and Mrs. Clarence Ellsworth, court reporter. Mrs. Gerard M. Ungaro will summarize the trial. Mrs. Charles W. Balch, state recreation chairman, has planned this program, and also a morning session when classes in Christmas handicrafts will be conducted.

The conference will open with a general meeting at 1:30 o'clock, when Dr. LeRoy E. Bowman, director of leadership training for the United Parents Association of New York, will speak on "The Comeback of the Volunteer Worker." Judge John P. McGoorty of the Superior court, vice chairman of the Chicago recreation commission, will preside at this session, for which Miss Kathleen H. Stewart, general secretary of the south side branch Y. W. C. A., will be summarizer.

THE COUNCIL OF SOCIAL AGENCIES will have charge of a program on "The Value of the Volunteer in the Work of Private Recreation Agencies," at 3 o'clock. Miss Harriet Vittum, head resident of Northwestern University settlement, will speak on "The Place and Value of the Volunteer," and heads of various agencies will discuss "How Volunteers May Be Obtained from the Communities."

Miss Lucy P. Carner, secretary of the division of education and recreation of the Council of Social Agencies, will summarize this program, at which Dr. Curtis W. Reese, president of the Chicago Federation of Settlements and dean of Abraham Lincoln center, will preside.

More than 10,000 invitations to a dinner meeting climaxing the congress have been sent to heads of settlement houses, parks, playgrounds, libraries, civic and business organizations. Wilfred S. Reynolds, director of the Council of Social Agencies and member of the Chicago recreation commission, will speak at this meeting, together with other leaders in the field of recreation. Dr. Philip Fox is chairman of the conference committee, with Mr. Reynolds and August H. Pritzlaff, director of physical education of the board of education, assisting him.

Graduates of Vassar to Hold Conclave Here

SCORES of Vassar graduates will renew old friendships and, incidentally, will see Chicago at its best when the national conference of Vassar alumnae is held next Friday, Saturday, and Sunday at the Edgewater Beach hotel.

Margaret Culkin Banning, author and new alumnæ trustee; Dr. Henry Noble MacCracken, president of Vassar, and Mrs. MacCracken; Dean C. Mildred Thompson, Prof. Helen Lockwood, Miss Gertrude Garnsey, alumnæ secretary; Miss Helen Kenyon, chairman of the board of trustees, are among the Vassar personalities who will be present.

TWO alumnæ, Miss Charlotte Carr, recently appointed head resident of Hull house, and Lea Taylor, head of the Chicago Commons, also are to have a conspicuous part in the proceedings.

Visits to most of Chicago's points of interest are included in the conference program, which opens with a welcoming luncheon Friday noon. The Field museum and Malvina Hoffman's bronzes, the Chicago Historical society and Mrs. James Ward Thorne's miniature rooms, the Chicago commons and Hull house, the Cradle and Deering Memorial library at Northwestern university are points that visitors may see that afternoon.

Mrs. Andrew MacLeish is giving a reception from 4 until 6 o'clock at her home in Glencoe, and at 7 o'clock there will be a formal dinner at the Edgewater Beach hotel, with Dr. MacCracken, Mrs. Banning, and Prof. Clark Kuebler of the department of romance languages at Northwestern university as speakers.

Dr. MacCracken, Dean Thompson, and Prof. Lockwood will speak at luncheon Saturday noon following the semi-annual business meeting. That afternoon there will be a trip, with tea afterward, to the Art institute that will include a glimpse of Mrs. Thorne's newest miniature rooms. An informal supper is planned for Saturday evening at Vassar House restaurant, with Dr. MacCracken and Miss Carr as speakers. Sunday is left free for the individual plans of alumnæ.

The program for the conference has been planned by a north shore committee, headed by Mrs. Keith Preston, president of the North Shore Vassar club, and a Chicago committee, headed by Miss Edith Lapham.

A FRAIL 70 year old woman who once taught art and now lives at the British Old People's home, has painted an interior in oils that will be among the objects sold at the 23d annual bazar of the Daughters of the British Empire in Illinois next Thursday, Friday, and Saturday in the Florentine room of the Congress hotel. Proceeds of the event will go to the home, which was established in 1925 at Hollywood, Ill.

Lewis Bernays, British consul general, will open the bazar at a luncheon on Thursday, and Mrs. L. Hamilton McCormick will be in charge Friday. There will be a musical featuring the works of British composers Thursday afternoon, and a program by Nina Westerschulte, soprano, on Friday, with several other musical events scheduled for the three day benefit.

Mrs. Percy Mather is chairman of the bazar committee. Twenty-seven local chapters of the Daughters of the British Empire and a number of other organizations are coöperating in plans for the bazar. Recently enlarged by the addition of a new wing, the home now provides shelter for 100 persons of British birth or ancestry. Mrs. Harry Hughes is state president of the Daughters of the British Empire.

The annual charity card party of the Chicago Woman's Ideal club will take place at 1:30 o'clock Friday in the grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel. Proceeds will go to the organization's numerous charities. Mrs. Joseph Mills and Mrs. Edward La Feber are co-chairmen.

Mrs. Paul J. Wimsey will be the principal speaker at the organization's Illinois day meeting Thursday at the Blackstone. Following luncheon at 12:30 o'clock, Mrs. Wimsey will talk on "Famous People and Places in Illinois," illustrating her talk with photographs.

Another bazar taking place this week is a feature of the annual charity fête of the Women of Rotary, opening Wednesday noon at the Lake Shore Athletic club. Proceeds will be devoted to the Illinois Research hospital's surgical institute for children and to other philanthropies.

A fashion show, entertainment and cards, as well as the bazar, will be included in the party program, which has been arranged by Mrs. Blanton M. Boyd and Mrs. Walter D. Krupke. Mrs. C. N. Cahill is general chairman of the event.

Teacher from Winnetka Is Now in England

LONDON

Miss Agnes M. Lilley, formerly a teacher in the Winnetka, Ill., schools, now is teaching in the Sunnyside Council school of Halifax in Yorkshire on an exchange arrangement. After a month of work there she gave the local paper an interview on her impressions.

"After teaching," she said, "where the size of the classes never is more than thirty, the English classes of more than forty seem too big. However, Yorkshire children are very clever and the best of the classes compare favorably with the best of the Winnetka schools. That is saying rather more than it seems because the children in Sunnyside come from homes where there are few, if any, opportunities, and I am comparing them with children from the rather well-to-do homes of Winnetka.

"English children, bright and fine as they are, do not have the chance to stay on at school as long as they should. In an industrial area such as Halifax a larger proportion of the children should have a complete secondary school education until they are 18."

The English state-supported schools provide for children until they are 14 or 15, depending on the need of the particular case. If the family needs another breadwinner, the 14 year old steps into the breach with the state's consent. Miss Lilley said that one of her surprises was the amount of attention English children paid to swimming—more, she said, than is general in America.

Miss Lilley spends much of her spare time rambling through the Yorkshire hills painting. At one time she studied art in Vienna and is making the most of her good fortune in being so near great beauty spots.

It is at Halifax that the only surviving gibbet remains. It was the precursor of the guillotine by which cloth stealers of the district were summarily executed and from which arose the prayer "From Hell, Hull, and Halifax, good Lord, deliver us."

New Piano Design Makes Instrument Really Functional

ONE of the exhibits sent by America to the Paris International exhibition now in progress is a piano made by Steinway and designed by Donald Deskey, one of the foremost American exponents of the modern functional style.

Mr. Deskey, realizing that there is no more strictly functional piece of furniture than a grand piano, has adapted his design to the fundamental character of the instrument. The result is a piano case so perfectly suited to its purpose that it could be used in a room in almost any style of decoration, especially as it comes in several woods.

In bleached mahogany it harmonizes with modern bleached mahogany furniture; in two-tone mahogany, it blends pleasantly with the traditional mahogany of an earlier day.

Music Leading Social Events in Pasadena

By Ruth Billheimer.

Music bursts suddenly upon the social consciousness this month in all its glory, a fair sign that the season is well begun.

PASADENA, CAL.

What with Lauritz Melchior here this past week, the San Francisco Grand Opera company in Los Angeles during the week to come and the Armistice night opening of the Los Angeles Philharmonic orchestra under Dr. Otto Klemperer, the southland is fairly bathed in music.

And what a golden opportunity for hostesses! Mrs. Richard Bonelli [Mona Wood of Los Angeles], here with her famous husband for the opera, is the incentive for much entertaining. And Lily Pons is another good reason for parties.

IN the Melchior audience was seen virtually the entire list of the Wilson course patrons and patronesses, as well as hundreds of other persons socially prominent. There were Dr. and Mrs. Raymond B. Mixsell, Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Sellers, Mrs. Joseph M. Hixon, and Michel Penha, noted cellist, who comprise the advisory committee. Again, Chicago to the fore!

Among the patrons present were the C. P. Erdmans [Eleanor Donnelley], Dr. and Mrs. Theodore G. Soares, also of Chicago, and such names as the James R. Brehms, John S. Cravenses, E. C. Harwoods, Reginald Johnsons, C. H. Prisks, Reese Hale Taylors, Carl C. Thomases, H. Dalzell Wilsons, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Rhodes Jr., the E. A. Batchelders, the N. W. Howards, R. L. I. Smiths, Mrs. Walter Jarvis Barlow, Mrs. W. Kennon Jewett, Mrs. Charles Stinchfield, Francis Fleury Prentiss, and Claude M. Griffeth. Also on the patrons' list are the Alson Clarks and A. B. Ruddocks, members of the Chicago colony.

Soon the Melchiors will be going back to their estate and hunting lodge in Germany near the Polish frontier to spend the holidays and to be with Mr. Melchior's two children, Ib, who is 20 and gave up medicine to be an actor with the traveling English players, and Birte, the 17 year old daughter, who is in school in Scotland.

AMONG those entertaining yesterday at the California club, for a luncheon which honored Lily Pons, were Mrs. Alfred Wright and Mrs. Gordon Simpson, Pasadena Junior Leaguers, and Mrs. Elizabeth Lloyd, mother of Harold Lloyd.

In the realm of art is the tea given a few days ago by Lady Anne Van Duzen Tennyson in honor of Elinor Hall, whose paintings are on exhibit in the Albertson galleries this month.

And cream of the sports news for a few weeks is the presence here of the Mexican polo team playing a series of games at Midwick. The Misses Helen and Louise Hunter, nieces of J. J. and William H. Mitchell of Chicago and Lake Forest, are on the entertainment committee for the round of festivities. Other names of interest in Chicago which are on the lists of reservations are Dr. Max Farrand, George B. Ogle, D. H. Hostetter, J. M. Spalding, Rufus P. Spalding, Eric Pedley, Robert W. Campbell, Sir Montagu Allan, Princess Orsini and others.

AT the first supper-musical of the Valley Hunt club last Sunday night, Dr. and Mrs. Archibald Church were among the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Earl Jardine. Edwin Gillette was in the party which had Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Harwood as hosts. The Paul V. Barneses had a party of ten.

Capt. and Mrs. C. L. Arnold of Pasadena are expected home this month after a sojourn in Chicago. Mrs. H. M. Lane and her daughter, Mrs. J. C. Ward of Chicago, are visiting southern California and are registered at the Beverly Hills hotel.

IN GREETING

By Eleanor Jewett.

[Copyright: 1937: By the Chicago Tribune.]

Something brushed my cheek today,
Something sharp and something white;
Then a thousand others came
Tumbling in a dazzling flight
Straight across where shone the sun,
Flying, falling through the sky.
Snowflakes! Winter's calling cards,
Greeting me as they danced by.

WARNING TO MOTHERS

Don't stint your children on Orange Juice . . . They need TWO BIG GLASSES A DAY!

—and you'll like the flavor so much better

HOW much orange juice have your children been getting? The juice of one orange for breakfast? Half an orange? None at all? Mother, please! Save on something else, if you must, but not on orange juice. It contains highly important elements a child must have for proper growth and development.

Health authorities advise two big glasses a day for every child. And now that Florida oranges are in again, you can afford it! For Floridas give a fourth more juice—that's every 5th glass FREE. And Florida's matchless sunshine produces an orange that's sweeter and richer in flavor, brimming with health.

You get more vitamins in a Florida orange, more calcium to build strong, sturdy bones and sound teeth. You get iron, besides, to make good red blood—fruit sugars for quick energy. Start your child on this golden road to health today. Buy some Florida oranges now!

ASK FOR Floridas THE JUICE ORANGE

Lady Elizabeth Percy to Wed in Edinburgh

By Ann Whittingham.

From the English point of view the most important wedding of the little season is that of Lady Elizabeth Percy to Lord Clydesdale in Edinburgh.

LONDON

Lady Elizabeth Percy is the eldest daughter of the late duke of Northumberland and was one of the queen's train bearers at the coronation in May. She is of the family which dethroned Richard II. in 1377, which gave "Hotspur" to the battle of Shrewsbury, whose title bearers have lost their heads in the causes of Lady Jane Grey, Queen Elizabeth, Mary Queen of Scots, and in the Gunpowder plot. Her mother is the queen's mistress of robes, and her brother the present duke of Northumberland.

Lord Clydesdale really is marquess of Douglas and Clydesdale, and the heir to the dukedom of Hamilton and Brandon, a 14th century title. The two families, since the 12th century, have been hereditary enemies and now they will be united through marriage.

LADY PERCY'S sister will be one of the bridesmaids, and so will her cousins, Lady Anne Cavendish Bentinck and Lady Margaret, who also was a coronation train bearer. They will wear silver and white brocade frocks with white fur at the shoulders. The little bridesmaids will wear soft flounced dresses with silver threads running through the material.

A special train will be run from London to carry the guests to the wedding and reception, and a large contingent of the royal family will be present.

The wedding took place recently of Charles Henry Wilmerding of Chicago and Jocelyn Violet, second daughter of the late Col. Evelyn W. Medows Norie, A. D. C. Miss Norie's mother is the present Mrs. Maling Wynch of Pine Hill, Camberley.

St. Paul's church, Camberley, was the scene of the wedding and only a few friends of the families were present. The bride and bridegroom left for the continent for a short honeymoon before going to America to reside.

Belinda Peters, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Peters of Richmond, Va., has announced her engagement to Richard Dudley, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Beaumont of Northwood, Middlesex.

ANOTHER Anglo-American engagement is that of Alice Mitchell of Scottsbluff, Neb. She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. E. J. Mitchell and her husband-to-be is Edward Massey Westmorland Wood of the British Sudan service. He is the son of Commander and Mrs. Wood of Colyford, Devonshire.

Margaret Maude Potts of Hillside, N. J., is going to marry James W. Woolcock of London. They met at the Hague, and after their marriage will make London their home.

Mrs. Audrey [James] Marshall Field gave a junior party recently in her lovely home in Regent's Park. It was for her two adopted sons, who have a full program of engagements for their first winter in London. One hardly can say they have inherited their flare for entertaining, but they have the same easy grace of manner which characterizes Mrs. Marshall Field.

Another junior party was given by Mrs. Philip Kindersley for her son, Julian Brougham.

Paris Predicts Shorter Hair for Women This Winter

ISN'T it just like women! All through the sweltering summer weather they were wearing mops of hot hair down to the shoulders. Now that cool weather is here it's the fashion to cut it off.

From the American Hair Design institute comes news that practically every chic woman in Paris, London and Vienna is wearing her hair short and sleek on the back of the neck. When the institute was invited to represent American hairdressers at the Paris exposition, all the styles sent over were short.

By Herma Clark.

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, Jan. 15, 1889.

DEAR Julia: You will be here so soon that perhaps I shouldn't weary you with a letter, for we can talk to our hearts' content during your visit. But I want to enclose this clipping about the writer, Elizabeth Stuart Phelps [Mrs. Herbert Ward] and her husband, for I know you are a great admirer of her books.

They are to spend the winter, you will see, in Hampton, Va., where Mr. Ward is to be an instructor at Hampton institute. What a nine days' wonder their marriage has been, especially in New England! In all her books Elizabeth Stuart Phelps has idealized the young man who went to war and died in battle. As you doubtless know, that is from her own love story. The man she was to have married died in the civil war. I remember how I wept over "Gates Ajar," which had that situation in it, though in the story the hero was a brother, not a lover. Another of her books was so personal that her family, I hear, bought up the entire edition rather than have it appear on bookstands. And it's said the book would have had a larger sale than "Gates Ajar."

Romantic enough the Phelps-Ward courtship has been. Have you heard the story? Herbert Ward went with his father, the editor of the Independent, to Gloucester to see Miss Phelps. She was then writing for that paper. Though seventeen years her junior, the younger man fell desperately in love with the 44 year old author and declared himself, but was rejected. She promised, however, to summon him if she changed her mind.

In New York again, Mr. Ward became interested in a lady younger than himself, when lo! a letter from Gloucester arrived, saying Miss Phelps had decided to marry him after all. He hurried to her, and the ceremony took place almost at once, in the presence of a very small company.

Now wouldn't it be interesting if she should write a story about the marriage of a woman to a man younger than herself? It would be a comparatively new theme and very thrilling. In real life there have been many instances in which the alliance of a gifted or wealthy woman with a young man has proved happy. I am thinking of the Baroness Burdett-Coutts, Lady Beaconsfield, and George Eliot—all British women. I can't recall any cases in America save that of Elizabeth Stuart Phelps.

I believe this gifted couple are to collaborate on a novel—something of a religious nature.

Now I won't write more, but will put this in the postbox so you will get it before you start. We shall be waiting for you at the station. Our new harness is in the stable, ready for use.

I have invited several ladies to lunch on Wednesday to meet you: Our old schoolmates Mrs. William Blair and Mrs. George H. Laflin and our old teacher, Mrs. Charles B. Farwell, together with others you have met—Mrs. Cyrus H. McCormick, Mrs. Perry H. Smith, Mrs. John V. Farwell, Mrs. Lyman Blair, Mrs. Clinton Locke, and Mrs. John Stillwell.

With eager anticipation
I am

Yours lovingly,
MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOTNOTES.

Elizabeth Stuart Phelps [1844-1911] was one of the most popular writers of the seventies and eighties, her book "The Gates Ajar" reaching a very large circulation. This work, as well as three later ones, dealt with the mystery of life after death. On her marriage to Herbert D. Ward in 1888 she collaborated with him in the writing of two books, of which "The Master of the Magicians" is the best known. Herbert D. Ward died in 1922. After his first wife's death he made his home in Maine. In 1916 he married Edna J. Jeffress of Edwardsville, Ill.

OLD CHICAGO HARTHSTONES

4214 Vincennes Avenue.

Like a dainty lady, holding herself a bit aloof and unable to understand the great changes about her, this stone house stands in a community once occupied by fine homes. For many years it was the home of the Williamson family, Thomas F. Williamson, the owner, being one of Chicago's pioneers. His printing business is still conducted by his son Edward. The younger son, George, is treasurer of the Commonwealth Edison company. In its heyday the old stone house was a center of social activity on the south side, its hospitable mistress, known to a bevy of young folk as "Aunt Liza," and three daughters, famous for their beauty, making the home a gathering place. [We are asked for more puzzles, so here is another on Chicago streets.]

1. "Tra la," Kenneth called. 2. O, Akron is a thriving city. 3. Alas! All enemies can be conquered save Death. 4. Thou hast, at every point, hindered me. 5. That is a novel, my dear. 6. That suit chic! A goat contributed the fur! 7. Look at the walrus. His mustache is queer. 8. You played an ace, darling.

Woman Teaching Dance to English Soldiers, Doctors

Margaret Morris, known throughout the world as a pioneer teacher of dancing to beautiful young women, now has assumed the direction of drill sergeants and doctors.

LONDON

The new rôle is the result of her appointment to the National Advisory Council for Physical Training. Her first duty was to speak to the drill sergeants at Aldershot, the military post near London. After directing her formidable audience through a few simple exercises which they are supposed to use on their men, there was a great change in their attitude toward the physical fitness of dancers!

After what must have been a memorable experience, Miss Morris was asked to lecture to the London Hospital School of Physical Medicine. With doctors as her audience, this sleek-haired, slim woman explained how fewer of them would be needed if every one breathed, walked, sat, and stood as they should.

Miss Morris plans to take the physical fitness campaign into every home.

Women Voters, Civic Bodies Are to Confer

By Betty Browning.

THE perennial campaign of the Illinois League of Women Voters for honest elections will enter a new phase tomorrow when leading civic bodies will join with the league in a conference at the Chicago Bar association.

Prompted by the recent action of the legislature authorizing the governor to appoint a commission to codify, revise, and amend existing election laws, the league has invited civic authorities to coöperate in formulating recommendations to be made to the commission. Each organization is to submit suggestions at this conference, which will follow a luncheon at 12:30 o'clock.

AMONG those who will attend the meeting are David L. Shillinglaw, Walter F. Dodd, Jerome G. Kerwin, George O. Fairweather, Kendall I. Lingle, and representatives of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce, the Chicago Association of Commerce, the legislative committee of the American Legion, the Woman's City club, the Civic Federation and Bureau of Public Efficiency, the Better Government association, and Griffenhagen and associates.

Mrs. W. W. Ramsey, director of the Illinois League of Women Voters, will preside at the conference. Mrs. Ramsey led the league's five year fight that culminated in establishing permanent registration in Chicago and other large cities of Illinois. Daughter of a Pennsylvania newspaper editor, an ardent worker for women's suffrage and five times a grandmother, Mrs. Ramsey has been called, by men's organizations, "the man who knows more about election laws than any one in the state," the league proudly stresses.

Additional "basic tools of a voter," as Mrs. Ramsey describes them, to be recommended by the league at the conference, are the short ballot and the voting machine. The league favors placing only important, policy making officials on the ballot, leaving minor officials to be appointed under civil service. The office group type of ballot, which groups candidates by office rather than by party, is preferred.

The league also indorses the voting machine bill which was approved by the senate, but failed to reach a final reading in the house at the last session of the legislature. The voting machine, already used in New York and Philadelphia elections, insures correctness of the tally and precludes spoiling ballots, the league contends.

MRS. WILLIAM G. HIBBARD, Mrs. Quincy Wright, and Mrs. Florence Fifer Bohrer of Bloomington will represent Illinois at a board meeting of the National League of Women Voters in session all this week in Washington, D. C. Legislation to be considered at the special session of congress will be the principal topic of discussion. Plans also will be made for the biennial convention of the league next April in St. Louis, Mo.

Mrs. Wright, who recently returned from a year's study in Geneva, Switzerland, will conduct a discussion of issues in foreign policy raised by the far eastern conflict. Mrs. Hibbard is finance chairman of the national league and Mrs. Bohrer is a director.

Three important meetings of the Young Woman's Christian association are taking place here this week. From all parts of the country members of the national board of the Y. W. C. A. will assemble Wednesday at the Harriet Hammond McCormick Memorial Y. W. C. A. for their one meeting of the year away from New York. A luncheon will be held at the "Y" building, 1001 North Dearborn street, with local leaders as guests, and that afternoon the lake shore committee will give a tea for the visitors at the Woman's Athletic club.

Mrs. Harrie A. Chamberlin of Toledo, O., former national president and American member of the world's council of the Y. W. C. A., will be a guest at the tea, and Miss Maud Russell, member of the China national staf of the Y. W. C. A., will speak on "The Far Eastern Situation."

On Thursday and Friday another group of leaders, members of the national convention committee, will meet at the McCormick Memorial residence to make plans for the biennial convention of the Y. W. C. A. next April in Columbus, O. Mrs. Austin L. Kimball of Buffalo, N. Y., president of the Young Woman's Christian Associations of the United States, will preside.

Plans for coöperation in the syphilis campaign of the Chicago board of health and the Illinois Social Hygiene league will be made by professional and lay leaders of the Y. W. C. A. at the third meeting Wednesday at the Central branch Y. W. C. A., 59 East Monroe street.

"The Illinois Marriage Law, Its Legal and Its Social Hygiene Aspects" will be discussed at this luncheon meeting, with Dr. Rachelle S. Yarros speaking on the social hygiene aspects of the law, and Miss Pearl Hart on the legal aspects. Mrs. Oscar Hayward, chairman of the health education committee of the Y. W. C. A., will preside.

WOMEN who attend the morning session of the Women's Finance forum at 10:30 o'clock Thursday at the Hotel Sherman will hear Sidney J. Perry, assistant to the president of the Chicago Stock exchange, discuss the functions of that institution. A tour of the exchange will follow in the afternoon.

"The Cost of Living as Affected by Taxes" will be the subject of a dinner meeting of the forum at 6 o'clock Thursday evening. Douglas Sutherland, executive director of the Civic Federation and Bureau of Public Efficiency, will be the speaker. Mrs. Lorraine L. Blair is executive director of the forum.

Heads of various public institutions will speak at the November meeting of the Cook County Federation of Women's Clubs at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow at the Auditorium hotel. Clayton F. Smith, president of the board of Cook county commissioners, Judge Frank H. Bicek of the Juvenile court, and Miss Ethel E. Schiller, assistant state's attorney, will be among those on the program, which is sponsored by Mrs. C. E. Ruthruff, chairman of institutions.

Short addresses also will be given by the Rev. William O'Connell, superintendent of the St. Mary's Training school at Des Plaines; W. A. Michaels, superintendent of the Glenwood Manual Training school; the Rev. J. H. Mueller, superintendent of the German Lutheran Manual Training school at Addison; Lars Kildahl, superintendent of the Norwegian Manual Training school at Norwood Park; Miss Ruby K. Badger, superintendent of the Park Ridge School for Girls, and William T. Harmon, managing officer of the St. Charles School for Boys.

Mrs. Edward J. Lehman, president of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mrs. R. L. Kendall and Mrs. G. J. Rickard, respectively, civil service and public welfare chairmen of the federation, also will speak.

HAS CHURCH WEDDING

Mrs. George D. Rezek is the former Dorothy K. O'Connor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. O'Connor of South Carpenter street. She and Dr. Rezek were married on Oct. 23. Dr. Rezek and his bride, who also is a doctor, both attended the University of Illinois. They are living in the Washington Pine East hotel.

London Viewing the Art Work of Nijinsky, Dancer

LONDON

Nijinsky, who has charmed the whole world with his dancing, now has taken to art as a medium of expression. The Storran gallery here now is holding the first exhibition of his drawings.

Nijinsky is confined to a mental sanatorium in Switzerland and recently he has been drawing. His work has aroused extensive controversy, not only among artists, but among psychoanalysts and mental specialists. Opinions differ on the bearing the drawings have on the chances of Nijinsky's recovery. Some say the curious precision shown in the drawings of insects and flowers shows that return to sanity is unlikely. Others argue that the realism and directness predict recovery.

The proceeds of the exhibition will go toward Nijinsky's maintenance during his illness. There is need for the funds to be increased, for, if they ran out, Nijinsky would be deported as a debtor to Russia, of which country he is a national.

The drawings include masks, flowers, insects, and pencil portraits, some of which resemble Diaghileff. London is showing great interest in the exhibition, which will go next to the provincial towns.

At present Nijinsky is undergoing "shock" treatment for schizophrenia, his particular affliction.

Art Exhibits Are Numerous in November

By Eleanor Jewett.

NOVEMBER is proving a busy month. The first week of it held the excitement of the unusually brilliant exhibition of French paintings in the Quest galleries, 810 North Michigan avenue, an exhibition in which the stunning "Clown" by Pruna, the beautifully detailed "Andromeda" by Redon, and the delicious blue landscape of "Rue à Veneux" by Sisley, riveted the attention of many visitors.

In the Marshall Field gallery the attractive water colors by Frances Foy lightened the walls the first week of November. These were chiefly flower studies and were handled in that peculiarly poetic and sensitive manner Miss Foy has accustomed us to recognize as hers.

During the entire month of November two artists are sharing the Drake gallery under the auspices of the All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts. One of these is Ted Vognild, whose paintings of dogs and cats are as fine portraits as any one could ever find and whose portraits of men and women are essentially well handled. The other is Ralph E. Power, noted for his paintings of boats.

THE 12th annual art exhibition by artist members of the All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts will open Nov. 20 in the third floor corridor gallery of the Stevens hotel. This is the most important exhibit staged by the society each year; next to it in importance is the annual water color show in the spring.

To return to the first week in November, paintings by Sam Byers were exhibited at the Fair store and were well received. Mr. Byers showed portraits and still life and several amusing studies of animals. There were 52 paintings in the group.

The exhibit of paintings by Moise Kisling, which opened in the Findlay galleries the sixth of November, will continue to Dec. 4. There are nudes, flower studies, portraits, and one or two landscapes in the show, but interest lies heaviest upon the paintings of women. One either likes Kisling or one does not.

In the Katharine Kuh gallery, Diana Court building, there is an exhibit of paintings, water colors, and drawings by Le Corbusier, the modern French architect who has made for himself an international reputation.

A SUPERB exhibition of gold jewelry and ivories from ancient Palestine has been placed on exhibit in the Oriental Institute museum of the University of Chicago. The objects were discovered last March by the institute's Megiddo expedition, headed by Field Director Gordon Loud. The collection is the most comprehensive group of Canaanite art known here.

This is the only time the collection can be seen as a whole because the discoveries must be returned to Palestine for division by the department of antiquities. Only a part of the intriguing ivories and gold objects will be returned to Chicago. The ivories date back to the 12th century B. C., perhaps earlier.

One of the most interesting art events of November was the statewide conference on school art education which met at Urbana. Mrs. Gertrude M. Hadley of the school of the Art institute of Chicago arranged the program and voiced the most important points in an art education: "The needs are threefold: We must continue to emphasize creative art teaching; we must advocate art education for every boy and girl in the school, not merely for the talented few; we need the support of enlightened public opinion in order to have more and better art teaching, and more adequate space and equipment in the school for the work of the art department."

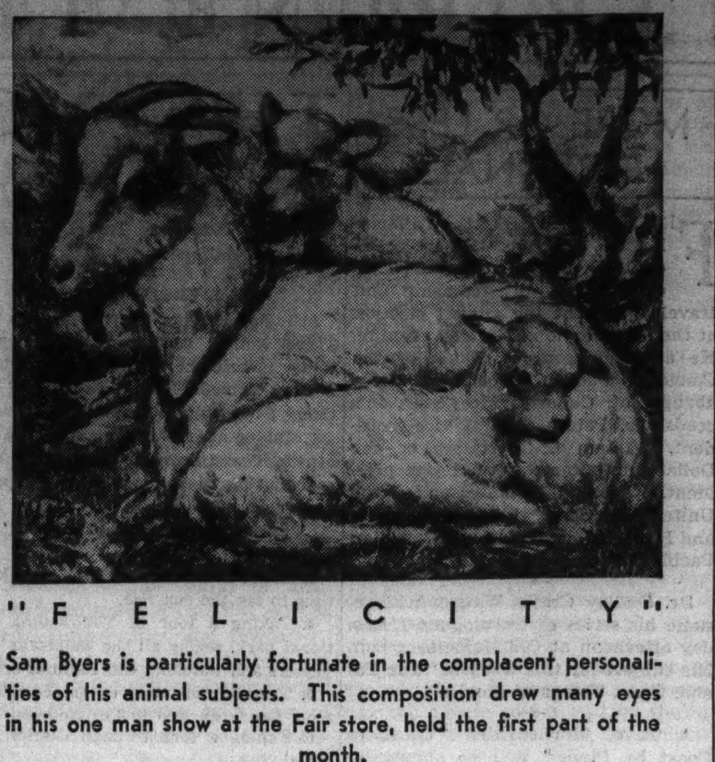
THE Sixth International exhibition of lithography and wood engraving current at the Art institute is one of the most important shows the print rooms have housed in some time. The atmosphere of the exhibit as a whole is scholastic and formal in tone, but an occasional cheerful and amusing print leavens the loaf. Presumably any fault lies with the artist, for these various prints are the run-of-the-mine art expressions of many artists, chosen faithfully and conscientiously by a hard working jury. There were some 2,400 entries from all over the world that the jury had to sift and condense into an exhibition holding only 370. This was an enormous task.

The jury of selection was Stow Wengenroth, Thomas Nason, and Robert von Neumann, all out of town men and artists of reputation. Twenty-seven countries are represented in the show and the subject matter covers a wide range from the formal portrait of as great a figure as Bernard Shaw to the tiny, alert presentation of a pair of deer-mice.

An opportunity to learn about glass and china is offered by the department of education of the Art institute. Mary E. Hipple is giving a series of talks on Tuesday mornings at 11 o'clock in gallery 2. They are proving a delight to numerous women who want to know the characteristics of various kinds of glass, pottery, and porcelain.

A most amusing story is told about Neysa McMein, the famous illustrator and artist, who at present is leading a fight in New York against the imposition of a city sales tax on the sale of artists' work there. Miss McMein, who was born Marjorie Moran McMein, is said to have visited a numerologist when she was a young girl and to have had great success assured her if she would change her name! Acting on the suggestion she became Neysa and as every one knows has been most successful. The point is what would have become of her had she remained Marjorie Moran?—and do all parents owe it to their children to see they are correctly named, numerologically speaking?

The 48th annual American painting and sculpture exhibition will open Nov. 18 in the Art institute, filling the month full to the brim with importance. One can almost see it swagger!



"F E L I C I T Y"

Sam Byers is particularly fortunate in the complacent personalities of his animal subjects. This composition drew many eyes in his one man show at the Fair store, held the first part of the month.

Declares Women Display More Sense than Men

IF Gertrude Atherton were 20 now instead of 80 she would expect to live to see the day when this country would be run by women. And since Mrs. Atherton considers herself still in the prime of life she thinks there's no telling what strides women will have made while she is still alive to watch them.

The dean of American women authors, who is almost as famous for keeping young and defying birthdays as she is for writing books, thinks that American women in city, state, and national public life show, on the average, more sense than men.

"For one thing," she said, "they take more time to investigate government. When I compare what they are doing now with what they did a few years ago I can imagine a matriarchy happening here. It happened in other lands when women certainly were not showing greater capacity for leadership than our own women are. Not that I think it woulld be wise for us to begin dominating the men. We should be satisfied with equality. But women ought to keep on striving until we really get that."

Warning that men had better look out and be fair to women in business and the professions, Mrs. Atherton remarked:

"In the past it was oppression that led to uprisings by women. Egypt, Sparta, Lybia, Germania, have been ruled by a matriarchy. Women were first oppressed, and rose up to fight that oppression. They won equality, then superiority. But did they like it when they got it? They did not! Women in the United States could bring about a matriarchy if they choose, but they'd be fools to do it!"

For all her four score years the busy author lives alone. She breakfasts on hot chocolate at 7 o'clock, then writes until 1 o'clock, when her maid arrives to prepare lunch. In the afternoon she reads and sees friends, then at 7 o'clock she goes to her daughter's home for dinner and talk.

Travelers Find Real Welcome in Sane Finland

By Mason Warner.

HELSINGFORS, Finland.—Summer in Finland is brief but brilliant, nature apparently striving to strike a balance between the long and dark winter and the short season of sunshine by being lavish with her gifts from May to September.

In the summer nights twilight imperceptibly merges into dawn and there is no real darkness for many weeks. The atmosphere is bright and clear, and the weather what the English call "balmy."

The cities are clean—so clean that the foreign visitor is too often reminded of his home town's shortcomings and is likely to criticize unduly his fellow citizens for their municipal slovenliness.

Probably no other race is so unfairly appraised or unconsciously underrated as are the Finns. In the school books of twenty years ago it was erroneously stated that they were originally Mongolian stock. Anthropologists and ethnologists today are refuting that impression by tracing the origin of the Finns to early and little known German tribes, and the majority of scientific research men classify the Finns as Scandinavians.

One should keep in mind the fact that the Finns are "a little people." Finland's population today is only 3,500,000. Yet they have preserved their language and culture through eight centuries of foreign rule. From the year 1154 to 1809 Finland formed part of the kingdom of Sweden, and all the battles in the wars between Sweden and Russia were fought on Finnish soil, for Sweden proper never was invaded.

As a result of the Napoleonic wars the country passed under the rule of Russia in 1809. But the czars never were able to make serfs of the freedom loving Finnish peasants.

Finland was created a grand duchy of Russia, and, while a governor-general appointed by the czar had power and authority in all international affairs and in some phases of provincial government, the Finns continued their own parliament and local administration, judicial institutions, currency, and other semi-national establishments built up when the grand duchy belonged to the Swedish crown.

Finland's fights for freedom were complicated, brief, and bloody. First, against the czar's troops; second, against Russia's provisional government; third, and fiercest of all, against the bolsheviks. The little country achieved absolute independence in 1919. The century rule of the czars has left so little impression of Russian influence on Finnish culture and character that it is not perceptible today.

Adopting a democratic constitution, Finland became a republic in 1919, with a president chosen for six years and a diet or congress to make its laws elected by universal suffrage.

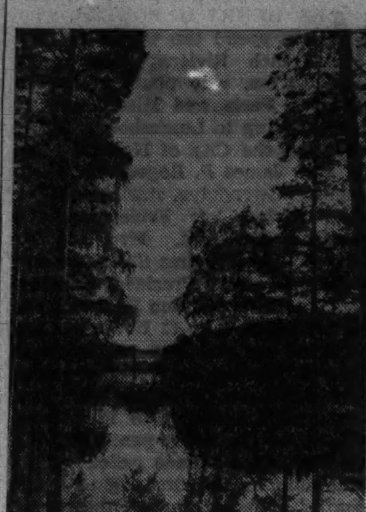
It is probably because of the 800 years of foreign rule that the Finns fail to receive recognition as Finns for their accomplishments. This "little people" has many poets, painters, authors, musicians, sculptors, and architects of wide renown. There are more newspapers in Finland than in other countries with ten times its population, although the circulation of each paper is necessarily small. One of the largest [if not the largest] book stores in the world is in Helsingfors. Of all Finns over 15 years of age only one in a hundred is illiterate.



Among Finland's 60,000 lakes and 40,000 islands.

Sibelius has won for his country a place in the world of music. Gallen-Kallela, Edlefelt, Holmberg, and a score of others have earned European reputations as painters. Eliel Saarinen and J. S. Siren are listed with internationally known architects. The national epic, "The Kalevala," is one of the world's great poems; from it Longfellow derived not only the inspiration but the form and style for "Hiawatha."

In athletic and outdoor sports Finland, with a tiny population, holds her own among the great nations of the earth. Twice in world Olympic games in recent years it has made the second highest score. Remember Paavo Nurmi?

The Finns, though reserved and undemonstrative, are a friendly and hospitable people. They make traveling in their country all that a stranger can desire in the way of good food appetizingly served, clean and comfortable hotels, and honest and square dealing in the shops. Hotel rates, railway fares, taxi fares, and the prices of meals and almost everything of domestic production are extraordinarily low—just about half of what they are in the United States for the same quality.

Because of the independent character of its people tipping here was rare until the influx of tourists in recent years. Foreigners are to blame for the spread of the custom. But even today in many restaurants a waitress will follow you to the door to return the change you did not pick up.

Finland is a sane country, a refreshing change of scene from dictator ruled countries in Europe—a scene in which all the people appear well fed, well clothed, well housed, contented, if not theatrically joyous and happy.

It's true that prices are low. So are wages. At first observation much too low. But when you consider real wages—what the worker's income will buy, what he receives in food, clothing, shelter, and entertainment for his labor—at the year's end he is as well paid in Finland as in the United States.

There is no quarrel between city and country. The farmer gets a low price for his milk, butter, eggs, and other produce. The city worker pays an astonishingly small advance over what the farmer receives. In return, the farmer buys his shoes, clothing, furniture, implements, and city made merchandise on the same equitable base of exchange.

The country born Finn may move to the city, but he never completely severs his connection with the farm. When depression comes he retires to the family farm to await a return of better times.

Coöperative enterprises are one cause of low prices in Finland—enterprises without help or hindrance from the government or any bureau.

The cost of transferring merchandise from producer to consumer is reduced to a minimum. There are coöperative societies, both buying and selling, for nearly everybody—and nearly everybody belongs to two or more.

A farmer belongs to a dairy coöp, which takes his milk, butter, and eggs and sells them for him, and he belongs to a buying coöp, from which he gets his supplies.

Private business flourishes alongside the colossal coöperatives, with their hundreds of thousands of members and their millions of dollars invested. Merchants do not complain of unfair competition or seek restrictive legislation. Huge fortunes are difficult to acquire here, but everybody is making a living, paying his obligations, and laying aside a little for later years.

MORE OR LESS PERSONAL

FRED W. PETERS of the Panama-Pacific line was chosen president of the Bons Vivants, Chicago society of steamship and travel agents, at the annual election at the La Salle hotel Monday evening. He succeeds Zene A. Buck of the Canadian Pacific. G. Robert Longabaugh of Cunard-White Star succeeds Mr. Peters as first vice president, William C. Morrissey of the Dollar line becomes second vice president, Raymond E. Peterson of the United Air lines is the new treasurer, and Kenneth A. Cook of the Canadian Pacific is the new secretary.

Dr. Dudley Crafts Watson will resume his series of travelogues Thursday afternoon at Old Heidelberg inn. His subject for this week is "The Pacific Coast Towns of Mexico."

A travel film entitled "Coast to Coast by Plane" will be shown on the seventh floor of the Fair store at 11 a. m. Friday. Miss Marian Gates, trafic manager for women, United Air lines, is to be the speaker.

At 2:30 p. m. today at the Standard club Earle A. Poole of the Canadian Pacific railway will show a series of moving pictures and give a lecture on winter sports in Canada.

Luis Perez, acting Spanish consul in Chicago, will talk on "Democracy," and Dr. Erich von Schroetter, publisher of the Volks Front, will discuss "The Nazi View of Religion," before the town hall of Albany Park Wednesday evening. After the two addresses a series of travel talkies will be shown.

Songs and rhythms of old Mexico are to be interpreted in costume by Josephine Altman Case and Helen Hawk Carlisle at the Cordon club, in the Fine Arts building, at 8 p. m. tomorrow.

SHE LIKES THE WEST.

Arlington Heights, Ill., Nov. 8.—To the Travel Editor: I never miss the opportunity to read the Travel section of THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE. Here are some of the things I have enjoyed most in my travels:

1. Taking a muleback ride from the top of the Grand canyon in Arizona and spending the night down below at Phantom ranch.
2. Taking in the "Days of '76" at Deadwood, S. D.
3. Going to the top of Pike's peak in time to see the sun rise.
4. Taking a tour of Yellowstone National park, seeing all the waterfalls and geysers and watching Old Faithful erupt.
5. Traveling all night on an ocean liner from San Francisco to Los Angeles.
6. Taking a tour through Glacier National park.
7. See the "Frontier Days" celebration at Cheyenne.
8. Taking a boat trip through the Wisconsin Dells.
9. Walking over the long suspension bridge at Vancouver, B. C.
10. Crossing Great Salt lake for the first time.

TRAVELING ON WINGS OF SONG.

Chicago, Nov. 7.—To the Travel Editor: For those who are unable to travel, for diverse reasons, but who dream of distant lands, there is a great satisfaction in reading travel literature and travel letters and seeing movie travelogs.

There is another way to satisfy this craving for wanderlust or to provide an outlet for one's adventurous instinct, and that is through the medium of music. Many would-be travelers can imagine they are journeying far and wide by listening to songs suggestive of distant places.

That is what I am trying to do with my orchestra. We are presenting a series of musical journeys around the world, featuring such songs as "Blue Hawaii," "Isle of Capri," "I'd Like to See Samoa of Samoa," "Beach of Bali-Bali," "Song of India," "Hindustan," "Blue Danube Waltz," "Sheik of Araby," "I Dream of San Marino," "Moonlight on the Ganges," "Vienna Dreams," "Mexicali Rose," "On the Road to Mandalay," "Roses of Picardy," "Japanese Sandman," and "China Boy."

Keep up the fine work you are doing for the unfortunate shut-ins. It really is a great cause.

STAN NORRIS.

Rio to Become a New Riviera for Americans

TRAVEL experts say Rio de Janeiro is destined to become a new world Riviera for Americans. It is beginning to shine with a brilliance equal to that of any of the cities on the Cote d'Azur. Its Rua Ouvidor is sometimes compared to London's Bond street; its Avenida, to the boulevards of Paris, and its trafic is as heavy as even that of an American city.

The beautitful setting of Rio has been described thousands of times, but few who haven't been there realize that this setting is heightened by a drama of the tropics. Extending over an area of sixty-one square miles, the city has literally pushed back the jungle, edging itself in between the sea and th ehills, spreading along its shores, slowly penetrating valleys, and climbing steep hillsides. Even today the jungle is at its doorstep, and one has to drive only a few minutes from its avenues to reach the primitive.

Rio is the introduction to the grandeur that is Brazil. That country, the visitor soon discovers, is larger than the United States; it would, in fact, accommodate within its borders the whole of this country and another state as large as Texas. Its coastline is longer than the distance between New York and Liverpool; its largest state—it has twenty—is three times the size of France.

Its population is growing at the rate of a million a year, and within its borders one may find a variety of climates ranging from the tropical to the temperate.

Most fantastic of all the tales of Brazil are those of its wealth in precious stones. Diamonds—hard and brilliant—black diamonds—rose diamonds, garnets, beryls, opals, cat's-eyes, find their way from its mines to Rio. Ignorant miners once used uncut diamonds there as counters in their games, until a missionary priest took away whole bagfuls, given him as souvenirs. When his discovery became known in Portugal the crown took over the mines, and until diamonds were discovered in South Africa, Brazil was a leading source of the gems.

Pioneers' Journey to N. W. Territory Is to Be Repeated

MARIETTA, O.—While there will be neither Indians nor wild beasts to fight, a pioneering venture soon to take place may offer enough discomfort to make the participants regard themselves one in spirit with real adventurers of the country's early days.

The Federal Northwest Territory Celebration commission, with headquarters here, has announced that it now is ready to consider applications from men who desire to take part in the historic caravan which will leave Ipswich, Mass., on Dec. 3.

The caravan, one of the headliners of the year-long celebration program, will recreate the trek westward of the original pioneers of the Northwest territory. There will be 36 men in the party, which will travel approximately 2,800 miles from Ipswich to Marietta, and throughout the six states of the territory. The tour will last approximately ten months.

Each night, and at towns at about 15 mile intervals, the party will present an eight episode historical pageant. All costumes, as well as personal equipment for the trek, will be supplied by the commission. The party will assemble Nov. 1 to be trained for the pageant.

While some hardships may be encountered, the trip will provide a eal experience for those accepted.

DETOUR

By FREDERIC BABCOCK

HE has traveled more than a million miles, and visited every country in the world, and the place he picks as the finest scenic spectacle to be found is not now open to the tourist. . . . Which is tough luck for the tourist.

F. N. Wagner, F. R. G. S., arrived in Chicago the other day in his capacity as courier for the party of Princess Chennajammanni of Mysore. . . . He has taken many other Indian potentates on lengthy journeys, and he has been around the world nineteen times. . . . Operating out of Thomas Cook & Son's head office in London, he has been on the road for thirty-two years, with an average mileage of 40,000 recorded each year. . . . That gives him a grand total of 1,280,000 miles. . . . And he isn't tired of it yet.

● Perhaps some railroad men have gone that far in the course of their routine, but it is doubtful if any other world traveler ever has piled up such a record. . . . Mr. Wagner has traveled five times all the way from Cairo to Cape Town. . . . He has journeyed across Tibet, the country closed to outsiders. . . . His American clients have included Col. E. M. House and Myron C. Taylor, and he has had an intimate view of such diverse personalities as Lenin and the Duke of Windsor.

He has accumulated enough reminiscenses to fill a dozen volumes. . . . Once he arrived in Peiping after he hadn't slept in a bed in a year and a half. . . . He was so out of the habit that he couldn't get to sleep in the bed provided for him, and so he lay down on the floor. . . . The next morning a hotel servant, discovering him in that position, warned him solemnly of the evils of whisky. . . . At another time, when his ship was steaming into Phaleron bay, off the coast of Greece, an American woman asked him what that beautiful sight was on shore. . . . "Snow," he told her. . . . "Good!" she said. "I knew my husband was wrong. He said it was Greece."

● All of which led up to a request from this department in line with a favorite sport of TRIBUNE readers and other travelers. . . . "Among the thousands of places you have seen," we said, "you must have a few prime favorites. For more than two years our readers have been sending in their lists of ten. Will you be good enough to give us yours?" . . . He was, and he did. . . . Here are his selections:

1. The view of the Northern Lights from the Pamir mountains, "the roof of the world," in Turkestan, U. S. S. R. . . . "The spectacle of those lights, rising over the Siberian plains, is like a thousand rainbows put together," said Mr. Wagner. "But very few travelers have seen it, and right now no one can get a visa to go there."

2. The harbor of Rio de Janeiro. . . . "No other harbors can compare with it—not even those of Hongkong and Sydney."

3. The Taj Mahal by moonlight. . . . "That temple is, of course, without an equal anywhere in the world."

4. Victoria Falls. . . . "A mile and a quarter long, and 600 feet high, the falls are almost unbelievably magnificent. Much of the interior of Africa is like that. There you get off the beaten path of the tourist and see nature as it has been for centuries. There you are carried back to the beginning of time."

5. The view of Mount Everest at sunrise from Tiger Hill, Darjeeling.

6. The view from the Jungfraujoch, the top station on that mountain.

7. The Grand Canyon of the Colorado.

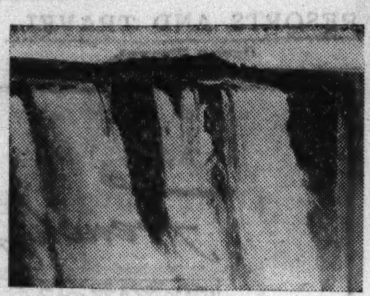
8. The scenery encountered on a motor trip from Colombo, through Kandy, to Anuradhapura and Talaimaanar [or something like that], in the interior of Ceylon.

9. The Vale of Kashmir in May-time.

10. The cherry blossoms in Japan.

● "And what," we whatted, "does Princess Chennajammanni like best among all the places she has visited in America?"

"Chicago," was his ready answer.



Victoria falls.

"She's not deeply interested in museums or skyscrapers. About all she wants to do is drive through your splendid parks and along your enchanting shore line. That, to her, is one of the greatest privileges open to the traveler."

New Wonders Opened Up for Travelers

WHILE the Sphinx gazes serenely into space and continues to assert its spell over the imagination of mankind, an army of archaeologists is opening up new wonders for Mediterranean cruise passengers. Over an area stretching from the Palestine border down to Cairo, past the Pyramid city of Luxor in the west, and at Athens, various camps of antiquarians are busily excavating on the sites of ruined cities and towns.

Egypt first brings the eastern atmosphere to the visitor. Dawn breaks on the Mediterranean as a line of gleaming white houses on the horizon announce Alexandria. To the fore are the Pyramids, the Sphinx, the Mosques, the Mousky, and its bazars. When the train from Alexandria nears Cairo, the conductor points out some objects on the skyline, which, to all appearances, are mere circus tents—one large, one surrounded by the usual sideshow attractions. The traveler is puzzled, but is quickly apologetic when he hears the announcement: "The Pyramids of Gizeh!"

The Great Pyramid was the scene of unbelievable prophesies. Among the forecasts of more than 3,000 years ago were the world war, the liberation of the Jews in Palestine, and the restoration of the ancient gods of Babylon. There is nothing bigger at home, as the pryamid covers thirteen acres and rises to a height of 485 feet. Of equal interest is the newly excavated temple area in the town of Armantel-Heyt, where about 2,000 square miles of the pavement of the Ptolemaic temple have been restored. Among the newly excavated temples are the splendid residences of Pi-Ramesses at Hermopolis, where a new Roman water system has been brought to light.

The trip is made attractive by a new, two-way boulevard leading seven miles across the Nile valley to the very base of the Pyramid plateau. Among the objects shown are the fine statuettes, recently excavated from the old kingdom, symbolizing Egypt in its zenith.

• • •

Cruise passengers scaling the top of the Acropolis at Athens will view with some astonishment the site where the Temple of Wingless Victory has disappeared. Restoration of the temple is in progress, and some day the classic edifice will be shown again in a facsimile of its ancient splendor.

At French Lick.

Among the Chicagoans at French Lick Springs over last week-end were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Feicht, E. V. Zahringer, Dr. and Mrs. O. A. Nystul, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Martin, the Rev. M. J. Nealis, J. M. King, Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Luce, W. W. Stern, H. A. Loeb, George J. Leahy, C. C. Carnahan, Charles Cavanetta, Philip R. Santow, Roswell C. Mower, Frank Traficanti, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Woodruff, Paul L. TIPS TO TOURISTS

What's your travel problem? Address queries regarding where to go, how to get there, costs, and accommodations to the Travelers' Guide, Chicago Tribune, inclosing stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Please tell me something about the American church in Paris.—M. E. B.

It was built at a cost of about $1,000,000, was dedicated in 1931, and is considered a splendid example of neo-Gothic architecture. Each Sunday more than a thousand visitors are admitted to admire the sequence of stained glass windows portraying the evolution of Christianity. One of the features is a Franco-American window depicting Washington, Lafayette, Lincoln, Franklin, St. Louis, and St. Martin.

I am told that the correct pronunciation of Llanquihue, one of the Chilean lakes, is something like "Yankee way," and that other South American tongue twisters are equally fantastic. Can you give me a few examples? —F. D. A.

Please tell me how Mayfair, London, got its name. —D. K.

From a fair that used to be held at the north side of Piccadilly the first fifteen days of May.

Kindly tell us something about the tomb of St. Geronimo in Algiers.

St. Geronimo, a Christian martyr of the sixteenth century, was killed by being smothered in a block of mortar. Besides his tomb in Algiers, the cast may be seen in the museum of Mustapha Superieur, in the suburbs.

FOREIGN TRAVEL

How to View World at Its Sunday Best

By Frederic Babcock.

WHERE to go cruising this winter?

The hope of nearly every person, of course, is to take a trip around the world, generally regarded as the most delightful expedition in the entire realm of travel. The desire is as strong today as it was in the romantic times of Marco Polo, Fernando Magellan, and Sir Francis Drake, pioneers in finding a pathway around the globe. A world cruise starting in January or February carries the tourist to the most attractive countries at the most opportune time to visit them.

But these journeys last from three to five months, and many of us cannot get away that long. So we turn to the shorter cruises.

At this time of the year South and Central America, the West Indies, and the Mediterranean materialize among the highly desirable vacation lands.

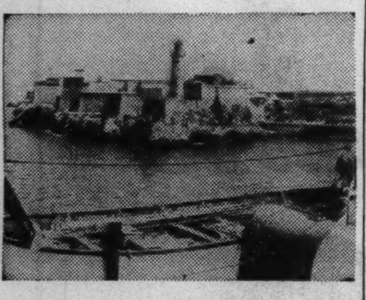
In South America the hotel and transportation facilities have been vastly improved in recent years. It is no longer regarded as a backwoods region, full of savages and malaria. It is a vast and diverse continent, with scenery and cities rivaling anything the rest of the world has to offer. You can cruise clear around it, or you can go down one coast, cross the continent by airplane or rail, and come home by way of the other coast. These trips consume from six to nine weeks, depending on the length of time spent in the interior.

From five to eight weeks is the usual length of the Mediterranean cruises, on which the passengers are transported to scenes of transition in southern Europe, northern Africa, and the near east. The Italian and French Rivieras, the merging of two civilizations in Egypt, and the former and present glories of the Holy Land are just a few of the attractions on these journeys.

But even five to eight weeks is too long for many of us. Our vacations are limited to two or three weeks. Where can we go and get the most out of our trip in that time?

If I had only two or three weeks at my disposal this winter I would go on a Caribbean cruise. In no other way can one reach so many islands and countries, and see such a diversity of scenery and people and customs, and have so much fun, and with a minimum of worry and bother, in such a short time.



Morro Castle in Havana.

Americans are rediscovering the trade winds. Not since the last clipper ships spread their canvas to the breezes, sweeping across the Atlantic from the Canary and Cape Verde Islands, have those breezes played such an important part in our lives. The clippers are gone from the seas, but the changeless trade winds still blow across the islands of the Caribbean to convert their tropical climate into perpetual spring. And it is in winter that these winds blow their best.

The approach to Roaring River falls in Jamaica.

As though to make up to us for the unpleasant winters which nature wished upon us, she has placed close at hand some of the most delightful islands in the world—islands that may be reached after voyages so brief as to discourage not even the most timid sailor. Ever since the days when buccaneers and freebooters robbed wealthy galleons on the Spanish Main the West Indies have been scenes of romance. The pirates are gone, but the romance still lingers over the ancient fortresses, the sun drenched towns, the palm shaded harbors.

I have never cruised down there without coming under the spell of the Southern Cross and the Caribbean moon. Bermuda, the Bahamas, Cuba, Jamaica, Haiti, Curacao, Trinidad, and all the rest, with side trips to Venezuela and Panama, combine to provide an unforgettable journey.

"You Can't Have Everything," they've been telling us. But you can if you go cruising in the wintertime. No matter whether you take five months to go around the world, or two weeks to plow through the Caribbean, you'll have a world of enchantment at your disposal.

• • •

This season there are to be four special cruises around the world, three clear around South America, four as far southward as Rio de Janeiro, more than a hundred to the Caribbean, and four to the Mediterranean, with two others early in the spring. All these are in addition to the regular sailings of Dollar liners around the world, Matson and Canadian Australasian liners to Hawaii; Clarke, Canadian National, and United Fruit liners to the Caribbean, Furness liners to Bermuda; Grace, Munson, and Furness Prince liners to South America; Grace, Dollar, and Panama Pacific liners from New York to California and return by way of the Panama canal, and Italian and American Export liners to the Mediterranean.

The following is an attempt to give a complete list of the ships going on these special cruises:

Around the world—Empress of Britain, Reliance, Franconia, and Stella Polaris.

Mediterranean — Vulcania, Roma, Milwaukee, and Saturnia, this winter; Champlain and Conte di Savoia, early next spring.

Around South America—Gripsholm, Columbus, and Rotterdam.

To Rio de Janeiro—Rex, Normandie, Aquitania, and Empress of Australia.

West Indies and Caribbean—From one to seven trips on each of these: Carinthia, Columbus, Queen of Bermuda, Monarch of Bermuda, Kungsholm, Gripsholm, Empress of Australia, Empress of Britain, Stella Polaris, Pilsudski, Georgic, Paris, Manhattan, Transylvania, Virginia, Berengaria, Bremen, Hamburg, Britannic, Washington, New York, Lafayette, Champlain, Ile de France, Saturnia, California, Pennsylvania, Statendam, Rotterdam, Volendam, Veendam, and Mexique.

Hamlet's Bicycle.

Everyone knows that the hero of Shakespeare's "Hamlet" was a Dane but travelers in Copenhagen, where everyone rides a bicycle, are often surprised to find "Hamlet" the name of one of the best known brands of two wheeler made in Denmark.

GOING SOMEWHERE?

OVERNIGHT service from Chicago to Florida will be started by the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railway for the winter season on Jan. 2. This was made known yesterday by President Charles T. O'Neal. He said through car service to Miami would begin Dec. 9 on the Dixie Flyer.

Three trains to Florida, headed by the Florida Arrow and providing departures from Chicago at midday, in the evening, and near midnight, were announced yesterday by the Pennsylvania railroad for the winter season. The Florida Arrow will have a running time of less than 26 hours between Chicago and Jacksonville and 34 hours and 45 minutes to Miami.

Word received in Chicago yesterday had it that visitors to the 1938 Eucharistic congress in Budapest would not be required to have an Austrian visa when they go through that country. Austria will let down the bars to foreigners between May 10 and Aug. 30.

For the first time in several years the United States lines and Panama-Pacific line will have a comprehensive cruise program to the West Indies this winter. District Passenger Manager W. C. Lancsweert sets forth that the Virginia will sail Dec. 24 on a nine day jaunt to Nassau and Havana; that the Manhattan will leave Dec. 27 on a six day trip to Havana; that the Virginia will go on an eleven day cruise to Nassau, Havana, and Kingston, starting Jan. 5, and that on Jan. 27 the Washington will start out on the same itinerary.

A tiled swimming pool and a glass dance floor are to be built on the sun deck of the North German Lloyd's Columbus. The cruise ship has completed a series of fall trips and is now being altered in preparation for her winter program, which will include a holiday voyage to the West Indies and a journey around South America.

Following the revision of itineraries of this winter's world cruises, the Canadian Pacific's Empress of Britain will still call at Hongkong. Five days are to be spent at that British port before the ship steams on to Manila, Bali, and the antipodes.

Ten winter and spring cruises to the West Indies were announced by the Gdynia America Line last week for the motorship Pilsudski. The season will begin Dec. 23 and last until April 15, and the cruises will range from five to seventeen days.

As a continuation of its year round cruise program, a winter and early spring schedule of trips to the West Indies and Central and South America has been arranged by the Holland America line. Nineteen cruises, of from six to sixty-one days, and with calls on ports in eighteen countries, are scheduled for the Statendam, Rotterdam, Volendam, and Veendam. The season will last from Dec. 18 to April 15.

Three land cruises on special cars through Mexico were announced last week by Raymond-Whitcomb. Each of the trips will take twenty-two days from Chicago and return, with four cities to be visited before devoting ten days to sightseeing in Mexico City and the surrounding country. Raymond-Whitcomb has been conducting Mexican tours for more than forty years.

Hunting conditions in Canada this season are unusually good, says word received by Tom Wall from his scouts in the provinces. Many kills of moose, deer, and bear already have been reported in Ontario. J. C. McGinley and Howard D. Burgess of Chicago returned last week from the Canadian Rockies, where they had a successful shoot among the moose, elk, deer, mountain goats, and mountain sheep.

Winter excursion rates by sea and air to Hawaii, Midway, Wake, the Philippines, Macao, Hongkong, Bali, Java, French Indo-China, Siam, and Malaya were made known last week by the Pan-American Airways system. It is now possible, it was pointed out, to reach Honolulu overnight from San Francisco, and Manila in five days. On a trip half way round the world, three-quarters of the traveler's time can be spent at his destinations in the orient, with only the remaining quarter devoted to getting there.

When the Queen Mary last week completed her sixteenth round trip of the current season it was found that she had carried 51,291 passengers, an average of better than 3,200 per round trip. H. P. Borer, general passenger manager of Cunard-White Star, said he expected the figure to go to nearly 60,000 before the close of the year.

Last Traces of Sun Worship.

On the Swedish island of Gothland, in the Baltic sea, can be found a curious vestige of an ancient religion involving sun worship. On Thursdays, the day of the storm god, the peasants neither spin nor dance; for in the pre-Christian era it was the one day in the week when offerings could not be made to Bal, the sun god.

Royal Rolling Stones

IN EXILE from England, Edward, duke of Windsor, is the next thing to being a man without a country. With his American bride, the former Mrs. Wallis Warfield, he wanders about the world —in France, in Austria, and recently in Germany as the guest of the Nazis. His present tour still further dramatizes the fact that he is a royal rolling stone.

● Although he has indicated at times that he might go back eventually to his native land, the cards back home still seem to be stacked against his return. England in this case is somewhat of a paradox. Always heretofore a land to give refuge to deposed monarchs, it obviously is reluctant to provide a haven for its own ex-sovereign. Hospitable and secure, it has hung out the "welcome" mat to many royal refugees, for example, the emperor of Ethiopia, whom Mussolini drove from a throne, and the ex-king of Siam.

● Other examples were Napoleon III. of France and his wife, Empress Eugénie; King Manuel of Portugal and his mother, the Dowager Queen Amelia, and the French Bourbons, Louis XVIII. and Charles X., who found welcome in England.

● These last named royal folk, however, were figures of another era — the pre-World war time, in which the kicking out of a king was not the commonplace event that it is today. It really was the great war itself that changed everything almost over night. While cannon were thundering out their final blasts on Europe's battle fronts, crowns began to roll over the streets of the continental capitals. There, and also in far-away lands and in distant dynasties, the crown-rolling business has continued ever since.

● Kaiser Wilhelm II. of Germany was the first of the post-war exiles. A few days before the November armistice he fled from Spa general headquarters to nearby neutral Holland. He bought a beautiful mansion at Doorn. Soon a settlement with the German reich, reputed to be in the neighborhood of 200 million pounds, made him the wealthiest of all exiled monarchs.

Looking at Hollywood with Ed Sullivan

New Rage Is Spencer Tracy

By ED SULLIVAN

Hollywood, Cal.

VOTING contests that are being conducted throughout the country to determine the ranking cinema heroes and heroines reveal that American girls are switching from Robert Taylor and Tyrone Power, or at least the type they represent, to the more stalwart type of hero suggested by Spencer Tracy. Every poll shows that Tracy is gaining by leaps and bounds, and theater managers say that the bulk of his votes are coming from girls and women who have become a trifle wearied of gentler heroes and want their romance raw, rough, and resolute.

"A matinée idol, with my face?" grinned Tracy when your correspondent apprised him of this new switch in heartbeats. "Now, don't kid me, Edward. I'm a fairly homely guy, taken by and large. In fact, I don't even use makeup, because the lines in my face and forehead suggest whatever character appears on the film. Now that you bring it to mind, I wasn't even a cute looking kid.

"We lived on Logan avenue, Milwaukee, and Pat O'Brien, another Milwaukee boy, lived about five blocks away. We were pals from the time we were 14 years old, but neither one of us ever won any beauty prizes at West Side High school, or later at Marquette. So if the girls are beginning to like me now it's really a surprise. Do you realize that I'll be 38 years old next April 5? And although they say that life begins at 40, I think that's sort of a consolation prize they hand out to us old gaffers."

Despite Tracy's disbelief, the fact remains that he is on the upswing of a sensational popularity wave. Magnificent performances in "Fury," "San Francisco," and "Captains Courageous" sent his celluloid stock soaring higher than the kites he used to fly over Logan avenue. Six months ago Tracy was rated a fine actor but was not considered a box office draw. Today he is a box office attraction, and the haste with which astute M-G-M officials teamed him first with Luise Rainer in "Big City" and immediately thereafter with Joan Crawford in "Mannequin" indicates best his spectacular climb. Girls and women, wearied of prettier heroes, have turned to Tracy.

I asked him to tell me about himself.

"I'm Irish-American," he started. "A lot of people think that I'm not a Harp because of my first name, Spencer. That was taken from my mother's best friend, a girl named Daisy Spencer. My dad was in the trucking business in Milwaukee, and went from there to General Motors. Nobody in the family ever had been on the stage, but I guess I always had a hankering for it. I met Pat O'Brien first when the two of us were working in a lumber yard after school. Let's see—Pat lived on 29th street. Funny how you never forget addresses and nicknames of the kids you grew up with.

Tracy as the roughneck taxi driver, Joe Benton, in "Big City." The girl is Luise Rainer, who played the role of Joe's wife.

"After finishing at West Side High I went to the Northwestern Military academy and then to Marquette. The war broke out, and I joined the navy. I was assigned first to the Great Lakes station and then Norfolk, but never did get on a boat. I came back home and went to Ripon college to get a degree, and I guess it was there that the stage bug really bit me. I got on the debating team and we went on an eastern tour, and it was the dual debates against Bowdoin and Colby that gave me an idea of how much excitement there was in being on a stage. Certainly it was that debating team experience that persuaded the family to let me attend the Sargent school in New York, which was the American academy.

"The family didn't think much of my stage ambitions, I guess. And I'll never forget the thrill when I sent my mother a letter that I was going into the Theater guild show, 'R. U. R.' Basil Sidney was playing the lead. I didn't tell my family that my pay was $15 a week, but later on they gave me one line to read in the show, and that boosted my salary to $40 a week. Boy, I thought I was really hot stuff when I got that first raise. I gave the doorman of the theater a dollar tip on the way out that night. Many times later I wished I could get my hands on it.

"Then followed two years of stock—at White Plains, N. Y.; Cincinnati, Grand Rapids, Pittsburgh, wherever I could get a job. The bank roll was down to the vanishing point, but it was in stock that I got one great break. In Cincinnati we were playing 'Buddies,' and there was a girl in the company who was really a knockout. Her name was Louise Treadwell, from Newcastle, Pa., and she was a darn good actress, but, just between you and me, I wasn't interested in her acting. How I ever got up nerve enough to ask her to marry me on what I was making is one of those questions that will never be answered. But she was a bit daffy, too, because she said yes, and we got married.

As the happy-go-lucky Manuel in "Captains Courageous."

"By the time we got back to New York we were down to our last few dollars, and the panic was on. When they sent for me to try out for George M. Cohan's show, 'Yellow,' it was a reprieve, a message from Garcia. We sat there on the stage of the Hudson theater in New York reading our parts and sort of sneaking glances up the center aile to see if Mr. Cohan was arriving. 'Don't be nervous,' Humphrey Bogart whispered to me. He was shaking worse than I was. That first meeting with Cohan was the greatest thrill I ever got out of the theater. He was swell, too. I played in several of his shows and learned more about acting and the theater from him than from anybody else.

"Then 'The Last Mile' and the part as Killer Mears that really attracted attention to me. You know the rest of it, Ed. You should; you know that you were the first to come right out and say that I was going to be a great dramatic star. You wrote it in a movie magazine, and I've still got it in my scrapbook."

So much for the chronological details of Tracy's career. What sort of a person is he face to face? I hear you asking.

He's a quiet sort of a guy, with a nice smile to relieve his gravity. He has a grand sense of humor, and his comments after each camera "take" are always amusing. Director Frank Borzage tells me that he has rarely encountered a performer with Tracy's gift for remembering long stretches of dialog. He rarely blows up in a scene. He delivers his lines in a very low and very natural tone of voice, underplaying them. In the early days of sound in movies they would have had trouble picking up his tones. The fishpole extension "mike" made him a movie natural. Men like him instantly, and of late women have developed what amounts to a national crush. He lives quietly in Hollywood, and when his wife is out of town you'll generally find him with his bosom companion, Bill Grady, M-G-M talent scout, sitting at a wall table at the Trocadero, local supper club, rendezvous of the movie people.

At the moment he is the most conspicuous of the performers who have been graduated to Hollywood from Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, Michigan, and Iowa, which form their compact middle western state group.

It is amazing to reflect on the performers who have come from that section of the country—Carole Lombard, Fred MacMurray, Charles Butterworth, Margaret Lindsay, Pat O'Brien, Billy and Bobby Mauch, June Travis, Charlie Winninger, Harriet Hilliard, Richard Lane, Jean Chatburn, Alan Curtis, Betty Jaynes, Nat Pendleton, Robert Young, Jack Benny, Beulah Bondi, Don Ameche, Dennis O'Keefe, Suzanne Larsen, Walt Disney, Marsha Hunt, Frances Dee, Bill Frawley, Bob Baker, Judy Garland, Joe Penner, Stanley Morner, Doris Weston, John Litel—just a few from these five states. Put them all together, with Spencer Tracy, and you'd have the nucleus of the gosh-darnedest motion picture company in the business.

Particularly so now that Spencer Tracy has become a 1938 model Romeo.

Voice of the Movie Fan

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Miss Tinée: May I toss a big, big bouquet? It goes to Don Ameche! He's far handsomer than Bob Taylor; his voice, both speaking and singing, is indeed beautiful. Besides all this, he's an excellent and versatile actor.

DON AMECHE
Fan thinks he is handsome.

Another thing I admire him for is that he adores his wife and children. It is a relief to find an actor who really loves his wife. Long may Don Ameche reign as king!

I wish you would print a big picture of Don. Thanks a lot. Sincerely,

JOYCE REMPE.

Editor's note: Your hero, I see! And here his picture be. ('Souse, pliss.)

Dear Miss Tinée: Your critic in yesterday's Tribune of "The Road Back" was in my opinion somehow unfair. As one who reads your critics with regularity, I have always preferred your criticism in its unflattering boldness to other critics who merely try to flatter and thus are of little value.

In the case of "The Road Back," however, you appear to be lacking much (if not most) of the facts forming the background against which the story of "The Road Back" plays itself. As a German-American who has actually witnessed "The Road Back," I went to see the film at the Palace theater yesterday and found it the most moving and the most stirring picture I've seen since "Cavalcade."

You must not forget that in the case of "The Road Back" we see a great people going down in one of the greatest defeats of history. Everything these people had believed and fought for for four years suddenly seemed to betray it, all hope had gone, and so in an admirable contemplation the German soldier decided to take the road back, because it must be remembered that conditions leading to this road back came rather from within Germany than from without.

In 1918, when the end of the World war was near, I was visiting a business college in Karlsruhe on the Rhine, and I have seen with my own eyes scenes almost exactly as they are projected now on the screen, and these scenes took place long before the armistice was signed.

With all these memories alive, you will understand that the drama of "The Road Back" deserves a somehow more benevolent critic, especially so if we realize that around this story is one of the saddest hours in a people's existence. I really wish the people in Germany were allowed to see this film as I have seen it, because they would gain a better understanding of all they've gone through. Remembering that they've been first betrayed from within, they well know that they also have been betrayed from without, and the story of "The Road Back" would in my opinion give them something like an observer's seat in the turmoil of their present struggle. Sincerely yours,

OSCAR LOHNER.

Editor's note: Your letter makes me wonder if you read my review of "The Road Back."

Dear Miss Tinée: I heard "Stella Dallas" over the radio. I enjoyed it very much and intend to see the movie.

ANNE SHIRLEY
She's been married since August.

Anne Shirley, who played in the movie, said she was married. Would you please print a brief biography and tell me when she was married and to whom?

I enjoy your column very much. Thank you.

A constant reader,

RUTH METZGER.

Editor's note: Anne Shirley was born in New York City, April 17, 1918. She's 5 feet 2 inches tall, weighs 100 pounds, and has red-gold hair and amber eyes. Educated Lawlor Professional school. Her hobby is reading. On Aug. 22 of this year Miss Shirley married John Howard Payne, screen actor. It makes me happy to know you enjoy the column. Thanks for taking the time to tell me that you do.

Dear Miss Tinée: Reading your column each Sunday makes me feel like adding my "two cents' worth," so here goes.

An orchid to each of the following (my favorites, of course):

1. To the one and only Tyrone Power for his clean-cut boyishness and truly entertaining acting.

2. To Don Ameche for his quick rise to fame and also for his ability to play light comedy rôles with ease and perfection.

3. To Spencer Tracy for his magnificent portrayal of Manuel in "Captains Courageous."

4. To Barbara Stanwyck for her ability to portray any character sincerely enough to make the audience really feel the part.

5. To Loretta Young for her delightful sophistication in any rôle she plays.

6. And last, but certainly not least, to Deanna Durbin. Honestly, there aren't words enough to express my praise for her! Her sweet personality and beautiful voice have me spellbound. Incidentally, concerning Miss Durbin, I read recently that she is not 14, as publicized, but actually 17. Is that true? Gee, I hope not!

This is the first time I have ever written to you, and I know the letter must sound a bit amateurish. However, I think your column is swell, and the same goes for your reviews.

So best wishes from a 14-year-old fan,

BETTY WEBER.

Editor's note: Well, I think you were swell to write and tell me you think the column's swell. Thank you. Deanna Durbin was born Dec. 4, 1922.

Dear Mae: Would you please settle an argument and tell me how tall the Mauch twins are? Also a short story of their life.

A regular reader of your column,

ARLEEN N.

Editor's note: Well, this ought to settle it one way or another. They were born in Peoria, Ill., July 6, 1924. They're identical twins and, it is said, cannot be told apart even by their mother unless they are differently dressed. They have blue eyes and brown hair. Their height is rapidly changing, but according to the last report they were 4 feet 11 inches tall.

Where Gunmen Played a Game with Death

Sixty years ago men, carrying little more than unvarnished courage and well oiled guns, were beating their way through the western bad lands toward a clump of desolate hills in southeastern Arizona, just a shake north of the Mexican border. The lure was silver.

By FRANK CIPRIANI

Tombstone, Ariz.

BACK in 1877 big Ed Schieffelin never dreamed of founding "The Town That's Too Tough to Die." He was too busy prospecting for rich ores, and dodging the bad men and worse Indians who infested the southwest. This was indeed risky business, and more than once he was warned that he probably would find his tombstone—meaning he'd be killed—instead of finding gold or silver.

But Schieffelin stubbornly went ahead. He found silver. And he founded Tombstone.

A mining camp town mushroomed over night on his silver discovery, and to him came the honor of selecting the town's name. He chose Tombstone, this macabre name having lingered in his mind from frequent warnings. Tombstone the town became, and Tombstone's the town that boasts today that it's too tough to die.

You'll find it in southeastern Arizona, in a lazy setting of purple hills, cactus, and mesquite, quite as drab as its surroundings. Just 60 years old, it is not old as conventional towns go, but very old, almost patriarchal, as mining camps go.

Much of the original Tombstone still stands, but the dash is gone. Ramshackle wooden buildings that once dazzled white under the desert sun now reflect dully the gray of age, and many of them, like tottering old men, lean gratefully for support against sturdier neighbors. The Tombstone that once had an energetic population of nearly 15,000, against Tucson's 7,000 and Phoenix's 1,800, now musters fewer than 1,000, while Tucson brags of 33,000 and Phoenix of 50,000.

Tombstone has experienced its seven ages of man. By all the rules of rise and decline of other western mining communities, it should now be buried in its own Boothill graveyard. But Tombstone carries on.

It was made by the fortune seekers and adventurers who rushed to the hills of Schieffelin, men who toted guns and knew how to use them—the Earps, the Clantons, the McLowerys, and the types of Doc Holliday, Gentleman John Ringo, Curly Bill, and Johnny-Behind-the-Deuce.

The prospectors piled in from everywhere, some simple, some shrewd, all bold, but not all bad, and in their dusty wake followed the bartender, card sharp, and madame and girls of the bagnio. Surveyors hastily laid out streets, and on them contractors speedily built rows of plain, low roofed frame structures from which protruded wooden awnings to shade the sidewalks. Allen street became the main thoroughfare, with rivals in Tough Nut and Fremont streets. Money came easily; it went more easily. A quarter was the smallest coin used. Liquor cost $1 to $5 a drink. Men lost $100 to $1,000 a sitting at the gambling tables.

Where men live dangerously for high stakes, as they did in Tombstone, courage and the gun frequently rule. Men held life cheaply and sometimes killed on slight provocation.

Dick Lloyd, a cowboy on a drunken spree, yelling "Whoopee," rode his horse into O'Neil's saloon near town, right into the midst of a hot poker game. The players, annoyed over the interruption, shot him off his horse, sent for the coroner, and resumed their poker game.

Stuttering Jerry Barton, a gorilla-strong saloonkeeper and constable of nearby Charleston, killed men with his fists and sometimes used the gun, but he never "c-c-c-counted M-M-M-Mexicans" in the notches on his gunhandle. William (Kid) Claybourn, a tough cowboy, killed casually here and there, but fell under the gun of the quicker shooting Buckskin Frank Leslie, a good rider, a good shooter, a good scout, and a good bartender. Johnny-Behind-the-Deuce, so named because he always played the deuce on the faro layout, shot and killed Henry Schneider, a mining engineer, because Schneider would not say hello to him.

Tolerant of private shooting scrapes and even feuds, Tombstone's citizens whitened with fury at burglary, street and stage coach robberies, and murder for profit. Punishment was swift, the justice of vigilance committees.

There was the time a gang of men robbed a company store in Bisbee and killed J. C. Tappinier, the assayer. Posses from Tombstone and Bisbee speedily rounded up the gang, Frank Heath, Dan Dowd, C. W. (Red) Sample, Tex Howard, Bill De Laney, and York (Dan) Kelly. A Tombstone jury tried Heath first and found him guilty of second degree murder. A mob promptly seized Heath, hanged him to a pole, and announced they'd do the same to the next jury that returned such a verdict. One can guess the verdict of the subsequent jury that tried Dowd, Sample, Howard, De Laney, and Kelly. The five were hanged—the first men to be hanged legally in Tombstone.

Tombstone soon developed into a hell roaring town, and in this hell roaring town in the winter of 1879 arrived Wyatt Earp, native of Monmouth, Ill., a fast thinking and faster shooting frontiersman.

Earp wore the badge of a deputy United States marshal—a law and order man. Behind him not long afterward came his brothers, Virgil, Morgan, James, and Warren Earp, and also one John Holliday. Holliday was a dentist who had given up the business of filling teeth with gold for that of filling men with lead. No deadlier shot, no more merciless killer ever stomped the plains and mesas of the west than this slender, blond, and gray eyed fighting man from Georgia. Holliday became Wyatt Earp's right hand gunman.

Wyatt Earp came to Tombstone at a time when outlaws were robbing the stages on the Benson and Bisbee roads. He promptly offered his services as a messenger to the Wells-Fargo express. For seven months he rode the Tombstone-Benson stages, a loaded shotgun on his knees. For seven months there were no stage coach holdups.

Earp won quick recognition as a handy man to have around in case of disturbance, and businesses requiring protection bid for his special talents. He accepted the offer of a partnership in the Oriental saloon (still standing), which at the moment was being threatened with violence by a gang of gunmen. As his first act in the partnership Earp nonchalantly sent word to the gunmen that "if you're looking for trouble come on over. I aim to please." They never came.

Earp probably never demonstrated more majestic nerve than the time that Johnny-Behind-the-Deuce wantonly murdered Engineer Schneider. Johnny's real name was O'Rourke. He was a wizened runt, big eared and big nosed. A lynching party started out to make amends, and Constable George McKelvey, who had arrested O'Rourke, spirited him on a fast horse into Tombstone just ahead of the mob. Earp, as a law officer, was called upon to protect him. Earp shoved O'Rourke into the bowling alley in Allen street, stationed Doc Holliday and Virgil Earp, who was town marshal, on guard, and then waited in the street for the mob.

All Wyatt Earp had was a double barreled shotgun in the crotch of his arm.

The mob—nearly 500 fanatical men—rushed up. Earp stopped them with a sharp gesture. "We want Johnny-Behind-the-Deuce," they snarled. "You can't have him; he's my prisoner," thundered Earp. The lynching leaders threatened Earp. Then some one shouted, "Go ahead, he's only bluffing." At this Earp raised his shotgun and swept the front ranks. "Come on, then," he challenged grimly. "Let's see you get him. You can kill me, all right, but I'll blow the bellies out of you in front, and take a few of you to hell with me."

This was no bluff. The mob broke. The life of Johnny-Behind-the-Deuce was saved.

Earp cherished great hopes of being sherif of the newly created Cochise county, a job, with various legal emoluments, worth $40,000 a year, but the plum went to John H. Behan, a man who did not lack courage, but who knew the political rather than the gunshooting end of the business. One of his notable acts was his appointment as deputy of William M. (Billy) Breakenridge, a fearless law enforcer. Behan's appointment angered Earp. The two became bitter rivals as servants of law and order—one the sherif, the other deputy marshal.

This was at a time when the Clantons—Old Man Clanton and his sons, Finn, Ike, and Billy—and Frank and Tom McLowery were in the full flush of outlawry. The Clantons operated a ranch on the San Pedro river, a few miles above Charleston, and the McLowerys ran another in Sulphur Spring valley, 25 miles southeast.

Cattle thieves ran wild those days, and one group made regular forays into nearby Mexico. This group acknowledged allegiance to John Ringo, a gambler, a knight errant to women, and to William Brocius, better known as Curly Bill, who rated tops in cattle rustling. This was the outfit that Walter Noble Burns in his "Tombstone" describes as one of the most strongly entrenched outlaw kingdoms in the west. The Clantons and McLowerys in particular protected the Ringo-Curly Bill rustling interests, and they gave refuge to sundry fugitive desperadoes.

There could be no bond between the Earps, who ostensibly were law and order men; Wyatt, deputy marshal; Virgil, town marshal, and Morgan, town policeman, and the Clantons and McLowerys, who were not. Wyatt regarded Ike Clanton as a "sort of chief among the outlaws" and all the Clantons and McLowerys as cattle thieves.

It was natural that bad blood should develop between such contrasting men, but the definite origins were plural rather than singular. Among them the fact that Billy Clanton stole Wyatt Earp's favorite horse; the fact that the Clantons and McLowerys supported Johnny Behan instead of Wyatt Earp for sherif.

Two events of similar design hastened a showdown. In March, 1881, between Tombstone and Benson, three road agents held up the Benson stage and killed Bud Philpot, the driver, and Peter Roerig, a passenger. The Earps and Doc Holliday pursued the gunmen, who escaped, only to die of bullets later anyway. The trio were Jim Crane, Bill Leonard, and Harry Head. Here was the feudal poison in this case. The Earps insinuated the murderers were Clanton men, and the Clantons retaliated by openly charging that Doc Holliday, Wyatt Earp's right hand, participated in the holdup, and was the man who actually killed Philpot.

As if this were not enough to intensify the feud, another stage was held up in September, 1881, this one near Bisbee. Again the Earps and Holliday joined the pursuit, and helped to arrest the two alleged highwaymen, Frank Stilwell and Pete Spence. And here was this added poison. Stilwell and Spence were Clanton-McLowery men.

• • •

The arrest infuriated the Clantons and McLowerys, who warned Morgan Earp, "You Earps and Doc Holliday are not as big as you think you are—we'll get you yet!" Breakenridge recalls in his memoirs that "Virgil Earp told me that the McLowerys threatened to kill every one who had a hand in arresting Stilwell and Spence."

Story of the Earps and Their Enemies

All Tombstone knew that a showdown was due.

On the night of Oct. 25, 1881, Ike Clanton and Tom McLowery drove into Tombstone in a light wagon. Doc Holliday, enraged over the outlaws' insinuations that he knew something about the Benson stage murders, cornered Clanton, daring him to fight. "You've been threatening to kill me," he shouted. "We're man to man now—get out your gun and fight."

It happened that Clanton carried no arms at the moment. The Earp boys appeared at this juncture, quieted Holliday, and sent Clanton away. But later Clanton warned Wyatt Earp that "no man can abuse me like Doc Holliday did and get away with it. I'll kill him, and I'll settle with all you fellows tomorrow."

Wyatt Earp considered Ike Clanton's explosive oratory merely drunken chatter, but changed his mind the next day when friends sent him fearful warnings that "Ike Clanton's on the warpath." The same news was carried to Wyatt's brothers, Virgil and Morgan, and to Doc Holliday. Of ominous import also was the information that reenforcements in the persons of Billy Clanton and Frank McLowery had come into town. All were armed, Wyatt was told, and all were raging to settle the long standing feud.

Sherif Behan heard the rumblings. He rushed over to the Clantons and McLowerys to disarm them. He found them near the O. K. corral in Fremont street, near Fourth. "Boys, I will have to disarm you to preserve the peace," Behan said. Ike Clanton showed that he had no guns, and Tom McLowery turned out to be as defenseless.

The only ones carrying guns were Billy Clanton and Frank McLowery. They had four. They refused to disarm.

Sherif Behan was still pleading with them to surrender their arms when he saw four men turn the corner at Fourth street. They were Wyatt, Virgil and Morgan Earp and Doc Holliday. He ran out to head them off.

"Go no further, men," he said to them stridently. "I want no trouble."

The three Earps and Holliday brushed past him. A hush came over the street as these four men advanced. Storekeepers backed deep behind their counters. Death was in the air.

The Clantons and McLowerys stood their ground. Now 100 feet separated them, now 50, now 25, now 10——

Out came the Earp and Holliday guns. "You've been looking for a fight and now you can have it," cried Wyatt. "Throw up your hands!" ordered Virgil. "Don't shoot, I don't want to fight," pleaded Billy Clanton.

Firing began at once. Ike Clanton and Tom McLowery bellowed they had no guns—a condition their foemen did not know. The Earps and Doc Holliday coolly and murderously kept on dealing hot lead. Ike Clanton fled. Tom McLowery retreated. Billy Clanton, only a boy, but a brave one, and Frank McLowery would not yield.

Billy fired at Wyatt as Wyatt shot Frank McLowery and Morgan Earp blazed away at Billy. Doc Holliday, in a split second survey of the action, lifted Tom McLowery, unarmed, off the ground with a double blast from his shotgun as McLowery reached for one of Frank McLowery's extra guns. Billy Clanton, on the ground from Morgan Earp's bullets, continued the uneven battle. He drilled Virgil Earp through the leg and Morgan Earp through the shoulder just as Virgil finished him with a shot in the breast. Doc Holliday and Morgan Earp turned their guns on Frank McLowery a split second after McLowery creased Holliday's thigh.

It was all over in 30 seconds. The casualties: Billy Clanton and Tom and Frank McLowery dead; Virgil and Morgan Earp and Doc Holliday wounded.

The Earps won the battle, but at the price of their exile. They were acquitted at a preliminary hearing, but could not avoid the stigma that four of them, heavily armed, had attacked four others, only two of whom were armed. Public sentiment recoiled against them. They were not helped by open charges in court—only by Ike Clanton's, it's true—that they had arranged or actively aided in several bold stage robberies while posing as law and order men.

The Earps read the signs. They saw their reign of power ending. They prepared to depart, but for once challenged the fates too often. Assassins wounded Virgil and murdered Morgan. Wyatt Earp and Holliday tarried long enough to settle Morgan's score by slaying his killer, Frank Stilwell, the stage robber whom they had arrested some months before.

In the spring of 1882 Wyatt Earp and Doc Holliday and a handful of followers rode slowly out of Tombstone, watched by hundreds of unfriendly eyes. In the crowd that saw them off stood Sherif Behan. In his hand he held two warants charging Earp and Holliday with the Stilwell murder. But he never served them.

The Inside Story of the Turkish Harem

The Baths—Luxurious Playground of Gossips

Foreword

● A wise scholar once said, "Rome was indebted to her strigil as well as to her sword for the conquest of the world."

● A strigil is a skin scraper used by the ancients when taking a bath.

● Certainly the bath-taking peoples of the earth—from the English to the Japanese—have been strong in conquest. And no exception to this rule were the conquering Ottoman Turks, who adopted from the Greeks and handed on to humanity a gift which the world is coming to value more and more—the "Turkish bath."

● Indeed, a story of the glory that was Constantinople under the sultans could not be complete without mention of the Turkish bath. Neither could a picture of the sultan's harem reveal its full color without inclusion of the relaxations of the luxurious royal baths. And so Mr. Penzer's story of the harem ends today with a vivid account of bath life in imperial Turkey.

INSTALMENT VII.

A typical scene at one of Turkey's many public baths. The drawing illustrates well the architectural scheme and shows the massage slab, the wall basins, the pattens, or high clog shoes, worn to protect feet from hot floors and running water. This is one of the rooms where bathers went to relax after having been thoroughly steamed and scrubbed.

SINCE the earliest times in Turkey public baths have been found in every village and town, and the royal seraglio palace has ever had its thirty or more bathing halls furnished in lavish luxury. The bath, in fact, enters deeply into the life of every Turk, both male and female, from the highest to the lowest. And so to describe one bath in Turkey is, to a large extent, to describe them all—for customs and traditions were developed that were virtually universal.

To begin in the sultan's palace, all its baths were heated by water introduced under the floor on the Pompeian system, or else merely distributed to the various wall fountains on different sides of the room. The boilers were usually of copper. As far as can be ascertained, the boiler rooms were on a level with the baths, but where space was a consideration it seems probable that they were underneath in the basement, where there was plenty of room not only for the boilers but also for the storing of the immense quantities of wood which were used for the fires.

In some cases so great is the state of ruin today that a few broken pieces of marble and the cock of a fountain are all that remains among the débris to show where a bath once existed.

Of the baths in the harem, apart from the sultana's bath, the only remaining ones are those leading off the courtyard of the harem girls and similar ones I discovered hidden away among the ruins of the so-called girls' hospital. Remains of marble decoration on the walls give us a slight idea of what they were originally like. The rooms are very narrow, allowing of no central plunge basin, but merely a series of wall fountains. It seems probable, however, that a massage slab made of marble once adorned the middle of the main room.

The sultan's bath and the sultana's are the only ones in the seraglio in good repair today. It was at these baths that the harem and the men's quarters met. A corridor connected the sultana's suite with the throne room, and from the corridor itself access was gained to both baths.

The sultan's bath, the more important of the two, consists of the usual three rooms, the general scheme throughout being one of brightness and lightness, with white marble and tall narrow columns with stalactitic capitals. On entering from the corridor one finds one's self in a small room almost entirely devoid of decoration, so that it is difficult for the imagination to clothe the walls with the gorgeous golden hangings encrusted with myriads of pearls that once hung there. Heavy Persian rugs covered the floors, and low sofas, upholstered in gold and silver embroideries and piled up with cushions, lined the walls. A bejeweled bubble-pipe and coffee set practically completed the furniture of the room, in which it is easy to recognize the undressing and rest room of the baths.

On the left is a small lavatory of the usual Turkish type, consisting merely of marble footpieces and a sunken receptacle behind. The second room is the tepidarium. From a central corridor small rooms lead off on either side. A lavish use of white marble, relieved by the introduction of gilt iron-work, makes the third and last room—the calidarium—the most beautiful of them all. Passing in through a finely wrought iron-gilt door, one is at once attracted by a really beautiful cascade wall fountain immediately opposite at the end of the room. The bath itself is narrow and long, like ordinary western baths, and at each end is a seat with a high back and a single arm-rest facing the room—all in white marble.

The hottest water would be in the long bath, and the wall fountains would be regulated at varying temperatures according to the purposes they served. In the second room the water would be much cooler, for use in closing the pores of the skin in preparation for the most wonderful part of the bath—the relaxation in the rest room to the accompaniment of the soothing bubble-pipe, the slices of melon covered with snow, the steaming black coffee in its bejeweled pot, the crystal glass of delicately perfumed sherbet, or whatever else royal fancy might dictate.

To give a more complete picture of the original uses of the palace baths I will quote from one of the early visitors to the seraglio, who speaks of a bath he saw in the palace school:

"The place where they put off their clothes is a spacious hall of freestone, high enough, and in one of the most eminent parts of the seraglio. The floor is paved with a very delightful kind of marble laid in squared pieces, and it has two large windows jutting out upon the gardens, somewhat like balconies, from which you have a prospect of the two seas.

"On one side of the fountain in the middle of the hall there is an entrance into the bath, and near that is the place where they unclothe themselves in the winter time. At the end of a little gallery there is a door which gives you passage into three chambers, which are so many baths for the use of the sultan's quarter. There is adjoining to the last of those chambers a spacious place paved checkerwise with marble of different colors, and there the pages are trimmed. This place has a little elevation in the midst of it, from which there is a gentle descent of all sides, that the water wherewith the barbers wash their heads and beards may the more easily be carried off, and the place be always kept clean.

"On both sides of the wall whereby it is inclosed there is a great double cock with two handles belonging to it, which at the same mouth supplies them alternately with either hot water or cold, and that falls into a receptacle of white marble, wherein three or four men may bathe themselves without any inconvenience, or trouble one to the other. There is also at one of the ends a little room of black and white marble, and there the barbers, who have no knowledge of any other profession, put up all their necessary utensils and instruments, such as razors, hones, balls, and those irons wherewith they pare nails.

"Opposite to the chamber of the barbers there are three other rooms arched with marble, the largest whereof much surpasses in beauty those that are adjoining to it. The floor is of white and black marble, and the walls are done with square pieces of white and blue, and in every one of them you find a flower in embossed work, done to the life. In the roof there are several round holes, of about half a foot diameter, over which there are little glasses made in the fashion of bells, lest any one should have the curiosity to get upon the roof and think to see what is done in the bath."

So far we have examined only the private baths for the use of the sultan, his household, and other members of the palace service. But unless we get a good idea of the public bath we shall miss many things that would lead to a better understanding of the way in which the great majority of the palace personnel spent such a large and, to them, important part of their lives. Close attention will be given especially to the women's baths since that will help complete the picture of life as it was in the sultan's harem. In essentials what went on in the public baths was the same as what went on in the private ones.

One of the earliest accounts in existence of the public baths was written by Bassano da Zara, who was in the employ of the seraglio and took many trips in all parts of Turkey and visited many baths. He chose for his detailed description one of the large ones, apparently in Constantinople, and writes:

"The design of these baths seems to me, especially as far as the domes are concerned, to be copied from the thermæ of Diocletian in Rome, although very much smaller. At the entrance is a room shaped like a church. In the middle there is usually a beautiful basin of fine marble, with a fountain of four jets, around which are high seats made of brick and covered with a rug or tapestry. On wishing to enter and take a bath one must first speak to the custodians of the bath, who are stationed around the walls of this room, and then to the cashier, who sits in a corner on a stool. When this is done you may undress on one of those seats. . . . You must be careful not to be immodest, for shameless ones are beaten and thrown out of the baths.

"When undressed, you make your clothes into a bundle and place it on the seat with your hat, cap, or turban which you wear, on top. Your clothes will not be safe unless you have a servant to guard them, because the custodians of the baths themselves will steal your purse and other belongings. Before you take your shirt off they will give you a long ample towel to cover yourself—that is to say, if you haven't got one of your own—and others to dry yourself with. Having then covered yourself, you enter the first room of the bath, where there are always about fifteen servants varying with the size of the bath, some shaving, some kneading the bones, some washing, so that all are busy at their task set them by their master. From this you pass through several rooms all of different kinds, each hotter than the last, adorned with fine marble and porphyry all around, like the vaulting; and in each are two water pipes, one hot and the other cold, which flow into marble basins, and the water which overflows on to the ground escapes through holes in the floor. From here you enter the main part of the bath, which is usually spacious and covered with marble so smooth that it is hard to stand upright.

"In the center of this room, which we have called the heart of the baths, there is a square stone of marble, porphyry, and very fine serpentine, a palm thick, longer than the height of a man, and two palms from the ground. It is set on four beautiful marble balls. As soon as anybody arrives they are invited to stretch themselves on this stone, and one of the servants mounts with his feet on your back and pulls out your arms in a certain manner peculiar to them. But it never pleased me, and I would never lie down there, although they often begged me to do so.

"Then when you get off this stone you go into another room, either colder or warmer, according to your taste. For in the heart of the baths there are many little rooms like cells all around, but well made and ornamented, and in each is a marble basin into which two pipes lead from the wall, one furnishing hot and the other cold water. You let as much water as you want run into the basin, and after getting it to the required temperature you stop up the pipes.

"After this you lie on the ground close to the basin and one of the servants throws water over you from a bowl, while another washes you, covering the opening of the little room with a towel.

"To rub you down they use a kind of bag made of a thick dark cloth; no soap is supplied if you don't bring your own. If you want your head or beard shaved a man who specializes in that business will attend to you. So also if you want to get rid of your hair in any part without shaving they give you a paste, in a different room from the others. The Turks use this paste a great deal, for they consider it a sin to have hairs on their bodies, and you never find any of them who have any.

"When you have finished washing you change the towel you have been wearing in the bath, and on coming out a servant approaches with a basin to wash your feet again. You then return to the first room where

A SAFETY CUSHION ON EACH WHEEL!

Buick replaces the usual leaf spring with this special spring (A) of stout coiled steel and big direct-acting Transport Type shock absorber (B). Rigidly aligned by Torque Tube (C), rear axle and wheels cannot twist or distort, cannot affect steering, greatly reducing danger from skids. No shackles, no grease points, no chatter, no premature rear tire wear from wheel-slip.

One ride will show you why TORQUE-FREE SPRINGING, and the new DYNAFLASH ENGINE, make the 1938 Buick the most modern chassis in the world

THE seat fits you, that's the first thing. It's broad and deep, and it's pitched right, and there's a high comfortable roll back of your shoulders and behind your head.

You look out past the driver in front of you, out over that long graceful bonnet—there is no neck-strain; looking any way, to front or side, you can see.

Then there's the feel of sound and secure construction all around you, steel fused on steel, strength knit to silence, the whole borne on a chassis that's taut and firm and finished as a cup defender.

But it's when you hit the rough going, the rutted road, the railway crossings, the cobbled paving, the "washboard" gravel, that this wondrous new 1938 Buick shows you what science can do with a ride!

Under you now is something fresh and tireless and new in automotive design, not the old-type leaf spring of yore, but the great soft coils of shock-smothering TORQUE-FREE SPRINGING.

As the beautifully poised car streams onward under the spur of the amazing DYNAFLASH engine, the wheels may dip and curtsy but the body rides true and level as a flung lance.

You sit in the cushions, relaxed and rested. You're safer—skid risks are blessedly reduced. You save money—rear tires last measurably longer. And the whole eager car handles with a sureness, a "direct-ability" never before attained.

Please don't stop with admiring the new Buick. Know what DYNAFLASH power and the lullaby ride of TORQUE-FREE SPRINGING mean, by sampling them first-hand on the highway.

EVERY SPARK SETS OFF A CYCLONE!

Rushing into the cylinder at speeds as high as 250 miles an hour, the fuel charge (A) strikes the Turbulator (B) built into the piston and instantaneously in converted into a tiny cyclone (C) of terrific turbulence. Spark (D) flashing into this cyclompression, fires a faster, cleaner, more furious explosion which drives piston (E) with almost 10% stronger power-push from same rationing of gas.

BUYER'S DIGEST OF THE 1938 BUICK

NEW DYNAFLASH VALVE-IN-HEAD STRAIGHT-EIGHT ENGINE world's ablest eight, with a cyclone in every cylinder.

NEW TORQUE-FREE SPRINGING—unvarying flutter-free ride, lengthened tire life, greater anti-skid safety. No shackles, no grease points.

TORQUE-TUBE DRIVE in chassis sealed against dirt, water, wear.

NEW QUIET ZONE BODY MOUNTING scientifically silences body noise and rumble.

ANOLITE PISTONS, durable, long-lasting, light as alloy but tough as iron.

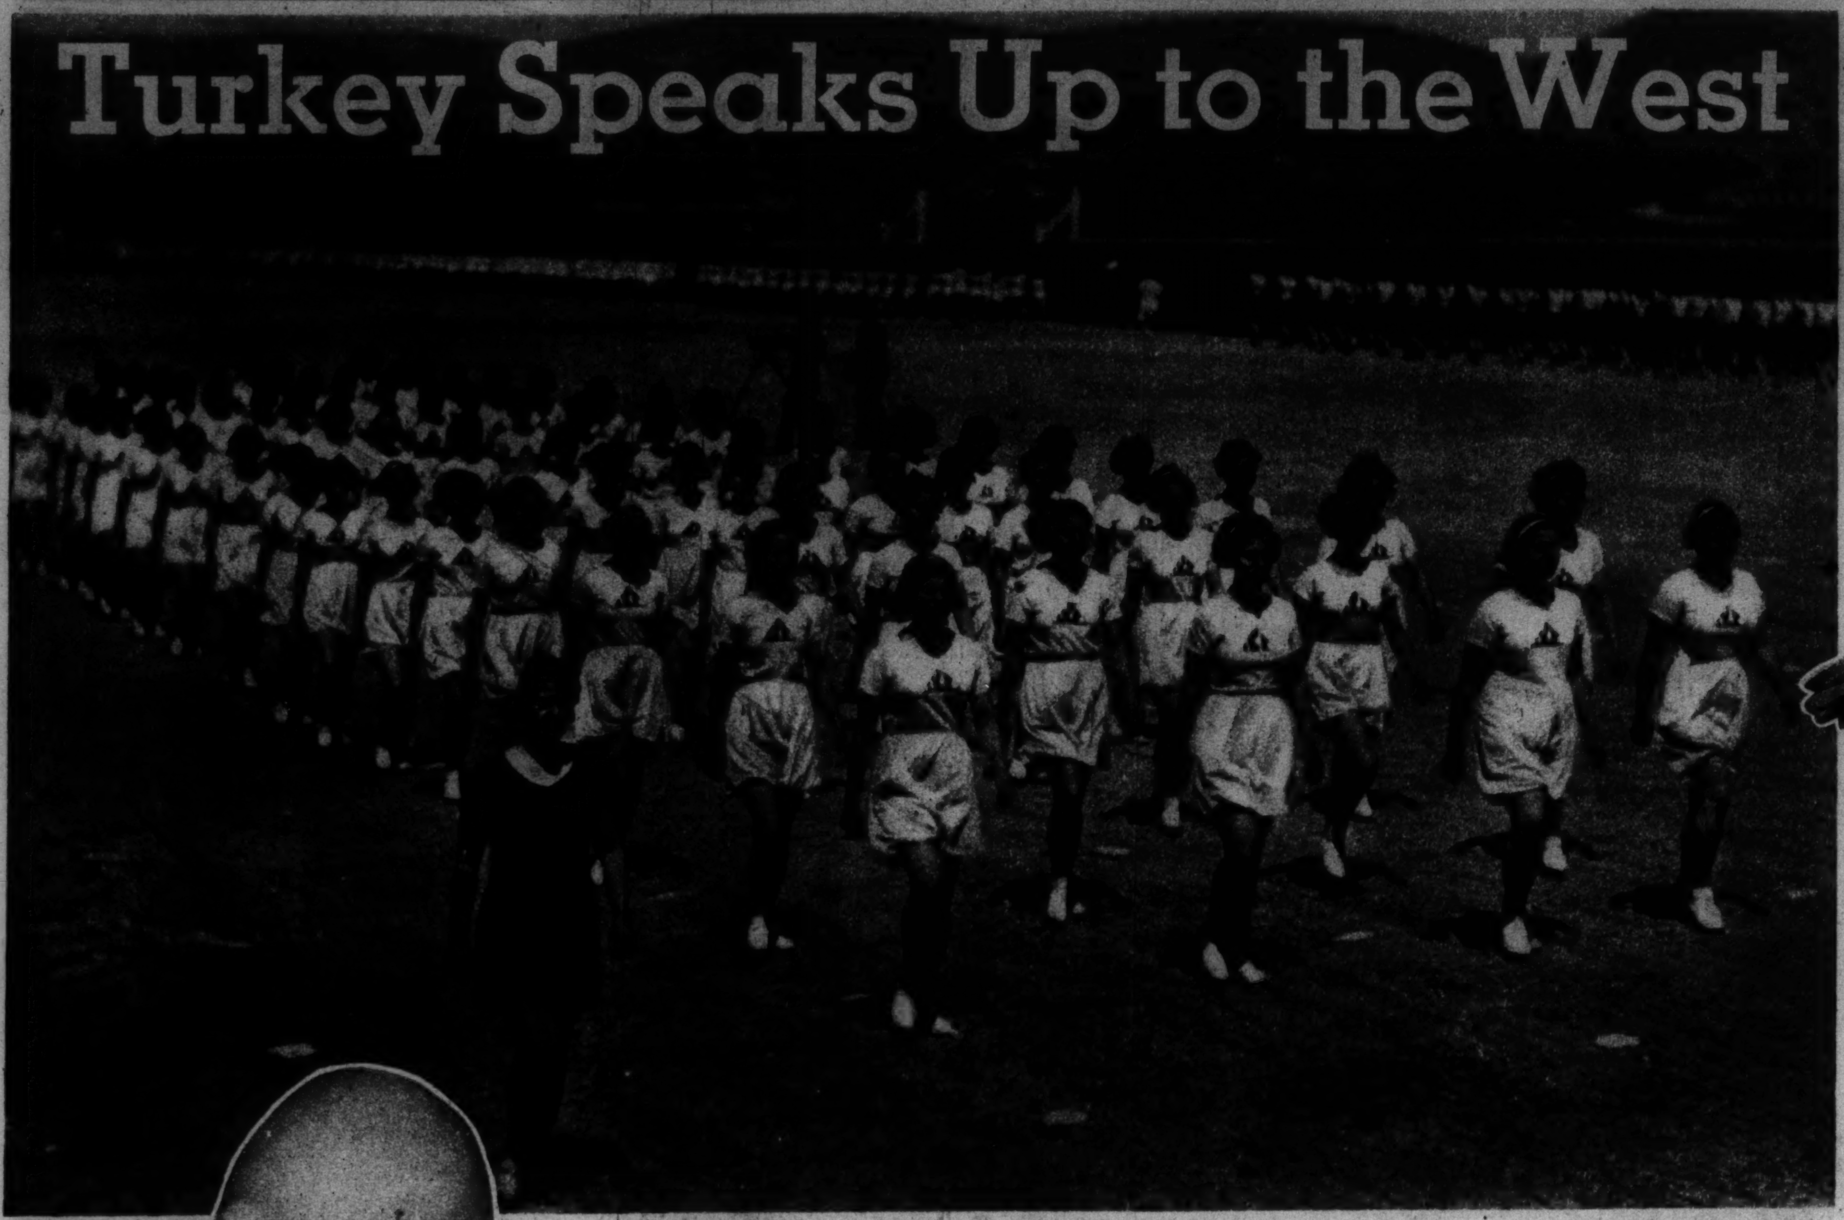
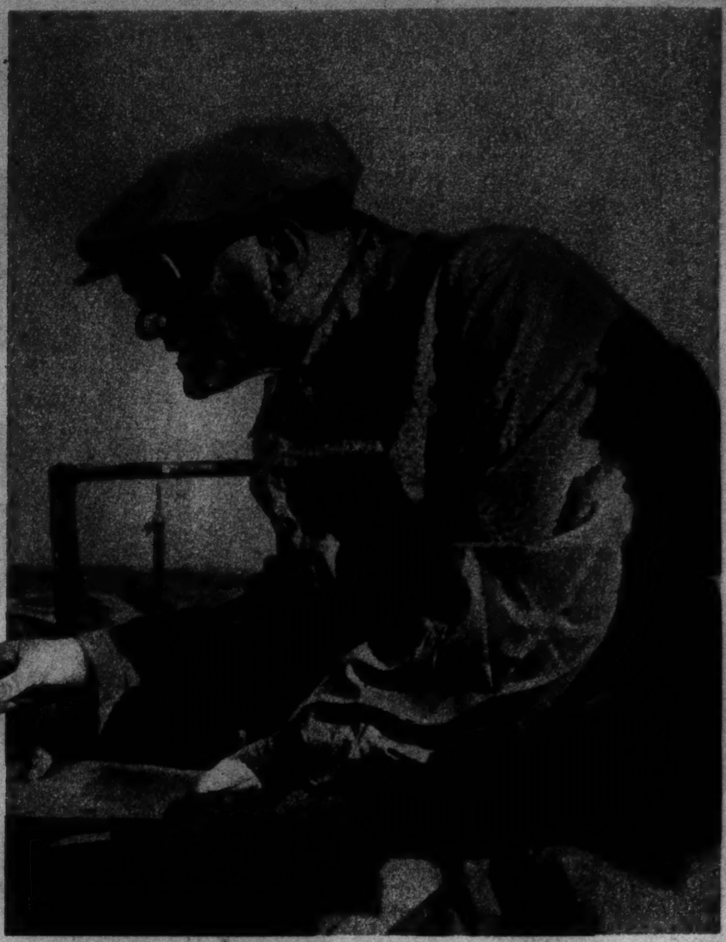
A GENERAL MOTORS VALUE

Turkey Speaks Up to the West

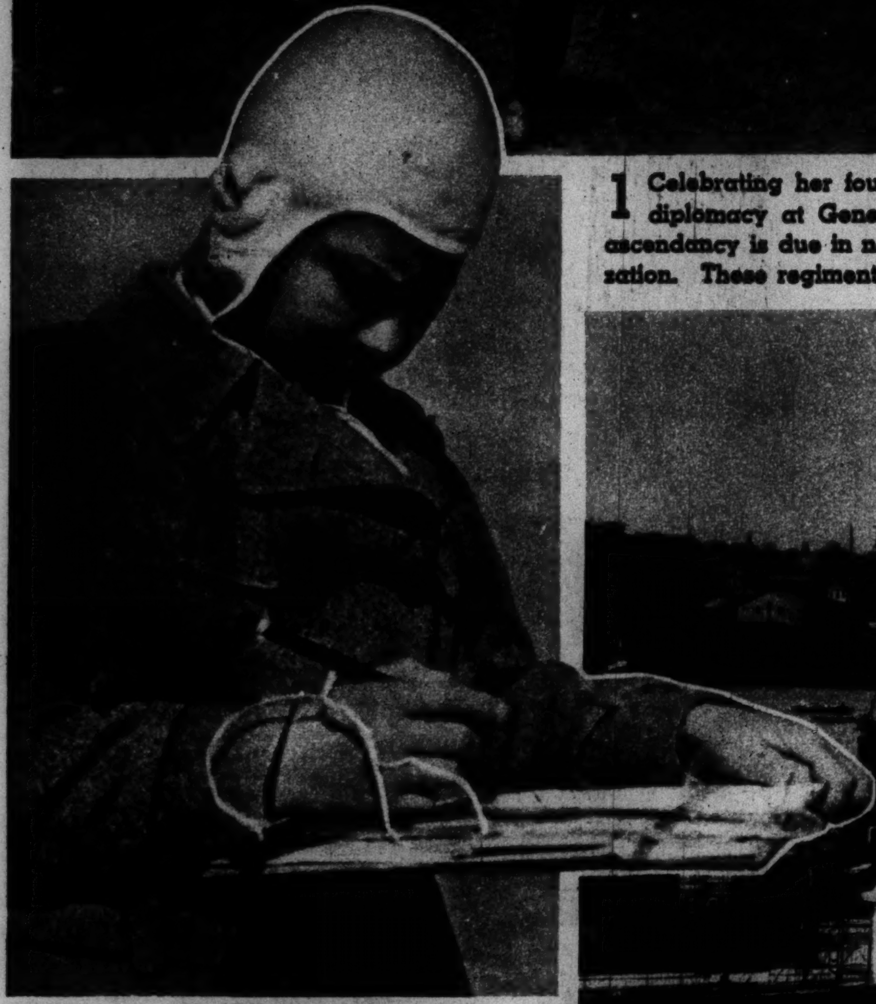


1 Celebrating her fourteenth year as a republic, Turkey has used huge war maneuvers and cagey diplomacy at Geneva to tell the western powers that she is a force to be considered. Turkey's ascendancy is due in no small part to the eagerness of her citizens to adopt the new westernized civilization. These regimented Turkish girls are a far cry from the veiled, secluded women of the old empire.



(Acme photo.)

2 The man behind Turkey's rebirth—Mustapha Kemal Ataturk, president of the republic. Kemal overthrew the fading Ottoman empire in 1922 and a year later won recognition for his own government. For fourteen years he has made over the very mental attitude of his people to fit them for a place in the world.



(Associated Press photo.)

3 Symbolic of the new Turkey, Sabiha Guekchen, adopted daughter of Kemal, said to be the only woman flight lieutenant in the world, led Turkey's recent military pageant. She wears a flying medal for bravery in actual warfare.

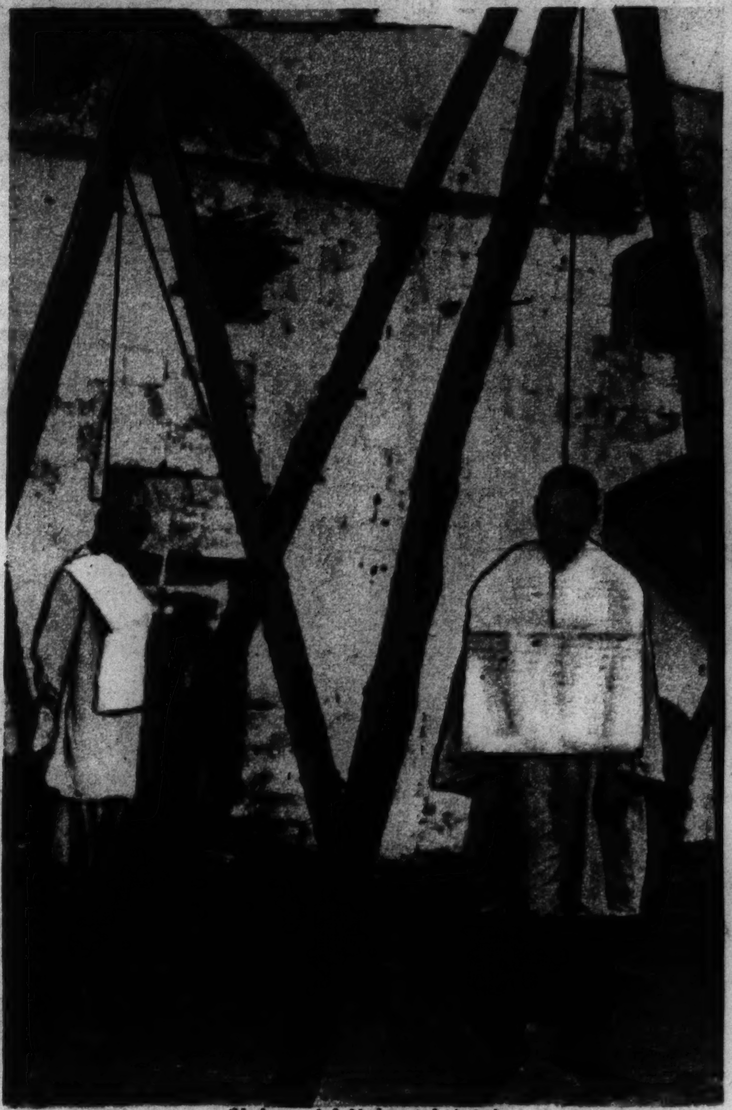
4 Galata bridge at Istanbul. Changing the name of the city from Constantinople was one of Kemal's moves to awaken national consciousness in Turkish hearts. By re-establishing the city's ancient name he wiped out another vestige of occidental rule on the Bosporus.



(Underwood & Underwood photo.)

5 Turkey has quick punishment for traitors and internal foes. The criminal's offenses are written on a paper sheet and placed over his shoulders. Then the man is hanged in public. During his revolution Kemal once executed forty persons who opposed his edict that hats should be worn instead of fezzes.

6 The opening of a fashionable beach resort at Istanbul recently typifies the new freedom of Turkish women. Kemal shattered precedent in 1923 when he invited women to mingle with men at a state banquet. That is a bronze bust of Kemal behind the bathers.

7 Turkey's coming of age has not been peaceful. Here police with fixed bayonets hold back a crowd near the Bulgarian consulate in Istanbul during a demonstration following the desecration of a Turkish cemetery in Bulgaria by Bulgarian students. Kemal, who won his power by joining the rebellion he had been sent to put down in 1919, used force to oust the sultan and the puppet caliph. He defeated Greece in 1922. His daughter Sabiha won her medal during one of the many Kurd uprisings.

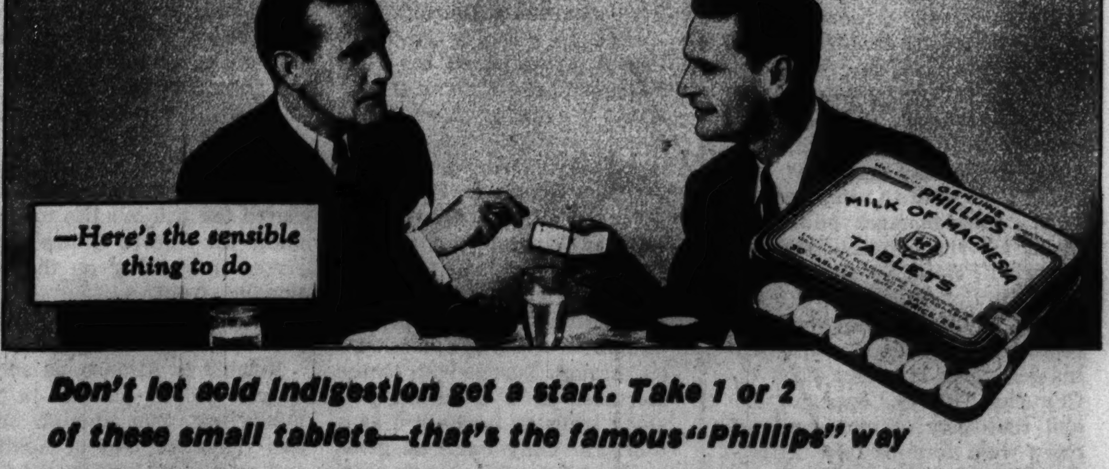
"CARRY YOUR ALKALIZER WITH YOU"



Don't let acid indigestion get a start. Take 1 or 2 of these small tablets—that's the famous "Phillips" way

When you have "acid indigestion" the longer you let it go the worse it gets. That's why, for quick relief, many doctors advise you to alkalize the instant trouble starts, with Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

The only way to do this is carry your alkalizer with you. That's what thousands do now that genuine Phillips' comes in tiny, peppermint flavored tablets — in a flat tin for pocket or purse.

Then you are always ready. Use this way.

Take 2 Phillips' tablets — equal in "alkalizing" effect to 2 teaspoonfuls of liquid Phillips' from the bottle. At once you feel "gas," nausea, "overcrowding" from hyper-acidity begin to ease. "Acid headaches," "acid breath," over-acid stomach are corrected at the source. This is the quick way to ease your own distress — avoid offense to others.

Try this method accepted by doctors generally — especially if you now are using less natural remedies. You'll think this way is marvelous.

Be sure to ask for Phillips' — thus you get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia — either in tablet or liquid form — known throughout the world for its fast action.

A Sky Battle Is Relived

Friendship Grew Out of Fight

By WAYNE THOMIS

Maj. C. A. McElvain. vanquished.

Prolog

THIS is one of those strange true stories of air fighting during the World war. Each of the characters tells his own side of the combat. One is Maj. C. A. McElvain, now commanding officer of the 108th observation squadron, 33d division aviation, Illinois National Guard, based at Chicago airport. The other is Maj. Fred Fleischer, an ace in the imperial German air forces during the World war, now a member of the German air police at Tempelhof airport, Berlin.

At the time they met over German-held territory in August, 1918, both were first lieutenants in their respective air corps. McElvain was a flight commander in the 27th quadron, 1st pursuit group, A. E. F. Fleischer, already an ace, was with the 17th pursuit squadron in his army.

At the time of this combat Fleischer was flying a Fokker D-7 biplane, one of the best pursuit ships of the war. McElvain's mount was a Nieuport single-seater, a type of ship which the French had by that time abandoned as obsolete. As Fleischer himself said later, this shifted the odds rather strongly in his favor.

The story is printed with the permission of the Illinois Guardsman, the National Guard magazine, and of First Lieutenant Monro McCloskey, adjutant of the 108th observation squadron.

• • •

Major McElvain speaking:

In late June, 1918, the 1st pursuit group, of which my squadron, the 27th, was a unit, moved from Toul, France, to Chateau Thierry, where the hardest aerial fighting of the war was about to take place.

For several weeks before the morning in August when I met Fred Fleischer the going had been tough. The fragment of our squadron that remained that morning was sent to escort two planes from the 1st observation squadron on a mission to photograph an area twenty-five miles in German territory. To impress us with the importance of the mission, each pilot was given a written order reading, "You will stand by your escort or fall in the effort."

Our intelligence section had reported that the Germans had massed their air force back of Chateau Thierry, opposite us, and that they outnumbered us more than four to one. Often they traveled in squadrons of twenty-four or more.

Out of our normal strength of twenty-four planes we were able to muster only eleven this day for what we knew was to be a desperate dash into enemy territory for information.

Jerry Vasconcelles, the commander of C flight, always cheerful, afraid of nothing, and always talking about how scared he was, was assigned to escort one of the observation ships with five planes and I was assigned to the other six, one of which later dropped out with engine trouble.

As we were preparing to start after reading the "do or die" order, Jerry tried to encourage me by saying, "Mac, if this war keeps on some one will get hurt." We agreed that regardless of our orders we would watch out for each other, and if one should be attacked by superior numbers the other would bring help—and so we started.

The ships in Jerry's group climbed faster than ours and crossed the lines about ten minutes before us, and, of course, higher. They were soon out of sight.

At 20,000 feet our photo plane headed into Germany. We flew on and on through the bright morning air, straight into enemy territory. When we were over Braisne I saw a fight east of us and about 1,500 feet lower.

I remembered my promise to Jerry, but the last I had seen of him his flight was higher than we were. This scrap was lower and too far away to identify the planes. I couldn't be sure then that it was Jerry. To leave our escort would be so serious that I wouldn't do it for anything less than to help Jerry, if he needed it.

So I hesitated, and while I hesitated my mind was made up for me.

Out of the sun, diving on our little formation, came a swarm of Fokkers. I was too busy and no doubt also too scared to count them, but it has been reliably reported since that there were approximately thirty-five German planes surrounding our flight.

Fortunately their attack centered on our formation instead of on the photographic plane. Every member of my formation was game to the end, but they went down one by one until finally I was alone.

Strangely, instead of being more scared (if that could have been possible), I began to feel a certain confidence. My little plane could turn quicker than the heavier Fokkers, and their numbers were their own disadvantage, because they got in each other's way. There were planty of targets offered, and I did my best, but it was hard to keep an eye on one plane long enough to tell if it really went down.

I was sure of only one. By now I was ready and anxious to go home, but couldn't get away from the Fokkers, because they were as fast if not faster in level flight and could dive much faster.

I had to depend on maneuvering, and finally some lucky turn did slip me out of their group. Finding myself free, I started home. The photo plane had started immediately for the lines and I had long before lost sight of it. I wasn't just sure of where I was, but I was firmly convinced that the vicinity was unhealthy.

• • •

I have never known just how this next thing happened. Just when I thought that I had a clear track ahead of me I found myself suddenly among Fokkers again. I must have stupidly blundered into another bunch while looking back at those I had left.

This gang was different. More by accident than design I found my sights on one in the first scramble. I fired and he went down.

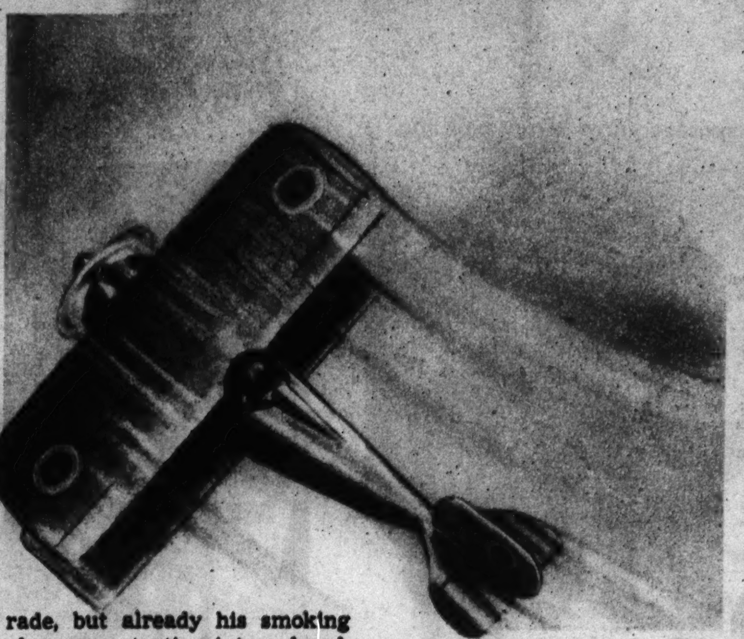
Maj. Fred Fleischer speaking:

Cloudless blue overhead, scorching heat down below—otherwise a beautiful summer's day—that was Aug. 1, 1918. Pursuit squadron 17 had just received orders to start for Soissons, where the enemy planes were dotting the skies, and so with somewhat of a joyful spirit, because we were heading for colder regions, we climbed into our Fokkers.

Today we were more confident than ever. Flying five in a line, I took my usual place to the immediate left of the leader's plane, which was piloted by Lieutenant Schuster. Flying at an altitude of 4,500 meters (about 14,000 feet), gracefully holding our positions in the sky above Balatre, east of Reye, we were heading for the front. Suddenly something happened.

Without any warning whatsoever, an enemy plane streaked out upon us and with lightning speed singled out the leader's plane, swung boldly near him, and fired. Instantly I realized that, although I was free from any immediate danger, I wanted to help my less fortunate comrade, but already his smoking plane was starting into a dreadful spin. What followed is indelibly fixed in my memory.

"In spite of everything I could do he got nearer and nearer behind me." Drawing of a Fokker (top) and a Nieuport in a dog fight.



Major McElvain:

Then, as if by arrangement, the others got out of the way and left the leader (Fleischer) to take care of me. And how thoroughly he did it! How he could fly! I tried everything I knew, but nothing was good enough. In spite of everything I could do he got nearer and nearer behind me.

I could hear his bullets going by me. Then I felt them coming into the ship—a series of thuds in the motor—then silence. My engine was dead. I had been done for in fair combat by a better man than I.

Major Fleischer:

When my comrade went down I pointed both my guns at the enemy and fired, forcing him to use me fora target. But in order to get out of my firing line my opponent, no other than McElvain, who was to become my friend later, pulled up his plane so that he stood almost vertically over my machine.

His maneuvering to gain height would have been successful had not my good Fokker performed so admirably. With complete ease my machine followed that jump. My propeller almost stuck to McElvain's plane, so closely did I pursue him. In this way I could aim well and shoot continuously for a length of time.

McElvain tried hard to get rid of me, but I had made up my mind to hang around to the finish. Belt on belt we circled about each other, and at times the world seemed to be standing on its head. A wild hunting fever came over me, gripping me in a desire I had never known before.

At about 300 to 500 meters (an altitude of about 1,200 feet) high I made an about-face curve. Pulling my machine up, I had enough time to aim and fire. Then McElvain did something I did not understand. He gave himself an opening. I immediately got forty to fifty meters behind him and followed, with my machine guns well aimed at him and every fiber of my being torn with a final madness to bring down my enemy with one series of gunfire.

I saw—and I thank the Lord that this did happen in the very last moment—that the propeller of McElvain's plane stood still and my enemy was making ready to land.

Major McElvain:

Getting to earth with a dead engine and an enemy on my tail was an experience long to be remembered. I will not burden the story with it, however, except to tell that when I neared the ground and had to slow down and fly straight, preparing to land, Fleischer was able to get directly behind me with his guns trained on the back of my neck.

Expecting any instant that bullets would commence to come into the ship, I could only sit and wait. You may imagine my surprise and relief when instead of firing he dived by me and pulled away with a gallant gesture.

Since there had been no chance to pick a place to land, I had to take whatever was ahead of me. It proved to be a stone fence, and I went upside down into the trees, not hurt but somewhat tangled in the wreckage of a very complete crash.

Major Fleischer:

My brave enemy was defenseless, but he had fought like a hero to the last minute. Now there was only one thing to do, as it would have been for any other German soldier—stop fighting and shake hands with the vanquished.

A few minutes later the plane broke in a small forest. McElvain climbed out unhurt and waved to me in the skies. Undoubtedly his feelings were mingled with joy and sadness. To crash as he had, and yet to have fought so gallantly. Landing none too eagerly, I brought down a plane slightly battered in the wings.

Looking up, I saw McElvain coming toward me. To my surprise and pleasure, he was smiling. Impulsively we clasped hands, still sweating and shaken by our foregoing experience. But we laughed heartily like two old friends after an exciting adventure together.

Epilog

The two men exchanged addresses. The young German lieutenant stayed with his enemy until another air corps officer arrived, because the infantrymen attracted to the scene of the crash wanted to shoot McElvain. Then they parted, Fleischer to return to the fighting, McElvain to go to a prison camp, where he remained to the end of the war, not knowing whether his friendly enemy had survived the bitter air fighting at the end. In 1933 Lieut. Walter G. Baryl, a member of Major McElvain's guard squadron who went to Germany, sought out Fleischer, to find that he was ranking officer in the air police at Berlin. Major Fleischer was overjoyed to have word of Major McElvain, and the two men struck up a correspondence friendship which still lasts.

exercise, he still tends his rose gardens and goes for brisk walks with the children of his second wife, the German Princess Hermine. Mentally still very alert, Wilhelm II. has settled down to his old hobby of Egyptology and his own regular Sunday sermon. The eldest son of the erstwhile crown prince lost grandfather's imperial favor by marrying Dorothy de Salviati, a beautiful student from his Bonner university, a favor not even regained by the birth of his first great-grandchild, Princess Felicite.

The ex-kaiser's hopes were then transferred to the crown prince's second son, Prince Louis Ferdinand, who was for some time a mechanic at the Ford factories in Detroit.

Since the happy-go-lucky Prince Auwi joined the Nazi movement, the doors of the paternal home at Doorn have been closed to him. It was more tragic, however, for the dignified Imperator Rex to see his only sister married to a derelict Russian waiter half her own age.

From Vienna as headquarters Alfonso, once his most Catholic majesty of Spain, travels through Europe with all the alertness of a business man along trails as haphaza*d as a tourist's. Only Paris he gives a wide berth. It is too dangerous a rendezvous for a man with such prominent features and so many sworn enemies!

His queen, stately Victoria Eugenie, moved from the park of Fontainebleu near Paris to the safer confines of Kensington palace in London, where her mother, Princess Beatrice, lives. In her new permanent residence the life-sized portrait of her husband still occupies the place of honor, although they have met only once in recent years. That was to keep vigil at the bedside of their daughter, Princess Torlonia, in Rome.

The mother forgave her first born his morganatic marriage with a Cuban beauty, his divorce and already foundered remarriage with a dentist's daughter, his half-hearted attempts at motor salesmanship, and his more successful career as a night club habitué. She even hurried to New York early this year, when his bleedings, always endangering his life, became very alarming. But the father degraded the one-time prince of the Asturias to a mere count of Covadonga and has since steadfastly refused to have anything more to do with him.

Don Jaime, the healthiest and most intelligent of the Spanish royal children, once a midshipman in the British navy who by marrying Princess Marie-Mercedes patched up the long standing feud with the Bourbon-Sicily branch, is the only hope for a restoration of the ancient throne of Aragon and Castile and . . . of Franco, who recently declared the prince's life too valuable for Spain's future to be risked in fighting on the Nationalist front.

Related to Alfonso, as adept at wire pulling but less in the public eye, Zita, though only two years empress of Austria and queen of Hungary, for almost twenty years now has been concentrating all her energy and all her extensive international family ramifications on regaining either one or the other of these crowns for her eldest son, Otto.

The Emperor Carl died in 1922 on the island of Madeira. He left the empress with eight children whom she brought up, first with Alfonso's help in the Spanish fishing village of Lequieto, and then in the safety of the Flemish castle of Steenockerzeel.

Dark and handsome, Otto passed the normal courses of Louvain university with distinction. So far he has been offered only the freedom of numerous Austrian cities. But he is intelligent and careful and knows that his only chance lies in a growing conviction among Little Entente politicians that a Hapsburg in Vienna may be the lesser of two evils, of which the anschluss with Germany is undoubtedly the worse.

In Kassel, the beautiful South German town, lives Ferdinand of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, once first czar of Bulgaria, He had to cede his dream of making Bulgaria the central power of the Balkans to the Serbs—it was the stake which he paid for siding with the central powers, linking their massive front from the North sea to the Black sea, during the great war.

Ostensibly he occupies himself only with ornithology. But he follows closely the career of his son, Boris, who is making out of his kingship, through incessant hard work, a great heritage for tiny Prince Simeon, named after Trnovo, the ancient capital of what was once a Bulgarian empire.

Afghanistan, least civilized of all the independent states of the world, could not stand King Amanullah's western injections and bundled him out, hardly back from an amazing European gala tour. The few literate brigand chiefs who seemed to have been left behind by oversight had grown jealous.

Now he and Queen Soyrayah—beautiful as a princess from the Arabian Nights—look after their house property in Rome. They enjoy a good pension, too, for Il Duce considers it handy to have a presentable Asiatic potentate, still in his early 40s, about.

"the shadow of God on earth."

Kemal Ataturk gave him 500 pounds and six hours to leave Constantinople. The time was just sufficient to book seats on the Orient express and the money sufficed for fares as far as Montreux. There, an honorable Swiss hotel keeper was kept worried to death for some months about the bill of his imperial majesty, his sixteen children, not to mention his four wives and his elaborate suite. His son, Jah, however, married the daughter of the nizam of Hyderabad and today Abdul Medjid thrives in peace and security in his villa near Nice, where, immaculately dressed from his red fez to his white spats, he writes poetry and plays the violin.

Small and elegant, though getting squarish, ex-King Prajadhipok of Siam lives near Virginia Water, England's beauty spot. He refused to return to Bangkok, so modernized that it would no longer recognize the sovereign's unrestricted right of life and death over all his subjects.

Fresh in our memory is the tragic figure of aristocratic, sad looking, dark cloaked, and slender Haile Selassie, until recently king of kings and emperor of Ethiopia. Though living modestly at Bath—his daughter a nurse in a London hospital and his young son, the duke of Harar, at a boarding school in the south of England—he had recently to sell his plate at a London auction.

Most tragic of all royal exiles is ex-Queen Louise of Saxony, who once as "Princess Terrible" made all European chancelleries wag their tongues, when she ran away from her reigning husband with the Italian composer, Toselli, only to leave him later.

She now lives in the Brussels suburb of Ixelles, a dignified, gray haired Countess Montignoso, who does her own shopping every morning. She went once more to Florence, when Toselli lay dying in 1926, and the writer of the immortal Serenade passed away with the hand of his royal lover in his.

Their son now and then visits his mother and an earlier royal son who changed his style of H. R. H. Crown Prince George of Saxony into that of the scholarly Berlin Jesuit, Father Georg von Sachsen, S. J.

Among the exiles of the blood royal a whole class of pretenders has sprung up.

In St. Brice near Dinard lives 60 year old Grand Duke Cyril of Russia, heir of the slender hopes of the Romanoffs, whose son, Vladimir, is consequently dutifully styled "czarevitch" by every true White Russian.

Both the rival families for the nonexistent throne of France live in Belgium. Wealthy Prince Napoleon, 23 year old son of Princess Clementine of Belgium, grandson of King Leopold II., is the hope of a rapidly dwindling body of Bonapartists. But more chance, if any, have the royalists, with the Duc de Guise as head of the Orleans family. His son, "Son Altessa Royal Monseigneur le Comte de Paris," runs his enterprise to regain the throne of France as an up-to-date business from the Manoir d'Anjou, a veritable beehive of activity.

For Beauty, Be Healthy

Modern Salon Stresses Proper Exercise

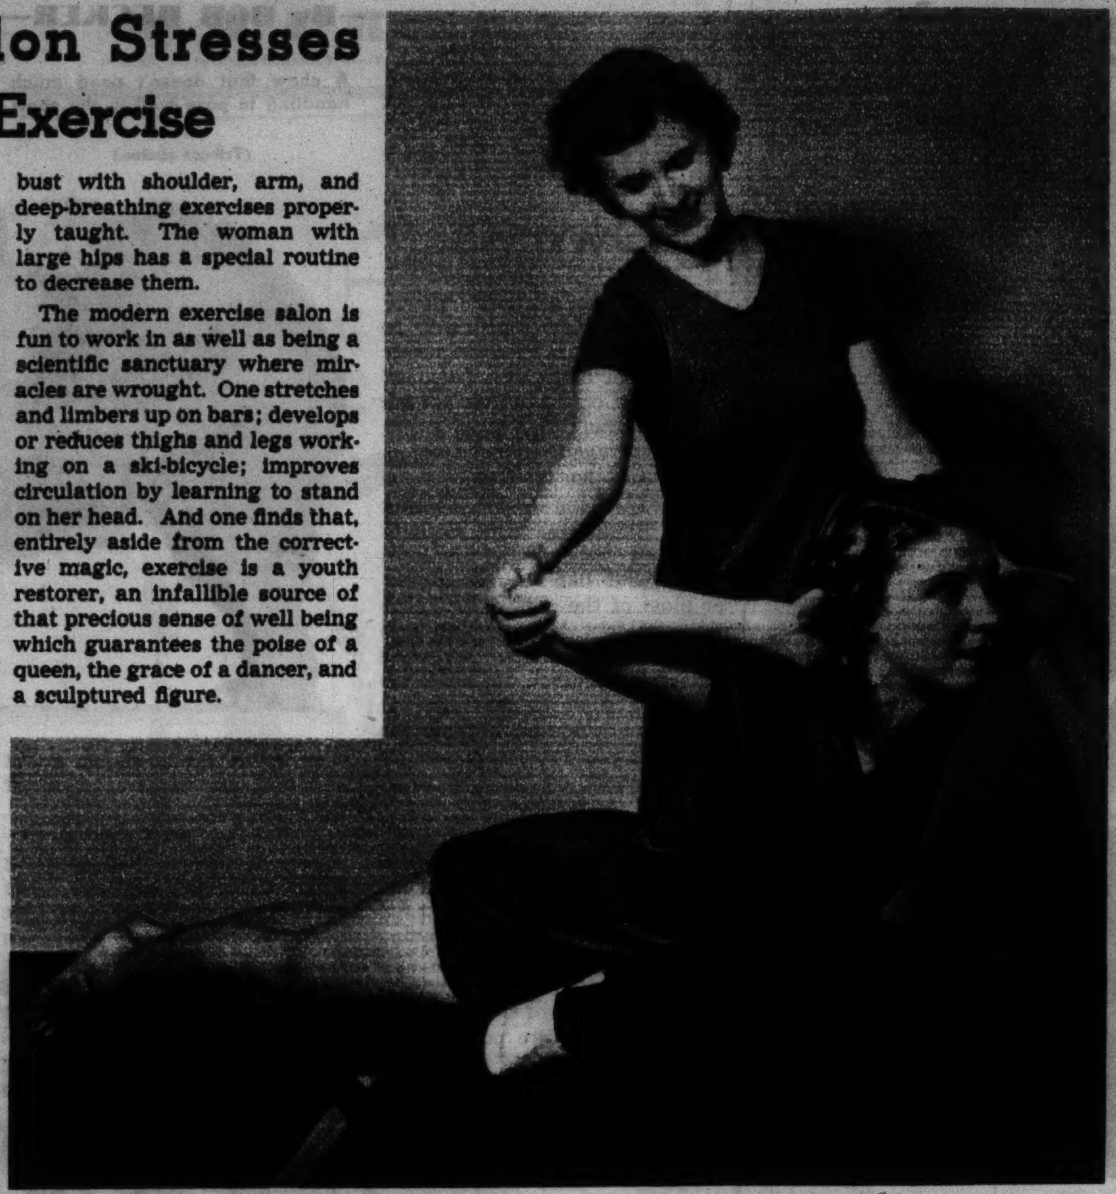
By ELEANOR NANGLE

"MODERN beauty," said an authority recently, "is not an overlay of cosmetics, not a veneer of make-up, but intelligent coöperation with nature and science to develop a woman's finest natural assets."

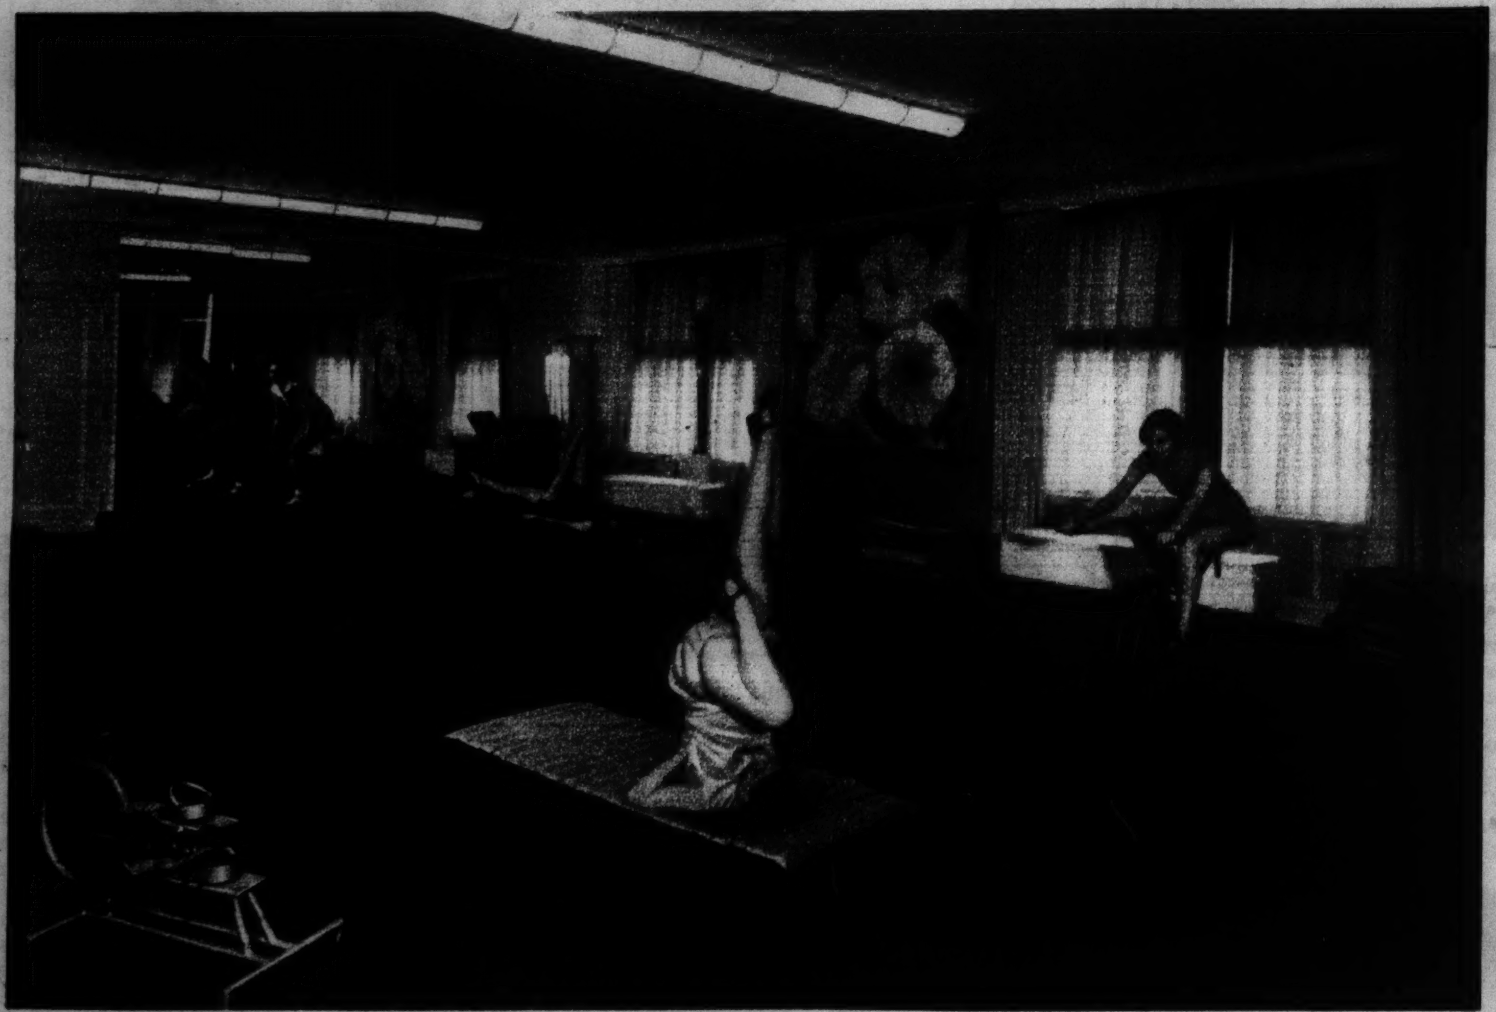
It's the truth. The day of the superficial approach to the eternal quest for beauty is over. The beauty specialist is now the first to declare that beauty springs from health. And the beauty authorities are making good health fashionable. Physicians have been preaching exercise for women for decades, but it wasn't until the beauty specialists took up the cry, pointing out that poise, perfection of figure, and even beauty of complexion were its fruits, that women turned seriously to calisthenics.

The exercise room of a beauty salon is apt now to be the busiest spot in the place. At one local salon women sign up for exercise courses either singly or in classes of four. All routines, of course, must be individualized. One woman finds development exercise the solution to the weight-gaining problem; another, who wishes to reduce, will learn that the proper type of exercise is the best means of sculpturing the silhouette. And then always there are the special problems. The flat-chested woman can—and nowadays does—develop her bust with shoulder, arm, and deep-breathing exercises properly taught. The woman with large hips has a special routine to decrease them.

The modern exercise salon is fun to work in as well as being a scientific sanctuary where miracles are wrought. One stretches and limbers up on bars; develops or reduces thighs and legs working on a ski-bicycle; improves circulation by learning to stand on her head. And one finds that, entirely aside from the corrective magic, exercise is a youth restorer, an infallible source of that precious sense of well being which guarantees the poise of a queen, the grace of a dancer, and a sculptured figure.



The salon director teaches a back and neck exercise that can work two ways, depending on the individual. This can aid bust development; it can also be followed to reduce fat between the shoulders.



A typical scene in an exercise salon. The nymph on the mat is courting slimness and suppleness, the bicycles are magic aids to reduction, and working on a board with head lower than the feet does wonders for faulty circulation.

The woman standing is doing a waistline slimmer, with upper body weight pulling on waist and hips. The girl on the mat is acquiring beautiful balance and strengthening her back muscles.

You Stuff and You Puff for These Cheese Dishes

These artichokes were stuffed with shrimp in cheese sauce and served hot.

Puffed eggs on toast with grated cheese are an attractive luncheon dish.

By MARY MEADE

To cook the puffed eggs on toast, first separate 4 eggs, leaving each yolk whole. Add ¼ teaspoon salt to the whites; beat until stiff. Pile the beaten egg whites on 4 slices of buttered toast and make a depression in the middle of each. Drop an egg yolk into each depression and bake in a 325-degree oven for 20 minutes, or until the egg whites are puffed and lightly browned. Sprinkle generously with grated cheese, serve hot.

To prepare the stuffed artichokes, make a cream sauce with 3 tablespoons butter, 4 tablespoons flour, and 1½ cups milk. Add 1½ cups grated American cheese and stir until the cheese is melted. Add 1½ cups shrimps or cubed cooked chicken, as preferred, and season.

Cut a slice from the top of each of four artichokes and soak the vegetables in cold salted water. Cook until tender in boiling salted water. Invert to drain. Remove the "choke" from each and spread the leaves. Fill centers with the hot creamed mixture.

NEXT WEEK: Fried Chicken.

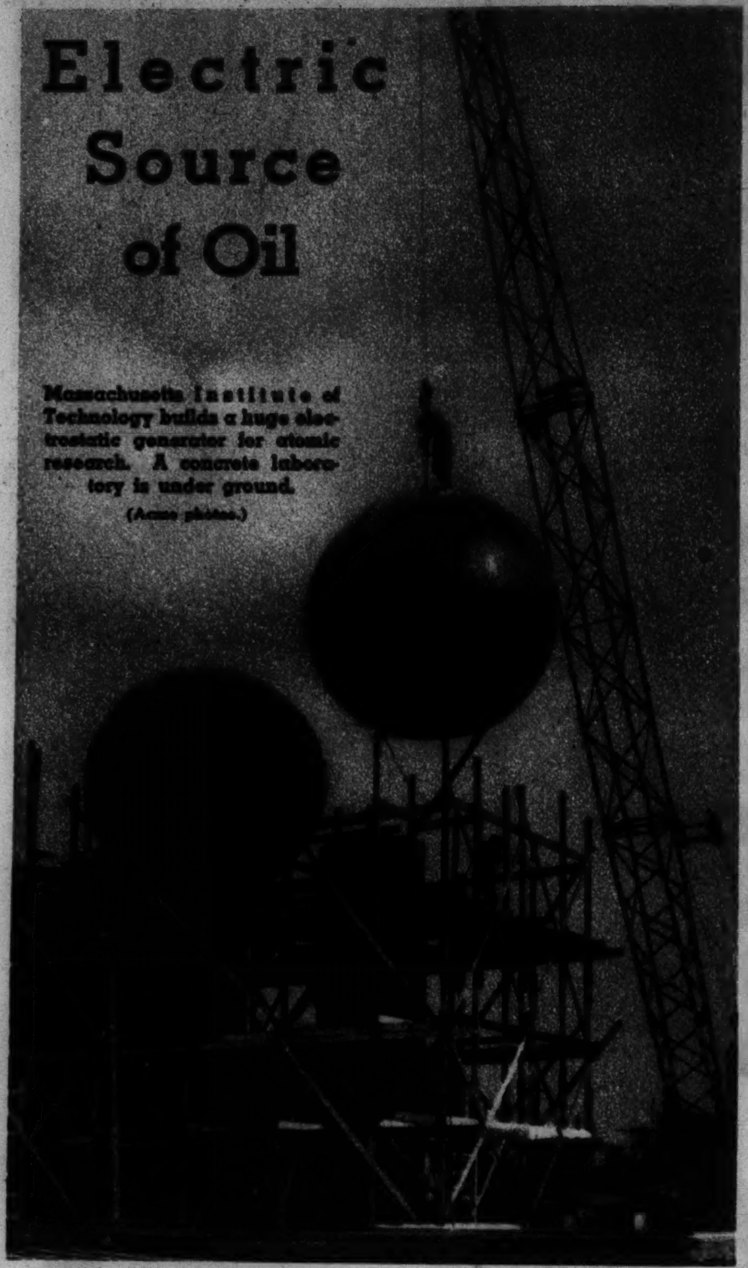
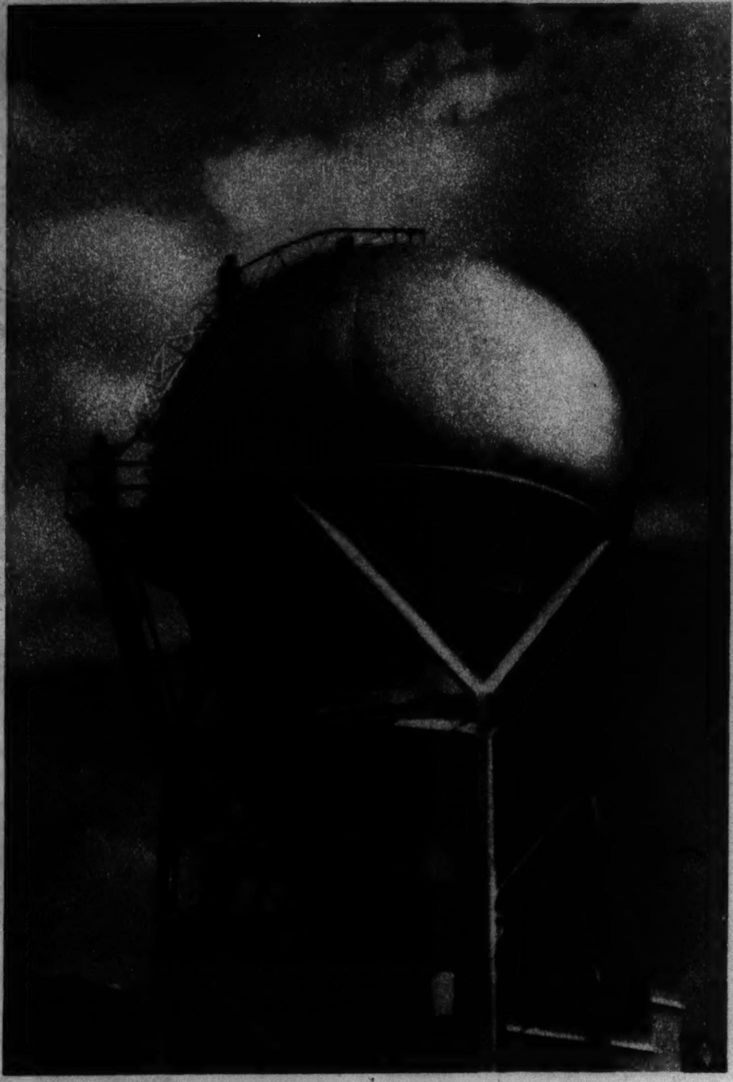
Electric Source of Oil



Massachusetts Institute of Technology builds a huge electrostatic generator for atomic research. A concrete laboratory is under ground.

(Acme photos.)



The huge Westinghouse atom smasher takes shape near Pittsburgh. In this pear-shaped dome is a generator that will bombard targets of various materials with submicroscopic particles shot at a speed of 100 million miles an hour.

THE best source of gasoline, fuel oil, and lubricants is petroleum. If petroleum deposits are lacking the next best way of obtaining these products is by combining hot compressed hydrogen with coal or with carbon monoxide in the presence of certain special catalysts.

A recent British patent describes another method which produces the oil by the chemical action of an electric current. When a current is passed through a conducting solution something is oxidized at one electrode and something else is reduced at the other. Now combination with hydrogen, such as is used to convert coal or carbon monoxide into petroleumlike products, is a type of reduction.

Moreover, when a current is passed through a water solution hydrogen is frequently produced at the reducing electrode; in fact, the production of hydrogen itself is a form of reduction.

According to the inventors of this process, coal is combined with this electrolytic hydrogen at the moment of its formation. The hydrogen is produced by passing a current through a solution of sulphuric acid or of caustic soda. Hydrogen is evolved at the cathode or reducing electrode, which is a metal plate covered with small projections. A stream of powdered coal is injected against the cathode so that its flows down over its surface, its rate of descent impeded by the projections. It is claimed that part of the hydrogen combines with the coal, partly converting it into an oil product resembling petroleum.

Electricity, which Dr. Beck says has been applied experimentally to oil production, is used here to run a model of the Boulder dam electric furnace. This replica will produce a temperature of 5,000 degrees.

The process probably will not revolutionize the oil industry. It is questionable whether the amount of petroleum so produced can equal the cost of the electric power used to make it.

Fur Coats May Grow on Stalks

COSTLY appearing fur made from cats is an old story. Fur made from cattails of the plant variety is something new. The latter idea is being studied by a group of American investigators, and the research shows considerable promise of future value.

The cattail is a thickly packed mass of short, straight fibers growing in a furry cylinder out of a central stalk. The first step in converting this to imitation fur consists of dipping the cattail into rubber latex, which dries to a sheet of rubber in which the ends of the cattail fibers are embedded.

This is slit open and the stalk removed. The result is a flat sheet of rubber with the cattail fiber sticking out of it like fur. The rubber is then stuck to canvas to provide strength and the fiber dyed to resemble any type of fur.

Cattail fur has one undeniable advantage over animal furs. Consisting of cellulose, it is absolutely and permanently mothproof, since the moth larvæ can eat only animal tissue.

India Makes Roads of Molasses

THE time when roads could be built from the soil of the regions over which they were laid has long since passed. While gravel, tar, and concrete remain the mainstays in road construction, a number of highly unusual ingredients have been introduced in recent years. For example, salt has been tried with considerable success as a binder for clay and gravel roads in both the United States and Canada.

Perhaps the most astonishing material to have been suggested is molasses, which has actually been tested recently in India. When mixed with the clay and gravel of the road's surface the molasses aids the mixture in retaining the original moisture, so that the surface does not wear away under heavy usage.

The molasses so used is the inedible wast of refineries. The roads are said to be good.

Dog Shows Fun for the Owners

A chow that doesn't need much handling to pose well in the show ring.

DOG SHOWS are becoming more popular in America. Cities that never had kennel clubs now boast of flourishing organizations and an annual show. We visited a city some time ago that was developing enthusiasm for a show to be held next spring. At the meeting which we attended we couldn't help but notice how the local kennel club had brought together most of the service organizations, civic leaders, and outstanding sportsmen. All were working together to hold the first dog show in that city. It was an illustration of how the cause of purebred dogs can attract people of varying interests.

The dog owner who never competes in a show sometimes must wonder what there is about the dog shows to interest so many people and cause the spending of so much time and money. But a glance behind the scenes of the whole game of showing dogs tells why they are popular and what they are doing to help the cause of purebred canines. To sum it up in a few words, the hold of the dog show doubtless is found in the keen competition for honors, the joy of owning the "best dog," and the thrill of walking into a ring and having your dog come out of it with ribbons or trophies or both. As one dog owner who has entered dogs in shows and won (sometimes!) we know the thrill of dog show competition and the fun of winning. Because it is such fun and because you always learn more about dogs of all breeds at a show we always urge owners of dogs to not only attend shows but compete in them.

Showing a dog isn't the most important thing about dog ownership, nor is it necessary to put a dog in the show ring to get the most out of a dog. But shows for dogs are a lot of fun (if you know how to smile when you don't win), and they also have a definite value in the training and education of your dog. Sometimes we think that the way a dog benefits from the training and grooming that he gets before and in a show are worth almost as much as the ribbons or other prizes that the owner can take home after winning in a show.

There isn't any doubt that rivalry in the show ring (and also the field trial) raises the quality of dogs. The constant striving to produce a dog that is closest to the standard of the breed, that is decidedly handsome, clean cut in conformation, and intelligent, makes for better dogs everywhere. Then, too, we must credit the dog show with maintaining public interest in dogs. Without a doubt many people attending a dog show see the breed of dog they would like to own and go out and purchase a puppy of that breed. Thus shows are a definite help to the cause of purebred dogs.

As far as the owner is concerned, we believe that showing a dog helps one to learn more about the breed. At least that has been our experience. When you go to a show you can talk with other breeders, many of them noted authorities. These contacts give one much information about dogs in general. They keep you informed about happenings in the dog world. You pick up many tips on dog care and grooming, too.

Ready for the judge to come up and look him over. Martin Hogan is demonstrating how a spaniel is posed in the ring. The dog is Bob Becker's Clumber spaniel, Carnforth Tobias.

Although all of us who own dogs are bound to learn a lot about them if we take them to shows and mix with the outstanding breeders of the country, the dog also is benefiting by the show even though he doesn't win a ribbon. Because a show dog must be under control, know obedience, and have manners in the ring, it means that the pup has to go through a certain amount of schooling before the show starts. This schooling, or training, is of great value to any pup. Its effect endures long after the show, because obedience training is bound to influence the conduct of your dog throughout its life.

If you have a good looking dog and want to show him we advise first a visit with a professional handler. He'll show you how a dog is posed, how it is walked on a leash, and explain the different classes in which one may enter a dog. If you are not entering a dog in a show, by all means go to a show anyway because it's a great opportunity to see beautiful dogs of many breeds, watch handlers groom dogs for the ring, and learn about all breeds.

DOG NOTES

There are many dog names commonly misspelled. For example, you see the name Samoyede spelled "Samoyed" as well as with the final "e." We find the word wheaten commonly spelled "wheaton," which is incorrect. As far as we know there is no such word in the dictionary, although an Illinois town has the name Wheaton. Wheaten Scotties apparently have come to stay, so we are going to see a lot of the word to describe this color in the Scottish terrier breed.

What effect will the introduction of English cocker spaniels have on the American cocker? This question is being discussed by sportsmen who use cockers in hunting upland game and retrieving. The English cocker is a larger, more rugged dog than our American types, weighing up to 27 pounds as compared with the American limit of 24 pounds.

In the show ring there are separate classes for the English and American cockers, but in field trials these dogs frequently will compete against each other to show the advantages or disadvantages of the two types. Some sportsmen believe the larger dog will show up well in field trials where the cover is heavy and hard to work. If this proves true, we undoubtedly will see more English cockers imported.

A Painter of Children

W. Sergeant Kendall's painting, "Psyche," is reproduced on page one of the picture section of this issue.

The work in question, with its beautiful blending of soft colors and skilfully drawn figure, is considered one of his outstanding achievements and frequently is reproduced to illustrate his type of art, but the intensity of the little subject's gaze has been criticized, how justly is only for the competent judges of paintings to say.

Kendall was born in Spuyten Duyvil (now part of New York City) on Jan. 20, 1869. By the time that he had attained the age of 14 he was painting and modeling with Thomas Eakins in Philadelphia. The age of 19 found him in Paris, working in the Academie Julian, from which he soon went to the Ecole des Beaux Arts. So rapid was his rise that in 1891 he achieved honorable mention in the Paris Salon. Two years later, at the World's Columbian exposition in Chicago, he was awarded a medal. From that time on his exhibits almost constantly were bringing to him awards of various kinds, gold and silver medals and cash prizes.

W. Sergeant Kendall's painting, "Alison," which won for him the Potter Palmer gold medal and cash award of $1,000 at the Art Institute of Chicago in 1910.

Among his notable awards was that of the Potter Palmer gold medal and $1,000 prize, given at the Art Institute of Chicago in 1910. It was the painting "Alison," inspired by his youngest daughter, of that name (who became Mrs. Edward L. Parker), that won this honor for him. The painting is reproduced on this page.

Kendall is represented in a number of the outstanding art galleries of this country, including the Metropolitan Museum of Art of New York and the Corcoran gallery in Washington, and exhibits of his works have been seen in France, Italy, Germany, and South American countries, as well as in a large number of cities in his native land. From 1913 to 1922 he was dean of the Yale school of fine arts.

In 1896 he married Margaret Weston Stickney of New York City, who obtained a divorce from him in Paris on July 15, 1922. Shortly after this divorce Kendall married Christine Herter of Scarborough, N. Y., a graduate of the Yale school of art. There were three daughters by the first marriage, Elizabeth (Mrs. Pierson Underwood), Beatrice, and the aforementioned Alison. It was when these three were small children playing about their home that their father employed them for models for some of his most striking paintings.

The Inside Story of the Turkish Harem

you left your clothes, which is very slushy from the constant flow of water. Here there is always a good coal fire, especially in winter, to dry several shirts at once, as well as towels for the bathers. When you have sat down the servant washes your feet, and as an act of courtesy you are expected to show your appreciation by placing your right hand on his head and then putting it to your mouth. When you are dressed it is up to you to recompense the servant as you leave, so you go up to the grill where the cashier of the baths has his place and give him what you think fit."

The above account is quite comprehensive and typical except for the fact that it omits any mention of pattens for the feet, they being sandals built on high clogs so as to raise the feet above the floor. Undoubtedly they had not come into use in Bassano's early day.

A harem woman displays the thin veil that complied with custom but revealed the features.

Pattens have several uses. In baths heated from below they are useful in preserving tender feet from the heated marble. They also stop slipping on the wet floor. When I attempted to walk around the marble basin in one of the Brusa baths on bare feet I discovered it was both difficult and risky, but once pattens were worn progress was unhindered. Lastly, they keep you well above all flowing water and far less pure liquids that from time to time pollute the floor. In the royal harem the pattens of the favorite were extremely luxurious, being inlaid with mother of pearl and tortoise shell, with straps studded with pearls and turquoises.

Continuing with what Bassano de Zara has to say about women's baths in the sixteenth century:

"Although men own the baths, they do not do the washing themselves, for, being most particular on this point, they employ women who wash those who come without a slave or servant. But most of the women go in parties of twenty at a time and wash each other in a friendly manner—one neighbor with another, and sister with sister. But it is common knowledge that as a result of this familiarity in washing and massaging women fall in love with each other. . . .

"I will now tell you in what manner the middle-class woman goes to the bath, and how often a week. This type of woman, then, visits the baths, many of them four times, many three times, but every one goes at least once, otherwise she would be known as devoid of delicacy and dirty. But there are two reasons why none would miss going. In the first place, they cannot pray in church unless they have washed, and, secondly, because, as they are otherwise not allowed to go out, it serves as an excuse for leaving the house.

"With this excuse they can do so, saying they are going to visit the baths, when in reality they go elsewhere. It is the custom with Turkish women to have two or three Christian slaves, or slaves who once were Christians but have renounced their faith. On the head of one of these slaves is placed a copper pot. Inside it they put a chemise of cotton which reaches to the ground; even men use them, putting them on as soon as they have washed, instead of a shirt, to draw off all moisture from the flesh and leave the body dry, so that they can put their shirt on top immediately and get dressed.

"They also have a white chemise, clean hose, and as many towels as they want. Then they cover the bowl with a linen cloth embroidered with silk and golden foliage; and they take a handsome fine woven carpet and a beautiful cushion. On arriving at the baths they first spread out the carpet over that provided by the baths, and remove their silk cloaks. The pot is placed on the ground in one of the little rooms, with the base uppermost, so that the mistress can sit on it. And when she has sat on it the slaves start to wash her, standing one on either side.

"When she thinks they have washed her enough she retires to rest in one of the moderately warm rooms, while the slaves wash each other. When they have stayed as long as they wish they put the chemises and other garments back into the basin and go home, paying the same amount as the men. There are some women who take with them a rich repast and eat it at the baths with the appetite that the baths naturally give."

A visitor to Turkey in 1717, Lady Mary Wortley Montagu, corroborates Bassano with an even more vivid description of a women's bath:

"The first sofas were covered with cushions and rich carpets, on which sat the ladies; and on the second, their slaves behind them, but without any distinction of rank by their dress, all being in the state of nature, without any beauty or defect concealed. Yet there was not the least wanton smile or immodest gesture amongst them. They walked and moved with the same majestic grace which Milton describes of our general mother. There were many amongst them as exactly proportioned as ever any goddess was drawn by the pencil of Guido or Titian.

"I was here convinced of the truth of a reflection I had often made, that if it was the fashion to go naked the face would be hardly observed. I perceived that the ladies with the finest skins and most delicate shapes had the greatest share of my admiration, though their faces were sometimes less beautiful than those of their companions. I fancy it would have very much benefited any great artist to see so many fine women naked, in different postures, some in conversation, some working, others drinking coffee or sherbet, and many negligently lying on their cushions while their slaves (generally pretty girls of 17 or 18) were employed in braiding their hair in several pretty fancies In short, it is the women's 'coffee house,' where all the news of the town is told and scandal invented."

There remains but to speak of the Bride's Bath, a ceremony in which a procession of naked virgins plays an important part and one in which a virgin destined for the sultan's bed would go through in very similar manner to that witnessed personally by Lady Montagu, who said of it:

"Those that were or had been married placed themselves around the room on the marble sofas; but the virgins very hastily threw off their clothes and appeared without other ornament or covering than their own long hair braided with pearl or ribbon. Two of them met the bride at the door, conducted by her mother and another grave-faced relation. She was a beautiful maid of about 17, very richly dressed and shining with jewels, but was presently reduced by them to the state of nature. Two others filled silver gilt pots with perfume and began the procession, the rest following in pairs to the number of thirty.

"The leaders sung an epithalamium, answered by the others in chorus, and the two last led the fair bride, her eyes fixed on the ground with a charming affectation of modesty. In this order they marched around the three large rooms of the bath. After having made their tour the bride was again led to every matron around the rooms, who saluted her with a compliment and a present, some of jewels, others pieces of stuff, handkerchiefs, or little gallantries of that nature."

A curious tale is told about Sultan Mahmud I. (1730-'54), who apparently was in the habit of amusing himself with members of the harem in various ways. According to one visitor, one of his little jokes was as follows: Having stationed himself secretly in a window overlooking the baths, he would await the arrival of the girls, who would all be given a chemise according to custom, imagining that they were the same as usual. But the wily sultan had had all the stitches removed and the material tightly glued together. The doors were then locked, and the sultan watched developments as the heat and moisture did their work. Some of the girls laughed with surprise as the dress fell away in pieces, but others were very angry.

The simple, speedy way to ease pain and discomfort of colds

One of the best and quickest ways to relieve the misery of a cold is this: Ease aches and soreness with genuine Bayer Aspirin — if you do not improve at once see your family doctor.

The moment you feel a cold coming on take 2 Bayer tablets. Repeat, if necessary, according to directions on the box.

If you have a sore throat with your cold, crush and dissolve three BAYER tablets in one-third glass of water. Then gargle with this mixture twice.

The Bayer Aspirin you take internally will aid in reducing the fever and pains which usually accompany colds. The gargle will provide almost instant relief from rawness and pain, acting like a local anesthetic on the irritated membrane of your throat.

Try this way. Your doctor, we believe, will endorse it. For it is a quick, effective means of relief. Ask for Bayer Aspirin by the full name at your druggist's — not for "aspirin" alone.

No wonder Libby's Baby Foods are Extra easy to digest!

COPYRIGHT 1937, LIBBY, McNEILL & LIBBY

● They're extra smooth . . . extra fine in texture. That's why Libby's Baby Foods are extra-easy for babies to digest.

And this means a lot to tiny babies. Their little stomachs are not completely developed . . . are very easily upset.

Libby prepares baby's first solid foods in a special way. A special method of homogenization is used that does what the finest sieve or strainer isn't able to do. It completely breaks up the coarse fibers and food cells in vegetables, fruits and cereal . . . releases nourishment so babies can digest it with the very minimum of effort.

Libby's Baby Foods digest so easily, many doctors are recommending starting babies on them as early as three months . . . earlier than strained foods are usually begun. And this early feeding of vegetables adds extra minerals and vitamins which help to build rich blood, firm muscles, strong bodies.

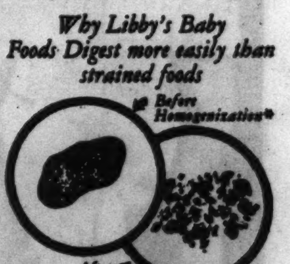
See your doctor regularly about your baby's diet. Your grocer carries Libby's Baby Foods or will be glad to get them for you.

3 FOODS IN EVERY TIN!

Now it's easy to give your baby three vegetables at a single feeding instead of only one! Libby's Baby Foods come in special combinations—three foods are included in every tin, all blended together. This new idea gives baby a variety of minerals and vitamins at one time. There are six of these special Libby combinations. It's handy to order them by number . . .

No. 1 Peas, beets, asparagus tips
No. 2 Pumpkin, tomatoes, string beans
No. 3 Carrots, spinach, peas
No. 4 Cereal combination—whole milk, whole wheat, soy bean meal
No. 5 Prunes, pineapple juice, lemon juice
No. 6 Soup—vegetables, chicken livers, barley

Why Libby's Baby Foods Digest more easily than strained foods



● The food cells in solid foods are completely broken up by Libby's special method of homogenization. Nourishment is set free. No sieve or strainer can do this.

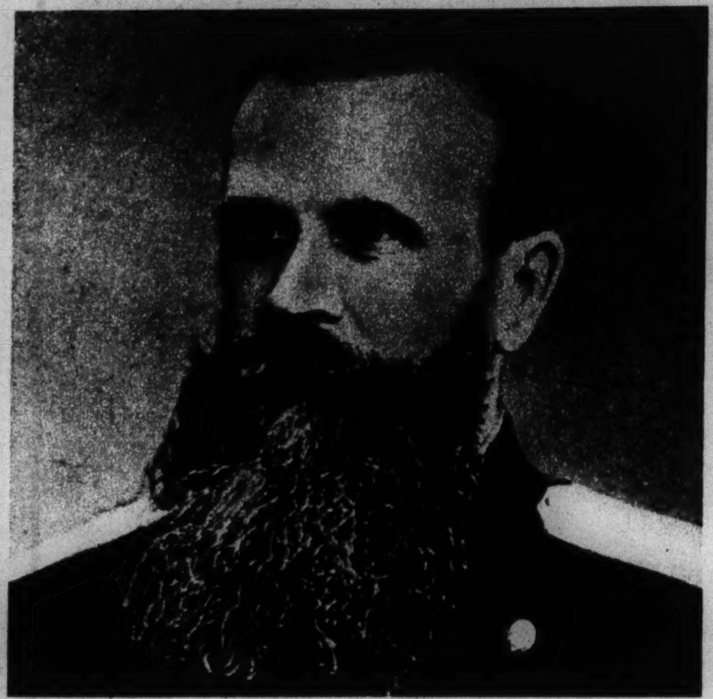
FIELD MARSHAL SIR WILLIAM ROBERTSON, only man ever to rise from British ranks to a field marshal's baton, became quartermaster general of the 1914 expeditionary force to France. In 1915 he was appointed chief of the imperial general staf, but was relieved from that office in 1918. He died in 1933.

GEN. OTTO VON EMMICH led the vanguard of German armies into Belgium in 1914 and laid siege to Liege. Later he won note in Galicia and East Prussia. He died in 1915.

ENVER PASHA, Turkish dictator, promoted himself to minister of war shortly before the outbreak of the World war and led the empire into that conflict on the side of the central powers. He fled Turkey during the debacle of 1918, was killed in 1922 leading a Russian insurrection against the soviets.



GEN. NICHOLAS IVANOV commanded the Russian southwest group of armies during the early triumphs of 1914 in Galicia and through the disasters of 1915. In 1916 he was recalled from the field for staf duties at imperial headquarters.
